DIRECTIONS FOR THE HOME PEDICURE

The time to give yourself a pedicure is immediately after the bath when the flesh surrounding the nails is soft and pliable. Cut the nails straight across or, better still, use a flexible file of high grade steel. Give a final finish with an emery board, for if the edges are the least bit rough they may snag your nylon hosiery. Be careful not to file down at the sides of the nails. The cuticle may thicken there and you'll suffer more discomfort than you would with on your number one enemy.

The cuticle must not be permitted to creep up on the nail fabric. Keep it free by using a cuticle cream, lifting it up with the orangewood stick with small rotary movements.

Use no steel instruments other than the file. Do not try to be a surgeon. Digging into the flesh with manicure scissors, or tweezers seems to be a favorite indoor recreation of some misguided moment, as is cutting corns. Don't! Here's a razor. These habits can lead to infections to which the flesh surrounding finger and toe nails seems particularly susceptible.

If, after using the orangewood stick, you have flushed up little ragged bits of skin, snip them away carefully with curved, needle-point scissors.

Never press down at the base of the nail or you may so injure the matrix that a deformed nail will emerge. Before applying polish always wash away the cuticle cream with warm soap suds and a nail brush, rinse well and dry. If cream prevails your polish will be patchy.

Corns are caused by pressure. If you are afflicted with them it is because your shoes are not the right size or shape. As long as you wear the same shoes you will continue to be tormented with them.

The Jump of Faith

By Mary Moore

If you think of human beings as machines that click on and off with a switch; or, as intricately knit bundles of about 90 elements that automatically function at their owners' will; or, as a mass of proteins and carbohydrates and fats with a few minerals thrown in for good measure—then I can understand why intellectuals probe and analyze and subtleize and psychoanalyze and calculate and philosophize, in search of evolution or alibi why they don't go to church or defend their passion for material possessions.

While human beings are all of those things they also have an extra something which is elusive to unreasoning intellectuals. I call that something faith. And argue, if I am pressed, that that jump into the blue taken in faith, between the provable theories and the unprovable ones, is far safer or to take than the physicists unquestioning acceptance of the atom.

Where did it come from? God. He doesn't know. So even dedicated scientists have to take the "jump of faith."

There are so many homes that you and I visit where the glow of faith and love are missing. Recently in the home of a remote acquaintance of mine was badly burned. The fire started in their beautiful livingroom about 2 a.m. when they were all asleep. All but the dog escaped relatively unharmed. On the telephone I was asking if the damage could be repaired. "Oh, yes—but that living room was our pride and joy," Mrs. Moore. We'll never be able to replace it."

When I hung up the receiver I had a dull ache inside. Why wasn't she grateful that they were alive and well? What's a living room without people? What's home without a soul?

I know that mothers are perenginally tired from their long hours of duty, but know too, that no profession is as rewarding, demanding and as it is, as motherhood.

Mothers, don't lean on the old props of "tiredness, or headaches or ennui. It is your business and privilege to keep well and get your rest and to be so full of faith and ideas for family welfare and family fun that unbelief and monotony never creep into your home circle.

It is your responsibility too, to see that you and your family attend church every Sunday and that the children go to Sunday School and that they say their prayers regularly and intelligently, or, not by rote.

You have to spark their faith with your warm glow and love and understanding.

If God is head of your house proclaim it by saying grace at every meal with humility and faith, for we Canadians are indeed blessed.

It is Sunday morning as I write this and I'm just time to dress for church so I guess we'll just have to have a sandwich for lunch. For once I forgot all about cooking.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

WEDDING AND ENGAGEMENT RINGS AFTER DIVORCE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I have been married, now I am divorced, and I have a baby.

(1) Am I supposed to wear my engagement ring and my wedding ring now? Most of my friends tell me I'm' supposed to wear both my rings on my right hand, with the engagement ring put on the finger first, then the wedding ring. What is the right thing to do?

(2) Also about my name. Should I use "Mrs." or my first name?

M.I.O.

(1) You yourself should make your own grown-up decision about what you prefer to do about wearing your engagement and wedding rings. You may wear your engagement ring and your wedding ring if you wish to. However, generally a woman who is divorced prefers to wear her wedding ring if she has a child, . . but generally she does not continue to wear her engagement ring. But if you do decide to wear your wedding ring wear it . .on the third finger of your left hand. Don't follow the general suggestions of your friends, that you wear both rings on your right hand or, even stranger, that you put the engagement ring on your finger first, then the wedding ring. Either wear your wedding ring or both rings on the customary finger, or don't wear them at all. That procedure makes sense. I never can see how "shifting" the wedding ring or both rings to the right hand, and wearing them inside down, makes any sense.

(2) Let's say your maiden name was Mary Jones, and that your ex-husband's surname is Ogilvie. Your correct name now is Mrs. Jones Ogilvie. Or, if you particularly wish to indicate your first name, use Mrs. M. Jones Ogilvie. (The first form is better taste.) You should not use "Mrs. Mary Ogilvie". . .no use to use the incorrect form, when it is so easy to use the right form.

INVITATIONS TO THE PRIESTS AND THE SAYING OF GRACE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. We are to be married with a Nuptial Mass. I intend to invite the priest performing the ceremony to the reception, and I also plan to have a priest from my fiance's parish. Should formal invitations be sent to both priests, or would it be correct to invite verbally the priest performing the ceremony?

2. Which priest should be requested to say grace before the wedding breakfast? And what is the proper time to have the grace said—before or after the toast proposed by the best man?

A.

1. Since you are inviting to the reception the priest who is performing the ceremony, it would be proper and gracious to send him a formal invitation to the reception. (Even though you will probably invite him verbally.) And send an invitation too, of course to the priest from your fiance's parish.

2. The priest who performs the ceremony should be asked to say the grace. And grace should be said when all the guests are at their places before the Breakfast . . . the grace is the important first procedure, and most definitely before any toast is proposed by anyone.

CONCERNING THANK-YOU NOTES

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am to be married soon, and I would appreciate your answering two questions about my writing thank-you notes for wedding presents.

(1) When I thank for gifts before I am married, am I right in thinking that I sign the notes with my name only, with my fiance's thanks included in the body of the note?

(2) For thank-you notes written after the wedding, is it correct to sign both names, or should they still be signed with my name only?

L.

(1) Yes, right you are. . .sign thank-you notes written before the wedding with your own name only, and include your fiance's thanks in the body of the note.

(2) Also you sign post-wedding thank-you notes with your name only. . .not with both names. . . and of course also include your husband's enthusiastic appreciation of the present.

INFORMATION TO OVAGUE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am a widow, forty years of age, and I am to be married the last part of next month. The ceremony is to be in the rectory at 4 P.M. Will it be proper for me to wear a blue lace dress, blue-and-yellow hat, and matching blue shoes? — A.

Your description of your dress is too vague for me to give you real advice about its appropriateness. The bride at a rectory wedding usually wears either a street dress and hat, or a suit, usually a dressmaker-type suit. However, if your blue lace dress is a dark blue, simple-design, afternoon-type dress, street-length or somewhat longer (but not floor-length), it might be appropriate, particularly if there is to be a reception or some other festivity afterward. would you like to write me more definitely about the type of your dress, so that I can give you more definite suggests?

SHANNONVILLE UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Claude Clarke, on Thursday afternoon with 23 members and visitors and four children, in attendance.

Mrs. Saul McFarlane, group leader, opened the meeting and read the call to worship, the theme being, "New Life Through Love," also the meditation and the prayer from the Missionary Monthly.

The program "Relief for Korea," was discussed by four members: Mrs. Saul McFarlane, Mrs. L. W. Scott, Miss Sara Stickney and Mrs. W. D. Robertson.

Mrs. Damon Hinchey and Mrs. Everett Stration were appointed to confer with two members of the W.A., to decide what should be sent to Korea. Mrs. Hinchey has a quilt top and linen and towels. The W.M.S. is asked to contribute and goods are to be bought from money contributed for the supply work.

Mrs. Everett Stration, treasurer, reported that $30 had been sent in, and that there was $5 on hand without the money taken in at this month's meeting.

Mrs. L. W. Scott, the president, welcomed all and took charge of the business.

A card of thanks was read from Mr. and Mrs. Saul McFarlane for card of sympathy they had received at the time of Mr. McFarlane's brother's death. A letter from Mrs. W. S. Dies thanking all for the many cards she received when in the Belleville General Hospital, and for calls. The secretary also read a letter from Mrs. F. Jones, of Picton, Presbyterial Literature secretary. Mrs. Charles Wood, delegate to the Presbyterial held recently in Grace Church, Napanee, gave a report of the morning session, while Mrs. Robertson reported on the afternoon session, and described the pictures shown in the evening.

A hearty handclap was given in appreciation of these reports.

The hostess was thanked by Mrs. Scott. Mrs. Saul McFarlane thanked by request for their help. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clarke and assistants and a social time enjoyed.

Fashion Flashes

Here again, and ready to lend mystery and enchantment, is the hat veil. Not just ordinary veils for important new Spring hats, but such conceits as a twisted harlequin mask and a domino motif that permits the eyes to peek through at the sheerest section.

Apparently most of us are ready for the covered-up look in late afternoon clothes, judging by the latest models. Typical of what is liked by the smartt woman is an afternoon dress of gray antique silk gauze with full, stiffened skirt and small bodice. Tiny upstanding collar at sides of neckline which takes the plunge in a narrowing deep V. Sleeves extend to just below the elbow. Bodice rips to below the waist from ties at base of neckline.

The delicate touch in trimming adds charm to new gloves. Tiny pink plastic roses and rhinestones, a long row of them, add to the charm of a long kid glove. The trim is washable. Beauvais flower embroidery brings color to white fabric gloves in tiny scattered blossoms or in bouquets.

DESERONTO

Dosoronto Lodge Holds Successful 'Ladies' Night'

DESERONTO. — The annual "Ladies' Night" of the Dosoronto Lodge No. 108, I.O.O.F., held on Friday was an enjoyable and successful event.

Held in the Legion Hall, the sumptuous banquet was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Bro. A. E. Walker, D.D.G.W. Others at the head table were, Bro. and Mrs. Newton Foster of Kingston, D.G.M.; Mrs. A. E. Walker; Bro. and Mrs. C. W. Neelands; Bro. and Mrs. Sidney Brown, P.D.D.G.M.; Bro. and Mrs. Harry Foster, N.G.; Bro. and Mrs. Harry Bender, P.N.G., and Bro. and Mrs. H. Newman.

Guests were present from Kingston and Napanee.

Mr. Neelands responded to the toast to the guests, as did Bro. Bender to the toast to the ladies.

Bro. Sid Brown, P.D.D.G.M., proposed the toast to Grand Lodge and Grand Lodge officers and introduced Bro. Newton Foster, D.G.M., of I.O.O.F. for Ontario, who responded.

Bro. Foster spoke on "Odd Fellowship and its Activities", stressing its cancer, polio and tuberculosis work and the Odd Fellows' Home at Barrie. He also paid tribute to the members of the Rebekah Assembly for their co-operation in the work.

A most enjoyable sing-song was led by Bro. Don Scott, of Napanee, who also rendered outstanding entertainment for the evening.

Bro. H. Fallis of Napanee, furnished the music for the occasion.

I.O.O.F. EUCHRE

A most enjoyable euchre party was held on Monday evening at the Odd Fellows' Hall, with a fine crowd in attendance.

Those winning included: ladies, Mrs. Culbert Segee, consolation, Mrs. Lulu Moore, men's high, Eddie Lott, who also won the lone hand prize, and low prize won by Sid Brown.

Refreshments were served following the close of the evening's entertainment.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Ashley and Sandra, of Belleville were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clarke.

Those from Madoc who attended the hockey match between Kincardine and Stirling in the Belleville Arena on Saturday night were: Mr. and Mrs. William Mallory, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stapleton, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy, Mr. George McMullen; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Nelson; Misses Gladys Clarke, Donna Slapley, Grace Clarke, Suzanne Gallagher; Messrs. Glenn Clarke, Robert Chambers, Jack Clarke, Alfred Waterfall, and Vernon Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hollinger were guests at the Vinnicombe-Holland wedding at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Holland, Madoc, last Tuesday evening.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

On Sunday afternoon the minister, Mr. W. H. Farrow, and members of from Sunday School, Mrs. Harlow, Mrs. Bridges, Mrs. Pilcher and Miss Thelma Frost visited at the home of Mr. Peter Reide and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reide and family to extend best wishes to Mr. Peter Reide, who was 84 years old on March 29th.

The Sunday School superintendent, Mrs. W. Harlow, had prepared a short program as follows: singing of several favorite hymns, with Miss Joanne Reide, pianist. Mr. Farrow read a portion of scripture and offered prayer; a vocal solo by Mr. Bert Reide; Mr. Farrow gave a brief address and also contributed a solo.

Mrs. Pilcher was called on for a few remarks, after which Miss Thelma Frost, on behalf of the Sunday School, presented Mr. Reide with a nice box of fruit.

Mr. Reide expressed his thanks at this time, Mrs. Carl Bridges brought in a lighted birthday cake, and all joined in singing "Happy Birthday to You."

Mrs. Bert Reide served dainty refreshments along with the birthday cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Reide and Clyde also visited Mr. Reide during the afternoon, and later in the day other relatives and friends called to extend best wishes.

A pleasant time was enjoyed at Eggleton Church on Wednesday evening.

Opening number was a song service of favorite hymns, after which Mr. W. H. Farrow showed a number of beautiful colored films, "Scenes in Holland with gardens and fields of lovely blooming flowers"; "Colonel Bruce of Algonquin Park".

A duet by Joanne Reide and Marlene Medill was enjoyed, followed by another film on "Organizing the work of the church."

The ladies served refreshments.

Rylstone

RYLSTONE — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Husband, of Napanee, spent Saturday with her sister and husband Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Jones and attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Alfred Spencer, at Havelock.

Several of the mothers of pupils at the Union School, met on Saturday afternoon to quilt an embroidered white quilt, made by the pupils, assisted by their teacher and mothers. This quilt will be sold, along with other fancy goods, candy and other handicrafts at a bazaar to be held at the school in the near future.

Jimmie Glover, of Toronto, spent the week-end with Billie Morton and other former school friends here.

Fred Petherick spent two days last week in Bancroft.

Lorne Anderson, of Peterborough, spent the week-end with his cousin, Mrs. Lily Anderson and brother Eldon.

Zsa Zsa Says She Will Wed Rubirosa in Year

PARIS (Reuters) — Zsa Zsa Gabor, Hungarian-born, Hollywood star, announced here today that she will wed Porfirio Rubirosa, Dominican diplomat, "a year to the day from now."

Miss Gabor made the announcement to reporters as she stepped from the clipper which brought her to Paris from New York, where she said Tuesday: "Who wants to get married? I'm glad to be free."

She said that Rubirosa, who left a New Jersey airport in his own plane Tuesday for Paris, was at Shannon airport—"he's so scared of photographers and all this publicity about him, poor boy"—but will join her here tonight.

"I'm waiting for him with a heavy heart. We have sworn love and fidelity for life."

Rubirosa is estranged from his wife, Barbara Hutton, the Woolworth heiress.

Deseronto

DESERONTO — Mr. and Mrs. George Knight and family were week-end guests of the former's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Mickley and family of Ajax.

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Luffman included Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Brundige and Barry, of Brockville and Mr. Fred Stevenson, of Toronto.

LADIES' EUCHRE

Mrs. M. Ryan entertained the members of the Ladies' Euchre Club at a regular meeting. Prizes for high scores were won by Mrs. F. Tyrell and Mrs. Gus Cole; consolation by Mrs. C. McKenna and travelling by Mrs. Harry Bender. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening by the hostess.

ROOM CENTRE

ATTIKOKAN, Ont. (CP)—A census by township council shows a population of 4,876 in this northwestern Ontario centre near the Sleep Rock lake iron deposits. This is an increase of 70 per cent in three years.

More Students Attend Colleges Than Ever Before

OTTAWA (CP) — More students are attending colleges and universities in the present academic year than in the previous year, reversing the downward trend of the previous four years.

The bureau of statistics reported today that attendance rose by 1,216 to 61,018 in 1953-54. This preliminary report covers an estimated 85 per cent of university-grade enrolment indicating a total enrolment of 64,200 against 59,803 the previous year.

Men's enrolment increased to 47,412 from 46,290 and women's to 13,806 from 13,412.

In all regions, enrolment was higher than the previous year and highest in all except Ontario than the 1951-52 academic year.

Ontario's 1953-54 enrolment was 18,917 compared with 18,540 and 19,740 in the previous two school years.

Shannonville

SHANNONVILLE — Mr. T. A. Sparks, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson recently.

Mrs. Elburn Smith spent a few days last week visiting relatives near Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Bateman, Firth and Bonnie, of Stirling, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Bertha White.

Mr. Chamberlain has gone to Little Current, to resume his work there.

Mrs. John Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson and Barbara of Stella, were supper guests on Wednesday last of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Johnson and Linda, it being the occasion of Gordon's and Linda's birthday.

Mr. Frank Doxtator spent a couple of days with her sister, Mrs. S. Benson, Belleville, last week, and attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Mary A. Boyle.

There was a good attendance at the monthly W.M.S. meeting held at the home of Mrs. Carl Cooke on Thursday last.

RAWDON

River Valley W.I. Holds Interesting Meeting, Elects 1954 Officers

RAWDON. — On Thursday afternoon, approximately 30 ladies and several children gathered at the home of Mrs. Ernest Clifford for the annual meeting of River Valley Women's Institute.

Mrs. Edward Heasman presided and the opening exercises were conducted.

Mrs. J. L. Donohoe, who has served as secretary-treasurer for the past five years gave a full report and also the year's receipts and expenditures which leaves a good bank balance to carry on the work.

The Institute also has a substantial bond. The books had been previously audited by Mrs. Glenn Morrow and Mrs. J. R. Donohoe and found correct.

Considerable correspondence was read which included thank-you notes from those on the sick list, who had been remembered.

An invitation to attend a play "My Name is Legion" from the Mental Health League, Toronto.

A communication from Captain Mae Kent regarding Girl Guide cookie day.

A letter from L. A. Wilson regarding the coming plebiscite in Sidney township and on motion of the group, $15 was voted to this worthy cause.

TO PURCHASE HOLDERS

Mrs. Roy Bush, convener of flag committee, read a letter from Inspector Macklem and gave a full report. This committee was authorized to buy a suitable holder and standard and complete the job of arranging the coronation nylon flag properly at River Valley School.

The names of several people who are ill in hospital was submitted and cards will be forwarded.

A donation of $3 was made to Mrs. Reg Coombes and the public school pupils to further their school plans. This group has given valuable assistance in moving the seats on Friday evenings in preparation for the card parties at River Valley.

The extension service were discussed and Mrs. Gilbert Finkle offered her home for a sewing course. The vote was first choice "Dressmaking No. 1" and second choice "Children's Clothing."

Some time was spent in arranging that the reports of last year's standing committees be forwarded soon to the proper officials in the district.

AUCTION SALE

For several years the Institute has had a box of articles carried over from bazaars, fish pond, prizes purchased for games etc. It was decided to sell all this with the president, Mrs. Edward Heasman, making a capable auctioneer. Over $11 was realized and some of the ladies had a real bargain to carry home. Those who weren't prepared to pay for their purchases were given a month's credit. This sale provided lots of fun and good competition in bidding.

Mrs. Percy Ulman, the only charter member of R.V.W.I., was presented with a life membership certificate and badge. The president read an address of appreciation to Mrs. Ulman for her years of service in the institute with its motto, "For Home and Country", and she closed with an appropriate poem.

Mrs. Ulman graciously expressed, thanks for the lovely remembrance and hoped that this idea would continue and that other institute members will be so honored for their efforts.

LETTER FROM ENGLAND

The link secretary, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, read a letter from Abbots Leigh W.I., telling of the great interest in Canadian magazines. For the month of April parcels of magazines will be forwarded to the link secretary in Bristol, England, by Mrs. MacMullen, Mrs. S. McIntosh and Mrs. M. Scott.

Mrs. Edward Heasman gave her valedictory address which expressed thanks to each individual who had in any way assisted her during her two years of office, also thanks to the teacher and pupils and especially her mother, Mrs. Ina Free, who had carried on at home.

Mrs. John Kane moved a hearty vote of thanks to all the retiring officers and also that the various salaries be paid.

Mrs. Ralph Utman and Mrs. Don Donohoe who composed the nominating committee presented the new list of officers, and later this was accepted and the new slate elected to office.

The new president, Mrs. Roy Bush, spoke briefly and outlined some new business.

The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Murney Scott and will be mostly a business session in order to clear up considerable items that must be considered early in the year.

FRUIT, FLOWERS FOR SICK

On motion of Mrs. John Kane, Mrs. Ross Carr and Mrs. Don Donohoe, it was decided that for this year everyone in the River Valley community and members and their friends who reside outside the community will be remembered with fruit or flowers if they are ill. The price to be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children. It was also decided that flowers for funerals would be taken from Institute funds instead of the usual collection; at an approximate cost of $10. There are only a few families in the River Valley community who do not belong to the Institute and they are welcome to give a donation to this organization at any time to help carry on its mission of "Home and Country."

Canada Requires Old World Skills Of Immigrants

TORONTO (CP)—Canada needs the "science and skill of older countries" more immigrants could bring it if it is to expand a nation, the lieutenant-governor of Quebec province said today.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Empire Club, Hon. Gaspard Fauteux said the country cannot rely only on exports and its present population to continue its growth.

"If we could increase our domestic market through a larger population and purchasing power, we could balance our production with our market needs and be able to ensure continued prosperity for all sections of our people," Mr. Fauteux said.

With more and more people who would become "good, honest and sincere Canadians," Canada could reach heights that would otherwise require three generations to achieve.

CAN CONVERT REDS

As to the chance that greater immigration would leave the door open to Communists, Mr. Fauteux said the "best argument against communism is to give the Commie a piece of land, a home of his own, a job and a bank account which he will earn, and we shall be making more capitalists out of them than any propaganda will."

Mr. Fauteux said he would like to see Canadians "drop the racial origin tag" on official documents.

"When a man or a woman is a Canadian citizen, he, or she, is a Canadian—period," he said.

A distinctively Canadian flag was needed but it would not keep "all the crests of our individual racial countries."

"Some of us would have to put water in our wine, as the French say, and sacrifice part of a legitimate desire to see either the Union Jack, the Irish harp, the Scottish lion, the French fleur de lys" as part of a Canadian flag.

DIES IN WALDORF PLUNGE

NEW YORK (AP)—A woman plunged to her death early today from the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. Police tentatively identified her as Eleanor Conrovitz, about 24, of Newark, N.J. The body fell six floors to an eighth-floor setback of the famous hotel.

Australian Dockers Refuse to Load Arms

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Longshoremen walked off a ship here today for the second time in 24 hours in protest against loading Australian arms for the Indo-China war.

They distributed leaflets advocating a boycott on arms for Indo-China.

The men had earlier resumed work on the vessel, the British freighter Radnor, after a stoppage Wednesday. Their complaints included the number of bombs carried in each sling-load, and the presence of poisonous spiders in the holds.

Nothing Sinister in Delay In Start on Hydrogen Bomb Says Atomic Energy Chairman

By RUSSELL BRINES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative W Sterling Cole says he knows of nothing sinister in the fact that high United States officials debated for months before deciding to press work on the hydrogen bomb, a weapon the government says is due for "greatly increased productive."

Cole, New York Republican who heads the congressional atomic energy committee, recalled Wednesday night that full-scale work on the awesome weapon was not decided upon until four months after Russia's first explosion in 1949 of an atomic fission bomb.

"This fact is not of itself sinister," he added, "nor does it imply that those who opposed the presidential final decision were motivated by a desire to lessen our military strength."

Cole conceded that events have proved he was wrong in urging against the decision to go ahead with the super-bomb.

DENY DELAY

Other present and former officials said they had no knowledge of any 18-month delay in the H-bomb project mentioned by Senator McCarthy on a television broadcast Tuesday night.

The Wisconsin Republican senator said there was a deliberate delay, and asked: "If there were no Communists in our government, why did we delay?"

President Eisenhower told his press conference Wednesday that he has never heard of such a delay.

Former President Truman, who made the decision to proceed with the H-bomb in early 1950, said in Kansas City that "the order was issued as soon as the scientists were ready to go to work." The test announced hydrogen explosion occurred 34 months later, in November 1952.

Summer T. Pike, a member of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission at the time, said he didn't know what McCarthy was talking about, and added of the senator: "I suppose as he frequently does he is just throwing mud and hoping some of it will stick." Pike is a Republican, like the senator.

As for the current status of the H-bomb, AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss said a Senate appropriations sub-committee Wednesday that "greatly increased production of thermonuclear weapons", those popularly called hydrogen bombs, account for increased spending in the next fiscal year.

The AEC Tuesday announced the third test of the current Pacific series, and Strauss said "information of great importance to national defence continues to be developed." The first two blasts were described as thermonuclear. Presumably this one was too.

Will Export U.S. Power to Help Ontario Cities

TORONTO (CP) — The United States power commission has approved temporary export of from 8,000 to 10,00 kilowatts of U.S. power to cope with Ontario's sudden shortage, officials of the Ontario hydro-electric power commission said Wednesday.

The shortage was caused by the closing of the 46,000-kilowatt Richard L. Hearn generating plant this week after two of its four generators were wrecked by explosions and fire.

First of two temporary lines between Ontario Hydro and Niagara Mohawk is scheduled to start sending power into the province today. The second connection will be ready Monday.

Three generators which stopped production due to minor mechanical difficulties at the old Toronto hydro plant at Niagara Falls, Ont., are back in service.

Second H-Bomb Makes Jap Boat Radio-Active

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese fishing boat apparently exposed to radiation from the second United States hydrogen explosion at Bikini March 26 returned home today with a contaminated cargo of tuna, Kyodo news agency said.

Radio-activity aboard the vessel was just below the danger point, but its cargo of 33,000 pounds of tuna was reported dangerously radio-active.

The ship fished in the Bikini area from March 17 to March 31, but the captain said he never was inside the greatly expanded danger zone surrounding the test area.

Emperor Hirohito meanwhile has asked for a sample of the radio-active ash which fell March 6 on central Japan.

Japanese scientists said then the ashes probably had been carried by winds from Siberia and came from "artificial sources"—presumably a Russian atomic activity.

Satoru Aoki, governor of a central Honshu prefecture, said the emperor's wish will be granted since the ashes are harmless.

Half Crew is Rescued As Tanker Plane Burns

TOKYO (Reuters) — Six of the crew of 12 of a United States tanker plane which caught fire in a refuelling operation were rescued today after bailing out of the blazing machine over central Japan.

Three charred bodies were removed from the wreckage and search continued for the other three.

Political Veteran, Youngster To Seek Liberal Leadership

TORONTO (CP)—A veteran and a youngster in provincial politics stood ready today to accept the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party.

Farmhar Oliver, party leader in the Ontario legislature with 28 years of experience behind him, and Albert Wren, 37-year-old Liberal-Labor member of the provincial House for Kenora, prepared to make their nomination speeches before some 900 voting delegates this afternoon.

The leader will fill the post made vacant three years ago by Walter C. Thomson who resigned after the 1951 election when the party's representation in the legislature was cut in seven Liberals and one Liberal-Labor.

The Ontario Liberal Association must also choose a new president. The chair became empty with the death Feb. 26 of Alvin Cedeas of Burlington. Wilfrid P. Gregory, a 42-year-old Stratford lawyer, has been acclaimed president.

FORM POLICY

Out of the two-day convention will come a new provincial Liberal policy. Wednesday, Mr. Oliver, in addressing the Liberal women, said the party must plan a sound policy to guide its members in the legislature.

In a radio address last Monday Mr. Gregory said recommendations to be brought to the convention by Colin Campbell, chairman of the party's co-ordinating committee on policy, will include plans for relief of the financial burdens of municipalities whose needed revenue to finance functions assigned by the province. They would also call for assumption by the province of cost of administration of justice.

Pre-convention speculation seemed to split the popularity of both Mr. Wren and Mr. Oliver, although it was said Mr. Wren had picked up considerable support in the last few days. The Sioux Lookout representative has been an active critic both inside and outside the legislature of the alleged irregularities in the highways department. First elected in 1953, he was defeated in his first attempt in 1948.

A third candidate was being touted by the young Liberals up until Wednesday, but Paul Helijer, 31-year-old member of Parliament for Toronto Davenport, said upon his arrival in the city that he did not expect to run.

Ernie Payne Starts 55th Year of Military Service

TORONTO (CP) — Ernie Payne of Toronto joined the 9th British Lancers in 1900 as a boy trumpeter.

At 69 he has just started his 55th consecutive year of service with the armies of Britain and Canada. He's company sergeant-major with Queen's Own Rifles of Canada.

Although Ethelred, to give him his proper Christian name, Payne is technically over-age for service, he has been made a special case by the reserve army unit which he has soldiered for 40 years.

His long and varied technical experience in the field of musketry has made him a valuable asset to the unit when it comes to training recruits.

"Give me a good lad and a good rifle and I'll teach him how to shoot" says Ernie.

CSM Payne was practically born into the army. His birthplace was Bisley, England, and his first recollections are of the famed rifle ranges there.

SOUTH AFRICAN ACTION

He accompanied the 9th British Lancers to South Africa and saw three years of action there.

No sooner did he return home in 1903 than Ernie joined the Surrey Yeomanry of the Territorial Army.

He served with that unit until 1914, when he emigrated to Canada. He arrived here in late April and joined the QOR in time for the garrison church parade in May. He joined the 85th battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, in the First World War. When he got back from overseas in 1919, he immediately re-enlisted in the QOR and has been with that unit ever since.

He has been back to Bisley several times as a crack shot—from 1909 to 1912 as a member of British Army Bisley teams and in 1919 as a member of the Canadian Army team.

REPATS DUE SUNDAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Nearly 1,400 Canadian troops who have served for a year in Korea are scheduled to reach the west coast Sunday. Bulk of the soldiers comprise the 3rd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment.

Woman Can Keep Raising Budgies

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. May James can raise all the budgies she wants.

She caused quite a flutter at a civic property committee meeting Wednesday when she told members she has 200 budgies in the basement of her home.

Committee members were trying to decide if she needed a licence to raise the birds.

They asked why there were so many budgies in the basement.

"Big interests are to blame," she said. "They said there was a market for all the budgies hatched—but there wasn't. What are we supposed to do, chloroform all the birds?"

Countries Knew McMahon Act Would Dissolve Churchill, Roosevelt Pact House Told

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson says Britain, as well as Canada, knew the 1946 McMahon Act would dissolve the 1943 Churchill-Roosevelt secret agreement—and that both knew it before the act was passed.

The secret agreement signed at the Quebec conference by Sir Winston Churchill and the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt provided for free exchange of information on atomic weapons and that neither Britain nor the U.S. would use such weapons against a third country without the other's consent.

But the McMahon act, named for the late senator Brien McMahon who sponsored it, provides that the U.S. cannot divulge atomic information to other countries, including Britain.

"Britain was just as aware of the effects of the McMahon act as we were," Mr. Pearson told the Commons external affairs committee Wednesday.

But he added he did not know how much of the information on the effects was known by Clement Attlee, British prime minister in 1946.

Sir Winston has accused Mr. Attlee, now Labor opposition leader, of neglecting to protect the Churchill-Roosevelt secret agreement. Mr. Attlee said that was up to the U.S., not Britain.

He said Canada did not protest passage of the McMahon act because it was not a signatory to the secret agreement. He offered no explanation why Britain did not protest.

Though Canada lodged no protest, it informed Washington "more than once" that it desired the greatest possible exchange of information on peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Amendments to the McMahon act, now before Congress, might make this possible. Meantime, the U.S. was supplying some information on the tactical uses of atomic weapons.

Fifteen Cars Of CNR Freight Train Derailed

CHATHAM (CP)—Fifteen cars of a westbound Canadian National Railway freight train were derailed early today at Northwood station, six miles east of here.

No one was injured as the cars in the centre of the 85-car No. 475 second section freight bound for Windsor jumped the tracks, blocking traffic on the double line. Traffic is being rerouted through Chatham on the Canadian Pacific Railways. Cause of the derailment is not known.

The cars crashed into a white bean elevator and damaged a small grain mill nearby. Another freight car on a siding was slightly damaged. Derailment occurred just west of the station.

Eleven of the cars were empty, two contained merchandise, one car was loaded with wire, the others carried sulphate of ammonia.

Albert Starks who lives near the station said he thought the jolting was due to a fast stop. When the jolting continued he saw the cars piling up.

Conductor of the train was R. N. Smith, of Windsor, engineer Russell Williams, Windsor, and fireman, Jim Mathews, of London.

Security Council Will Consider Palestine Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) The United Nations Security Council turned today to a debate (at 3 p.m. EST) that may lead to a general review of murderous Israeli-Arab border raids in Palestine.

The council agenda listed rival Lebanese and Israeli complaints but Western members hoped to lump them together as one item. Soviet president for this month is Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky, who twice this year has vetoed Western-backed Palestine resolutions that the Arabs disliked.

Two ambassadors to the United States, Abdul Monem Rifai from Jordan and Abba Eban from Israel, are representing the two countries most concerned in the debate. Neither is on the Security Council, and Jordan is not in the UN.

Lebanon acted on Jordan's behalf in filing her complaint against Israel a week ago. Four days later Egypt, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen joined.

It charges that "military trained Israelis" attacked Nahalin village in Jordan the night of March 28, blew up the mosque, killed nine Arabs and wounded 19 others.

LODGE COMPLAINTS

Israel in turn lodged four complaints against Jordan Monday. She charged these violations of the 1949 Israel-Jordan armistice agreement:

1. Refusal to attend a conference with Israel on armistice issues called by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold at Israel's request.

2. An armed attack fatal to 11 Israeli bus passengers March 17 near Scorpion pass in Israel's Negev desert.

3. Other "acts of hostility" and "constant threats against Israel security."

4. Refusal to let Israelis visit holy places and other sites in the Jordan section of divided Jerusalem.

Eban, who is also Israel's permanent representative to the UN, told a press conference Wednesday that Jordan's acts had created "a situation of growing tension and increased violence aimed at undermining the whole structure of the armistice agreement."

Of Poison Victim of Dose Of Poisoning

TORONTO (CP) — Police today investigated the death of Nicholas Guminey, 48, of suburban New Toronto, believed the victim of a dose of corrosive poisoning large enough to kill five people.

His death Wednesday was first believed due to a heart attack. An autopsy disclosed the poison. Chief coroner Smirle Likwson, who ordered the inquest, said the poison was not self-administered.

Guminey, married with two sons, collapsed Tuesday at the Canadian Industries Limited plant where he worked as a laborer. Taken to hospital, he died 24 hours later.

"Any amount as large as that would knock a person out immediately," one doctor said. "The container used by the man would have to be found near him—and nothing was found."

Fellow workers said Guminey complained of pains, then "just keeled over."

VOTE IN BARS

POINT EDWARD (CP) — The "wets" won out in a liquor plebiscite here Wednesday. Voters voted 765 to 252 in favor of having liquor sold by the glass in dining lounges with meals and 748 to 268 in favor of cocktail lounges.

RAWDON

Carmel Church Re-Opening Marked By Thanksgiving Service

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

RAWDON — On Sunday evening Carmel United Church, Rawdon township, was filled to capacity with dozens of chairs placed wherever possible and several members of the congregation stood throughout the service of special thanksgiving.

The seating capacity of the newly renovated church was occupied a half hour before the service.

Approximately 80 members of St. Paul's, Stirling, with guests from Oshawa, Belleville, Trenton, Frankford and the townships of Rawdon and Sidney had gathered for this auspicious service.

APPROPRIATE MUSIC

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.L., and 24 members of St. Paul's senior choir occupied the choir loft. Mrs. Baker provided appropriate music throughout the service. The hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy" opened with a special hymn of dedication. They also rendered "Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," with Mrs. William Wilkins taking the solo part. Mr. Douglas Young sang the special request, "Bless This House."

Messrs. Harry E. Brown, Jack Bush, Grant Richardson and Wm. Aylsworth rendered "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me."

Mr. Baker graciously presided over the service and welcomed visiting dignitaries and the guest minister, Rev. Miriam E. Collins, B.A., assistant minister of Bridge Street, Belleville, stating this was the first time in history Carmel had been honored by a woman minister in the pulpit.

The service opened with that old favorite "Stand Up and Bless the Lord". Messrs. Ernest Carlisle and Everett Grills gathered the offering, which was a creditable amount.

The church was decorated with spring blooms and potted plants by Mrs. Lorne Brooks and the members of Carmel Women's Association provided a basket of red roses.

Charles Wesley's hymn of continuous work in the church of Christ was sung as a special benediction.

BUILDING A CHURCH

Miss Collins read the Bible lesson based on the theme "Here I Am, Send Me". She graphically narrated a story on the theme "Building a Church," to the boys and girls and stressed the beauty of music.

The speaker chose for her theme, "I Saw the Lord," and took her children back to Jerusalem in the year 800 B.C., where she pictured the great loveliness of the temple with its beautiful artistry and here a prince came to worship. He was enwrapped with the holiness of God and lauded, saw the Lord.

The speaker stressed that Christian people need to attend divine service in order to feed their souls but the church is for sinners. It is a place to help individuals to live better lives and the church is not a museum for the exhibition of saints.

Miss Collins pointed out that the shadow of the cross falls across this narrative centuries before the New Testament was written and this proves conclusively that there was a special Divine purpose all through the Old Testament.

Her closing message was one of challenge that this generation of folk work as never before to declare to the world the great hope of a new day. Isaiah's experience is familiar to all and all are indebted to him for his glorious prophesies of the Messiah. "When individuals feel the presence of God in their lives they will willingly take part in their daily living wherever their chosen work is, whether it be in rural or urban centres."

Mr. Baker expressed thanks to the speaker for her message.

THREE SIGNALLY HONORED

At this point three women were signally honored by the pastor. Miss Marion Carlisle, who was president of Carmel W.A. in 1950, and did a magnificent job during the building and completion of the Silver Jubilee Hall; Mrs. Joseph Grills, who is now serving as president of the W.A. and who is shouldering the responsibility of the renovation of the church; this is a project for the Woman's Association of Carmel; and Mrs. Arthur Fyear, who has served as pianist and choir leader for over 25 years.

Mrs. Walter Elliott presented a "Fairy Cross" on behalf of Mr. Baker to each of these three ladies.

There will be other presentations at Carmel in the near future and the legend of the Fairy Cross will be published.

The service closed with a hymn of consecration and the National Anthem.

The group were invited to Jones Hall where a delightful fellowship hour was held with members of Carmel W.A. serving an abundance of sandwiches and cookies.

GREETINGS VOICED

Mr. Baker presided over a brief program when greetings were voiced by Reeve Theodore Coonley, Deputy-Reeve Spry, councillor Earl McAdam; Messrs. Wm. Aylsworth, Wesley Stalsbarger R. A. Patterson and several other people in the group.

Special tribute was paid to Mr. Hector Eggleton, who did the carpentry work and fashioned the seats.

To Mr. Ernest Cooke, who was in charge of the painting; to Mrs. Percy MacMullen, who has served as publicity agent in this district for a number of years.

Regrets were expressed on behalf of those who were unable to be in attendance.

Mr. Harold Hagerman voiced thanks to the ladies for hospitality and Rev. W. S. Irwin graciously closed the special service.

The group then spent over an hour visiting with those who had come home" to Carmel on this grand occasion.

CAMPBELLFORD

Council Praises Fire Brigade For Good Work

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford town council met on Monday evening with Mayor Locke presiding. Routine business occupied the time.

Council considered various aspects of the fire at the Wiggins' block on Sunday, and expressed satisfaction in the way the Campbellford Fire Brigade gallantly strove to conquer the blaze. At the same time appreciation was expressed to the assisting brigades from Warkworth, Hastings and Peterborough.

Coun. Tallman reported that the Red Cross had taken the initiative in providing supplies for the fire victims and that all sufferers had been provided with groceries by that organization. The Salvation Army and other service agencies are co-operating and an integrated effort is being made on behalf of the fire victims. The townsfolk will be asked to contribute dishes, furniture and clothing.

Mr. Parcell's request for action in regard to his water supply was referred to the Road and Bridge Committee. Mr. V. Farrell asked council for the deed of certain lots purchased some years ago by the Board of Education. This was left with the legal committee with the power to act. Mr. George Fallier's request for appointment of local improvement rains was referred to the Reeve and Deputy-Reeve to find out if the County Court of Northumberland would do this.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Mr. Townsend was authorized to attend the conference of the Assessing Officers at Niagara Falls. Mr. Douglas Nicholas addressed council and his Taxi licence was revoked as he plans to run a drive-yourself service.

Coun. Nicholas reported that there had been smoke and oxygen masks ordered for the fire department, pointing out that the latter would be of service in case of heart attacks or drownings as well as for fire fighting. A by-law was passed appointing Arthur Loucks to the District School Area Board. It was pointed out that Mr. Loucks had resigned as secretary of the board and that his experience would be an asset to the new area. The by-laws setting forth the rates for pool room and bowling alley licences was passed and those appointing George Rose, chief of police, appointing Sam Baird, constable and E. M. Ibey as tax collector also received their three readings.

Council will meet with the PUC on Wednesday night relative to the Hydro contracts.

Empey Hill

EMPEY HILL—Rev. J. Lindsay of Kingston, was in charge of the United Church service on Sunday morning and spent the dinner hour with Mr. and Mrs. C. Akey.

Mr. Bernard Freeman spent Sunday afternoon with his parents in Tweed.

Mrf and Mrs. C. Mariaette and Leonard also Mr. F. Clarke called on Mrs. Mae Yates in Belleville and also on Mr. Randolph McClukie, of Plinton, who is a patient in Belleville hospital on Sunday.

Sympathy is extended to the family of the late Mrs. Katharine Tucker who passed away at her home on Saturday. The funeral was largely attended on Tuesday afternoon in Napanee at the Wartman Funeral Home.

CAMPBELLFORD

Ken Kingston Heads Tennis Club

CAMPBELLFORD—The Campbellford Tennis Club held its annual meeting this week at the council chambers with Ken McFarlane being named to record the minutes of this meeting for the secretary who was unable to be present.

The election of officers was the first item of business. The veteran Seymour West farmer and First World War flyer, Captain Harry J. Free, was immediately named honorary president of the club.

OTHER OFFICERS

Other officers were named as follows: president, Ken Kingston; secretary treasurer, Anne Nicholls; president of Junior High School section, Ron Pierce; Assistant, Sandra McDonald.

(These are in charge of membership at the local school and it was announced that student membership cards, now available, may now be purchased from either Ron. Pierce or Sandra McDonald.)

Grounds committee, Peter Edwards (chairman), Jack Stocker, Jack Meier, Art Eden, Ron Pierce; club purchasing agent, Jack Stocker.

FEES

After a brief discussion, fees were set as follows: Student attending high school $1. Individual membership fee for all others $4 (this is an increase of $1 over last year). Couple's fee, $5 (this applies to any couple, not necessarily married, where fee is paid for both by one person at one time, two non-transferable membership cards to be issued).

Membership cards are now available and may be obtained from secretary-treasurer Anne Nicholls at the Bank of Montreal or the president Ken Kingston at the Herald Office.

Deadline for 1954 fees was set for Saturday, May 15th, when it is hoped that a Students' Day will be arranged at the courts.

The fee deadline will apply only to last year's members or newcomers to the game who used the courts last year but neglected to pay their fee will not be permitted playing privileges until the holder of a 1954 membership card. The president stated that officers' attention will be paid to this matter in the future and he also asked all players to abide by the rules of the court, especially regarding footwear with no heels. These rules will be posted at the courts.

OUT-OF-TOWN PLAYERS

Persons using the courts from another town may do so freely if accompanied by a member in good standing, for a period not exceeding seven consecutive days per month.

Opening day was set for Good Friday holiday, when a "bee" to replace boards, prepare the courts for play, put up the nets and possibly repaint the lines on the courts, will get under way at 1.30 p.m. weather permitting.

As the first social event of the season, the suggestion that members of the Peterborough Kawartha Club be invited to be the guests of the local seniors was advanced. Saturday, May 1st was the date mentioned for this event.

Chief of Police George Rose, addressed the club on behalf of a new and thriving boys' club which has and some offer leaders are sponsoring. He enquired about training of the tennis club house for a definite period of time for the use of these boys from the ages of 10 to 16. In return the boys would repair the club house, put it in A-1 shape for their own needs and care for the Tennis Club's property and police same, also lend a hand in assisting the Tennis Club boys in odd jobs about the grounds.

Since the club house has fallen out of use, and is in a most disgraceful state owing to the inability of the club to finance a major repair job, the proposition is one that deserves support.

CLUB HOUSE AN EYESORE

The club house has been used sparingly in the past decade and has become an eyesore. On motion, the president was authorized to name a club committee to arrange for a written agreement with the Boys' Club for use of the club house as soon as feasible. The president chose Harry B. Free, Jack Stocker and Jack Meier to act with him in negotiating with the representatives of the Boys' Club.

Barbara Smith and Sandra McDonald were named as social conveners for junior evening.

During the course of the meeting, a tribute was paid to a true friend of tennis, the late Dr. H. B. Longmore, who passed away some months ago.

This meeting was regarded as one of the best held in some time by tennis enthusiasts locally, and the prospects for a banner season appear bright.

Roslin

ROSLIN— Mr. Charles Chapman has returned to his home here, after spending the winter months, with his daughter, Mrs. Perry Arnold and Mrs. Arnold in Toronto. Mrs. Chapman, who also spent the winter with her daughter in Toronto, will remain there for a time.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Birk, of Brampton, spent the week-end with their son, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Birk.

The Roslin people have followed with interest the play-off hockey games between Trenton and Point Anne as the goalie and the winning Point Anne team Donald Bates is one of the local boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Slingerland and family, spent Sunday afternoon with their daughter in Picton.

Gas-Turbine Plymouth Shown At N.Y. Show

By DAVID J. WILKIE

NEW YORK (AP)—Two leading auto manufacturers have put their "dream" cars and 1954 models on display at New York's second automobile show of the year.

Among the "dream" models is Chrysler's newest, the gas-turbine Plymouth.

Unlike the Firebird, General Motors' turbine-powered car which appeared at the earlier show, the Chrysler model is a stock-car type. GM's model looked more like a four-wheeled flying machine.

The Chrysler entry in the turbine engine field undoubtedly will attract greatest interest at the current show which runs until April 11.

Along with the "dream" cars that may never reach the assembly stage, the participating companies are using the show to demonstrate many of their latest engineering advances. Newest improvements in power steering, safety glass, engines and automatic transmissions are among the engineering displays.

One of the piston-type engines being shown currently is the one to be capable of generating 300 horsepower. The industry's present top stock engine is Chrysler's 235-horsepower V-8, used in the New York De Luxe and Imperial models.

Chrysler engineers are emphasizing that the gas-turbine engine for standard passenger cars still is in the remote future.

Tweed

TWEED — Mrs. William Andrew, of Roslin, spent the week-end with her daughter, Mrs. Don Woodcox, Tweed.

Five members of the Tweed Business and Professional Club attended the annual regional conference held at Cobourg, on Saturday.

On Wednesday evening, Miss Betty Wood, bride of April 3rd, was feted with a miscellaneous shower, held at the home of Miss Shirley Brunen.

During the evening Miss Wood was presented with a large basket full of lovely gifts, for which she graciously expressed her thanks. At the conclusion of the evening refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Lorne Jardine, Tweed, is spending a few days in Belleville, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Colden.

Master Dougie Chisholm, Roslin, is holidaying for a few days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Orr.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Woodcox, jr., spent Sunday at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Woodcox, and family.

Mr. Bert Reyner jr., RCN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reyner, of town, who has been stationed in Japan for the past several months, returned home this week to spend a leave with his parents.

The Tweed Climatological Station reported that the 6 degree above zero reported on the 2nd April and the 7 degrees reported on the fourth were the coldest temperatures recorded at Tweed to April for the past six years. Also 10½ inches of snow fell in Tweed between November 1st and March 31, the normal snowfall for the period is 53.4 inches.

Week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Sifare and Mr. and Mrs. A. Hounslow were; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Powell and Tommy, of Peterborough.

Visitors on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Griffin were; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hadley, of Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Solomon, of Brighton.

C. J. Fraser, of the Fraser Weil-Drilling Company, reports that they are down to a depth of 190 feet and are drawing about 180 gallons or more per day.

Friends of young Mary Jane Spratt will be pleased to learn she is recuperating well after a recent tonsillectomy.

Week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Trudeau were; their son, Mr. Cyril Trudeau, Mrs. Trudeau and their family, and their daughter, Mrs. Sam Barry, Mr. Barry and family.

Mr. Dick Vesey and Mr. Ray McInnis were in Toronto on business on Tuesday.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. McKinley Wilson for the week-end were: their three daughters from Peterborough, Rhoda, Doreen and Maxine and another daughter, Freda, Mrs. R. Tripp and Mr. Tripp from Montreal. Mrs. Tripp is planning on staying in Tweed for a few days.

A few members of the sales staff of the Dick Vesey Motor Sales in the Martin Rivers, who joined the firm this week.

The Tweed Kinsmix Club in cooperation with Quinn and Quinn sponsored a home decorating demonstration at which Lilla Tilson was guest speaker. Mrs. John De Marsh was the winner of the door prize, which was enough wallpaper to decorate one room.

The following members of the Dick Vesey Motor Sales attended the Garage and Service Station Operators' Association meeting and banquet held in Trenton last Monday; Messrs. Dick Vesey, Ray McInnis, Harold Tuepah and Martin Rivers. The president, Bert Woods, also of Tweed, was in the chair. Ed Wadam of Toronto was the guest speaker.

Miss Janet Goulah, R.N., has left for Los Angeles, California, where she will join the nursing staff of the famed Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. Miss Goulah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Goulah, of Tweed and Niagara Falls, N.Y., and has been a supervisor on the staff of the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, where she also graduated last year.

Mr. Joseph McDonald has assumed his duties as accountant at the Bank of Montreal. Mr. McDonald replaces Lloyd Udell, who has been transferred to Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald and their daughter will occupy the former Udell apartment when the Udells find accommodation in Toronto.

The Tweed Kiwanis Club held its "Ladies' Night" on Thursday evening at the I.O.O.F. Hall. Dinner was served by the Rebekah lodge. After dinner Kiwanian Ed. Way showed a number of the lovely pictures taken on his recent trip to Florida and Cuba. Kiwanian Eldred Clarke also took part in the program and Burton Vance expressed the thanks of the members and their ladies to Mr. Way.

The condition of Mr. Art Soare, who is convalescing at home is greatly improved and a few visitors are now allowed.

Mr. Burton Vance and Barbara spent Tuesday with relatives in Mountain Grove.

Mr. Charles Hunt was home for the week-end with his family. Mr. Hunt, who is employed by the hydro is stationed for a short time at Griffith.

The engagement is announced of Margaret Elizabeth Marchen to James Francis LeSage. Miss Marchen is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Marchen, Woodstock; and Mr. LeSage is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest LeSage. The wedding will take place at 10 a.m., Monday, April 19th at St. Carthagh's Roman Catholic Church.

Read

READ. — Messrs. Ed. Power of Oshawa, and Gerald Power, of Toronto, spent the week-end at their home here.

Word was received of the death in Belleville of Mrs. Larry Horrigan. She is a sister of Mr. Arthur McCormack.

Mr. Bartley Walsh returned home from the Hotel Dieu Hospital on Saturday. All hope he will soon be out in circulation again.

Mr. Austin Coffey of Oshawa, was a week-end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Coffey.

GRASS FIRE.

Tweed had its first grass fire today, when a large field facing the cottages at Kony Rowe caught fire, presumably from a cigarette but. The fire threatened the cottages of Terrence Rashotte, where Mr. and Mrs. H. Lumsden, Mr. and Mrs. D. Gostlin and family and Mr. and Mrs. Rashotte reside. However, Mr. Rashotte and Mr. Lumsden along with constables Wilson officers of the Dept. of Lands and Forests and townsmen soon had it controlled. The spread of fire from the brushy side was sent out and assisted in controlling the blaze.

Biggest Job Since Truce Building, Maintaining Roads

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—If the road to Canadian sappers' compound is neglected as the proverbial shoemaker's shoes it's because they're so busy maintaining the Korean roads leading to other units of the 25th Canadian brigade.

"It's also part of our psychological warfare," said Maj. Laurie Schmidlin of Kingston and Ottawa. "When the other units beef we just drive 'em over our road and it usually wins sympathy."

Jack Brayley

The major is chief of the 4th field company, Royal Canadian Engineers, whose biggest job since the truce has been building and maintaining supply routes.

HAZARDOUS JOBS

The company, soon to be relieved by the 3rd field squadron under Maj. M. O. Rollefson of Chilliwack, B.C., looks upon road maintenance as its biggest headache in a year of Far East service. That service included a delicate mine-clearing operation, a hazardous camouflaged road program, maintenance of cable-way supply facilities to mountainside forward positions and the army's only "navy" operation on the Imjin river. Since the case fire they have had a hand in preparing defensive positions for Commonwealth units. They also built regulating centres, observation towers and check points at the demilitarized zone.

The unit had one minor casualty during the fighting and won five awards including two military crosses.

One MC went to Lieut. Charles Carter of Niagara Falls for leading one of the toughest mine-clearing projects of the war. The job had to be done at night for the area was under enemy observation. Carter took his section on a practice run over similar territory.

Then started the deadly business of clearing the field. The area was full of shrapnel and he couldn't use detectors. So his men crept into the area, their noses to the ground and probing ahead of them. They moved an inch at a time and finally found the first mine. This gave them the pattern but it took 18 scary nights to complete the job. They were machine-gunned and mortared. They lifted 42 mines and didn't lose a man.

NAVAL OPERATION

Their naval operation came when an artillery observation plane went down on a sandspit in the Imjin river. The sappers were asked to salvage it.

They built a raft, floated it to the sandspit and retrieved the plane. It had been planned to take it down river three miles to a low bridge where it could be shifted to a lorry. The time of arrival at the bridge passed and no sign of the sappers. When darkness fell with no sign of the raft, the major got a walkie-talkie and eventually established contact. It had grounded on a sandbar but was free and heading for the low bridge.

"We literally talked it into the landing and finally heard the chugging of the little one-lung motor," he said. "Then we switched on the headlights of a jeep to act as lighthouse. It was the only naval operation of the war along the Imjin."

Working with Maj. Schmidlin's 200 sappers is a labor battalion of sometimes more than 1,000 Koreans. Long ago he found how to get the best out of these pleasant but often shiftless workers.

"I found that they just wouldn't work for private sappers. They thought this was beneath their dignity so I put on NCO's and this solved the problem."

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Mr. Douglas Stewart spent Sunday in Warkworth with relatives.

Rev. H. and Mrs. Giffin spent Thursday in Kingston. Miss Eva Giffin returned home with them to spend the holidays.

Mr. Frank Hicks and daughter, Marguerite, were Thursday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hicks.

Mrs. Annie Bonkin spent Thursday at her home here.

PRESENTATION

On Wednesday evening large crowd assembled in St. Andrew's Sunday school rooms for a presentation to one of its members, Miss Grace Juby, bride-to-be. After a short program the bride and groom-to-be were given seats of honor. An address was read by Irene Atkins and the presentation of a tri-lite lamp, a large mirror and satin cushion was made by Jim Reid, Don McCurdy and Leslie Beaudrie.

Following Sunday School Miss Juby's class presented her with a beautiful table ornament, to show their appreciation to her as their teacher.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Morris Parks (nee Verna Prindle) on the arrival of a baby boy.

GOOD RECORD!

MARMORAL—Win, lose or draw in their quest for the Trent Valley Hockey League championship, the Millonaires club that wears the colors of this mid-Hastings village have achieved an enviable log-lass record since the puck-begins sounded: "Who's off" last October or was it November?

The team, at the moment, is in the throes of titular battle with the strong Point Anne squad which will climax the Millonaires' seasonal activities with the exception they are still strong contenders for the OHA Intermediate "C" championship.

Since the beginning of the Trent loop playoffs, Clint Nickle's crew has won fifteen out of 18 starts. They blanked Hastings three games to one in the Trent Valley northern section semi-finals and cemented on the fling end of a 4-3 games count in the finals against Havelock. In between these tilts they hung a 4-3 collar on the Vandorf, Ont., squad in the first round of the Intermediate playdowns.

The Watenford team attempted to oust the Millionaires in the second round but they hung up their gear after bowing four times out of five games.

The Millionaires stepped up another rung on the OHA ladder and now meet the Lucan team in the third round. Lucan is a small community of some 800 souls situated twenty miles northeast of London. The Millionaires, according to information from their headquarters, trek to Lucan on Friday where they play that night and again Saturday. The next two games will be played in Marmora next week.

Oldtimers and young ones, too, will tell you that the Millionaires have been inspired by something more than the natural urge to win championships. The "something" is Tony Tracy, veteran of Trent Valley loop violence away back when the league was classed as a pro outfit.

"Them were the days" when Madoc, Campbellford, Stirling and Tweed had hockey "villios" from such faraway points as Port Arthur—writes Millionaire fans bring special trains to see their favorites battle for the title. They was one of the better known players of that era. He wore the colors of Campbellford and later Stirling, eventually turning up in the Toronto Mercantile League and thence to a Cobourg squad.

One of the oldtimers here told this corner how "we fooled them city fellers one time." It seemed two valley teams, he thought it was Campbellford and Stirling, were battling for the title and decided to play the series on Belleville ice.

"Them birds in the city," he guffawed, "thought we was a bunch of bush-leaguers, and wouldn't draw enough to make an extry hand at poker. So they chanted the boys a hundred bucks, refusing to take a cut of the gate."

"Know what happened?" He threw back his head and laughed. "The bush leaguers fooled 'em. That durned rink was so full you couldn't have got in a greased snake with a shoe-horn. The bushers paid the rink the hundred and walked home with nigh unto $1,400.

"Yup, you guessed it. The next game was played on a percentage basis. Ask some of them fellers in Belleville. They'll tell you 'tis so."

Be that as it may. The game last night that saw 1,400 howling fans cheer the Millionaires home to a 10-1 victory over Point Anne, proved two things. First, there is not a more loyal crew of home-town rooters between here and Aklavik; second, Earle Anderson's puckchasers go better on a fast track. They are not "maidens" by any stretch of the imagination and while not detracting from the Millionaires' outstanding victory, the soft condition of the ice slowed up Point Pelissier like four-wheel brakes. There is nothing definite on the venue of the third game of the series as there is talk of the ice being taken out of Memorial Arena. The game has been slated for Monday, but where, is in the air.

SAY IT ISN'T SO!

The baseball world was rocked the other day with the announcement of Ted Williams that the Boston Red Sox homerun king would retire at the end of the season. It comes like a bolt out of the blue. If you want the first-hand story of why the "Silver" is hanging up the gear see his story in this week's Saturday Evening Post. It is the first of three installments. Williams has a colorful story of a colorful career in which he tells of future plans that will surprise fandom. Baseball fans should not pass up this great yarn.

MEET THE "BLUEBIRDS"

Paul Mercier, one of the better sportsmen of the city, has done it again. Osm Paul, who would rather see his favorite "Canajew" win the Stanley Cup than hold a winning sweeps ticket on the Derby winner, will sponsor the Belleville Junior "A" softball team this year. He has plunked down the entry fee, got himself a couple of coaches and a business manager and dubbed the squad the "Bluebirds." The ole reliable "Warpy" O'Brien will be the business head with Bill Spafford and Johnny Batchelier the coaches. A practice will be called as soon as the Alemite Field is fit for play-and in the meantime any budding young player of junior age should contact "Warpy." All spots will be open, and given to players on their merits.

Toronto Maple Leafs started an unusual pattern of Stanley Cup victory five years ago tonight by beating Detroit Red Wings 3-1 in the first game. Leafs won the cup final in four straight games—each by the same 3-1 count—and then it was their third straight Stanley Cup triumph. Detroit broke the string in 1950.

Dick Irvin, Adams Sound Off As Wings Threaten Protest; Habs Have Home Edge Tonight

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The penalty-and-power-play series, probably one of the most unique in Stanley Cup annals, opens its Montreal stand tonight with no let-up in off-stage squawks about the referee-ing.

It's small wonder that the officials, instead of some unfortunate players, have been made the goats so far in this tight tussle between the crack-shooting Montreal Canadiens and the Detroit Red Wings.

In the two games in Detroit, each settled by a 3-1 score, first in favor of the Wings and then Canadiens, only one of the total eight goals was scored while 12 players were on the ice. The Red Wings counted one goal when one of their own men was in the penalty box.

With penalties playing such an important part, the roars and bellows were loud enough to—Coach Dick Irvin sounded off first. His team lost the Sunday game, handled by referee Bill Chadwick.

The outraged Montreal coach proclaimed that "it's strange opposing teams get penalties until the Red Wings are in front." Irvin followed that with some succinct comment about "evening things up."

BLAST FROM ADAMS

Detroit's loss Tuesday night when referee Red Storey handled the game, brought a blast from general manager Jack Adams to the effect that Storey was never any good and as a Montreal man would of course favor Canadiens.

To cap this, Bruce Norris, co-owner of the Red Wings, announced he would file a letter of protest over the officiating, the protest directed to president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League.

The two games produced 25 penalties, 14 against Canadiens and 11 against the Wings. Canadiens have had eight in the first game to Detroit's seven; six in the second game to Detroit's four, but two of the Detroit penalties overlapped and Canadiens quickly whipped in two of their three goals.

Now that the best-of-seven series has moved to Montreal for games tonight and Thursday, the Red Wings not try for a win on foreign ice, as Canadiens did in Detroit. Home ice has been good to Canadiens this season. In seven NHL meetings with the top two clubs, Canadiens won six and Detroit one. In Detroit, the Montrealers lost two and tied one after five losses. Their win at Olympia Stadium Tuesday night was their first on Detroit ice since the middle of January, 1953.

SERIES A TOSS-UP

On the basis of the Sunday and Tuesday games in Detroit, the series is still a toss-up. Canadiens faded as the first game wore on and the Wings wilted in the second when mild weather made playing conditions uncomfortable.

Coach Tommy Ivan of Detroit is expected to stick to his regular line formations tonight. Any changes in personnel will be minor.

On the eve of the home stand coach Dick Irvin had injury problems to worry about. The most alarming was a wrenched knee suffered in the second game by defenceman Doug Harvey. Early today Harvey was still in the doubtful-starter class.

Jean Beliveau came out of the Tuesday game with a charley horse. The injury responded to treatment and he was expected to be ready for tonight.

Ottawa Juniors Oust Sydney In Cup Play

OTTAWA (CP) — Eastview St. Charles Wednesday night eliminated North Sydney Franklins in the eastern Canada Memorial Cup quarter-finals with a 6-3 win in the deciding game of their best-of-five series.

Referee Ken Mullins called a halt to the game with 32 seconds remaining as Eastview hammered in their sixth goal when a fight broke out in the North Sydney end. Players from both teams joined in the fray and Mullins stopped the game as fans poured onto the ice.

The win earned the Ottawa and district champions the right to advance into the semi-finals against Quebec Frontenacs. The first game of the series will be played here Friday night.

After the game, however, W. D. George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said North Sydney will have 24 hours in which to file a protest.

Golfing Aces Draw Fines After 'Rhubarb'

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—The tournament committee of the Professional Golfers Association has fined three prominent golfers and put one of them on six months' probation as the aftermath of a "rhubarb" in the Greensboro open tournament last week-end.

Marty Furgol of Detroit, Mich., was fined $250 and put on probation for six months. Doug Ford of Yonkers, N.Y., who beat Furgol in a playoff for first place in the tournament, and Bill Nary of Passon, Ariz., were fined $50 each.

This almost unprecedented public chastisement of prominent touring pros resulted from a fracas between Nary and Ford. Nary claimed that Ford had stepped on a bush to hold it out of the way while he was making a shot and he refused to sign Ford's card. Furgol then got into the dispute which almost led to blows.

Furgol was penalized more severely than the others because he used strong language within the hearing of spectators during the dispute and because he had been warned previously for improper language and unsportsmanlike conduct.

Elgins Name New Chairman

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Dr. R. A. Gilbert has been elected chairman of the executive of the Elgin Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

He succeeds Garvey Dowler, who resigned because of pressure of business.

Manager Tommy White announced he signed veteran catcher Stanley (Doc) Glenn, formerly of Hartford, Conn., and the Quebec Provincial League, and Les Earl, second baseman, from the Maryland semi-pro league.

Teepees Blank Toronto Marlboros 2-0 In Opening Battle Junior A Finals

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Marv Edwards chalked up his first shutout of this year's playoffs when he blanked Toronto Marlboros 2-0 Wednesday night to give St. Catharines TeePees a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A finals.

The victory was the fourth consecutive one for TeePees who eliminated Toronto St. Michael's College Majors in the semi-finals. Second game of the finals will be played in Toronto Saturday.

A record of 3,382 shirt-sleeved fans saw the TeePees score goals in the second and third periods. Brian Cullen, the league's most valuable player, set up both counters. His brother Barry scored the winning goal. Hugh Barlow, the other member of the line, scored the second goal to insure the victory.

The game was played on ice that became slushy after the first period. The temperature in St. Catharines before the game was 72 degrees.

Johnny Albani in the Marlboro nets stopped 34 shots—twice as many as Edwards. One aggressive style used by the Dukes earned them six of the nine minor penalties and a 10-minute misconduct for arguing. None counted in the scoring.

With less than two minutes remaining in the second period, Brian Cullen cut in from the left side and fired a shot. Albani sprawled on the ice to block the drive but the puck rolled loose and Barry Cullen shoved it in the net.

Another pass by Brian in the third period set the two Toronto defencemen and Barlow, who was standing in front of the goal crease slapped it by Albani at 6:59.

Marlboros had few scoring opportunities in any of the periods. The TeePees closely shadowed their checks.

Nels Stewart and Elmer Vasko were pillars on the St. Catharines defence while Barlow was the big man on the rushes. Brian Cullen, as always, and Pete Koval were also standouts on offence.

Marmora Drubs Pt. Anne 10-1 To Even Valley Loop Finals

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

The Marmora Millionaires evened their best-of-seven finals for the TVL title and the Thomas Bete trophy at one goal each last night when they handed Point Anne their worst defeat of the year, 10-1, in the Dr. H. Crayford Memorial Arena in Marmora.

The Millionaires took command from the first minute of play and led 4-0 at the end of the first period, made it 8-1 after 40 minutes had elapsed and scored the only two goals of the final period to walk off with a well deserved victory on the night's play. In all fairness to Point, they were unable to show their usual form on the smaller ice surface which was very slow during the whole game, while Marmora came up with one of their good efforts.

SCORE EARLY

Jones lost no time in opening the scoring when he backhanded one by Don Bates at 1:45 and just 22 seconds later Mantle made it 2-0 while the 1,400 fans shouted their pleasure. Loveless got two more fast ones near the eleven minute mark with the first one on a good pass play with E. Trumble. Ramsbottom teamed up with these two for the next goal 22 seconds after the first, with this one coming from a goalmouth scramble. Loveless was the last player to touch the puck ere it dented the twine.

Billy Strahan put hope in the hearts of the Pointers rooters early in the middle stanza when he took passes from John Green and Jackie Ip beat Killins in that that was all the Anderson-Williams crew were able to do.

HIT HARD

Maynes got a pair and K. Trumble and Brooks one goal each to make the count 8-1 by the end of the second. One of the highlights of this period was a bone-crushing body check thrown by Peter Green that laid Jones of Marmora flat on the ice, cut, cold. The check was perfectly legal and no penalty was called.

Smith made it 9-1 at 5:15 of the third and K. Trumble notched the final goal with six minutes left to play, Leonard drawing the third assist of the game on this marker.

Ken "Stubby" Trumble, captain of the home team led the attack with a brace of goals and one assist while Leonard potted up his trio of helpers. Maynes and Loveless each contributed two goals to the offence.

The officials handed out eight penalties in all with the visitors getting five, several of which were of the cheap variety.

The teams:

Point Anne—Bates, Mulholland, P. Green, Jacklin, Gilmour, Strahan, J. Green, Stewart, G. Goyer, Williams, L. Goyer, Mantle, Bradshaw, L. Marcele, Tew.

Marmora—Killins, Grey, Leonard, Maynes, Lavender, K. Trumble, Jones, Mantle, Brown, Ramsbottom, E. Trumble, Smith, Loveless, Darrah, Young, Brooks.

The referees; McPaul and Carson.

Clippers Clip Truckmen 6-2

STOUFFVILLE (CP) — Stouffville Clippers defeated Oshawa Truckmen 6-2 Wednesday night to take a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior B playoffs.

George Stark and Gerd Haddleton each scored two goals for the Clippers. Singles went to Chick Webster and Bill Melville. Fred Etcher and George Samolenko were the subers for Oshawa.

EILERS WIN TITLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Eilers won their fifth straight Canadian senior women's basketball championship Wednesday night by defeating Calgary Willchens 45-44. The victory gave Eilers the best-of-five final series in three straight games.

India Champion Beats Mexican

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Nandu Natekar, the all-India champion, trimmed Ernesto Villareal, the Mexican champion, in the last match Wednesday in the first day of the United States national badminton championships here.

Other winners in the first two rounds of men's singles play in the American Badminton Association championships included Eddie Chong of Malaya, the favorite; Don Smythe of Toronto, the Canadian champion; Ong Poh Lim of Singapore; T. N. Sethi of India, and Jack Scott of South Pasadena, Calif., the best American hope.

Dr. Dave Freeman of San Diego, the current titleholder, is not defending his crown. The tournament lasts through Sunday.

Winners in the first round of the women's singles included Joan Hennessy and Joan Warren of Toronto and Thelma Scoville Welcome of Glendale, Calif.

Sullivan To Replace Obeck

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette says today in a newspaper story Larry Sullivan, former lineman with Notre Dame, will succeed Vic Obeck as head football coach at McGill University.

The paper says Sullivan's appointment will be announced at a press luncheon today called to name Obeck's successor.

Obeck will continue as university director of athletics.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP)—A 32-mile Lake Ontario relay swim was approved Tuesday by the board of directors of the Canadian National Exhibition.

Coupled with the marathon race will be a solo swim by English channel flight with the Corfu lensnets taking the first two of three places in the first place pool, and Odettes dropping back to number two spot. Bob's Kidds and the White Kidds tied for third place with 107 points each, changed places on the flip of a coin with Bob's Kidds in third and White Kidds in fourth.

Play-offs will start Thursday, April 8th for Division "A" and Friday, April 9th for Division "B". First and fifth place teams, second and sixth and so on will play off in the 1st round, playing best of six games in two nights, with total pinfall in case of a tie. In the second round first and third, and second and fourth place teams play off with the winners entering the finals.

At the end of the regular schedule the team scores and individual high scores are as follows:

Canuck Football 'High School Ball' Says Coach

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Lee Howell, new head coach of New York's professional football Giants, is a slow-moving Arkansas cattle farmer who ain't got no grudges against nobody — especially the Canadian leagues.

"Why, the Canadian leagues aren't causing us any concern, not near as much as most folks think," he says.

"The boys who are jumping to Canada are those who don't have him on defence. Then, when he got to a point where he couldn't keep up with the speed, he decided he might try Canada. He figured he'd make best place in his league up there last year."

SLOW GAME

Howell, who succeeds Steve Owen at the Giants helm, suggested that Canada could serve as a proving ground for the NFL and would be a sort of pastureland for players in the twilight of their career.

"I've just come back from a tour of the south and I talked to some of the boys who played in Canada," he added. "They told me it was not much faster than high school ball."

The exodus of United States talent across the border is continuing without let-up.

FRANKFORD

Bowling Notes

FRANKFORD—The Frankford mixed bowling league ended its regular schedule this week, and in Division "A", the division leading, Walnwright's staved off an end of the season drive by Ed's Sharkies to cop seasonal trophies. "B" Division leaders battled to the end of its wins with first and second place teams, Octettes and Greenhornets respectively, for a tie at first with 119 points each. This situation was remedied Saturday night with the Greenhornets taking the first two of three games to cop first place spot, and Octettes dropping back to number two spot. Bob's Kidds and the White Kidds tied for third place with 107 points each, changed places on the flip of a coin with Bob's Kidds in third and White Kidds in fourth.

Play-offs will start Thursday, April 8th for Division "A" and Friday, April 9th for Division "B". Wolves Rally to Defeat Mercs 3-1 Square Senior Finals at Three-All SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves retained a clean home-ice slate in the all-Ontario senior A finals Wednesday night by coming from behind to defeat Owen Sound Mercurys 3-1.

The victory, which tied the best-of-seven final 2-2, was the third of five played in the Ontario hockey loo. The three Mercury wins were scored in Owen Sound. Final game of the series is here Friday. The winner will advance into the eastern Canada Allan Cup final against Matane Red Rocks with the first game set for Matane Sunday.

A crowd of 6,673 fans saw the Wolves spoil the Mercurys one goal in the slow first period before bouncing back for a 2-1 lead in the second.

Maune Kauppi tied the score for the Wolves in the second. Ed Harrison fired the winner four minutes later and Bob Beaudry notched the insurance tally in the third. Jaydee McArthur scored Owen Sound's goal.

McArthur tallied the first goal in the game when he beat Tiger Morgan, the only man back for the Wolves, and shot the puck past the far side of netminder Al Millar.

Kauppi tied it on a backhander after digging the puck out of the corner of the ice. Bob Gillson partially blocked the shot but the puck trickled through his pads. Goed Heale, Sudbury forward who has been out of the line-up for two months with a heart ailment, set up the winning goal.

Heale passed the puck to Harrison at centre ice and the former Boston Bruin took it from there. He sped past two Sudbury defencemen and beat Gillson with another backhander.

In the third period Pete Horeck fired a shot behind the Owen Sound goal. Mick Tomluk scooped it out to Beaudry who clicked for the final goal of the game.

McArthur received a severe stitch cut on the forehead in the second period, caused by a teammate's stick, but returned to action in the third period.

Chuck Davey Drubs Dreyer In Furious Bout

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Chuck Davey, Notre Dame college graduate from Lansing, Mich., scored a decision over Gerald Dreyer of Prestonia, South Africa, in a furious fought, televised 10-round fight Wednesday night. Davey weighed 169 pounds to 151 for Dreyer.

A crowd of 7,000 or several thousand cheered the rivals as they exchanged punch-for-punch practically from start to finish.

Davey, the clever southpaw who lost the welterweight champion Kid Gavilan in a title match slightly more than a year ago, was fighting for recognition as a challenger again. His speed and unorthodox style had the game South African on the receiving end of a steady stream of right and left-leads.

In the ninth and 10th rounds, Davey threw more than an assortment of blows but the latter weathered the storm each time.

Detroit Fans Put Up Sign; Selke 'Dukes'

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Selke, the little man who buses Montreal Canadiens from the front office, is ready Detroit fans to fight for his players—and he proved it.

Just before Tuesday night's game at Detroit Olympia ended, Selke calmly removed his glasses, handed them to his wife and was ready for a tussle with a group of wide-eyed Detroit fans.

The incident arose over a placard borne by the fans to the rail near where the Montreal managing director and his party were seated. The placard obviously was intended to be read by one Montreal player in particular and the team in general, it said:

"Rocket Richard stinks."

Lee Dillon, Selke's assistant secretary, reached out to grab the sign. Then Selke went into action. He tore the sign apart and marched straight into the midst of the hostile fans, all of whom appeared to be in their 20s. Olympia ushers dashed in and the flurry subsided.

"It would be a fine guy not to stick up for my players, wouldn't I?" reflected the 60-year-old Selke later.

UNDERGROUND EXPERT

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP) — Joe Soroski, civic employee for 40 years who died at age 84, knew where every pipe was laid without having to check records. In cases where plans had been lost, he was able to direct workmen to the right digging spot to repair breaks.

ARGOS GET ANOTHER KROL

TORONTO (CP) — Tackle Cas Krol, who will graduate from the University of Detroit in June, Wednesday signed a contract to play for Toronto Argonauts of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union.

The 21-year-old Krol is six feet three inches tall, weighs 230 and was ninth draft selection of Pittsburgh Steelers this year. Coach Frank Clair of Argonauts said Krol plays both offence and defence.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tyrone Power has sprung to the defence of himself and other top male stars who have been accused of partly causing the production slowdown in Hollywood.

An independent producer recently rushed into print with a statement decrying a lot of top stars for refusing to work. He also asserted that he sent John Wayne a $400,000 cheque to do a picture and it was returned uncashed.

Another producer claimed to have sent a $250,000 cheque to Clark Gable for a film commitment. It also was sent back.

Why would stars turn down such fabulous offers? Power explains: "Supposing Clark had taken that $250,000. When it is added to his other earnings, he'd probably get to, kaga $15,000 or $20,000 out of it. So the salary itself doesn't represent any great profit.

TALENT ONLY SECURITY

"But it's not just a matter of money. Actors like myself, Wayne, Gable, Gary Cooper, Burt Lancaster, Kirk Douglas and others named by that producer—whose name escapes me right now—no longer have studio contracts to protect us.

"The only real security we have is our talent. Our livelihood depends on getting good scripts. If we ate willing to do just any picture in order to make money, we might find out eventually that we have hurt our chances to continue earning good money."

In the fall, Power will return to his old alma mater, 20th Century-Fox, to do the last film under his contract, which lasted 15 years. Hereafter, all his deals will be on the basis of deferring his salary against a share of the profits.

"It's the only way a star can make money," he explains. "Let's face it — nobody is going to get rich in these times, no matter how you work deals."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What does an American miss most after a year and a half in Europe?

"Some good, simple food," replies Kirk Douglas. "In France where I spent much of my time you can get the most elegant food in the world. But after a while you yearn for a thick, juicy, plain dish such as you can only get in the United States. Put roast, Corned beef and cabbage. A hamburger and milk shake. How I could have used something like that!"

Douglas frankly admits that he went abroad to profit from the tax exemption for Americans who lived abroad 18 months. He didn't come back with as much profit as he had hoped for; Congress stepped in and changed the law. But he does think that the jaunt was worthwhile in other respects.

MADE THREE PICTURES

The actor made three pictures abroad: "The Juggler," "Act of Love" and "Ulysses." He toured Israel, Italy, France, Switzerland, Germany and England. He met royalty and the heads of state. He feels that the whole experience caused him to grow as an actor and as an individual.

He added that a trip abroad made him again appreciate the American success story, of which his own life is a notable example. He was born Issur Danielovitch in Amsterdam, N.Y. His parents, who also had six daughters, had emigrated from Russia.

"If they had stayed there, I would have been a peasant," Kirk said.

Douglas is here doing "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," his first Hollywood film since "Story of Three Loves."

The Kibitzer

Beware of Foxy Louie. He does a lot of plotting. His mitts may look screwy. So what. It gets you "potting."

You know players who think no more of what they lose in any card game than you do if it were your right eye. They get no more fun out of it than a stone image on a cement block.

You also know players whose only Elick out of a card game is to pull a clever stunt on opponents. He is willing to lose his own shirt and yours just to put one over on the opposition.

Came the deal you see here:

The bidding landed in three no-trump with south as the declarer. It should have been in four diamonds. But that was another story. This tells how south contrived to get nine no-trump tricks.

The opening lead from west was a spade on which east put the queen. South knew that an opponent switch to clubs would defeat him. So, he started shenanigans to take their mind away from it.

Instead of winning the first trick he dropped his spade jack on the queen. As south had hoped, this got the impression that a spade continuation would be interesting to declarer.

So, east returned a spade. South continued the hoax by winning with his ace instead of the king. As hoped, east got the impression that south had the spade king and the remaining spades.

South led a small diamond to dummy. Although west put on the queen, east's diamond ace was forced out. Now east came back with his last spade and south got it with the king.

The heart king, a dummy diamond, the heart ace and four more diamonds gave the declarer all he needed. By the time opponents started taking clubs the declarer had his contract fulfilled.

Many a foe is saved by a ruse.

AT THE CAPITOL — A scene from Kentucky's proudest bluebloods "Pride of the Bluegrass" in thrilling color starring Lloyd Bridges, Vera Miles and Margaret Sheridan. Two big race picture opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program it's the Bowery Boys newest comedy "Paris Playboys" starring Leo Gorcey and Huntz Hall. See both at these first Belleville showing hits on the Capitol Theatre's new wide curved giant screen. A treat for the whole family.

AT THE BELLE—Terry Moore and Robert Wagner are a romantic twosome in "Beneath the Twelve Mile Reef," Twentieth Century-Fox's thrilling drama in the revealing panoramic CinemaScope process, in Technicolor. Gilbert Roland shares stellar honors. A complete program of CinemaScope units in Stereo-Phonic Sound precede the feature attraction, showing Today, Friday and Saturday at the Belle Theatre.

Is that all? Two-fisted little fire engines like this are one of the little reasons why more families ran out of Kellogg's Corn Flakes this morning than any other cereal. The big reason it happens every day is this: Kellogg's Corn Flakes just naturally taste best to more people. Always have. Still do. So naturally, many women pick up a spare package of Kellogg's Corn Flakes every time they buy any cereal of any kind. You too?
FRESH from Kellogg's

AT THE McCARTHY — Margaret Rutherford and Norman Wisdom in one of their hilarious sequences from "Trouble In Store" opening today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Miss Rutherford supplies a typically amusing portrait of a shop-lifter in the new comedy.

AT THE BELLE — "Beneath the Twelve Mile Reef" — CinemaScope. Technicolor — Robert Wagner, Terry Moore, Gilbert Roland — 7:30-9:25.
"Paris Playboys" — The Bowery Boys — 8:15-10:10.

DRIVE-IN THEATRE
"The Hour of 13"
In 1890, the inhabitants of London are becoming increasingly alarmed by the number of murders of policemen, all announced to Scotland Yard by a man signing himself "The Terror." Peter Lawford, a society thief, plans to steal a famous emerald from Heather Thatcher at a ball given to announce the engagement of Dawn Addams. Lawford steals the jewel but throws away the clasp near the body of another "Terror" victim. Thus Roland Culver, Scotland Yard inspector, ties up the robber with the murders. Dawn Addams, Culver's daughter, meets Lawford and asks his aid in solving the crime. Culver suspects Lawford but the latter disguises himself as a policeman and traps The Terror' just as he is about to claim his 13th victim. The dying man tells Culver he had planned to murder 13 policemen.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Conscientious forethought, respect for the rights of others are musts. Win the cooperation of family and business associates by good example, and the day will prosper better than expected.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your aim today should be to do your best regardless of what returns may be. Some days seem hard to manage but, in the long run, they are more beneficial when we work them through.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Patience, moderation and forethought should be your watchwords now. We can always get a better slant on how things stand and how they should be handled when we stop to think calmly and good-humoredly.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Avoid fretting, anxiety. Finish matters already started if possible before undertaking new, perhaps unessential, tasks. Familiar matters should not prove too difficult if you are patient.

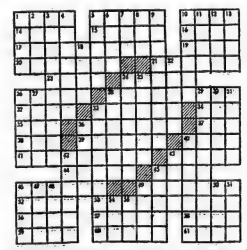
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — The Sun's aspect together with benefic influences advise conservation of money, time and energy today. This done your chances for smoother thinking and achievement are enchanced. Keep trying.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Research, rechecking for ways to improve, discussions important to work and social interests can aid in many ways. This will not mean a waste of time but a saving of it for better action.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—You will profit if you heed advice to Virgo and Taurus. Advancement rates need not be spectacular. Even small progress is worthwhile and can bring benefits. Work with faith.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio—Enthusiasm, go-getter-ism may have to yield to conservatism today. Radical changes in business or otherwise not so favored; a steady, productive pace is urged.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — If you are well equipped with faith and will power and are eager but not over-anxious about getting and keeping things going, you will benefit—even though financial gains don't immediately show.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Try to clear desk or bench of unfinished business, and time have a clear slate with which to begin Saturday — or Monday. Some days must be spent in this manner. We can do some good every day.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You can get ahead now if you don't change ideas or plans too often. Don't seek only the unusual or new undertakings. Keep faith with day's minor requirements.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Join your efforts in one right direction. And confer and seek advice where you know you can be helped. Also give council where you can aid. You are able, have good ideas. Show them.

YOU BORN TODAY have the advantages of originality, ambition, thirst for knowledge and leadership, but the following failings can defeat the success you should earn unless you correct them: Impulsiveness, carelessness, self-assurance. Pray daily for patience, understanding and appreciate the good you can do with your fine qualities. Your innate characteristics can lead you up to the success ladder if rightly developed and used every day. You can make a go of a profession, trade, business or project, be happy and treasured-ly useful in a religious calling. Faith! Birthdate: Chas. Baudelaire, Fr. poet.

FULL TRAINING
EXCELLENT FUTURE
COOKS

The Canadian Army offers outstanding opportunities for trained and untrained cooks. If you are between 17 and 40, (or if untrained, 17 and 30) and you like a fully equipped catering school where you will receive practical experience and learn the theory of modern cookery, then the Regular Army is the place for you. Army pay and allowances in Canada or overseas. If you would like an Army career catering, investigate this NOW!

CLERKS

The Canadian Army has many openings for young men as clerks. You will be trained in all types of office work — bookkeeping, accounting, costing. You will learn how to supervise, will have good working conditions and pay. You will be trained to maintain excellent records.

If you are interested in office work then there is a career for you in the Army.

To be eligible, you must be 17 to 45 years of age if you are a trained cook, or trained clerk, 17 to 30 years of age if untrained. There is every chance for promotion if you have the necessary qualifications. Army pay and allowances leave with pay, free medical and dental care, and the chance to travel.

For full information visit the Army Recruiting Office nearest your home.

Meet Israeli Moves With Force Arabs Declare

CAIRO (CP)—Egypt and other Arab countries "will in future meet every Israeli aggression with force," Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzy told Gen. Vagn Bennike, chief of the United Nations armistice commission, today.

Bennike flew to Cairo at the request of the Egyptian government. The two men talked for an hour about Arab-Israeli tension, and in particular about alleged attacks on Egyptian territory.

In Jerusalem, an Israeli army spokesman said Egyptians fired across the border at an Israeli patrol on frontier duty near the settlement of Nirim and the patrol returned the fire. There were no Israeli casualties.

HAD STOMACH TROUBLE, DIZZY, TIRED ALL THE TIME

Suffered With So Much Gas, Indigestion, Heartburn — Was Afraid To Eat. Got Headaches, and Rheumatic Pains — Tells of Grand Relief He Got by Taking Syntona.

When the stomach is out of order and food fails to digest properly, bad ingredients causing excessive gas, soureess and a full heavy bloated sensation, many other symptoms often follow. Frequently appetite is impaired, nerves on edge, and sleep disturbed. Sometimes, constipation, dizziness and real tired, sluggish and rundown.

Thousands of men and women have found great relief by taking Dr. Morse's Compound and such is the case of Mrs. Thomas Hammond, 1 Bleecker Avenue, Chatham, Ontario, who says:

"During the past year I've suffered almost every day with stomach trouble. I had no real appetite for my meals and what I did eat gave me very bad gas, indigestion and heartburn. Food would sour and repeat on me so bad I was often afraid to eat. I finally began to feel tired out all the time and I never was so easy to tire. I also suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I'm not one to take any drinks, pills or medicine.

Is Better Now

"But since I've been taking Syntona this trouble with my stomach is relieved and I am able to eat hearty meals without all that bad gassy after-effects. I am also free of headaches and dizzy spells and my nerves and pains have gone away. Now my nerves are steady and I can sleep at night and get up feeling rested. I am really recommending Syntona to my friends as it certainly helped me wonderfully."

Pleasant To Take

Although Syntona is made from Herbs and Roots it is not a bitter medicine. It is extremely pleasant to take and thousands of men and women tell of the same relief from their suffering as that experienced by Mr. Hammond. Why not give this grand medicine a chance to help you?

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Commons Alters Proposed New Law on Sabotage

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons has altered the proposed new law on sabotage to protect workmen on strike.

Three government amendments to the law, in the revised Criminal Code now before Parliament, were adopted.

However, a CCF amendment specifying that no one can be charged with sabotage for refusing to cross a picket line was defeated Wednesday by a standing vote of 53 to 1.

Thomas Barnett (CCF—Comox-Alberni), the sponsor, said he did not think that protection was provided by the government's amendments.

Justice Minister Garson replied that the three amendments met the requests of Canadian labor organizations and he was not prepared to accept Mr. Barnett's proposal. It had not been proved to be necessary.

WOULD CURB DRINKING ADS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representative Hamer Budge (Rep. Ida.) Wednesday introduced a bill to ban televised advertising showing pictures of persons pouring, drinking or opening containers of alcoholic beverages. Violators would be subject to up to $1,000 fine of a year's imprisonment.

Great Ranches On Alberta Plains Fast Disappearing

CALGARY (CP) — The great ranches of the Rocky Mountain foothills and plains of Alberta have disappeared, and the long cattle drives to market are remembered now only by a few oldtimers.

The best stock still comes from ranches, but the great bulk of cattle is raised not on ranches, but on farms. They are not "trailed" to market, but taken in by trucks, trailers and railroad cars.

Yet, cattle raising still is a big industry in Alberta. There are more cattle in the province now than ever before.

In a normal week, about 5,000 cattle are delivered to the stockyards in Calgary, heart of the ranching country. Cash returns to stock producers in 1953 totalled more than $35,000,000.

Each week day trucks loaded with cattle stream into Calgary from farms and ranches within a 10-mile radius. At the start of the week, trucks sometimes are lined up for blocks leading to the 22-acre stockyards and its 700 pens.

BIG BUSINESS

In 1953, some 264,000 cattle and and 1,3 horses were delivered to the yards. Actual sales included 232,0 cattle and calves, 85,000 hogs and 11,000 sheep. The remainder were handled for feed and water on through-billing.

On the peak day last year, 418 trucks stopped at the yards, followed by 332 the next day. In the two days 1,010 individual shippers delivered 9,30 cattle and calves, 1,00 hogs and 400 sheep. At the same time, there were 22 carloads of livestock on track.

The Calgary yards, next in size to those in Toronto and Winnipeg, are owned by Alberta Stockyards Co., a subsidiary of the CPR. The company was formed in 1903 by ranchers and bought by the railway in 1911.

A special feature of the Calgary yards is that cattle are sold by auction.

Diefenbaker Finds Critics Much Alike

LONDON (CP) — John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the Canadian Parliament, is thousands of miles from Ottawa, but the political atmosphere hasn't changed much.

Diefenbaker arrived by air from Canada Wednesday and went to the House of Commons to hear Hugh Gaitskell, Labor's financial spokesman, criticize the new British budget.

"That was my substitute for listening to what Jim Macdonnell had to say in Ottawa about the Canadian budget," Diefenbaker said.

Macdonnell is chief financial critic for the Progressive Conservative party and spoke in the Canadian budget debate. Both the British and Canadian budgets were introduced Tuesday.

Diefenbaker leaves London Sunday to lecture at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and visit countries in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization pact.

WILL$ MILLION TO CEMETERY

NEW YORK (CP)—The widow of a soap manufacturer left $1,000,000 for the beautification of a cemetery in Cape Cod, Mass., according to her will filed for probate here Wednesday. Mrs. Lewis Kirkman, 75, died March 10. She was the widow of soap manufacturer Sidney Kirkman.

No Plans to Wed Gabor Rubirosa Declares

PARIS (CP)—Porfirio Rubirosa said today that "I have no plans to marry Zsa Zsa Gabor and she has no plans either."

The estranged husband of Barbara Hutton made the statement as he arrived here in his own plane, a converted Mitchel B-25 bomber.

Zsa Zsa, who arrived Wednesday by plane, declined also to make any comment on the reported romance, though a Reuters story quoted her as saying she would wed Rubirosa "a year to the day from now."

RUSSIA AIDS IRAQ HOMELESS

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet Red Cross announced Wednesday night that it is donating $20,000 to aid victims made homeless in Iraq by the recent River Tigris flood.

WHICH PAINT?

Alkyd and Latex (rubber) are the two new "wonder" paint vehicles. Either will make your decorating much easier and better. Which should you use?

ALKYD SANI-FLAT

is the amazing new flat oil paint — really scrubable yet with that soft velvet flat finish which gives a room atmosphere. Can be used on woodwork of living rooms and bedrooms as well as walls. No primer needed — apply with roller or brush directly on new plaster, old paint, wallboard or wallpaper. One coat often covers. 24 thrilling modern colors.

WALL-SATIN

is the rubber base paint which really washes like china. Its low sheen finish, is highly decorative but finger marks and dirt are removed with the greatest of ease. If you have used other rubber base paints, we're sure you'll find Wall Satin better. It has dense hiding, easy brushing and comes in a beautiful range of colors.

Come in and see the Color Charts. Whichever you choose, we know you'll be delighted with the results.

ALKYD SANI-FLAT — the scrubable flat oil paint.

Bevan Denounces Any Plan to Act In Indo-China

LONDON (AP)—Aneurin Bevan, leader of the Labor party's left wing, declared in a newspaper article today that Britain must tell the United States "in the clearest possible terms that we are not prepared to be dragged into...military action in Indo-China."

The fiery Welsh Socialist's comments in the pro-Labor Daily Mirror followed the announcement Thursday night that State Secretary Dulles may fly to London and Paris next week to press U. S. calls for an immediate declaration "promising united action" against a possible Communist sweep over Indo-China.

"The time will soon come, if indeed it hasn't already arrived, to inform America that the presence of American military personnel in these (British) islands is intolerable if our policies no longer march together," wrote Bevan.

UNEASY OVER U. S. PLAN

The Times and News Chronicle (independent and Liberal respectively, also expressed disquiet over Dulles' call for a Big Three warning to Red China against further intervention in the war between the French and the Communist-dominated Vietminh rebels in Indo-China.

Britain and France both are reported balking at American pressure for a "hands-off" warning and for the formation immediately of a 10-power anti-Communist front in southeast Asia.

They feel this would reduce chances of agreement at the Geneva meeting later this month.

Queen and Duke Visit Cruiser Escorting Them

ABOARD THE GOTHIC (AP)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh braved a blistering sun today and boarded a royal barge to visit the crack cruiser that is escorting them.

The sun blazed down from directly overhead as they left the royal liner and skimmed across the water to the cruiser.

Lady Pamela Hicks, Australian, the Queen's lady-in-waiting, held a parasol over the Queen's head as she took the salute while the cruiser's company marched past the drydock.

It was 84 degrees in the shade. With the Queen in a short-sleeved frock of dusty pink silk patterned in gray with a matching hat, the duke was in the white uniform of an admiral of the fleet.

As the royal party were about to leave the cruiser to return to the Gothic, there was a five-foot shark swimming a few feet away from the barge.

The Queen's visit took place less than 200 miles from Colombo, next stop on the royal tour. It was more than a quarter of the island's 8,000,000 people jammed toward Colombo today for Saturday's royal arrival.

The entire country is in its festive best for the first visit of a reigning British monarch.

Reliable reports said the Queen will be a special gift ready for Ceylon —appointment of its first native son as governor-general. Reports said he is a wealthy 61-year-old Sir Oliver E. Goonetilleke, now finance minister.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Clear skies and light winds over most of Ontario allowed early morning temperatures to fall below the freezing point with Moosonee reporting a low below zero. As the cold air pushes east to the Atlantic coast warmer air will invade the province from the south today and Saturday.

HOUSE APPROVES NEW CRIMINAL CODE FOR CANADA

Two Amendments Lost by Big Counts

OTTAWA (CP)—A revision of Canada's criminal law, five years in the making, has been passed the Commons, but there still are a few loose ends to be cleaned up.

The House Thursday night approved the legislation, which boils down some 1,200 sections in the present code to 753 sections. It has been under study at various times since 1949 by two royal commissions, the Senate, Commons and government departments.

The measure, first thorough revision of the criminal law since Canada's code was adopted in 1892, now goes to the Senate.

The CCF and Progressive Conservative parties made two attempts Thursday night to obtain reconsideration of certain sections before the measure was given third and final reading.

An amendment by Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) to send the code back into Commons committee on clauses dealing with lotteries was defeated 94 to 59. Another amendment by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) to study further sections dealing with mischief and criminal breaches of contract was defeated by 93 to 59.

Fred J. Shaw (CCF—Prince) sided with the Liberals on both votes, while two Independents, Raoul Poulin, Beauce, and Fernand Girard, Lapointe, supported the opposition.

COMMISSION APPOINTED

A royal commission to redraft the code was appointed in 1949. A second royal commission took up the study in 1951 and brought down a draft the following year.

The draft was sent to the Senate in 1952, but the Senate Border did not complete study. The code was redrafted by the government after consideration by the Senate it was referred to a Commons committee which proposed a third draft, the present legislation.

Now, a 27-member Commons-Senate committee is studying the draft. The final code should be amended concerning capital and corporal punishment and lotteries. The committee started work a few weeks ago and expects to complete its task by May 1 to may take two years to complete the job.

Under the old defence of insanity to criminal charges and the present code of criminal sexual psychopaths are being studied by royal commissions.

South Korea Will Halt Trade With Japanese

SEOUL (Reuters) — The South Korean government today announced that it has decided to halt trade with Japan.

A statement by the commerce and industry ministry said that in the past year Japan's government has applied "unreasonable and unilateral restrictions on Korean export goods."

University Lecturer Gains 3 Pounds On 25-Day Diet of Milk, Orange Juice

SASKATOON (CP)—Dr. D. L. Gibson hasn't felt so "perky" in years. He's just finished a 25-day diet of a lot of milk and a little bit of orange juice.

He gained three pounds. Dr. Glen Kinaman, who kept Dr. Gibson under constant medical check during the test, says his patient's health is better now than at any time during the past years. Regularity is known him.

Dr. Gibson, head of the dairy science department at the University of Saskatchewan, contended that dairy cattle thrive on a diet consisting cattle than they did about feeding themselves.

He told his class that milk was an almost-perfect food. The students were sceptical. So he collected 25 cents from each member of the agriculture college to finance the experiment and proved his theory this way:

He lunched 15 to April 7 he held steadfastly to a diet of three quarts of milk and four ounces of orange juice a day, supplemented with one iron tablet every five days.

W. Rae, head of the university's dairy department, contended Dr. Gibson could have dispensed with the iron tablets and had a better diet had he dropped a raw egg into each glass of milk.

Dr. Gibson agreed. But his was a purely scientific venture to prove that sedentary workers could live healthily and personally on his fluid diet.

There are about 2,300 calories in the milk and orange juice he drank daily. The diet was so quickly digested that he got hungry every two hours.

Dr. Gibson recalls only one similar experiment. About 20 years ago three Wisconsin students lived for several months on mineralized milk and oranges or orange juice. Records of that experiment were incomplete.

Ald. Robert Temple, 28, Of Belleville Is Candidate For Ont. Liberal Leadership

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Liberals today choose a new party leader. They have no chief now.

Farquhar Oliver, 50, the party's House leader in the legislature.

Albert Wren, 37, Liberal-Labor member of the legislature for Kenora.

Robert Temple, 29, Belleville lawyer and alderman.

Prior to nominations Thursday, it appeared to be a three-way race between Young Liberals proposed Mr. Temple.

The 101 voting delegates, on a straight-majority ballot, will pick the man to fill the seat vacant since 1951 when Walter C. Thomson, Pickering farmer, resigned following his defeat in the provincial election. The election saw the Liberals' strength cut from 14 to seven, including Mr. Wren's support, in the 90-seat House.

MANY SPEECH

Delegates Thursday night heard Health Minister Martin urge the party to "proclaim principles and policies and to translate them into a vigorous, practical program of Ontario which will restore liberalism in Ontario."

"Toronto may have its subway, but this is no time for the Liberal party to go underground. We belong to no underground movement in the Province of Ontario," Martin told a political fash. So let us move up and out into the light of day and forward from this moment on—

Four Highways Dept. Workers Committed for Trial for Fraud

PORT WILLIAM (CP) — Four former Ontario highways department employees today were committed for trial on a charge of conspiring to defraud the province in connection for the services of non-existent trucks.

Committed after a half hour hearing were division clerk Douglas F. Cutting, clerk Donald T. Gandier, principal clerk Graham W. Turner and Thomas L. Ayers, W. Turner and Thomas L. Ayers, asphalt plant superintendent.

The four will elect trial before a judge without jury and the crown said the trial date is expected to be May 17.

OTHER CHARGES

Cutting and Gandier were also committed on a charge of paying out funds for a truck and driver where no driver was supplied.

Gandier and Turner were committed on a similar charge—paying for a truck where none was supplied—and Ayers was committed for theft of the excess of the proper payment for the type of vehicle provided.

The crown case was by one witness—G. A. Garrett, a member of the staff of the provincial highways.

Special prosecutor C. L. Dubin of Toronto said the four men put on the payroll two trucks which did not exist and one which existed as working at the Jellico asphalt plant.

He said the trucks were in the mythical names of H. Brown and Sons Trucking Co. Ltd. Cheques from this source was divided equally among the four.

Garrett said cheques payable to Brown and Potter totalled $7,620 dollars, $3,810 to each name.

MILLS COMMITTED

Thursday, at the preliminary hearing for Arthur M. Mills, former highways department division engineer, a government employee testified he faked reports on orders from Mills so that road building could be paid for work they didn't do.

Harvey William Hurrell said there was an overpayment of about $8,000 while he was a temporary assistant at a project in the Thunder Bay district.

His testimony came at the preliminary hearing of Arthur M. Mills, 46-year-old former engineer while district engineer with the Ontario department of highways. Mills was one of 18 district engineers supervising road building in the province.

Hurrell testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, which means his evidence cannot be used against him in any future trial.

Magistrate W. E. Woodliffe of Sudbury committed the 60-year-old Mills for trial after a one-hour hearing.

The preliminary hearing of four other former highways department employees charged with conspiring

BARRAGE HINTS NEW VIETMINH ATTACK NEAR

Lull at Dien Bien Phu Appears to Have Ended

HANOI (AP) — The Communist-led Vietminh opened a "violent" artillery barrage today on the French Union fortress of Dien Bien Phu in what may be a prelude to a new mass assault on the Indo-China bastion.

A French communique said the defenders swarmed back with tremendous barrages as the rebels rained down thousands of shells from their 105- and 75-millimetre artillery and heavy mortars in the hills encircling the French-held valley in the fortress stands.

Such artillery step-ups have preceded the Vietminh's previous attempts to overrun the fortress. There was a two-day wave of assault beginning March 13, then six days of repeated attacks on various points of the plain's defences which ended Monday.

Some French Army sources, however, said today that they believe the Vietminh renewal will not be for another four or five days."

LONG LULL

The artillery duel started after the French had reported that the lull in the battle "may have" been caused through its fourth successive night.

The French defenders and their rebel besiegers were utilizing the lull to intensify the two-month build-up of men and supplies for the expected showdown "battle of Geneva."

It is clear that the Vietminh must strike soon, however, if they hope to win a big victory before the East-West conference on Asia opens in Geneva April 26.

Further south in Indo-China King Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia today ordered general mobilization, stating unmistakably he was appalled to the United Nations against Vietminh aggression there.

Israel Charges Egyptians Stage Three Raids

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel today accused Egyptian army forces of staging three attacks on Jewish territory Thursday that left one man wounding five Israeli soldiers. A sixth soldier was killed in a mine blast later died.

The spokesman said Israel lodged a complaint about the incidents with the United Nations-Egyptian-Israeli armistice commission.

The spokesman said that in the first attack late Thursday night an Israeli military vehicle travelling near the Gaza Strip was hit by an Egyptian ambush. One Israeli soldier was wounded seriously and another slightly.

An hour later, another Egyptian group attacked an Israeli patrol near Beeri, and three Israeli soldiers were wounded seriously and one slightly wounded, the spokesman said.

In the third incident, near Zikim, automatic fire was said to have been opened on an Israeli truck but no casualties were reported.

Find Wreckage Of Jet Airliner South of Capri

All Comets Grounded After Third 'Inexplicable Tragedy'

ROME (CP) — Britain and France today grounded all Comets following the crash Thursday night of one of the jet liners under circumstances strangely similar to previous mishaps involving the same type of plane.

Two British wreckage mean while, recovered all bodies and wreckage from the Mediterranean 20 miles off the west coast of Italy where the BOAC Comet went down with 21 persons while flying from Rome to Cairo.

The aircraft carrier Eagle and a British destroyer informed the British embassy in Rome by radio that bodies and wreckage had been retrieved from the Mediterranean in an area where an oil slick almost a mile long had been spotted earlier by search planes.

A U.S. naval search plane reported that other craft were also taking part in the search. The number was not reported.

Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of British Overseas Airways Corporation, which owned the craft which disappeared Thursday night, said today:

"Until the manufacturers tell us that they have discovered and rectified the cause of these tragedies we certainly cannot carry any passengers in Comets."

THIRD TRAGEDY

Sir Miles said he had given the Comet "all the support, encouragement and persuasion that any operator can expect to give any new aircraft. We have had three inexplicable tragedies which all follow up a certain pattern on reaching the prevailing maximum altitude at full power."

Calling the latest tragedy "at most mentally stunning," and "a major setback for civil aviation" Thomas said:

"We have got to do some fundamental thinking about the Comet altogether."

Shares of the de Havilland Corporation, manufacturers of the Comet, dropped sharply when London stock exchange opened today. A company spokesman said only that "there is pessimism in the air. We are awaiting news like everyone else."

SEARCH DELATED

The disaster caused postponement of a scheduled flight to Orly airport, Paris, by Commander Alastair Lennox-Boyd, who went to the Rome airport Thursday to announce the tragedy—second in the Commonwealth Thursday—and the grounding of the Comets. The minister said he hopes to leave Rome Saturday for Karachi to open an aviation meeting with Canadian authorities.

The Comet was operated by South African Airways, and in partnership with Canadian Pacific Airlines. Prime Minister Paul Sauer of South Africa said: "It must regretfully be assumed" that all aboard had been killed.

An armada of planes and ships scoured the Mediterranean area on the Comet's route to Cairo during the night and intensified the search at first light of dawn.

First sighting of a huge oil slick about 50 miles south of the isle of Capri. Surface craft took searchlights for a time on whether it was aviation oil.

The Reuters news agency reported that the air-sea rescue centre here had received a radio message from a searching plane that wreckage had been sighted.

The follow-up report said bodies had been discovered in the same area.

A search for survivors continued in view of reports that lights—which could come from escape dinghies—were seen in the sea during the hours of darkness. But there appeared little hope of any survivors from the 500-mile-an-hour craft.

Water Trough Replaced By Parking Meters

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The watering troughs in this city are being replaced by modern progress.

City workmen Thursday removed a 60-year-old watering trough in preparation for installation of parking meters on the market square.

There are still two watering troughs in the city. They are used mainly by vegetable as public washing places, said an official.

U.S. Ambassador Believes H-Bomb Victims Will Live

TOKYO (AP)—The United States today expressed "deep regret" for the injury of 23 Japanese fishermen in the March 1 hydrogen blast at Bikini, and expressed confidence that all will recover.

Japanese doctors have voiced fear that some of the men may die or be crippled for years.

But U. S. ambassador John M. Allison said initial tests on two of the men indicate "no radio-active deposits in their body marrow" give no medical basis for concern."

He again offered scientific and medical facilities for treatment of the injured men, Japanese doctors have refused to permit extensive examination by American specialists.

"Allison's statement was in answer to continued criticism here of American action since the fishing boat Lucky Dragon was dusted with radioactive ash near the Bikini testing ground.

10,000 Copies Tourist Folder To Be Distributed

Discussion of a tourist folder advertising the city of Belleville and the Highlands of Hastings; details of the homecoming membership campaign, and admittance of one new member, were features of Thursday's meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce. Directors were told that 10,000 copies of a new tourist folder in two colors were being printed at a cost of $2,500. Of the total cost the Chamber has received $500 from the city, and a promise of $500 from Hastings County council. Advertising in the folder has realized $600 to date.

The folders will be distributed widely in Canada and the United States.

Members also heard details of the forthcoming membership campaign which the Chamber hopes will add 100 new members to the present roster of 275 in the period April 19th to May 31st. Brochures, letters and advertisements will carry the Chamber's message to prospective members. Chairman of the membership committee is W. H. (Bill) Wills.

One new member, C. R. Reely, of the Lake St. Peter Hotel, Lake St. Peter, joined the Chamber.

Some discussion took place concerning the Chamber's participation in the erection of a highway sign advertising Belleville. The project is currently being investigated by local service clubs. The extent of the Chamber's contribution was laid over until the next meeting.

Child Crippled By Polio Catching Up With Studies

Just a few miles east of Belleville, Terry lives with his mother and grandparents in a little house beside the Salmon River. His teacher picks him up each morning by the Mt. Airy Consolidated School and takes him home again at 4 o'clock, is a good-natured arrangement that in itself is very highly commendable.

Terry has more holidays than the other school children and for that reason it should be expected that he might be considerably behind the average boy of his age. His first absence from school was at age 6 when he was stricken with polio, the only case in his village. This required a 10-month "stretch" in Kingston hospital from which he returned on his seventh birthday, with a terrible pair of legs from the knees down.

At Merrywood Camp for Crippled Children, however, Terry holds his own with the other juniors from the eastern part of the province, and is counting on his third trip to that center of youthful activity this summer. At last year's camp he took part in two plays, once as a bird and again as a fairy. He is fond of music, dramatics, and impersonating Roy Rogers athletics he says it is swimming.

Terry has what it takes, and is very serious concerning his school work. This year he is in Grade 2A and he is working hard to get into Grade 4 next September. If he can just skip a grade now, he will be almost up with the other boys of his age, and he is out to accomplish it this term.

Last week Terry received a new set of leg braces and a new pair of shoes; his old ones were badly outgrown. With a steel brace down each side of both legs, and a pair of new crutches, he is now really mobile in many ways. More trips to the hospital, more adjustments to the tendons and growing bones, and more properly fitted braces, will continue efforts to develop the slender legs, will make wonders in a growing boy. Terry smiled brightly when it was suggested that his long experience with leg braces might make him a "natural" for using climbers as a hydro lineman some day.

The purchase of Easter Seals helps to provide leg braces and summer camps for crippled children living right in our own neighborhood. Mail cheques payable to Rotary Easter Seal Fund, Royal Bank, Belleville, and enlist the aid of assisting a crippled child.

Beauchamp Payne, former rector of St. Thomas' Church has climaxed a brilliant educational career with a appointment as Soil Microbiologist in the Bacteriology Division of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

He has spent seven years in university after serving the same period of time with the Canadian army. He joined as a private and went overseas with the RCAMC. He won his commission while overseas and on his return attended MacDonald College, St. Anne de Bellevue.

Following graduation he attended McGill University from where he was graduated with distinction as a bachelor of science (agriculture) in 1950. He was awarded a scholarship for post-graduate studies by the National Research Council of Canada.

After a year's post graduate work at McGill in soil microbiology, he was awarded a travelling scholarship tenable at the University of Edinburgh by the National Research Council. This was renewed by the council in 1952 for a year's further research.

In 1953 he was graduated from the University of Edinburgh, with the degree of doctor of philosophy. As an undergraduate at MacDonald College he was awarded the Borden and Alumni scholarships.

Mr. Payne was married while overseas and has two children, a daughter six, and a son three.

FIRE PHONE ADJOURNED

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A grand jury investigation of the suburban Cheektowaga school annex fire that took the lives of 15 sixth grade pupils March 21 has been adjourned until Monday. The grand jury recessed Thursday after hearing several witnesses, including Miss June Hulsey, the 20-year-old practice teacher credited with saving the lives of some of the children. She appeared before the jury in a wheel chair.

At the annual election of officers for the King Baldwin Preceptory Knights Templar Number 6, held in the Masonic Hall, Front Street, Sir Knight Bram Humphreys was elected to the office of presiding preceptor for the ensuing twelve months.

Supporting Sir Knight Humphreys for the 1956-55 terms are the following officers: Rt. Em. Knight Garn E. Dobbs, treasurer; Rt. Em. Knight H. J. Andrews, auditor; Very Em. Knight Morley Hancock, registrar; Em. Knight Lorne Vaughan, chaplain; Em. Knight Aubrey Coe, past preceptor; Sir Knight Clarence M. Dies, constable; Sir Knight John L. Lewis, marshal; Sir Knight Clarence Hagerman, marshal; Sir Knight Lee Collier, auditor.

The installation ceremony which will take place in May, will be a regular meeting on Thursday, May 6th, it will be under the direction of Em. Knight Ross E. Neal.

'Y' to Hold Annual Meeting Next Thursday

It was announced by Mr. J. H. Legate, chairman of the Board of Directors that all plans have been completed for the annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. to be held on Thursday evening of next week.

Mr. J. Maurice Hobb, Q.C. prominent Belleville lawyer and outstanding speaker will be the guest speaker at the dinner meeting. Mr. Hobb will speak about "Our Community Problem". Another outstanding feature of the program will be a presentation by general secretary, Lloyd Ix the local association's physical director Mr. Di Diamantides B. Sc., M.Ed.

Mr. Legate also stated that there will be no lengthy reports of last year's operations given. "It is common Y.M.C.A. practice to dispense with these in order that the meeting may be as brief and interesting as possible," he declared. "When possible we prefer to present some dynamic picture of our operations."

Invitations have been sent to about 300 persons in the community, including ladies. "However we will welcome anyone who has not received an invitation" stated Mr. Legate. Tickets for the dinner meeting may be secured before Monday of next week.

ALL women who TINT or COLOR their hair need this especially prepared ROUX ROUTINE!
As experts on haircoloring, we know how terribly important it is for colored-treated hair to have extra-special love and care. To do its best for you, your haircolor must get four treatments. That's why this ROUX Routine was especially developed for color-treated hair.
ROUX Creme Shampoo
This concentrated shampoo is so gentle, with its rich-lathering action that, even in hard water, it leaves your hair more lustrous, and easier to handle. Rinses thoroughly without a tell-tale film.
ROUX Creme Rinse
Especially recommended for dry, brittle hair, a three-to-five minute application after your shampoo will help eliminate tangles, makes hair lustrous sheen and leave your hair ever so manageable.
ROUX Creme Hairdressing
Just a few drops smoothed lightly over the hair will dress up natural or color treated hair—giving it a lovely soft gloss. Never sticky or greasy.
Mm, too, like ROUX hair preparations

Hospital Year Successful One Chairman States

TRENTON (Special)—Reporting a very successful term Chairman of the Board of the Trenton Memorial Hospital, S. O. Graham noted the substantial financial assistance given by the Trenton Centennial Committee and the Women's Auxiliary at the Trenton Air Station. Mr. Graham pointed out that in two years and 10 months of operations the hospital has handled more than 14,000 patients. He referred to the hospital's financial position as a very enviable one.

Superintendent Cora Droppo reported that during the year the institution had cared for 3,462 patients in addition to 2,384 out patients.

May Reconsider Use of Manual On Assessment

TRENTON, (Special)— Town people are speculating over a report that council will reconsider the provincial government's manual of assessment.

Earlier this year the incoming council voted out the use of the government guide by a majority of 4-2. At the time Councillors Robert Smithrim and James MacDonald upheld the manual. Coun. Hilors Gerald Weaver, Claude Graham, Reg. Armstrong and N. J. McNaly voiced opposition to its use.

Since then council has appointed a new assessor. He is E. F. Hall formerly of Cobourg.

At the time the manual was abolished the opinion was that assessing in 1954 would be done under the 1952 system.

Jack Goldberg Heads Chamber Of Commerce

TRENTON (Special)—Jack Goldberg popular Trenton merchant and a member of this year's town planning board, was elected president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce last night. Other officers elected were: Cliff Baker, vice-president; secretary-manager Herb Smith; directors, Don Sutherland, Dr. W. R. Patrick, J. E. Parker, Lyle Carr, Peter Deduke, Alex Wilson, Don McPherson and Archie Smith. Past president of the Chamber is Town Solicitor H. Ramsay Park.

Thos. Whitley Improves After Skull Operation

TRENTON (Special) — Hopes for an early recovery of Thomas Whitley, unconscious for two weeks, have brightened following the discovery and removal of a cyst in a skull operation yesterday. Earlier Mr. Whitley was believed to be suffering from meningitis. His condition improved following the operation, which was performed in the Toronto General Hospital, where he had been taken after first having been a patient in the isolation ward of the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Whitley is the 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Whitley, of this town. He suffered a serious accident some years ago, and it is thought that the injuries he received at that time may have been a factor in the formation of the cyst.

Field Secretary Explains Work Of CNIB to Bd.

Mr. Robert Padden, a graduate of the School for the Blind was introduced to the members of the advisory board for Hastings County at their meeting which was held at the home of the chairman, Mr. George Wickett, Belleville. Mr. Padden will assist the field secretary, P. I. Timmins.

Mr. Timmins explained the way in which the C.N.I.B. can help. Registration is based on an occupational report. The field secretaries try to discover the interests and needs of the blind so they can provide the services that will be of the most value. The home teacher helps with instruction, while canes are provided by the Kinette club. Braille watches are purchased from headquarters and charged to the local board, employment officers visit any who are employable, bus passes and theatre passes are arranged, and social activities are encouraged in the White Cane club.

140 BLIND IN COUNTY.

There are 140 registered blind in the county at present which is an increase of 20 since last year. some cases supplementary assistance was needed for fuel or clothing, emergency cases were taken care of by the board, radio repairs and batteries were provided. Part of the program is prevention of blindness and in many cases glasses were provided. To qualify for help there must be 20-100th vision in adults and 20-70th in children.

A report on the building fund for the new home in Kingston showed that a total of $100,000 has been raised with Hastings county contributing $46,350. Furnishings and electrical equipment are now being purchased and it is hoped to open the home in June.

Representatives from the Hastings board in connection with the new home were requested with Mrs. Harry Stollins appointed to the admissions committee, and Mrs. M. C. Ward appointed to the official opening committee. A committee to revise the honorary member list is composed of Messrs. A. D. Archibald and T. J. Flurey. Mrs. R. A. Lennox, Mr. E. S. Fairman and Mrs. H. J. Pulk were named as the nominating committee.

Plans for the annual meeting were discussed and conveners for the lay day on the 14th were appointed.

Mr. Wishart read the annual report for the 1953 campaign which showed a total of $7,749.83. Mr. J. L. Lambert acted as secretary for the meeting.

Arena Lost $13,252

WATERLOO (CP) — Waterloo arena's operating loss for 1953 was $13,252.42. It was shown in an auditors' statement submitted today to the Waterloo arena commission.

The deficit does not include a City of Waterloo grant of $17,000. With the grant the arena will show a surplus of $3,747.58.

LOST AND FOUND

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP)—A roll of bills and cheques totalling $1,500 was lost by Frank Daley, oil company official during the curling risk here. Two weeks later it was found and returned by Arthur Gillis who said he would turn his reward over to charity

Obituary

MRS. MAY BENNETT-POSTE

Mrs. May Bennett-Poste died in the Belleville General Hospital late Thursday afternoon, April 8th, after a two weeks' illness. She was in her 67th year.

The deceased was born in this city, had resided here all her life and was living at 19 Forin Street when she became ill. She was born the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Terwilliger, and is survived by her husband, Mr. Hector J. Bennett-Poste; four daughters and six grandchildren. Her daughters are: Miss Jeanne Bennett-Poste, Belleville; Mrs. R. J. (Dorothy) King, Chatham, N.B.; Mrs. K. B. (Ruby) Lightbody, of Dayton, Ohio, and Mrs. D. E. (Gertrude) Jordan, of this city.

Mrs. Bennett-Poste was educated in Belleville, and graduated from Albert College in music, both vocal and piano. She was a member of the Tabernacle United Church, where she was active in many church activities, mostly of the musical variety.

Resting at Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Chapel, 38 Everett Street. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. MYRTLE IVA CROFT

Suffering a heart attack at her home, 153 West Moira Street, late Thursday evening, Mrs. Myrtle Iva Croft, died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital early this Friday morning.

She was born in Cramahe township, near Brighton, 72 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan, and had lived her entire life in this community, where she was well known and highly respected.

The late Mrs. Croft took an active part in the work of Christ Church when health permitted, and fraternally she was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, Belleville Chapter, No. 55.

Surviving are her husband, Frederick Croft; two daughters, Mrs. George (Jean) Adams, and Mrs. Charles (Dorothy) Sloan, of this city; two sons Frederick Croft of Kingston; Norman Croft of Moncton, N.B., and five grandchildren.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Conservatives Of Thurlow Twp. Elect Officers

The annual meeting of the Thurlow Progressive Conservative Association was held in the Orange hall at Canniton with a good crowd in attendance.

Warden of the county, Fred Mitchell, acted as chairman of the meeting. Speakers of the evening included past president of the Thurlow Ladies' Organization, Mrs. W. J. Tufts, and president-elect Mrs. W. H. Farnham; Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings East; Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., for Hastings West; Ray Gunsolus, secretary-treasurer South Hastings Riding Association; Lee Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate in the last-federal election; Corah Howard, past president of the Thurlow Men's organization; John Haig, and Alfred Wickett.

ABSENT THROUGH ILLNESS

Regret was expressed that several members of the association were not able to be present due to illness: Mrs. Nellie Chambers, Douglas Atkins and Jack Burgess.

Frank Hicks, a life-long Conservative, spoke stating he was in his 82nd year and had been active in the Conservative party for more than 80 years and that he was always proud to be identified with the Conservative association.

All speakers of the evening expressed great optimism for the future of the Conservative party.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served.

The result of the election of officers was as follows:

LADIES' ORGANIZATION

Past president, Mrs. W. J. Tufts; president, Mrs. W. H. Farnham; first vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Barlow; second vice-president, Mrs. John Haig; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Nellie Chambers; assistant secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. Hollingsworth.

MEN'S ORGANIZATION

Past president, Corah Howard; president, Grant Cole; first vice-president, Harry Pound; second vice-president, Earle Keene; secretary-treasurer, Alfred Wickett.

BERLIN FORCES PRACTISE

BERLIN (AP)—Nine thousand Allied soldiers, the entire Western force in Berlin, clogged the Grunewald forest today in an exercise designed to pinch off an "invasion" between the British and French sectors of the Soviet-surrounded city. Three regiments, three heavy tank companies, engineers and amphibious crews with assault boats took part in the manoeuvre.

SHOWDOWN IN AFRICA

Prime Minister Malan of South Africa has at last done something constructive.

He is going to force a showdown in Africa.

There are some controversies which are best left to simmer, in the hope that the passing years will quench the fire.

But it has become increasingly evident that the race question in Africa is, in the very nature of things, not one which time alone will answer.

Malan has now announced that he will introduce a motion in the House of Assembly for the transfer to South Africa of three British protectorates, Basutoland, Bechuanaland and Swaziland.

Such a transfer of authority from Britain to South Africa was anticipated 40 years ago, when the British South Africa Act was passed creating the Union of South Africa.

Under other circumstances, this transfer would cause as little concern to Britain as did Newfoundland's decision to become part of Canada.

The British South Africa Act provided that the transfer of the protectorates should be made only after consultations with the Africans and the British Parliament. Consultations have, in fact, been held. But the Africans, consultations have, in fact, been held. But the Africans, not unnaturally loathe to become subject to Dr. Malan's apartheid policy, have opposed the transfer. The British Government, mindful of its responsibilities to the inhabitants of these protectorates, has declined to endorse the transfer.

Dr. Malan now apparently intends to proceed with the transfer despite this opposition.

He will thus force the British Government to reach a decision. It will either have to bow to Malan's wishes or thwart his designs.

On that decision may well rest the future of the white man in Africa—and indeed the future of Africa itself. For man in Africa—and indeed the future of Africa itself. For it would be impossible to underestimate the effect which it would be impossible to underestimate the effect which the British decision will have in enhancing or damaging the chances for the establishment of peaceful co-operation between white and black men in the development of this great and rich continent.

A TIME FOR JUDGMENT

Senator Joseph McCarthy made two statements Tuesday evening by which he can, and should, be judged.

He called Edward R. Murrow "the leader and the cleverest of a loyal pack which is always found at the throat of anyone who dares to expose Communists and traitors."

For a decade and a half most Americans have heard Murrow express his views on a wide variety of topics. They ought to be able to decide whether, in their opinion, Murrow is a communist sympathizer, whether he has ever given aid or comfort to the Communist cause.

Some may think another statement by Senator McCarthy even more revealing than this denunciation of Murrow. He referred to "Harold Laski, admittedly the greatest Communist propagandist of our time in England."

Laski was a leader of the Communist Party in Britain. If Senator McCarthy considers him a Communist, then he would be justified in regarding approximately half of the population of Great Britain as Communists. This would be one of the largest, and certainly the most important, group of converts the Communists have made since Lenin first started growing a beard.

THE BIG BANG

How powerful is the H-bomb?

If every Canadian, man, woman and child, were a trained airman, and if they were divided into crews of eight and each crew equipped with a Lancaster bomber and a block-buster of World War Two type and if they all dropped their block-busters on the same spot at the same time, the resulting explosion would be less powerful than the estimated power of the "best" H-bomb now available.

World War Two block buster had an explosive power equal to 20 tons of TNT.

The atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima was equal to a thousand block-busters.

The 1952 H-bomb equalled 250 Hiroshima-type A-bombs.

The 1954 H-bomb is the equivalent of eight of the 1952 hydrogen bombs.

Or to make the calculation at one jump, the 1954 hydrogen bomb equals 2,000,000 World War Two block-busters.

GETTING OVER AN ILLNESS

Regardless of whether a stimulant is consumed after taking medicine or not, the fact remains that it probably takes the human system quite a while to throw off the effects of the healing drugs. Care should be taken in "getting over" an illness—for persons may find they are a bit sicker than they expected to be—with the cost of the various cures mounting as more tonic is required to recover from the effects of the previous cures! JUST FOLKS

GRATITUDE

Speech is too narrow, "Thank you, friend," I say
To one who has made happier my way.
Yet countless "thank yous" would not him repay.
Though I should gild that phrase my joy to show,
And from my lips let many a sentence flow,
Just what I meant my friend might never know.

He might suspect the thank you And think I sham the joy which I display.
For words are used by those who would betray,

But should he need a friend and find me true,
Then he shall know in all I try to do
The gratitude which runs my living through.

He can't mistrust my efforts to be kind;
Cannot suspect the love which he finds mine,
For deeds are truest symbols of the mind.

Speech is too narrow. Verbal thanks I'll not proffer.
May fall from lips where gratitude's unknown,
And one must live that friendship which is shown.

Home Town Paper Best

(Wiarton Echo).

We were stung to the quick recently when a chap from out of town laughed at our great family journal. He claimed it wouldn't be reported in the Echo if an editor's bomb fell on Wiarton, scoffing at our lack of national and international news. We must admit, we might not report the falling of an atom bomb on the town. But we'd put a notice in the window, if it were still there.

We told him there were plenty of radio stations, daily papers and magazines to cover national and world news.

He failed to see anything of interest in the fact that Mrs. Smith visited Mrs. Jones on Sunday. We assured him that such an item was of great interest to Mrs. Brown, who had asked Mrs. Smith to visit her and been given a lame excuse, who wonders whether Mrs. Smith took all the children with her, whether Mrs. Jones still has those ugly drapes in the kitchen, and what on earth she'd give them all for supper, because she never has a thing in the house.

Compare such speculation with the report that the Big Four of Five has met again, that another Russian "diplomat" has been done away with, or that they are still working on the subway in Toronto and you'll see why people like to read their home-town paper.

The Friendly Silences

(Montreal Gazette)

Maurice Maeterlinck, in The Treasury of the Humble, has a striking remark about silence. When two (or more) people are talking together, he says, they are desperately afraid of silence. If silence falls, it is either because of anything to say, both are distressed and anxious. Both may start groping after something new to say, and just for the sake of talking may end by saying the most ordinary or ridiculous things."

Maeterlinck is right. The deathly pause in conversation can haunt the bravest hostess. And it is curious how such silences may fall suddenly, even in the midst of the most brisk conversation.

Yet there is nothing unnatural about them. They only indicate that there is nothing, for the moment, to be said. But social convention is such that the vacant space must be promptly filled at all costs, even if nothing but nonsense happens to be on hand at the moment.

It is said that when Emerson and Carlyle met, they found their silences as profound as their words. The silences were the measure of their understanding. They knew that they were intimately at ease in each other's company. They showed that what they had to say was too valuable to be cluttered with conventional words that meant little or nothing.

Not many people could stand such silences in conversation. They would open up before them like volcanoes, and the flow of tomfool pits into which they were accustomed to dump their words would be done to retrieve the situation. There would be no respect for silence, no room for bright new topic.

And yet there are a few people who can endure such silences. They may be easily "lost in their own thoughts," like the saying goes and not even be aware that silence has intervened. Or they may not even mind talk to such people may find these impenetrable but contented silences a baffling embarrassment.

Joseph Braddock has described just such an embarrassing interval, when the Russian composer, Canon Andrew Young, was staying with him at his cottage in Canon Young, who has a face like one of the more benevolent Roman emperors, lives in a country parish in Sussex and writes remarkable music about nature. When he feels in a mood to entertain his friends, nothing will be lielief than a recital of his own compositions and his happy-laughter.

But Braddock describes Joseph Braddock, "he has moods of deep abstraction and silence, when he withdraws into the bothered with small talk. I well remember my embarrassment on occasion of my first entertained him at my cottage. It was summer and we were sitting in wicker chairs alone.

"The silence had lasted an unconscionably long time and I felt I must say something at all costs. I remarked that my daughter had been thinking of delinged fence at the end of the garden and that it was very necessary that I should do so.

"Andrew Young looked at me sternly, then retorted with his Scottish accent: 'Ye told me that before!'"

It is perhaps significant that Joseph Braddock describes this incident as happening during the first time he had ever been stayed with him. For it is one of the chief charms of the old, familiar friends that the silences in conversation are no longer dreaded.

The old friend may not awaken us to any astonishing revelation unexpected. He may not be able to offer the gallant challenge of fresh topics and unbreakable attitudes.

But the currency of his conversation, though rather worn, is still a stable currency.

The old friends may be the ones to whom it is unnecessary to have anxiety because in their presence you may appear as you are; it would be absurd to appear otherwise. And in the case of slow talking ones need be no fear of those silences that cause an anxious awkwardness between people who are not really sure of one another.

What old friends enjoy is each other's company, not each other's artificial ability never to let the sound of voices cease. Silences between old friends are often the sign and proof of their confidence. It is something too precious for new acquaintances to claim. They have to keep talking, even when they have nothing whatever to say.

Letter to the Editor

Much Interest Shown In Assisting Orphans

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Thank you for publishing my recent letter regarding the need for help in Korea and Canada and also regarding the Christian Children's Fund which is giving much needed aid and doing it very economically.

It has been a surprise to me that so many have read that letter and requested more information. It bears out my claim that our people only need to know the way to be willing to help.

The Christian Children's Fund is an inter-denominational group and approved as a relief agency.

Any Protestant who is interested for only ten dollars per month, a suffering, hungry child will be taken off the streets and into the comfort and safety of an orphanage.

What is important, too, is this, that once the Christian Child that child is looked after until he can take care of himself.

Think of it! For less than thirty-four cents per day any of us can give hope and a future to a child in Korea!

Yours truly,
Christian Children's Fund
Richmond, West Virginia, U.S.A.

Not only will the sponsors know they are giving direct help to the child but also the name and address of their "adoptees" and in many cases will receive photos as well.

Death Penalty For Traitors

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

American Attorney - General Brownell has recommended that the death penalty be provided, by the United States for espionage in peacetime as well as wartime. Arguing against this he says the present penalty for espionage in peacetime Brownell said: "It is ineffective and inadequate for such a distinction, inasmuch as the act itself is the same, the intent to breach the national security, which security is of paramount importance in times of war or peace."

There is much to be said for Brownell's argument, particularly in view of security measures imposed upon us since the H-Bomb. Breaches of security, however small, could have catastrophic results. Traitors today are of more potential harm than ever they were at any other time in mankind's history.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GARDEN OF THE MIND

I look out from my library window during these early days of springtime. Nothing fascinates me more than to see the small, green leaf branches and on shrubs—and what a happy awakening is seen in the greening grass and the small flowers creeping out of their winter beds. All earth is a garden's garden!

Every time we plant a seed, or garden, we have to pay tribute to God's miracles. Could we plant a single seed without faith? Could farmers live without this faith? So, it is with our minds. They are ours and what we plant there every day of our lives. What kind of a garden do we put there?

Seeds need moisture and, when they rise into the light as a flower or grain, they need the warm sunshine to give them life and maturity. Our thoughts, ideas, purposes, and our faith, water and fertilize the soil that a garden needs to be created there. And that garden becomes the reflection of our personality and to our personal happiness.

Thoughts mature just like seeds when planted in the mind. And they in turn, give out seeds that we scatter like the wind to those presenting other gardens in the minds of others. One of our greatest contributions, is what we can have to the world of desire in the minds of others. And what a contribution something to make us self-inspired! We can't very well hope to give out happiness without first experiencing it within ourselves. It's a wholesome ambition to be as good as others are good.

As in the outdoor garden, this garden of the mind must be given time and love. It must be kept well weeded—no idle or destructive thoughts allowed, just constructive ones.

Personal Health Talks

SO YOU ENJOY INVALIDISM?

Anyone with chronic joint disability, I call it rheumatitis, but you may prefer "arthritis", anyone over forty can have rheumatitis who does not consume the 1½ pints of milk or the equivalent in milk products 365 days in the year is going to be sick or have invalidism.

If this hurts anybody's feelings I don't chide me for it. Sometimes a doctor has to hurt you a little in order to do some good. As when I hopped out in the rain one night to get the chariot off the street before the cops tagged it, took a header off the porch and came up lying there in the rain for a while with an egg on one temple, a cut over the eyebrow and an impacted Colles fracture. The doctor reduced the cut, assured me the lump on my head would disappear if I lived long enough, and began to pull the fragments of radius apart for setting in splints possible. I told two goes at it—the first time under local anesthetic. It didn't work. The next day they tried again, this time without anesthetic. It was so much that I said never mind—the slight deformity didn't matter. The slight deformity is a slight displacement toward the thumb side, but no noticeable functional defect except that I can no longer do push-up bars or exercise. Did I the doctors for hurting me? That would be silly.

Now, mind you, I believe anyone with rheumatitis must consume 1½ pints (three glasses) of milk, whole milk, buttermilk, sour whole milk, Acidophilus milk, Bulgarian milk, skim milk, separator milk, yoghurt, cottage cheese, Dutch cheese or any kind of cheese you prefer, or that milk is the best food source of calcium and I believe calcium deficiency is the primary cause of rheumatitis.

But the question of calcium (lime) in connection with the rheumatic a lot of you poor geezers have been fed calcium you have somehow acquired the notion that one with the rheumatic has "too much calcium."

O.K., if you enjoy invalidism.

A hundred thousand leading physicians will agree that I'm not talking about anything. So you may heed what I say about calcium and the rheumatic or ignore it and enjoy your disability unworried about "calcium deposits."

For what it may be worth, however, I research, as emphatically as possible, that there is no scientific evidence that the deposit of calcium or calcification of body tissues is a cause of joint trouble, artery trouble or any other serious disease. The scientific evidence rather shows that any "deposit" of calcium (lime, etc.) is a protective measure against more serious body tissues is a consequence of degeneration, physical disturbance and nutritional deficiency through the years from infancy to maturity, the chief cause of physical degeneration.

I doubt that any physician of standing will attempt to contravert this statement. It is not a pipe dream, though frankly I like to dream when my pipe is drawing well.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Certain cities and towns have a record more than the average share in the distribution of new industries. This city's population has risen 40,000 to 50,000 in forty years, and a good percentage of the increase has been of new Canadians. Hank Kirby of the Sudbury Star has written a series of articles embodying a study of the situation in that city. With complete candor, he approached each racial or ethnic element and spoke to their own attitudes to their particular problems as well as to other groups in the community. He found the Irish to be the readiest to adapt to the new pattern, and a couple of the European groups to be the most comfortably meshed into the city's social and economic years. But the sum of his analysis was highly optimistic.

As you walk in the streets of Sudbury, you cannot fail to be conscious of the presence of a great number of strangers, to the familiar Canadian style and manner. Their faces, their bearing, the way they wear their hats and clothes, a number of almost intangible little details- reveal them to be somebody other than the Toms, Dicks and Harrys we know But here is the interesting thing about Sudbury there is not one foreign restaurant except the small Finnish place, of long standing, in the main downtown district. All the shops of Sudbury, as you stroll conscious of the absence of the exotic characteristic chain drug stores, chain groceries, men's furnishings, shoe stores, and so on. Even those you will see in Orangeville or Picton or Trenton or Three Rivers. Not a single nod, much less a bow, is made by them in the direction of the new citizens of the newly arrived Finns, Germans, Ukrainians, Koreans, Indians, by so much as a hat, a shirt or a pair of shoes of foreign cut. In the drug stores are the nationally advertised items, and nothing else. In the pastry shops, not a cake or a cookie of outland style reminds the strangers of home. Not a single cafe caters into which they go for a cup of tea coffee or a sandwich is served on a kaiser, Brandt or Victoria.

Even at the commercial level, at the mercantile level, we have already got them. They can't escape. They've got to be us.

THE WAY OF THE UNGODLY

Few'if any of the readers of this article are criminals. But is there not a lesson for all of us in this story of Cain? Is not the modern society sets its face against the transgressor? Is not the standard of moral and ethical living are something more than the artificial standards of conduct? Are these standards that some modern people assert them to be? Are the laws of conduct are valid: they shall not kill; thou shalt not steal —and all the rest. Do bad actions bring bad results; evil livers lead evil lives.

"For the Lord knoweth the way of the righteous: but the way of the ungodly shall perish."

County Rate of 15.27 Mills Will Raise $8,000 More Than Last Year by New Assessment

A county tax rate of 15.27 mills for 1954 was struck by the Hastings county council at the Friday morning meeting of their April session. The mill rate for last year was 15 mills.

This year's mill rate included a levy of six mills for county roads and bridges, down two mills from last year and a general rate of 8.73 mills, also down from last year's general rate of 10 mills.

Also included in this year's estimates is a levy of .7 mill to raise money for this year's payment of the $200,000 county grant to the Belleville General Hospital building fund, and .55 mill for county home debentures.

This year's portion of the hospital grant, amounting to $40,000, is to be made up of $15,000 levied for in 1954 and $25,000 to be taken from the county surplus.

The report of the estimates committee, presented by finance committee chairman, Reeve Russell K. West, of Sidney, showed estimated expenditures of $723,-967.00, including $250,000 for roads and bridges.

Other expenditures estimated were: administration of justice, $31,983; gaol salaries, $31,697; Children's Aid Society, $43,000; indigent patients, $33,035; home for the aged, $106,000; high schools, $58,124.09, and debentures for the home for the aged, $12,100.

Offsetting these amounts will be subsidies to be received from the province.

Despite the decreased mill-rate this year's levy will raise approximately $8,000 more than last year's due to increased assessment.

TAKE FROM SURPLUS

The amount to be taken from surplus to make up this year's grant payment to the hospital building fund saw considerable discussion by councillors.

Village reeves generally approved of the $25,000 being taken from surplus this year, while other reeves felt the levy for a hospital grant should be greater than the 7 mill with less money taken from surplus.

Reeve Russell West noted the county surplus was now about $128,000 and was increasing yearly. He said the estimates committee felt that throughout the next four years the millrate to be levied for the hospital grant need not exceed one mill in any one year; the balance of the required $40,000 to be taken from surplus.

Reeve J. Anderson, of Bancroft, felt otherwise. He was of the opinion the hospital grant levy should be greater now when times are good.

Reeve Hollis Wells, of Marmora, said there was room for optimism as well as pessimism, noting that the county had been building up its surplus almost too fast. He favored leaving the mill rate for the hospital grant as suggested by the estimates committee.

Reeve Theodore Tryon, of Bancroft, referred to the possibility of the county having to replace the furnace in the county building and noted this would mean an extra levy.

Reeve Bill Davis considered the county surplus as sort of a sinking fund to be used only in case of an emergency. He favored leaving the surplus relatively untouched and increasing this year's levy for hospital grant to possibly 50 per cent.

TREATED AS EMERGENCY

"I think the hospital building fund grant is an emergency," replied Reeve L. Price of Elzevir. "It is not likely to happen again for 20 or 30 years."

"That was the thought of the estimates committee," noted Reeve T. C. Graham, of Tweed. "The committee thought this was the place for the surplus to be used to good advantage."

He noted the $15,000 to be levied for this year was actually a compromise with those who considered the whole $40,000 should have come from surplus this year.

Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township, said he was prepared to go along with the village reeves who because of sharply increased assessments were anxious to keep this year's county rates as low as possible.

Other estimates in the year's budgets were gone over by councillors with the view of paring them wherever possible. It was pointed out that possible increased per diem rates for Children's Aid Society wards and indigent patients had been taken into consideration in preparing the budget and these items could not very well be reduced.

Several of the councillors felt that now was the time for municipalities to "get tough" regarding acceptance of indigent hospital patients. One reeve noted that in many instances indigents have money to pay for everything else but hospital bills.

High school costs came up for a brief discussion when by-laws providing for raising of funds for this purpose came up. Reeve Graham questioned the amount for Frankford village, noting that this seemed low compared to other centres.

He was told that Frankford, along with Sidney township, was not a member of a high school area and therefore did not provide transportation.

SAVING OF $8,000 SEEN OUT

Deputy Reeve B. Harder of Sidney said that by not belonging to the high school area, his council felt it was saving about two and a half mills.

He went on to say that his township had a 20-year agreement with the Bay of Quinte High School Area for the area schools to accept all Sidney pupils for this period. Sidney paid its full share of construction and school operation costs on a per pupil day basis.

Then if that is the case I would say that we in Centre Hastings have been misinformed," noted Reeve Graham.

"I would say so too," added Reeve Wells of Marmora.

Councillors voted down a motion to increase per diem pay for attendance at council and committee meetings and the rate will remain the same—$8 for council and $7 for committee . The mileage rate for attendance at committee meetings will remain the same at ten cents per mile one way, but councillors will receive ten cents per mile both ways for attending at council instead of five cents as has previously been paid.

"You can't drive a car on five cents a mile," one councillor commented.

In answer to a comment made at yesterday's council meeting referring to a claimed lack of authority on the part of county assessors, Mr. Cecil Geen, Hastings county assessor, said that the main reason for a county assessor was to assure that the same yardstick would be used by all municipal assessors in the county. The idea was that these figures could then be used to assure a fair equalization.

No municipal assessor could be interfered with but the county assessor could give guidance and instruction, Mr. Geen said he had received good co-operation from all township assessors although he had not been completely satisfied with all assessments made.

QUITE A PROBLEM

Mr. Geen noted that arriving at a fair equalized assessment was quite a problem owing to the great variance of property values in the different municipalities. This was the case in Hastings where values in the north were low and in the south were high.

The county assessor said he was a bit worried where tax rates in adjoining municipalities differed greatly despite the fact that educational facilities and other services were similar. If this was the fault of the assessors, then the matter should be remedied, he said.

Mr. Geen thought the authority of county assessors may be increased in future years.

Unidentified Man Found Drowned In Drainage Ditch

CORNWALL (CP)—An unidentified man was drowned in a flood-swollen drainage ditch here Thursday night.

Police said he was tall and slim with white hair and estimated his age between 65 and 70. His body was discovered by police in 11 feet of water after they were called to investigate a loiterer on the Canadian National Railways tracks.

It is believed the man was a transient.

Mayor Graham Of Peterborough Makes Apology

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Mayor Norman Graham, quoted as saying Monday night the city's sanitation department is "rotten" and it stinks," has apologized to the department.

In a statement issued Thursday he said he has no criticism of the sanitation committee of city council or of the workers of the sanitation department. He said his remarks were aimed at sanitation superintendent J. E. Pierce, with whose management of the department he still is dissatisfied.

The mayor made his remarks Monday night in city council debate over the purchase of garbage trucks.

1,000 Pounds of Mail Aboard North Star

TORONTO (CP)—C. H. Lawrence, Toronto postmaster, said today that a little over 1,000 pounds of mail originally from Toronto was aboard the TCA North Star airliner which crashed at Mount Jaw Thursday following a collision with an RCAF training plane.

Much of the mail had originated from eastern points.

At Montreal postal authorities said there was 79 pounds of Montreal mail aboard the airliner.

Mail aboard the plane was destined for Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria, and places served from there. The plane carried air mail, registered mail, and ordinary mail.

Italy, Sweden Drop Wheat Agreement

LONDON (Reuters)—Italy and Sweden have dropped out of the international wheat agreement, it was learned today. They no longer figure in the international wheat council's tabulations of transactions under the agreement.

A year ago Britain dropped out because of a dispute about price. Italy and Sweden have followed Britain out because of over-supply. Sweden is now a substantial exporter.

Safe Driving Pays Dividends For Checker Taxi

Safe driving is paying double dividends for Checker (Radio) Taxi in Belleville and its crew of drivers!

Not only has the number of accidents been reduced, but accident free driving is paying off in dollars in the drivers' pockets.

Three years ago the local taxi firm owned by Horace Wright and Alfred Lee commenced a bonus program for accident free drivers. Bonuses were figured on monthly basis and paid every three months. In addition an extra bonus is given if the driver is accident-free for a full year. Checker cars are driven an average of 100,000 miles per year.

"We find this has worked out very well and has helped keep our accident record one of the lowest in the province," Mr. Wright stated.

Not only are Checker Taxi drivers safety conscious but they are first aid conscious as well. The majority of Checker drivers are studying first aid with the St. John Ambulance.

Checker drivers receiving monthly bonuses for accident free driving are Jack McGillivray, Merle Wickett, Ray Crouter, I. MacGrimmon, Ray Huffman, Clare Reid, Glenn Way, George Riley and O. Nolan. Those receiving additional bonuses for a year's accident-free driving are McGillivray, Crouter, Riley, Wicket and Reid. Advt.

Using Foreign Aid to Force United Action Held Unsound

By WARREN ROGERS Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic senator said today that Congress' efforts will be unavailing if the legislators try to use United States foreign aid as a means of forcing Britain and France into a united front against communism in southeast Asia.

"It would play right into the Kremlin's hands," Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota said in an interview. He was commenting on a suggestion by the U.S. Senate Republican leader, William F. Knowland of California, that if Congress might delay a decision on aid to some North Atlantic Treaty countries until after the April 26 five-power Geneva conference. If these countries are putting off a response to U.S. calls for unity against the Reds in Indo-China and Southeast Asia.

British and French diplomats are reported disinclined to fall in with the U.S. plan until it is clarified and before they see what comes out of the Geneva meeting with representatives of Russia and China.

As Humphrey and other senators spoke out it was reported here and abroad that State Secretary Dulles will fly this weekend to London and Paris for consultations on the Indo-China situation.

Diplomatic officials here said Dulles will probably leave Sunday for London. After two days of talks there with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden, they said, he will fly to Paris for two days of talks with Premier Laniel and other French leaders. He will return by the end of next week for a report to President Eisenhower.

South Koreans May Attend Geneva Parley

SEOUL (AP) — South Korea's capital buzzed today with rumors that the government has decided to attend the April 26 Geneva conference on Far East affairs, and will announce the decision next week.

Several Korean reporters privately said they had the word from "reliable sources within the government" but had been cautioned against publication now.

The rumor hit full bloom after the United States ambassador, Ellis O. Briggs, called on President Syngman Rhee Thursday, and then Rhee and Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai went into a six-hour conference.

Pyun refused comment. Rhee could not be reached. A source close to Rhee said no decision had been made.

NAMED ANGLICAN DEAN

TRENTON (CP) — Rev. A. E. McConnell, rural dean of Hastings county and rector of St. George's Anglican church here for the last eight years, has been named canon of the diocese by Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario. He will be formally inducted at a synod service in Kingston cathedral in May.

Every Maternity Hospital Has Lawyer on the Staff

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — A maternity clinic seems a strange place to find a lawyer on the staff.

The lawyer, Dr. Maria Mikhailovna Repina, during our interview at maternity clinic No. 13 in Moscow's Sherbakov ward, said every maternity clinic has one.

"Her job is to explain the law to our patients. Many women do not know their rights, or their obligations."

The conversation brought out some points of what might be called "maternity law" in Russia.

Abortion is legal here when ordered by a medical commission.

But all healthy Russian women, whether married or not, must bear their child if they become pregnant.

A medical commission may recommend or sanction abortion for women suffering from such complaints as anaemia, hypertension, nervous ailments, heart trouble and infectious diseases such as tuberculosis.

But a woman may reject the commission's decision in such cases and insist on having her baby. The commission comprises the clinic's director, a specialist in the particular ailment and an obstetrician.

If subsequently met a 31-year-old anaemia patient for whom the clinic's commission had recommended abortion but who was determined to have her second baby. Her first died.)

(I likewise saw several unmarried patients awaiting delivery. One of the most cheerful, unabashed groups I've seen in Russia were the unmarried mothers into whose ward I happened while they were nursing their babies.)

Every mother automatically receives a grant from the state on the birth of a child. It is intended for the layette and other initial expenses. As families grow larger there are benefits which continue to the age of five. For each of the first and second babies it amounts to 200 rubles.

(The ruble has an artificial exchange rate of 25 cents, or 4 to the dollar. There are no mother's decorations: The medal of motherhood is awarded to the honored mother's medal after the eighth and the hero mother's medal after the 10th.

I was shown the lawyer's handbook outlining all this. It said that between 1944 and 1952 there were 4,000,000 mothers and 6,500,000 honored mothers and motherhood medal winners. It said that in 1953 the state paid more than 6,355,000,000 rubles to mothers of large families, maternity clinics and grants on the birth of children.

Unmarried mothers have the option of keeping their babies or of placing them in special homes.

Besides the normal 300 rubles for each baby an unmarried mother is entitled to a 50-ruble-a-month allowance if she keeps the baby herself. The allowance continues if she should marry. She is told that if she places it in a home she will be one in which the state pays an average of 900 rubles a month a baby.

Some girls I spoke to were keeping their; one, a student, was surrendering hers for four months, until her examinations were over. Then she would take it back.

Incidentally, in one of the wards another student mother, who was married, also was surrendering her baby until her examinations were over, after which she and her husband, also a student, would reclaim it.

Women's Activities

On Tuesday afternoon, the W.M.S. of Hollowell Street United Church held its Easter Thank-offering meeting in the church parlors.

The meeting opened with soft music with Mrs. Hollis at the piano, followed by a short meditation by the president, Mrs. Coulter.

Mrs. Johnson gave an Easter reading, followed by prayer.

Mrs. Weese, Community Friendship Convenor, directed 63 calls on the sick, and one shut-in during March.

In the absence of Mrs. Scott, Mrs. McMurray read several "thank-you" notes from bereaved and shut-in members and Mrs. Johns read an article on the great need for relief in Korea. This was followed by Mrs. Walters who read a letter of thanks and appreciation from England for the sewing circle for quilts sent to the flood victims in the devastated areas of England.

Mrs. Weese took the chair and called on Mrs. Mitchell to conduct the devotional, the theme of which was "New Life Through Love" and a solo "There is a Green Hill Far Away", by Mrs. Morley Davidson, was much appreciated.

GUEST SPEAKER

At this time, Mrs. Weese introduced the guest speaker, the Reverend Miriam Collins, who brought a beautiful Easter message.

Miss Collins said, in part, that the Jesus spoken to Mary at the tomb, so He is speaking comfortingly words to us today.

"We rejoice that Jesus lived and died for us and that His spirit was released to the world, where we have the inestimable privilege of ministering in His Name."

"Since the resurrection, Jesus no longer confined to one place but is with us everywhere."

Mrs. Hollis thanked Miss Collins for her message of deep sentiment and thought and also Mrs. Davidson for her timely solo.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Kilbanks, Mrs. Morton and their group.

Store Tosses Soiree to Show 12 Mink Coats

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Money worth little bon voyage party Wednesday. The sherry was tasty, the gals were gowned and the mink they were wearing was awfully expensive.

The party wasn't for the girls; it was for the mink—$41,000 worth. The 12 coats that make up the round sum are bound for exhibit at the London and Paris trade fairs.

A department store tossed the soiree to show what it has selected from its salons for exhibition by the Canadian Mink Breeders Association.

It was a swell party; only the foodels were crying delightful little cocktail tears. They wanted to eat too.

"I think it's a shame," pouted Beverly Hamm as she cast her doe eyes longingly over the little emba silverdine cape stole ("It's worth a couple of thousands I think," she whispered) that nestled around her bare shoulder.

FEEL THE GOODS

The small talk surrendered unconditionally as Mona Coley Shelswigled her way through the crowd to suggest: "Would you like to stroke me?... The mink, I mean!"

Nancy forgot her sales pitch in the confusion. "I don't know how you pronounce it, but isn't it nice!"

Her emba cerulean three-quarter length was nice—to stroke, too—all $2,500 of it.

Over a salty hors d'oeuvre, Louise Dixon and the mink breeders talked about mink in general and the $2,000-odd emba champagne stole she was wearing in particular.

The collection represented years of work by Canadian mink breeders in developing new tones through cross-breeding.

The party got rocking when the three-ed Lois Whitehead swept in to show off her lutetia gunmetal coat. Price, $7,500.

Everyone giggled happily. It was a nice party.

RAF MAN CONVICTED

BONN (Reuters)—William John Thomas, RAF flight-sergeant with 22 years service, was found guilty Thursday of four charges of ill-treating prisoners. He was sentenced to be reduced to the ranks and to six months detention. It was the seventh conviction in a series of courts-martial following reports of mass ill-treatment in the RAF detention barracks here.

I.O.D.E. Spent $383,000 On All Activities

HAMILTON (CP) — The 383 branches of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire spent the IODE spent $383,850 on various activities in 1953, Mrs. J. A. Stuart of Hamilton, provincial treasurer, reported Wednesday.

Reporting to the three-day meeting, Mrs. Stuart said chapter members had assisted other organizations in drives for funds, raising $28,697. Last year $17,745 was donated for flood relief in England and Holland and $3,500 for the restoration of Westminster Abbey.

Mrs. A. H. Leckie of Dundas outlined the year's work in "services at home and abroad." She reported Ontario chapters have spent $227,533 in 1953 on these projects.

Commonwealth and empire convener Mrs. C. F. Washington of Walkerton said her committee had been stimulated recently by the arrival in Canada of Guanasalima David of the Christian Medical College Hospita, Vellore, India. She was chosen to take a post-graduate course in nursing offered by the national chapter. She now is enrolled at the school of nursing, University of Toronto, in hospital administration.

Publicity chief Mrs. A. H. McIntosh of Hamilton announced two chapters won 1953 scrap book awards. Winners were Dorothy Sharp of Niagara Rangers Chapter, Niagara Falls, and Mrs. Ray Butler of Confederation Chapter, Ridgetown.

SMART FAMILY

BATHURST, N.B. (CP) — Rose Pearce, high school student, won the annual oratorical contest sponsored by the Rotary Club here. Last year her twin brother Robert took the honors, and a previous winner was her older sister Mary.

IODE Plans Closer Ties With North

HAMILTON (CP)—In a move to bring northern and southern Ontario closer together, the provincial chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire at its 54th annual meeting yesterday decided to send representatives to Lakehead chapters each second year.

Mrs. J. L. Cameron of Hamilton, provincial secretary, said, "These chapters are so remote from headquarters in Toronto that the action will be beneficial."

The more than 900 delegates from across Ontario attending the three-day convention that opened today were welcomed by the provincial president, Jeanne Knapman of Hamilton. Civic and church leaders were also on hand.

Miss Knapman outlined expansion of IODE work in several departments during 1953.

IS HOCKEY SKILL ENOUGH?

Touching on community affairs, she said the IODE takes no part in politics but members as citizens should be the watchdogs of elections, especially when candidates are chosen on popular appeal.

"Hockey is an excellent game," she said. "But does hockey alone provide the training required by a member of Parliament?"

Mrs. Cameron reported that a Coronation television set had been presented by the IODE in Queen Elizabeth's name to the Children's Convalescent Hospital in Toronto. She also announced that Mrs. Ryland New of Oakville was appointed an honorary vice-president and Mrs. C. L. Brown was named civil defence liaison officer.

Mrs. F. Murray Campbell of Chatham, organizing secretary, said 12 primary chapters had been organized during the year. Toronto municipal chapter organized six of these.

EDUCATION SPENDING UP

In the education field, Mrs. R. C. Bennett of Hamilton reported that $80,537 had been spent last year, on education, an increase of $7,300 over 1952. Educational projects included assistance to northern schools, scholarship assistance and bursaries.

Mr. George Weeks of Lindsay, secretary of The Echoes, official publication of the IODE, said: "Echoes has won its place by promoting patriotism and entering to culture in its articles."

Mrs. S. G. Bett of St. Catharines, the standard bearer, reported on her department's activities.

Princess Wields Miner's Pick Deep in Mine

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuter)—Princess Margaret, her face smudged by black, wielded a pick ax and hacked herself a souvenir chunk of coal Wednesday. It was the high spot of her first visit to a coal mine.

She spent nearly an hour 1,128 feet underground, watching black-faced miners working at the Calverton mine—one of the most modern in Europe.

She was wearing a white smock over a mink coat and black dress, and a flowered scarf, topped by a miner's white helmet on her head.

At the coal face she shined her miner's safety lamp at men shoveling coal into a conveyor belt. Bent almost double and stumbling on the rough rock floor, she asked conducting officials a barrage of questions.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

IT'S "TEACUP TIME"

Mrs. Beechman:

I always wanted to be able to serve afternoon tea when a guest dropped in at teatime, or when I could invite two or three guests to come "for a dish of tea." But before I was married, I never had the time or "location." Now I'm married, we have a new house, small but comfortable, and I'd like to serve tea. I haven't a silver tea set, probably never will have, but I do have a pretty china tea service. And yesterday, for my birthday present, my good and thoughtful sister gave me a quite large and handsome lacquer tray. With this equipment, would it be at all proper for me to serve tea?

Molly W.

Thank you for letting me shape this dream of yours to serve tea. . . that heart-warming gesture of hospitality in the late afternoon! You wish to serve tea is your very best equipment. . . and indeed it is! . . . and very charming too, to serve with your pretty china tea pot is the preference of many real tea enthusiasts!). And your newly-acquired lacquer tray will be a perfect and very practical background for your tea service. And now you can choose one or two specialties to serve with the tea. . . simple items, but particularly delicious. Happy tea hours to you and your friends!

GROOM'S ATTENDANTS PAY FOR ATTIRE .

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Our wedding in June is to be a formal afternoon church wedding. And since the best man and ushers do not own formal afternoon attire, and would have no use for it in the future, they are renting cutaway coats, striped trousers, and the accompanying accessories. My fiance has asked me to ask you if he is expected to pay the rental fee, or if this is entirely optional. . . other words, if he shouldn't plan to pay the rental charge, does he have to make excuses or mention this in any way, or is it usually taken for granted? — Marion

When there is rental charge to be paid for the attire of the groom's attendants, each attendant is expected to pay this rental charge for his suit-and-accessories. Just as each attendant is expected to pay for his altire if he buys it. The groom-to-be should take this way-of-payment for granted, and need not make excuses for something that the individual attendant should take for granted, However, if he senses there may be an uncertainty about this, it would

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . . would you have a nice recipe for plain coffee cake or buns without eggs? There are just three in our family so I wouldn't care for a big one unless the bachelor neighbor would profit by it. . . I have you ever tried making strawberry jam with three parts berries and one part finely cut apples, then making it like you would otherwise? We think it simply wonderful. — Becky.

ANSWER:

No, Becky I have not tried that strawberry-apple combination. Would you send me your exact method and tell what kind of apples you would use in strawberry season. Thank you for the recipe for "Good Lillies". That was a very different version since it was layered and petals cut and deep fried.

You nearly floored me Becky with your request for Coffee Cake without eggs. But I have one baking powder coffee cake that does not call for eggs. It is actually a sweetened baking powder biscuit with a cinnamon-sugar topping. But you could use ordinary bread dough, make it sweet with sugar, and put the topping on that you would put on an egg-containing coffee cake.

PLAIN COFFEE CAKE

(Baking powder—without egg)

Two cups sifted but unsifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup milk, 2 tablespoons (or more) shortening. Mix and sift dry ingredients and cut in very soft or melted shortening, then add the milk to make a very soft batter. Spread 1-2 inch thick in buttered pan, sprinkle with topping and bake 30 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr.

Topping — Spread batter with soft butter and sprinkle over top a mixture of 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 4 tablespoons sugar. Then dot top very generously with butter.

QUESTION:

Please give recipe for Ice Box Ginger Cookies.—Mrs. H. W. T.

ANSWER:

I think this is the recipe to which you refer.

ICEBOX GINGER COOKIES

In large mixing bowl mix together thoroughly 1 cup soft shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup best quality molasses. Sift together 4 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon each soda and salt, and 1 tablespoon ginger. Sift this over wet ingredients, stir in, then mix with hands. Form into long roll 2 1-2 inches in diameter. Wrap well and chill until hard. With very sharp knife cut into 1-8 inch slices, and bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 400 deg. Fahr. about eight minutes.

QUESTION:

. . . today I tried your Walnut Spice Cake. . . although I thought it called for a lot of sugar (1 1-4 cups brown, 1 cup white) I went ahead. The batter came to within 1-2 inch or top of oblong Pyrex dish and consequently ran over. . . It was cooked an hour at a higher temperature. It looks crumbly. Is recipe correct? If so I'll try again. I used lard in mine. I should have used crisco.—Mrs. W. P. S.

ANSWER:

It is a lot of sugar but the cake is supposed to be rich and tender. If you object to that crumbly top appearance reduce the brown sugar to 1 cup. The recipe was printed correctly in the paper. Use a too-large rather than a too-small baking dish.

QUESTION:

Could you please give me the recipe for peanut butter cookies using honey instead of white and brown sugar.—Mrs. G. E.

ANSWER:

Would you be happy with a recipe for peanut butter cookies calling for 1 cup each honey and white sugar? That is the best I can do.

HONEY PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

One cup each honey, sugar, peanut butter, butter, 2 well-beaten eggs, 3 1-2 cups unsifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder. Mix together butter, peanut butter and when smooth add sugar and honey and beat until creamy, then beat in eggs. Sift together dry ingredients and beat in. Drop from teaspoon onto greased cookie sheet and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 10 or 12 minutes.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHO PAYS FOR THE GROOM'S WEDDING RING?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have just become engaged and will have my engagement ring very shortly.

I would like to know who gets and pays for the wedding ring for the groom, the bride-to-be or the groom? And do you get the wedding rings when you get the engagement ring or later? We would like the wedding rings to match. —A.G.

Dear A. G.:

If the groom is to have a wedding ring, naturally the rings are an exchange between his bride and himself, so that of course the bride would pay for the ring she gives her husband just as he pays for the one he gives to her. The only way you can have wedding rings that match is for each one to be a plain gold band. In this case, the girl's ring is, as a rule, narrower than the man's

As for when you get the wedding rings, get them any time you choose. It makes absolutely no difference . . .

To settle any other questions that may be in your mind about wedding etiquette I suggest you go to your public library and ask for the latest book on the subject.

SERVICEMEN, YOU DON'T KNOW

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few weeks ago in a magazine I was reading, I came across the names of some boys in service with a note saying they would like some girls to write to them. So I thought I would.

In my letter I told them I was 18, but I'm really only 15. I wrote to them because I'm not allowed to go out with boys, and I was tired of hearing my girl friends talk about the boys they went out with.

Now my girl friends tell me I will get into trouble for writing these boys and I am worried. Did I do the wrong thing?

I.D.

Dear I.D.:

In general, I think it's better for girls to make friends among the boys in conventional ways, rather than to strike up an acquaintance with strangers through the mails.

For when a girl writes to a boy, or a woman writes to a man through some advertisement or other notice in a newspaper or magazine, she has no idea what kind of person she is writing to, and that can lead to trouble and often does.

On the other hand, writing to boys in service is a little different, and I doubt if any harm very often comes of it. I don't think you need worry.

However, I do think you would be wiser to be perfectly truthful in what you say in your letters and not misrepresent yourself in any way, even your age. And don't put anything in them that you might at any time regret. Be free in telling about your activities and interests, and don't put yourself or get drawn into anything sentimental or too personal. That way, you'll stay on the safe side.

Beauty

TAKING A TUCK IN THE WAISTLINE

"Curve where you will, but be ready in the middle!" If fashion designers were to speak to us, that is what they would say. It is what they always advise—no matter what their sartorial offerings may be. Pleating lines of bust and hips are given accent by the trim waistline.

Every woman should be a weight-watcher if she has passed the thirtieth milestone. She must endeavor to cultivate lines that create a graceful, pleasing silhouette.

If you suddenly find that last year's frock doesn't zip quickly, that your skirt appears tighter than it was, it is time to rush into action. It is a wonderful satisfaction to slip an inch from a mid-section that is following a policy of expansion. The first rule is to yank up your determination and keep it extended. The next is to pull your abdominal muscles upward and inward—and keep them there where they belong.

Those additional inches may be due entirely to slack posture which causes muscles to lose tone. It is only when they remain in place and work through the movements of exercise that they stay strong and resilient.

That old fashioned exercise consisting of touching the floor without bending the knees is still number one. Raise the hands high above your head while lifting on your toes. Take down on the heels, down with the hands, keep the heels down with the hands, keep legs rigid and touch the floor. When you become expert at this, you may be able to place the palms of your hands on the floor.

Stand tall, head balanced, chest high, tummy flat. Clasp the hands above the head. Turn to the right and left, pivoting at the waistline. Make a dozen or more turns. Then, with left hand lifted, bend to left knee with the right hand. Five times. Then touch the right knee with the left hand. This gives you a mid-section twist that is good for what ails you.

It is well, during this program, to regard your diet. You may be consuming too many starchy foods, too much cream and butter. Don't cut them out entirely. Just cut down the amount that you usually have. You need some of both because they provide fuel for the energy motors.

CAMPBELLFORD

Prof. Frank Halbus Discusses Importance of Recreation Stages

CAMPBELLFORD — The importance of the subject of recreation through the various age groups to adulthood and beyond can hardly be over-emphasized. Professor Frank Halbus, of Hastings, brought this fact before the members of the Rotary Club of Campbellford at their regular meeting on Monday.

Professor Halbus, for nearly 33 years was on the staff of the Ontario College of Education. He was Ontario and Dominion Sprint champion in 1911, and at London in the Coronation games of that year was British Empires champion. He retired from his active duties at the Ontario College of Education and, with Mrs. Halbus, became a resident of the village of Hastings last year. Among other accomplishments he played the violin with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Wib Kingston. Numbered among the guests of the club were male members of the public and high school staffs.

PHYSIOLOGICAL FACTORS

Commencing his address, Prof. Halbus stated that "if we are to plan leisure time activity for the community, we must first understand the physiological factors which govern youth. Play and recreation are dominant instincts in every human being. These words signify a cessation of labor and the giving over of self to freedom of movement with its accompanying mental and physical exhilaration.

"Educator, civic leaders and parents, the teacher, the social and the religious worker all concern themselves with recreation as a need.

"Explorers have found that in the hottest jungles of Africa and in the frozen plains of Iceland people, young and old, indulge in games and pastimes. The American Indian, who has given us our traditional background, made the dance his expression of joy, sorrow, prayer and praise.

"But today play, as we know it, is clearly a product of the 20th century. It is highly organized, promoted and fostered by the public. It is now an integral part of our social life, having definite aims for promoting health, vigor, moral discipline and citizenship. This evolution has put play above the primitive instinct of the animal.

FOUR AGE GROUPS

"Roughly speaking, organized play falls into four age groups: ages 1-7, 7-9, 9-14, and from 14 years up. In the first stage play is individual, experimental and imaginative. He likes to feel his powers developing and loves to show off. He learns by imitation rather than information.

"The second stage follows on with self-assertion being very strong. Each must have his turn at being leader. Children of this age must not be forced to play team games as they lack the ability to subjugate self to group effort; games are a little longer in duration than in the first stage.

THIRD STAGE

"The third stage from 9 to 12 years sees a gradual change from the individualism to play under a leader. The tendency of hero worship is strong. The foundation of life spiritually and mentally may well be laid during this impressionable age. Adult guidance is needed to instil the characteristics of honesty, sportsmanship and fair play, and for this reason tactful and wise leadership is a must.

"In the fourth period rapid growth and development make play requirements more rigid. More activities are needed and there is a greater strain as games require endurance, skill and self-control. Co-operative play is characteristic of this period, and the individual must subject himself to the good of the team.

INTERSEXUAL TENDENCIES

"The boy develops the ability to think impersonally instead of taking everything as an emotional, personal issue. Training is needed so that the latter must realize that they influence their charges by what they do more than by what they say. They must, too, realize that to train character is more important than to win the game."

Professor Halbus concluded his address by saying that each of the stages outlined has fulfilled its concepts, we shall have good Canadian citizens and Rotarians governed by the motto 'Service above Self'.

Rev. Harry Howson thanked Professor Halbus for his address.

BODIES SCATTERED

Eleven bodies were taken from the remains of the North Star. The others were strewn over an area of seven square miles. Bodies were found on a golf course, in a gully bursting the course from a residential area and in the backyards of residents.

One woman said a man hurtled on to her front lawn and "hit so hard, he bounced."

Throughout the night, in the glare of a spotlight, a bulldozer and a dragline combed the debris-strewn residential district on the northeastern side of Moose Jaw where the airliner plunged to earth. Plane wreckage was scattered widely.

Witnesses said the Harvard, based at a NATO base four miles south of the city, was flying northeast and the airliner, behind schedule, flew west when the smaller plane knifed into the larger. The collision was followed by an explosion. The trainer plunged directly to earth, the North Star crashlanded into a flat spin at a sharp angle.

FLAMES MUSHROOMED

When the airliner hit, one of its fuel tanks exploded to mushroom flames over the home of Gordon Hume, service station operator, and upon an adjacent two-storey house. When the fire was extinguished, only the front-door upright of the house remained. The other was a burned-out shell.

Mrs. Hadwen, mother of three children, had gone to the Hume residence Thursday instead of her usual Wednesday. Mrs. Hume and her two small children left 30 minutes before the crash to visit a dentist. Mr. Hume was at work.

Children in the nearby school remained orderly, though flames could be seen raging close by, and later were dismissed for the day.

The North Star, flight No. 9 from Montreal to Vancouver via Toronto Winnipeg and Calgary, was not scheduled to stop at Moose Jaw. It was running about 7½ hours late due to bad weather east of here, RCA officials said.

A Protestant minister and a Roman Catholic priest, among the first of the large crowd quickly drawn to the scene, gave the last rites of their faiths over the bodies where they fell or were recovered from charred wreckage.

On behalf of the people of Saskatchewan, Premier T. C. Douglas extended "the deepest sympathy to relatives of those who were killed."

VIVID ACCOUNTS

Accounts of eyewitnesses were vivid. Mrs. George Solon, on whose lawn a man dropped, said she heard the mid-air explosion and looked through her window in time to see the tragedy. "I couldn't look any more," she said. "It was too terrible."

Ken Matheson, a tobacco salesman, was about to get into his automobile a short distance from the wrecked houses when he heard the noise of the collision. He said: "My God, it was horrible. I didn't know where it was going to come down. There was a terrible, revving roar of motors and it seemed the plane was going to hit me and the car. I got into the car and moved it backward, then forward.

"The plane came down the street in a direct line after passing over the school at the end of the block. It hit the back part of the house, carving it in. Flame shot 75 feet into the air."

Real estate dealer A. R. Lockhart said the North Star "appeared to be minus one wing as it slipped sideways and crashed into the Hume home." It was a "terrible sight to see bodies hurtling through the air in all directions in the first few seconds after the explosion occurred."

Chicken-Stuffed Liberals, Fired With Old Party Spirit, Engage in Midnight Lobbying

BY WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Liberals shifted themselves with roast chicken and frozen strawberry roll Thursday night.

Health Minister Martin fired them with the old party spirit and sent them off upstairs to do a little midnight lobbying.

About 8:30 p.m. today the 915 voting delegates to the two-day party convention will have made up their minds on who will lead for their new leader.

They and three men to lobby over: Farquhar Oliver, 50-year-old retired Priceville farmer and the party's leader in the legislature; Albert Wren, 31-year-old former town clerk of Prince Lookout and Liberal-Labor member of the provincial House for Sussex; and 58-year-old Robert Temple, Belleville lawyer and alderman.

The party's hierarchy from Ottawa was in the background—Mr. Martin, Immigration Minister Harris, Transport Minister Chevrier, Duncan MacTavish, president of the Dominion party, Senator A.W. Roebuck.

It was anybody's guess. Around the convention floor there were as many "Win with Wren" posters as there were "Vote Oliver" ribbons. And among the political fledglings "Tag on to Temple" tags were just as evident.

SMOKE-FILLED ROOMS

But upstairs, where the cigar smoke was thicker and the drinks were on the house, it was 60-40 for Mr. Oliver.

Party veterans were sticking with Mr. Oliver, a political veteran himself. They were relying on his years of experience—he represented Grey South in the legislature for 28 years—to carry the party.

Mr. Oliver, a man of wide girth, began his political life, first entered politics at the age of 22 when he successfully ran in Grey South as a United Farmers of Ontario candidate. In 1941 he left the UFO to enter the Liberal cabinet of the late Mitchell F. Hepburn as minister of public works and welfare.

He quit the cabinet in 1942 during a political storm which boiled when Mr. Hepburn resigned and handed over the premiership to the late Gordon Conant of Oshawa without calling a party convention.

RETURNS TO FOLD

The following year, Mr. Oliver returned to the cabinet when Harry Nixon, member for Brant who also left the party in 1942, was elected party leader and became premier.

A few weeks later both men were out when the Progressive Conservatives won the general election.

Mr. Nixon resigned as leader on the eve of the 1945 election and a caucus of Liberal members of the legislature chose Mr. Hepburn as party leader for a second time. He resigned after defeat. Mr. Oliver was elected party leader in 1947 but resigned two years later following the 1948 election.

In 1950, Walter C. Thomson was chosen Mr. Oliver's successor but he resigned after the 1951 election.

The Wren supporters were using "new blood" as their selling point. The northwestern Ontario member made an impression during his nomination speech; even some Oliver rooters said they were impressed. An outspoken critic of the alleged irregularities in the highways department, Mr. Wren is a political youngster. He was defeated in the 1948 election—his first try for office—but won in 1951.

LONE WOLF

Around Queen's park he is known as the "lone wolf" of the party. Pro-Oliver delegates feared Mr. Wren as party leader might lead them astray with his frankness of speech.

His Liberal-Labor tag is peculiar to the Kenora riding; the federal member, W. E. Hendrickson, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, ran in the 1953 election on the same ticket.

Mr. Temple is an "unknown quantity" for most of the delegates. His nomination by the Young Liberals came as a surprise and it was thought by both Wren-and Oliver supporters that he might cause an unexpected division.

This afternoon's voting will be a straight majority ballot. There will be 836 delegates from the 86 provincial ridings—the new eight seats under the recent redistribution are included. The rest of the ballots will come from 90 legislature candidates, both successful and unsuccessful, 85 federal candidates, also successful and unsuccessful, 22 senators and privy councillors, 52 board of management, 18 Ontario Liberal Labor Association, 34 Ontario Young Liberals Association and six special university voters.

Fritzi Scheff Is Found Dead

NEW YORK (AP)—Fritzi Scheff, who sparkled in opera and operetta from the turn of the century and whose lusty voice never really left, died Thursday at the age of 74.

The saucy, piquant luminary of another era—she made her stage debut in 1898—was active in the entertainment field until the end. She had been appearing on television and radio, with future commitments, and even made a comeback four years ago at the old Palace theatre, where she had last played 25 years before that.

The body of the little singer was found in her mummies-crowded east side apartment. A medical examiner attributed death to "old age and natural causes."

Vienna-born and a European star, Miss Scheff made her first appearance at the Metropolitan Opera House in 1901. Her glorious voice and winning manner of fanciful pianist Jeanne Paderewski to call her "that little devil of the opera."

PLANE CRASH KILLS TWO

NEW CASTLE, Del. (AP)—Two men were killed instantly when a small private airplane crashed into the Delaware river after narrowly missing an oil refinery. The victims were identified as Curtis Plotts, 25, and an air force Lieut. Eugene C. Basom, 25. The bodies were on a pleasure flight after Basom had stopped for a visit while en route back to Thule air force base in Greenland following a leave.

N.S. Approves In Principle Bill In Triple Salaries

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Nova Scotia legislature has given approval in principle to a bill tripling members' pay to $2,400.

Members voted 23 to 9 Thursday in favor of a motion to give the bill second reading. The only opponents were nine of the 10 Progressive Conservatives present.

The two CCF members, all of Premier Angus Macdonald's Liberals and Raymond Bourque, Progressive Conservative for Yarmouth, favored the bill. Members now receive $1,200 for an average eight-week session.

Another bill providing for $2,000 supplementary allowances for cabinet members is expected to receive second reading today. Members now receive $6,000 and the premier $9,000.

In the Newfoundland legislature, Premier Joseph Smallwood attacked the Progressive Conservative opposition for producing a "dirty, stupid, anti-confederate bigotry."

He described the five members of the opposition as a little "band of jealous men against the government. . . They must try to grow up."

NO POLICY

Mr. Smallwood said the opposition have never disclosed their policy, never come up with constructive criticisms, have no manifesto or declaration of policy, "but they are against the government."

The British Columbia house got off its first joke with a bill that will allow unclaimed and unidentified bodies to be used by doctors and medical students for anatomical studies.

The Social Credit government also said it will go out of the rent control business next year.

Tractor Upsets Killing Driver

NAPANEE—John Deline, 79, was killed Thursday when his tractor overturned and crushed him on a sideroad about 12 miles northwest of here.

Mr. Deline, who lived with his son, Beldrun, had gone to get some stone to make repairs to the farm lane. He was found crushed beneath the tractor at the side of the road. Coroner Y. O. Hart said he might have had a weak spell and lost control of the machine.

In addition to his son, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. W. J. McFarland.

U.S. House Passes Measure To Legalize Wire-Tapping In Cases of Spies, Saboteurs

By R. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House-passed bill to legalize the use of wire-tapped evidence against spies and saboteurs faces an uncertain fate in the United States senate, although there were promises today of early consideration.

What emerged Thursday after nearly two full days of heated debate in the House of Representatives was far short of the legislation asked by Attorney-General Herbert Brownell.

Instead of giving him the sole powers he requested over wire-tapping in national security cases, the House voted to make it subject to advance court approval.

The Senate-sponsored provision for court approval was substituted by a vote of 231 to 185 in which 32 Republicans and one independent joined 198 Democrats to make up the majority vote. The revised bill was sent to the Senate by a vote of 378 to 16.

In essence, the bill would alter a 20-year-old rule which makes wire-tapped information inadmissible as evidence in U. S. federal courts.

It would legalize evidence obtained from wire-taps for the prosecution of spies, saboteurs, persons accused of espionage, sedition or seditious conspiracy, or charged with violation of the Internal security or atomic energy acts.

And it would permit the Attorney-general to use—without a court order—wire-tap evidence already collected on file to prosecute cases which have been dormant since the old ban.

Justice department officials have indicated that one such case is that of Judith Coplon, a government worker who allegedly passed secrets to a Soviet agent and whose two convictions were set aside on appeal.

Canada May Be Made Member UN Disarmament Sub-Group

By MAX HABRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) The United Nations disarmament commission was expected to agree unanimously today to set up a small sub-group for private talks at once on arms reduction and atomic control.

Diplomatic circles express belief that the sub-committee will consist of the United States, Russia, Britain, France and possibly Canada. Some countries are undecided to favor inclusion of Canada because of her close connection with British and U.S. atomic production.

Today's meeting of the 12-country commission was its first in eight months. Its only session last year, in August, was devoted to approval of a report of no progress.

Before the delegates today was a plea from India for immediate consideration of a four-point program outlined by prime minister Nehru to the Indian Parliament last Friday.

FULLER INFORMATION

Nehru wants an immediate standstill agreement on atomic and hydrogen bomb explosions; full publicity on the destructive power of atomic and hydrogen weapons; private meetings of the sub-committee on his idea; and an expression of concern by countries not having atomic weapons. India asked that his speech be circulated as a UN document and considered by the commission.

As far as could be learned, no delegate planned a major speech today. Informed quarters said discussion probably would be confined to suggestions for setting up the sub-committee.

Little setting was given added significance, however, by the fact that the Western Big Three called for it in the midst of the U. S. hydrogen bomb tests in the Pacific and the demands from Nehru and Britain's Labor opposition that the tests be halted.

MISTAKE COSTS $9,000

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Awakened today by shots that his house was afire, Thomas Johnston implored a neighbor to carry out a trunk containing $9,000 in cash from his late father's estate. After the fire was extinguished, Johnston opened the trunk. It was the wrong one. The trunk with the $9,000 legacy was burned up.

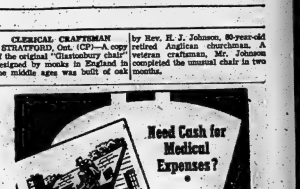
Noted Bush Pilot, Wife Killed In Air Crash

TORONTO (CP) — Thomas Mayne (Pat) Reid died Thursday in the air which had been his second home for 29 of his 59 years. The noted-bush pilot, who probably made as many spectacular flights as any other pilot of his day, was identified with his wife as among passengers on a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane which crashed at Moose Jaw, Sask., after a collision with an RCAF trainer.

Reid began his flying career in 1925 when he left his home at Ballyronney, Northern Ireland, to join the Royal Naval Air Service. He has been flying ever since. Since 1931, he has been aviation sales manager for Imperial Oil Limited.

AWARDED DFM

He won the DFM in the First World War for outstanding service as an air engineer in service from the Dardanelles to the North sea. During the Second World War he was awarded the McKee Trophy for meritorious service in advancement of aviation in Canada for the joint years 1942 and 1943.



After the First World War, he was with Handley-Page Transport for several years, was the first trans-channel service from London to Paris and also flew to Brussels and Amsterdam.

In 1924 he came to Canada and joined the Ontario Provincial Air Service at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., with many others now became famed bush pilots—men like the late Duke Schiller, killed in the Arctic, and Punch and Jimmy Medcalf who were lost on an attempted Atlantic crossing flight in 1927.

At Sault Ste. Marie, he married Margery Armstrong of Richards Landing, on St. Joseph island. Their only child is Flt. Lt. John E. Reid, a member of the RCAF squadron stationed at North Bay. Reid's sister, Marion, married Thomas Woodside, another airman who came from Ireland and left to join the Ontario service.

Clerical craftsman

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—A copy of the original "Glastonbury chair" designed by monks in England in the middle ages was built of oak and by Rev. H. J. Johnson, 60-year-old retired Anglican churchman. A veteran craftsman, Mr. Johnson completed the unusual chair in two months.

Nitrogen Bomb Being Produced Says Scientist

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese scientist was quoted today as saying that Russia was reported producing a nitrogen bomb so deadly that 50 of them fired at once would annihilate the entire human race in several years' time.

The statement, carried by Kyodo news agency, was attributed to Dr. Trumesburo Asada, professor of science at Osaka University.

(By: Asada is known in the United States as a physicist who does not specialize in nuclear physics. His specialty is the spectroscope.)

Kyodo said Asada made the statement in an address to a meeting of the Japan Pharmacological Society in Kyoto Monday.

IVANHOE

Endeavor Class Members Visit St. Andrew's Club

IVANHOE. — Members of West Huntingdon United Endeavor's Class and Fuller's Presbyterian Mission Circle visited St. Andrew's Presbyterian Club on Friday evening.

The meeting was held in St. Andrew's Church and was conducted by the club president, John McIlroy, who welcomed the visitors.

The meeting opened with quiet music with Mrs. A. Hassell at the piano.

Following the singing of "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," Mr. Harold Thompson read the Scripture lesson, Luke 22:1-16 and the Rev. W. H. V. Walker led in prayer.

PROGRAM NUMBERS

The following numbers were given by Fuller Mission Circle with Miss Mary Thompson in charge: duet, "The Blood That Was Shed on the Old Rugged Cross," Mrs. R. Redcliffe, Mr. Fred Smith; reading, "What Is Prayer?" Mrs. R. Redcliffe; solo, "I'm In My Heart," Mrs. E. Wannamaker.

A timely and inspiring Lenten message was given by Mr. Earl Wannamaker.

The closing part of the program was conducted by the Endeavorer's Class, solo, "O Love of God," Mrs. William Grant; reading, "Church Music", Mrs. Mac Searles; duet, "I Am Walking Every Day With Jesus," Mr. and Mrs. John Lennon.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served and a short social time was spent.

Mr. George Ashley, on behalf of the Endeavor's Class and Mrs. H. Redcliffe of the Mission Circle, voiced their thanks for the invitation to St. Andrew's. In reply, Mrs. Harry Benson expressed appreciation for the fine program presented by the visiting groups.

Turn your front wheels in the same direction as the skid.

- Don't turn wheels too far in direction of skid. This may throw rear end into dangerous reverse skid.
- Keep your foot lightly on the accelerator to keep rear wheels rolling, and maintain traction.
- Keep your foot off the brake. Jamming on the brakes locks your wheels so that they act like sled runners.
- When you have car straightened out, pump the brakes gently to bring the car to a stop.

Skid turns into dangerous spin.
Skidding stops and car straightens out.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Friends, Relatives Neighbors Fete Young Couple

MOUNTAIN VIEW — On Friday evening about 50 friends, neighbors and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Keeble, gathered in the church parlors, the purpose to shower their daughter, Mrs. George Weitz (nee Mary Keeble), and Mr. Weitz, with miscellaneous gifts in honor of their recent marriage.

About nine o'clock the gathering was called to order and a humorous reading was given by Mrs. Willet Barber, after which Mr. and Mrs. Weitz were asked to be seated in chairs at the front.

An address was read by Mrs. Warner Flanigan, and Misses Janice Joyce and Yvonne Potte wheeled in a gaily decorated tandemette, which was filled many times with numerous gifts.

After unwrapping the gifts, the bride and groom, who are leaving shortly to take up residence in Germany, thanked everyone for their kindness in remembering them.

The ladies served refreshments and a social hour followed.

Lonesome Lake Man Gets Flying Licence at 62

LONESOME LAKE, B.C. (CP)—For 40 years Ralph Edwards watched the wild swans cruising over his wilderness cabin.

Then, at the age of 62, he joined them.

He was only 22 when he moved to this isolated spot in the northwest of Vancouver as a migratory bird watcher. Then he married and a daughter, Trudy, now 25, was born. Lonesome lake wasn't too lonesome any more.

Last year the entire population of Lonesome lake—Mr. and Mrs. Edwards and daughter—decided to broaden their horizons.

DAUGHTER LED WAY

There was just enough money in the family to purchase a light airplane and send Trudy to Vancouver to learn to fly it. She did, and for the rest of the year used the plane to fly supplies for neighboring families.

The amateur air-freight business paid off enough to enable Mr. Edwards to "come out", and learn to handle a plane.

At 62 he got his licence and now is a familiar sight, beard flying in the slipstream, when he lands and takes off on the myriad of lakes in the north country.

He and Trudy have set records throughout the rugged district—probably the only spot in Canada where two-thirds of the population hold pilot licences.

Mrs. Edwards leaves the flying to her husband and daughter.

tertained his father and brother from Toronto over the week-end.

Several ladies from this community attended the recent W.A. tea at the home of Mrs. Frank Cronk, Solmesville. The afternoon was spent with community singing, readings and contests. Later refreshments were served by Solmesville ladies.

Miss Marie Foster, Black Creek, spent the week-end with Miss Ruth Wallbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Babble, of Picton, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Babble.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mallett and Elaine attended the 37th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Mallett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomlinson, Perth, on Sunday last.

Miss Cathie MacLaren and Miss Jennie Thompson, Reg. N., of Mt. Sinai Hospital, Toronto, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Oliver.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Needham, Pam and Charles, and Mr. and Mrs. O. Oliver were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Clow and children.

2nd Thurlow

5th THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Clare, of Foxboro, were Sunday afternoon and evening visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Swan.

Gilead W.M.S. will hold a church service on Sunday evening, April 11 and will collect their regular thankoffering for Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldie Livingston, of Belleville, recently visited Mrs. J. Rollins.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Yorke called on Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McLaren, 4th line, recently.

Mrs. Gerald Swan and Mrs. J. Rollins attended an executive meeting of Plainfield W.I. at Mrs. Donald Harrison's to draft the program for 1954.

Thomasburg

40th ANNIVERSARY.

THOMASBURG — Mr. and Mrs. A. Jones quietly celebrated their 46th wedding anniversary on April 2 at home. Friends and members of their family called. To mark the occasion, they were presented with a "Happy Anniversary" cake. All join in wishing them health and happiness.

The Thomasburg-Moira Young People held their recent regular meeting in Moira. Mr. L. Hopkins, president, conducted the devotional period, after which Mr. Farrow showed slides on "Holland Gardens."

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Yateman and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boyce, of Belleville, were callers on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Yateman.

Miss Shirley Carter celebrated her 8th birthday on Saturday. Several of her young friends attended a party given for her at her home.

Mr. H. Farrow showed the pictures "The Holland Gardens" in the United Church on Friday evening. It was regretted that more did not attend to see these really fine views.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Gifford and Larry have taken up residence in the Moira district, quite near Bethel church. All join in wishing them happiness in their new home.

The dance on Friday evening in the hall, sponsored by the Odd Fellows, was well attended. Music was supplied by the Madoc Melody Makers orchestra.

Farmers of the district are busily preparing for spring, having their seed grain cleaned and treated.

Due to illness in Miss Mayers home, the junior room scholars were given a half holiday on Monday.

Rawdon

BASEBALL!

The story goes that a monkey ruminating in a South American jungle on the antics of humans, remarked: "People are the funniest monkeys." We will buy that.

Since the sun started to take on a little heat several weeks ago this department has been in receipt of several queries, verbal and written, from people wanting to know if the city would have a senior baseball club this summer. And if not, why not?

They had a definite answer this week with the organization of the Central Ontario Baseball League, comprising teams from this city, Kingston, Peterborough and Oshawa. We understand the latter three teams are backed by strong organizations.

The Belleville Baseball Association held an open meeting last night and the turnout was a distinct disappointment. A mere dozen or so persons, augmented by several players, constituted the meeting and there was not one of the persons present who kept this department's phone busy for weeks demanding information about the baseball club.

In any event, Manager Jack Carson, acting for President Malcolm Robb, who was in Toronto, bravely took the initiative and went ahead with the organization. The former slate of officials were tossed back into office with Mr. Robb at the helm, Clarence Clapp, vice-president; Drury Denyes, secretary-treasurer, and Carson business manager. Several matters were discussed and as much business as was possible finished. The association set next Wednesday night for its next meeting.

There could have been counter attractions last night. The Sweather was fair to middling. Otherwise we could see no reason for the lack of interest and attendance.

Manager Carson feels he can field a team that will be on a par with the older clubs. There is a brand new grandstand in the Fair Grounds that will supply 2,000 people with more than a modicum of seating comfort. The grounds will be put in the best shape possible and everything points to a fine season of senior baseball.

But one, two, three, or a dozen men can't do it all. Much work has to be done before the familiar cry of "Play Ball" sounds in the Fair Grounds on May 24.

There are a few willing horses in any organization, and the majority are content to sit back and let these old faithfuls buckle down to the job. And who are the severest critics? You guessed it.

Senior baseball has been given a substantial "needle" in the district with the formation of the COBL. It is a revival of the good old days when names like "Peeny" Mills, Harry Mills, "The Indian," Jack Dulette, Hoot Gibson, Walt Gerow were household ones. It is a compact loop with no great transportation problems. And this city cannot afford to nip it in the bud before it sprouts its first shoots.

So how about it? The club or association is holding another general meeting in the city hall next Wednesday night. Let's get behind the organization with something more tangible than promises and lackadaisical interest.

If this city is to have a club comparable to those of the other league organizations, and there is no reason why that cannot be, it has got to have some solid support and backing.

SOFTBALL!

The Belleville District Softball Association is holding an open meeting at the West Moira Street Fire Hall on Sunday at 2 p.m., thanks to the courtesy of Fire Chief Gerald Vance. Potential entries are requested to be on hand and if possible, bring along the entry fee, which this year is thirty-five bucks, coin of the realm, or three teas and a five will do. The Association can do with assistance in the form of sponsors, managers and coaches for its minor groups, especially the baritan division under Chief Vance's convenorship. It is important that as many as possible attend this meeting since the Ontario Amateur Softball Association annual convention takes place in North Bay on Good Friday and the city organization will send along representation in the person of Don Lee. Incidentally Don has been nominated for a position on the OASA executive. He should go armed with as much info as possible and the only way he can obtain it is through a good turnout at Sunday's meeting.

OATS 'N FLASHES . . .

The Northern Electric soccer club will hold its inaugural practice at the Fair Grounds tomorrow afternoon starting at two o'clock. All players, especially last year's juveniles, are requested to turn out; the club hopes to operate teams in the Bay of Quinte Association and the Eastern Ontario League . . . Dick Burrowes', stock-car racing impresario hereabouts, announces the opening of his favorite sport at the Fair Grounds on April 16, Good Friday. There will be a large field of Class "B" stock cars as a result of the recently-formed Quinte Stock Car Association and the Kingston Speedway. First heat at 2.30 . . . One reply to several requests: No kiddies we have NO jobs as to when the wrestling season starts here. The ice cubes have yet to be removed from the Arena Commission's refrigerator . . . The CNR Morning Bowling League is holding its annual knife-and-fork get-together in the ANAF auditorium April 26, starting one o'clock, just a bit . . . Five of last year's junior softballers are over the age hump. District players of junior age are cordially invited to try out with Paul Merckley "Shucksick." Watch for practice announcements . . . The I.Q. of Belleville's yachting fraternity is exceptionally high. A peek at the results of power squadron examinations of city sailors reveals the boys and gals of the white wing organization on a par with the best in Ontario. More about that later . . . Harry Powers of the Bakelite Hi-Powers bowling team, rolled a nifty 400 in the league playoffs. Harry's left flipper was weighted down with a heavy plaster cast . . . It "ain't" spring. Herby (The Ole Flymouth Rock) Henn hasn't announced his annual retirement yet . . . A tip of the columnar hat to Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Strahan on the arrival of a six-pound five-ounce bundle of feminine happiness. 'Tis the first for Marse Robert, who is expected to reach earth some time today. Mom and daughter are doing fine, thank you.

Winners Score in 32 Seconds To Start Early Win Parade; Habs Minus Harvey, Beliveau

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Detroit Red Wings, never to be taken lightly even under most auspicious conditions, were back today in the familiar role as Stanley Cup favorites because of power plus.

Montreal Canadiens tried it the hard way Thursday night and they took a thumping 5-2 setback, leaving them trailing 2-1 in games in the best-of-seven cup final.

The powerful red-shirted flock so asserted its mastery that the 14,481 fans in the Montreal Forum could be pardoned for wondering just how much difference a full-strength Canadien team would have meant.

BLOW TO MONTREAL

The Detroit top echelons grasped cloudily said the loss of defencemen Doug Harvey and centre Jean Beliveau through injuries was a sad blow to the Montreal cause.

But before these comments flowed the Red Wings had a disorganized Montreal team already on the run after only 42 seconds of play when Alex Delvecchio banged in the first goal.

Ted Lindsay and Johnny Wilson ran the count to 3-0 by the end of the second period, and by the way the Wings were travelling Montreal's pre-game hopes were all but shattered.

As if in disdain of defencemen Tom Johnson's goal after seven minutes of the final period, Metro Prystai and Gordie Howe widened the margin.

FIGHT TO END

To Canadiens' credit, they fought it out to the end and for a brief spell stormed to the offensive with defencemen Dollard St. Laurent supplying the last goal five minutes before the final siren.

There was little argument that unless Harvey and Beliveau are back for Saturday's fourth game, Canadiens can expect no less mercy at the hands of the Detroiters unless coach Dick Irvin can master-mind beyond the bounds of wizardry.

Montreal's Maurice Richard carried the burden of the Canadien offence, teamed with different assortments of line-mates. But work as he did, the Rocket couldn't get a goal.

MISSES CHANCE

Floyd Curry missed a chance for Montreal in the first few seconds of play. Delvecchio made the most of his, picking up Howe's pass and scoring from close range. Then Ted Lindsay, falling to the ice and with big Butch Bouchard half draped about him, lifted a high shot for goal No. 2. Wilson's slapshot, producing the only goal in the second period, fooled Canadiens' Jacques Plante completely.

Tom Johnson finally erased the Montreal zero, at 7:19 of the last period.

Less than a minute later Prystai counted on Delvecchio's assist on an around-the-net play that caught Plante flatfooted. Four minutes later Howe scored his first goal of the season in Canada. St. Laurent ended the scoring, coasting around Kelly and beating goalie Terry Sawchuk with an angle shot.

Montreal Maroons, who operated in the National Hockey League from 1924 to 1938, won their second Stanley Cup final by beating Toronto 6-1 at Montreal 19 years ago tonight, taking the series in three straight. Maroons had won the first two at Toronto by 3-2 and 3-1. Their first Stanley Cup triumph was in 1926 over Victoria, in the last year the eastern champions played the West.

St. Boniface Nips Fort William In Overtime

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—St. Boniface Canadiens completed a long, uphill climb here Thursday night in the western Canada junior hockey semi-finals when they handed Fort William Canadiens a 5-3 setback in overtime in the seventh game of the best-of-seven series.

Losing two of the first three games in the set and with the fourth ending in a deadlock, the Saints were trailing in the standing throughout the last three games. But Thursday night's outcome left the two teams all square with eight points each and forced a sudden-death eighth game here on Saturday.

Saints also were behind 3-1 with less than three minutes of play remaining in regulation time when they counted twice in little more than half a minute to square the count at 3-3, then fired home two more tallies in the extra frame.

Dodgers Sign London Pitcher

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Doug Mowry of St. Catharines, head scout in Ontario for Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Baseball League, said Thursday he has signed left-handed pitcher Marvin Liley of London, Ont., to a professional contract.

Liley, who won seven consecutive games with London in the Ontario Baseball Association junior league this year, has been assigned to Great Falls, Mont., in the Pioneer class C league.

SCORES ACE IN MASTERS

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Leland Gibson scored a tournament-rare hole-in-one in the first round of the Masters Thursday.

Gibson sparked a perfect four-iron shot into the cup on the 190-yard No. 6 for the fifth ace scored in a Masters.

"I've been playing 20 or 24 years," the Kansas City swinger said, "and that was my first. I'm glad it wasn't a fluke. I hit the shot as perfect as I can hit one. The ball landed about 10 or 12 feet in front of the cup and rolled right in."

The ace helped Gibson to a 39 on the front nine.

Smythe Reaches Badminton Quarter-Finals

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—A Californian and a New Yorker today carried American hopes of retaining the United States men's singles badminton championship as eight quarter-final matches got under way.

Joe Alston of Pasadena, Calif., a former U.S. titlist, and Bobby Williams of Niagara Falls, were the only Americans to survive Thursday's third - round games when a Canadian and two Far Eastern aces knocked out the others.

Eddie Choong, the all-England champ from Malaya, won an easy victory in the men's singles over Martin Semple of Toronto, 15-2, 15-1.

Nandu Natekar of Bombay, the all-India champ, beat Bill Berry of San Diego, Calif., 7-15, 15-7, 15-3, and Don Smythe of Toronto, Canadian champion, downed Manuel Armendaris of Burbank, Calif., 15-6, 11-15, 15-9.

In the men's doubles, Bob Williams of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Bob Hardison of Niagara Falls, Ont., defeated John Carter and Ken Forsythe of Toronto, 15-7, 15-1; Buz Martin of Arcadia, Cal., and Manuel Armendarfs defeated George C. Thorpe of Burlington, Ont., and Bunny Brewster of Woodstock, 15-11, 15-12.

In the mixed doubles, first round Fred Cartmel of Merriton, Ont., and Eleanor Coombs of Chicago, Ill., won by default over Fred Trifonoff of Dearborn, Mich., and June la Rose of Royal Oak, Mich., when the Michigan team did not appear.

Dick Sebben and Edith Marshall of Toronto beat Cartmel of Merriton, Ont., and Miss Coombs 15-9, 15-9.

Wolves Trounce Mercurys 5-2 To Win Ontario Senior Title

SUDBURY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves won the all-Ontario senior A hockey championship here Thursday night by defeating Owen Sound Mercurys 4-1.

The victory, which also made the Wolves the first winners of the W. A. Hewitt Trophy, enables Sudbury to compete in the eastern Canada Allan Cup final against Matane Red Rocks. The Hewitt Trophy is to be presented annually to the winner of the series between Ontario Hockey Association Senior A champions and Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior titlists.

Thursday night's game, watched by 6,788 fans, a record for the Sudbury arena, proved that the big factor of the series was home ice. Sudbury won the best-of-seven final 4-3 and while there was considerable ice on Sudbury ice, the Wolves couldn't take a victory in Owen Sound.

The Wolves took the first two games of the series on home ice, dropped the next three in Owen Sound, and won the last two back in Sudbury.

The game was much closer than the score indicated. Sudbury went ahead 3-0 in the first period, lengthened the gap to 5-0 in the second and sandwiched its final two goals around Owen Sound's marker in the third.

McLELLAN GETS PAIR

Peter McLellan fired for the Sudbury snipers with two goals—the final two for the Wolves' Ed Harrison and Ken Laird and assisted on the other which was tallied by Andy Milne. Defenseman Ralph Hosking fired the only one for the Mercurys.

Al Millar shone in the Sudbury nets. Bobby Gillson was equally great in the Owen Sound net. He had no chance on the four that beat him.

Harrison, a former National Hockey League performer, sent the Wolves ahead 2½ minutes after the game started. Teammate Pete Horeck was in the penalty box at the time. Harrison took a pass from Yogi Kraiger at centre ice and swooped in on Gillson. The Owen Sound netminder partially blocked the shot but the puck trickled through his pads and over the goal line.

MERRY OUTSHOT

The Wolves carried the greater part of the play in the second period, outshooting the Mercurys 16-4. Matane fired what proved to be the winning goal midway in the period when he took Harrison's rebound off the back boards and drove it into an empty net.

In the third period Sudbury pulled into a defensive shell and play dragged a little as the Mercurys, trying to organize an attack, were frequently bottled up in the centre ice area. McLellan notched the first of his goals after taking a rink-wide pass from Yacker Flynn, who had taken a pass along the boards from Maune Kaupp. Gillson had no chance on the rising shot.

A desperate rally by the Mercurys paid off for their only goal when Hosking drove Millar with a screened shot from the blue line. But McLellan got that one back with less than three minutes left in the game when he deflected Lennie Lynch's shot.

The Wolves open their eastern Canada final against the Red Rocks in Matane Sunday.

C.N.R. Wins Major 'A' Loop Fourth Quarter

The CNR team scored out the G. H. Woods squad by three points to win the fourth quarter title of the Major "A" League schedule at the Bowl-O-Drome last night. The railroaders also won the first quarter crown and will meet the second and third winners, Bellville Golf and Moore's Clisters for the league championship next Thursday night.

The fourth quarter standing was CNR 35; G. H. Woods, 32; Lawn Bowlers, 26; Canada Cement, 25; Belleville Golf, 23; Moore's Clisters, 22; Schwab's, 18 and Upper Canada News, 18.

Last night's scores were:

Belleville Golf (3) 3712; Schwab's (2) 3468; Canada Cement (7) 3535; Upper Canada News (0) 3276; G. H. Woods (4) 3506; C.N.R. (1) 3534; Moore's Chisclers (5) 3199; Lawn Bowlers 3038.

H. Ridley 302 (305, 371); L. Meagher 361 (329, 329); J. Langdon 367 (310, 314); P. Loft 316 (322); C. Bellis 785; D. Tobe 783; R. Lundberg 732; J. Hunt 745; W. Sexton 740; Les Lennox 794 (306); W. Bowler With Broken Hand Rolls '400'

Captain Harry Powers sparked his team to the 1853-54 Belleville Bowling League championship by rolling a 400 flat in the first game of the three game total pinfall series.

The Hi-Powers team took command in the first game with a pinfall of 1325 against the Delineators team of 1024.

At the end of the three games the Delineators had won the second game, by any overall, they would have to be dealt with by the governors of the league.

Similar procedure in case of disputed decisions," said Campbell. "There is no discretion whatever involved.

"I have received no complaints, either written or verbal."

A report from Detroit said Bruce Norris, co-owner of the Red Wings, would file a written complaint of the work of referee Red Storey, who handled the second game of the series which Detroit lost 3-1.

Two Share Lead In Masters Golf Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. (CP) — A second pro and a young amateur shared top spot at the end of the opening round of the 18th Masters golf tournament. Driving rain spoiled the low-scoring hopes of most of the top golfing tourists.

Dutch Harrison of Ardmore, Okla., Canadian Open champion in 1949, and amateur Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., shot two-under-par 70s for the first-place tie.

Ben Hogan, defending champion out for his third Masters title, raced an approaching storm around the back nine to wind up with an even-par 72.

Harrison played five holes in the worst of the storm but Patton was off the course before the rain came.

One stroke behind the leaders were the only others to break par Thursday were Jackie Burke of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., and Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill. Each shot 71.

Par for the 6,800-yard Augusta course is 36-36—72.

Point Anne To Play Games Here

Manager Earle Anderson, of the Point Anne Cementmen, announced today that he has made arrangement with the Belleville Arena Commission for the Ox-Pointers to play their remaining home games in the Memorial Arena.

The Pointers are in the middle of a seven-game series with the Marmora Millionaires for the Trent Valley title and the Thomas Slats trophy and at the present time the series is deadlocked at one game each. Point Anne took the first game here Monday evening 11-8 with Marmora coming back for a 10-1 win at home on Wednesday.

The two teams are back at it again on Monday night in Belleville with the fourth game in Marmora, Tuesday the 14th. The fifth go will be here Monday, April 19th, with the sixth clash, if necessary, back at the Millionaires stamping grounds on the 21st.

John Kissell Back to Browns

CLEVELAND (AP)—John Kissell, 250-pound defensive tackle who jumped to Canada last June, will return to the National Football League and Cleveland Browns.

The Browns said Thursday that Kissell, saying he "made a mistake" when he went to Canada to play for Ottawa Rough Riders, asked for and was granted the privilege of fulfilling his original obligation to the Browns.

A legal action over Kissell's 1953 contract with the Browns still is pending in Canadian courts, but indications were that the case would now be dropped.

Coach Paul Brown said Kissell will be on hand when the Browns open training next July, and the 30-year-old player will be given the chance to win the left tackle position he held for three years before going to Canada.

The Browns quoted Kissell as saying:

"I made a mistake when I went to Canada last year and I sure thank you all Browns for giving me this second chance. A man who once plays American football in the National League never is content with anything less."

Promising Boxer Dies in First Plane Flight

BATHURST, N.B. (CP)—A boxer winging west in pursuit of a dream died Thursday in his first plane flight, two days after his 22nd birthday.

William Harry McLean, of Bathurst, a hard-hitting puncher who fought in Maritime rings as Harry McLean, was a passenger on the TCA airliner which crashed over Moose Jaw, Sask.

He was flying to Calgary for an April 13 title bout with Canadian light-heavyweight champion Doug Harrison. It would have been the most important fight of his short professional career.

"Harry was happy about getting the fight and he was sure he was going to win," said a friend of Howard McLean, 17. "He figured he was going to hit the top score day—that's what he wanted to do most of all." He looked on the fight with Harper as his first big chance.

A tall, blonde youth whose Canadian-Japanese wife is expecting their child next month, McLean boarded a TCA plane at Moncton Tuesday night for the first leg of the long flight west. He was 22 on that day and the future looked good.

"The boy and his wife had great hopes and plans," said his father, Edgar McLean.

Beaten only once in the last two years, McLean ranked as leading contender.

Bas Bastien Resigns As Hornets Coach

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bas Bastien has resigned as coach of Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League because the job was a strain on his health. He is going back to his old job as business manager of the club. Bastien, former goalie with the team, made the announcement at a press conference Thursday. He told reporters:

"Since last Christmas I have found my health impaired by the strain of coaching the club. . . I have discussed this at length with Mrs. Bastien and we have decided that I will be better off and happier in my old position of business manager with the club and it is to that I shall return next season."

"The Hornets, a farm club of Toronto Maple Leafs, finished in fourth place this season and lost to Hershey Bears in the playoffs.

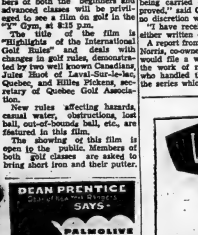
It was Bastien's first full season at the helm. He coached the Hornets for three months in 1952 following the withdrawal of Bob Davidson as mentor. He was succeeded by Lou Levis.

Levis, 34, had a 6-12 record with the Giants last season, appearing in 37 games. He has been used sparingly during the exhibition games.

Koslo—led the National League with a 2.10 earned run average in 1950. His best winning year with the Giants was 1947 when he had a 15-10 record.

Y Golfers To See Film

The Y.M.C.A. Golf School meets this Monday for its seventh consecutive session when members of both the beginners and advanced classes will be privileged to see on golf in the "Y" Gym, at 8:15 p.m.



The title of the film is "Highlights of the International Golf Rules" and deals with changes in golf rules, demonstrated by two well known Canadians, Jules Huot of Montreal, Que., Quebec, and Hilles Pickens, secretary of Quebec Golf Association.

New rules affecting hazards, casual water, obstructions, lost ball, out-of-bounds ball, etc., are featured in this film.

The showing of this film is open to the public. Members of both golf classes are asked to bring short iron and their putter.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Here is a hand complicated about the no-trump bidding in bridge. Think of it as having a dual personality. It has a plain, honest meaning and a special unnatural meaning.

The basic meaning of the word no-trump is merely an admission by a player that he has no trump suit worthy of mention. So, when he voluntarily bids no-trump he denies saying a biddable suit.

No-trump is also used as a convention signal when a player is forced to bid. At such a time his bid in no-trump is simply a signal for saying he has nothing additional that he is able to show.

Unfortunately, most experts who teach bridge fail to make this distinction clear. Consequently, the beginner is confused from the start when a presuming partner bids no-trump with a suit in his hand.

You are dealer in south with the hand shown here:

SOUTH
♠A 6 2
♥A J 3
♦K 9 5
♣A Q 4

It is a sound opening bid containing the five tricks an opening one bid would promise. Lacking a biddable suit it should open with a bid of one no-trump. This would be its honest meaning.

Exchange the hearts for hearts for the seven of spades and it makes your spade suit biddable. In that case you would have an opening bid of one spade instead of an opening of one no-trump.

Even with the spade suit biddable there are experts who might like to open with one no-trump. Not because it would be correct in either its natural or forced meaning, but for another reason.

Some experts use no-trump as a special signal for showing a hand that has high card power and all four suits evenly balanced. It is this third use of no-trump that makes a beginner uncertain.

This third use of no-trump sacrifices the showing of a biddable suit. Why? For the advantage of showing a balanced hand. Is that good? Some experts think so.

Barons Edge Hershey 2-1 For Game Lead

CLEVELAND (AP) —Cleveland Barons took a 2-1 lead in the American Hockey League's playoff Thursday night by defeating Hershey Bears 5-3.

The Barons came from behind after Hershey ran up a two-goal lead on shots by Arnie Kullman and Lorne Howes early in the second period.

Cleveland regulate finally scored for Cleveland at 7:23 and Ray Ross made it 2-2 at 12:12. Defenseman Jerry Toppazzini bollcited a backhander at 16:30 to put Cleveland in the lead.

In the last period, Eddie Regle and Chuck Blair boosted the Barons' margin to three after fading Hershey defence.

Jimmy Peters rammed a goal for Hershey at 18:08.

The fourth game of the best-of-seven series will be played here Saturday.

Sport in Brief

MONTREAL (CP) — General manager Lew Hayman of Montreal Alouettes says he can't understand why United States football officials make "so much fuss" about American players coming to Canada.

"There are enough players to go around for both the U.S. and Canada," he said, "don't know why they pop off so much about the men who come over here."

Hayman, former coach of Alouettes of the Big Four, described as "off base" statements by Jim Lee Howell, new head coach of New York's professional football Giants.

Howell was quoted as saying Canada could serve as a proving ground for young U.S. players and a sort of pasteurized for those in the twilight of their careers.

Hayman said that Howell is "no top expert on" and possibly that was the reason for his appraisal of Canadian football, although "I'm sure he's a very fine coach."

Noting there has been much comment from the U.S. on American players coming to Canada, Hayman added:

"Does Howell think that some of the top draft men who come up here are over the hill?"

EDMONTON (CP)—James Pendergast of Kensington, P.E.I., is trying to interest western Canada long-distance swimmers in a nine-mile race across Northumberland strait separating New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. The proposed race would be held this summer.

Pendergast said if is hoped to have between $2,000 and $3,000 for prizes.

The race would start at Cape Tormentine, N.B., and end at Port Borden, P.E.I. Contestants would have to buck a five-mile-an-hour tide rip across the strait.

It's been done before. Evelyn Henry, a P.E.I. nurse, completed the swim in 1952.

Sullivan Named McGill Coach

MONTREAL (CP)— Larry Sullivan, former Notre Dame lineman, has been named head football coach at McGill University succeeding Vic Obeck.

Sullivan, a six-foot, two-inch former U.S. Marine, comes here from Hamilton Cathedral high school, where he has been coaching for the last eight years. He also has been assistant coach of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four for the last three years.

Obeck quit the post to devote all his time to his job as athletic director at the school.

Named to assist Sullivan as backfield coach is Virgil Wagner, halfback with Montreal Alouettes.

Leafs May Tour Europe

MONTREAL (CP) — General manager Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs said Thursday night he will leave for Europe shortly to start arranging an exhibition tour for his National Hockey League club.

While there, Smythe said, he would investigate the possibility of having the Leafs go to Moscow for a series of exhibition games.

"There's nothing definite about the tour yet," he said. "I'll merely be exploring the possibility of having the team go to Europe. I will check in England first and then go to other countries."

Smythe plans to leave New York April 21.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—There has been more talk this spring about phenomenal rookies about to break into big leagues than in any season we can recall. It stems from the domination of the two leagues by the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers.

Outside the two leaders every team in the majors is willing seriously in one department or another, and there is an urgency to produce a couple of oldtime pennant races before attendance falls off further. The game can ill afford two more runaways such as emptied the parks toward last season's close.

The one chance of closing in on the Yanks and Dodgers lies in finding fresh young talent to fit in with the veterans who have failed and possibly inspire them to greater deeds. That is why every manager with anything resembling a contender has been giving his rookies a longer, harder look this spring.

Cleveland Indians have just snatched Rudy Regalado from their Indianapolis farm and signed him to a parehi club contract. The former U.S.C. star probably represents the chance the Indians have of improving a team that has proved it can finish only second.

ROOKIES BRAVES' HOPE

In the National League, take the runner-up Milwaukee Braves. A pair of rookies probably hold the key to the team's hopes of cutting into Brooklyn's 13-game superiority of last year.

Henry Aaron, a stocky little Negro slugger up all the way from Jacksonville, Fla., could help keep the Braves in the race until Bobby Thomson's broken ankle mends, if he continues to hit the ball and play the outfield adequately. Gene Conley, a towering (6' 8") righthander who won 16 for Toledo last year, is "Charlie Grimm's pitching staff if he gets the ball over to suit National League umpires.

AT THE CAPITOL— Hunts Hall's eyepop as Leo Gorcey kisses beautiful Vera Vann in "Paris Playboys," their new Bowery Boys comedy for Allied Artists, now at the Capitol Theatre today and Saturday. Also showing is the thrilling full color feature of the Nicaraguan Revolution entitled "Pride of the Blue Grass," starting Lloyd Bridges and Vera Miles. Both films are first Belleville showings and are to be seen on our new wide cinemascope screen, continuous show Saturday from 1:00 p.m. A treat for the whole family.

AT THE BELLE—Robert Wagner and lovely Terry Moore give high-voltage performances in "Beneath the 12-Mile Reef", co-starring Gilbert Roland, produced in CinemaScope by Technicolor, showing today and Saturday at the Belle Theatre. Added Cinema-Scope attraction, Vesuvius Express, a journey on the world's fastest train, and Overture Symphony No. 4, with Fox's big Symphony Orchestra.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was sneezing and complaining to himself on account of having a cold, and I said, G, pop, our teacher told us that everybody ought to learn by their own mistakes fortunes and there's a moral in everything, and she proved it by reeding us some fables.

If I had her fortune number I'd call her up so she could reed me some, pop said. This cold would probably disappeer like magic, he said, and ma said, Just the same, William, the idea isn't all idle fancy. If you only knew how you ought your cold the moral would be to stay out of futch situations, she said.

I caught the cold working in my office hemmed in by a sneezing secretery and a sniffling office boy, pop said. If I stayed out of my office, and all be in the poorest, which contains more cold germs to the square inch than any other public building, he said, and I said, Well gosh, pop, maybe the moral is, you have to catch colds sooner or later, so the sooner the better, because they're more fun looking backwerds on than failwards to.

A cold provides a minimum of emusement past or present, coming or going, so that moral is well worth, pop said, and ma said, Goodness, William, if you're going to be so difficult, why dont you make up your own moral?

The moral of this cold is, it's a poor thing but it's all mine, and anybody that tries to catch it from me will have to take the consequences, pop said, and ma said, That may not be a moral, but it's good advice.

Which it was.

FULL TRAINING

EXCELLENT FUTURE

COOKS

The Canadian Army offers outstanding opportunities for training of young men who are interested in an asset, both in civilian life and the Army. You will be fully equipped during school where you will receive practical experience and learn the theory of modern cooking. When trained you will be posted to Army establishments in Canada or Army Overseas Bases where you will enjoy a career in catering. Investigate this NOW!

CLERKS

The Canadian Army has many openings for young men as clerks. You will be trained in all types of office work — bookkeeping, accounting, typing, etc. You will learn typing. You will learn to keep records and prepare reports and supplies. You will be trained to maintain associated records.

If you are interested in office work then there is a career for you in the Army.

To be enrolled you must be 17 to 20 years of age if you are in receipt of family allowance, 17 to 40 years of age if untrained. There is no limit to the age for promotions in the Army, with good pay, periodic raises, 30 days annual leave with pay, free medical and dental care, and the chance to travel.

For full information visit the Army Recruiting Office nearest your home.

GIRL'S BODY FOUND

CAPITOL HEIGHTS, Md. (AP)— The bullet-riddled body of an 18-year-old high school girl was found Thursday night near her home here. Police said Joan Russa had been shot five times at close range. Bullets had punctured her skull, neck, right cheek, and throat. She also had been shot through the right ear and in the left wrist as though police said, she had tried to protect herself.

Rodney Adamson, PC Member For York West, Wife Killed

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives lost a prospective cabinet minister when a TCA liner was wrecked Thursday at Moose Jaw, Sask.

Rodney Adamson, 52, member of the Commons for York West, was killed on the way to the coast.

He was on the way to Alberta for a skiing holiday in the Rockies and some prospecting in Calgary.

A veteran member, a mining engineer who specialized in studying natural resources and particularly gold mining, was a member of his party's "shadow cabinet" as chairman of the resources committee. As such, he was regarded as certain of a cabinet post in the event the PC government coming into power.

The only other Commons member to lose his life in a plane crash was Hon. Norman Rogers, defence minister, killed in August, when an RCAF plane crashed near Newcastle on a flight between Ottawa and Edmonton.

By all irony, Mr. Adamson and Mrs. Marjorie Gibson, they met at the snowclad lodge high in the Rockies where they met originally, the Princess Lodge, Canadian Light Infantry, famed army regiment of two world wars and the present police force.

Mr. Adamson's father, the late Agar Adamson, was head of the RPCLI's second commander, during the First World War.

Mr. Adamson himself served in both wars, and his wife was a major in the CWAC during the Second World War.

"My wife is my superior officer," Mr. Adamson, who ended the Second World War as a captain, used to tell friends.

In the Commons, he was regarded as one of his party's chief spokesmen on natural resources generally and mining particularly, and on economics of policy. Opposition Leader Drew relied on him heavily for advice on these topics.

On the currency side, he was noted as a strong advocate of the free sale of gold, which Canada now buys from this country's producers at the fixed price of $35 an ounce in United States funds.

When he died, Mr. Adamson had before the House a resolution asking the government to turn loose the gold price and issue a 50-ounce gold coin.

He leaves two children, Agar 21, by his first wife, and Christopher, 4. They live in Port Credit.

Mr. Adamson married the former Rosmand Lazier of Toronto in 1930. They were divorced in 1943 and he remarried in 1946.

Mr. Adamson's death places the Commons standing as follows: Liberals, 172; Progressive Conservatives, 51; CCF, 23; Social Credit, 15; Independent, 3; vacant, 1.

Senator Euler Says TV Policy Was Violated

OTTAWA (CP)—A former newspaper publisher who was party to an unsuccessful application for a television broadcasting licence last year says either the government or the CBC is guilty of lack of good faith.

Senator W. D. Euler, a former Liberal cabinet minister and publisher at Kitchener, said in the Senate Thursday he knows it has been the declared policy of publicly-owned CBC not to issue television licence for more than one station to an individual or organization, but that policy has been violated.

A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC board of governors, was not available for comment.

Senator Euler was connected with Grand Valley Television Limited, a group which sought last year to obtain a licence for a line of television Channel 13 at Kitchener. The CBC board recommended that the Grand application be refused and that Ccurrai Ontario Television Limited be accorded by the government at Kitchener.

OTHER INTERESTS

In making the recommendation, the CBC said the 11-member board noted that Central Ontario included a group with a half-interest in that firm and a similar interest in the company licensed to establish a television station at Quebec City.

The incident arose when Senator Euler asked Solicitor-General Macdonald, government leader in the Senate, "Is it the policy of the government or the corporation that individual or single corporation to operate more than one television station?"

Senator Macdonald replied he was not sure but he presumed he would obtain the information. Senator Euler then said:

"I know it has been the policy of the corporation (CBC) not to issue more than one licence to any one person or any one organization and that policy has not been carried out. It has been violated."

Senator Macdonald: "That will be looked into, honourable senators."

Senator Euler: "It is an accusation of lack of good faith on the part of either the corporation or the government and he can take his choice."

PLAN BINGO SCHOOL

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—The New Jersey Horse Association is planning a school for bingo operators. The organization, which claims a membership of 46,000 in the state, says it will conduct bingo games in every community. Bingo as a game is legalized by voting later this month. The school will teach players the leaders the legal ins and outs of bingo.

Saves Train

Bush pilot George Coleman of North Bay and two companions are credited with saving an Ontario Northland Railway train from a washout and disastrous plunge into a lake near North Bay. When Coleman and his companions discovered the washout they set flares on the tracks, stopping the train with 150 passengers and crew only 200 yards from the washout. Coleman said he was sitting in the living room of his lodge when he heard rocks crashing into a gully 100 yards away. After he investigated he set up the flares from his emergency flying kit. — (CP Photo.)

Nobody is Able To Communicate With Man Charged

NEW YORK (AP)—A perplexed court Thursday postponed the case of a man who is deaf, mute and unable to read or write or understand sign language.

Nobody was able to communicate with him.

The man was being arraigned on a felonious assault charge for allegedly stabbing and seriously injuring Sarah Lewis, 38.

Magistrate J. Irwin Shapiro appointed Benjamin Schmeir defence counsel. Schmeir "conferred" with the man, threw up his hands and said:

"In all my experience, I have never had a problem like this. I'm completely stumped. This defendant doesn't read, write or speak. He's dumb and knows nothing about sign language. I don't know what to do."

NO COMMUNICATION

Shapiro shouted at the defendant: "Can you hear me?" The prisoner did not even look toward the bench. Court attendants tried unsuccessfully to communicate with the man.

A woman expert in sign language tried next, but reported: "He apparently doesn't understand any sign language."

Daniel Bramble, proprietor of a poolroom, told the court he knew the man as Rubin Walker, about 45, but didn't know where he lived.

Shapiro asked Bramble how he communicated with the man. Bramble said that if he wanted windows washed, he would rub a wet cloth on a pane and hand it to the man or, if he wanted the floor swept, he would make sweeping motions.

"And he does a good job and he's honest," said Bramble.

Shapiro fixed the man's bail at $1,000, adjourned the case until Monday, and said:

"We'll have to see what we can do."

NICARAGUA REBELS KILLED

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)—Government sources said three rebels were killed in the last 24 hours by national guard patrols as they continued to liquidate scattered groups of revolutionaries who sought last week-end to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

Farquhar Oliver Elected Leader Of Ont. Liberals

Only One Ballot Required To Select Political Veteran

TORONTO (CP) — Farquhar Oliver, the retired farmer whose voice has boomed through 28 years of provincial politics, Friday was elected leader of the Ontario Liberal party.

The 50-year-old politician, once known as the boy orator of the Ontario legislature and the party's youngest leader in the House, defeated two other candidates for the leadership of a party out of power since 1943.

It took only one ballot from the delegates to the party's annual convention, to elect Mr. Oliver, member for Grey from 1947 to 1948. He received 412 votes against 162 for Albert Wren, Liberal-Labor member of the Legislature for Scarboro, and 28-year-old Robert Temple, Belleville lawyer and ex-Sherman.

It was a victory forecast by most convention delegates before the first pink slips were dropped in the ballot boxes.

The 37-year-old Mr. Wren is a Sioux Lookout garage operator and former town mayor. Mr. Temple untried and unknown in provincial politics, is a Liberal-Labor candidate from the Young Liberals.

The winner, his great voice in sounding form, in the din of cheering delegates and his 225-pound frame being pounded by enthusiastic supporters, pledged to spend all his time from now until the next election "expanding and promoting the Liberal gospel in this province."

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

"This is the golden opportunity for the Liberal party to unite as a team . . . to blend our forces. And as we move forward, let's do it with dergnity and distinction."

Mr. Oliver, whose Liberal ties go back to the days when his uncle, the late Sir Alexander was premier of British Columbia from 1918 to 1927, first started out in the United Farmers of Ontario party. When just 22 years old, he was elected member for Grey South.

His oratory cried out for the farmer until 1941 when the late Mitchell F. Hepburn lured him into the Liberal party with a portfolio of public works and welfare. Mr. Hepburn resigned in 1942 and passed on the premiership to the late Gordon Conant of Oshawa. Mr. Oliver and Harry Nixon, liberal member for Brant, quit in protest, but the next year, when Mr. Nixon was elected party leader and became premier, Mr. Oliver returned to the cabinet.

His return was identified: the Progressive Conservatives were swept into office a few weeks later.

Mr. Hepburn died last year, when Mr. Nixon was elected party leader. Mr. Conant resigned as chief

Chorale Group to Give Sacred Concert Sunday

The Nyack Chorale of The Missionary Training Institute, Nyack, New York, will present a sacred music concert in Holloway Street United church, next Sunday.

The Chorale is on a 1,500 mile tour through the Eastern and Central states, Canada, and New England. The group is under the chairmanship of Dr. Thomas Moseley, former pioneer missionary on the Chinese-Tibetan border and now president of The Missionary Training Institute. The members of the Chorale are chosen from a group of more than 500 young men and women studying for church and missionary service.

The Nyack Chorale is selected from the school's mixed chorus, ladies' glee club, and orchestra, which assists in presenting a music and missionary program in world-famous Carnegie Hall of New York City on February. The group is conducted by Miss Geraldine Southam, professor of voice in the School of Sacred Music.

The program will feature special arrangements of psalms, hymns and gospel songs, both old and new. This afternoon's program will be assisted by a trumpet trio, brass quartet, a male quartet and a ladies' trio.

PRESERVE HISTORIC FORT

NIAGARA FALLS (CP) — The Niagara parks commission decided Friday to preserve historic Fort Mississauga at Niagara-on-the-Lake. Restoration of the fort has been requested from the Niagara-on-the-Lake Historical Society and other similar groups in the peninsula.

Shriners Arrange Free Show For City 'Kiddies'

Arrangements have been completed by members of the Belleville Shrine Club for the annual Good Friday theatre party for the kiddies of Belleville. It will be held in the McClure City Theatre on April 18, starting at ten o'clock a.m.

Noble Willard Fawcett, manager of the theatre, has lined up a fine program of cartoon films for the youngsters.

Under the chairmanship of Noble George McIntosh, treats such as candies, "cokes", ice cream, balloons, etc., will be ready for distribution. He will be assisted by fellow nobles and other members of the club.

Any kiddies wishing to pick up their free tickets may do so by contacting Fire Chief Cecil Ferguson or his fireman, Police Chief Walter Probert and his constables, or any member or noble of the Shrine Club.

The crippled kiddies will be picked up and returned to their homes by the shriners. Any parents wishing transportation for their children should telephone Ferguson's residence at 420 or the Shrine Club at 1805.

Maple Syrup, Sugar Freely Offered on Market

Maple syrup and maple sugar were freely offered on the Belleville market today as farmers from a wide area offered their products for sale.

The price remained at $5.50 per gallon and $1.50 per pound. Eaton's McIntosh were 15c per basket and Belleville's new super lots of Delicious sold at 84 and McIntosh at $3.35.

Eggs held at 43c per dozen on the inside market with medium offered at 39c and large at 45c per dozen. Broilers were 50c per lb. and fowl 45c.

Potatoes sold at $1.20 per bag and 40c per peck. Heilhouse radishes and lettuce were a dime per bunch carrots, 2 bunches for 25c; leek and onions 10c per bunch each. Sauerkraut was 25c per quart.

Tulips and daffodils were 10c per pot with some of both at 2 pots for 25c. Hyacinths were 15c per pot and tulips at 10c each.

Fresh smelts brought 40c per lb. and West Lake mackerel sold at 35c per lb or three for $1.

Propose Big Four And Canada Hold Secret Talks

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITE DNATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—With recent United States hydrogen tests injecting a "new note of urgency," the West is quietly behind a proposal for private talks among the Big Four and Canada on world disarmament. Russia is known to want to study the plan.

The proposal to take such arms discussions out of the public eye, where they have proved only a deadlock of propaganda exchanges, was made Friday by Britain's Sir Pierson Dixon before the United Nations disarmament commission.

Soviet delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky did not say "nyet" to the proposal. In fact, most delegates expect that the Russians finally will agree to the private talks. But some observers wonder whether Vishinsky might not be preparing to insist on that during participation.

Vishinsky said he would have to reserve until later his comment on the British proposal, which got prompt backing by the U. S., France and Canada. He said he wants to see the plan in writing and go over it carefully.

One member of the commission said he understands Vishinsky sought the delay because he had not received instructions from Moscow in time for Friday's session.

MEET WEDNESDAY

Dixon promised to submit his proposal in writing Monday, and the commission recessed until next Wednesday. Canada's delegate, D. M. Johnson, welcomed the proposal.

In an obvious reference to the latest U.S. H-bomb tests and the chain-reactional political furor they have set off around the world, Sir Pierson said in introducing the plan that "there is a new note or urgency in the world today. We must redouble our efforts."

ALASKA SALE

Alaska was sold by Russia to the United States in 1867 for $7,200,000 or about two cents an acre.

Vimy Important Milestone In Canada's Development As Nation, Padre Kidd Tells Legion

"The battle of Vimy Ridge was the day the Canadian citizen army ran into action. Vimy gave Canadians an example of courage and sacrifice that can make any people great if they receive and carry forward the high standards that have been set for them," said Col. The Rev. W. E. Kidd, M.C., D.D., former chaplain of the 21st Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, in an address at the Vimy Commemoration program of Belleville Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion, held in Legion Hall, Coleman Street, Friday evening.

"Vimy put Canada's name high on the world's scroll of valor and made Canadians respected by all the world," said the speaker.

Col. Kidd, in recalling great moments of Canadian history, stated that in 1535 Canada was formed by the union of the British provinces at Confederation, concluded a second policy under Sir John A. Macdonald, and became a country "welded with an iron band" with the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Canada sent into action the 1st Battalion at Vimy. "If for no other reason," said Col. Kidd, "Vimy marks an important milestone in Canada's development as a nation."

GREAT ROMANCE

Calling the development of Canada "one of the great romances of modern times," Col. Kidd stated that, "it is the duty of Canadians to know about Canada's new position in the world with every province and that our country has done things and is capable of doing things."

"Young Canadians like the St. Paul, can say of themselves, 'I am a citizen of a nation created'."

"Canadian troops were tried out at Ypres," said Col. Kidd, "and confirmed the belief that great was their courage, resourcefulness and endurance. Hun decency was thwarted. These qualities are a tribute to Canada and Canadians. Canada has a heritage of pride that the whole nation could feel that Canadians could stand with the best soldiery in the world in the true discharge of that duty and that they have gone forth so bravely."

"Vimy awakened us all to importance that I feel cannot be overestimated," said Col. Kidd.

FIRST BATTLE CORPS

"It is recorded that the men went into action for the first time as a Canadian Corps. Four divisions on a front of four miles, their artillery, planes and their allotted objectives. Canadian divisions, trained to act as a measure by Canadian officers and led by a Canadian staff, showed at Vimy a unity of purpose and unity of action to attain an objective, which others had failed to take."

"Canadians took Vimy with an élan, courage and spirit that we hope will live long in history of the Canadian people," stated Col. Kidd, as he recalled seeing the several staffs of the French and British armies come up to look over Vimy Ridge after the Canadians had won it.

Col. Kidd recalled that one of his happiest and most thrilling memories is of the King's communion service he conducted at divisional headquarters on Easter Sunday, 1917, the day before the great battle at Vimy.

"We were prepared to do the God of victory at the focal point for the crisis that was to be carried out so capably the following morning," he said.

GREAT ACCOMPLISHMENT

"Vimy is a great accomplishment of the Canadian Corps, the Canadian army and the Canadian nation," said the speaker. "Vimy shows us what can be accomplished by unity. Vimy shows the world what we can do and is an example to those people who are coming to Canada every day that the citizenship into which they are being admitted has a value and a cost."

"The cost value of the citizenship we are able to confer, began with Vimy and has been consolidated by the men and women in the days in which we live. We are standing on the second half of the 20th century to our young people with the feeling that they have something worthwhile. I hope that they will love and work for Canada."

Vimy has laid a foundation on which our people can build worthily," said Col. Kidd. "Vimy has shown us the courage, spirit and determination that will make Canada great in your hands to come," Col. Kidd concluded.

PRESENTED WITH GIFTS.

Col. Kidd was introduced by Fred Hart, who served during World War I in the 21st Battalion with the Col. Kidd. Bill Slater presented the padre with a badge '99 to the speaker and Everett Liddington presented the speaker with a gift on behalf of the Branch.

The toast to the fallen comrades was proposed by Col. C. Vanderwater, D.C.O. and bar, O.C. of the C.E.F. Col. C.E.F. Col. Vanderwater, in calling the reserve army "the backbone of the militia", told the assembled veterans that it was their duty to their fallen comrades to support the reserve units in their areas.

"Every reserve unit is influence," he said, "and we as veterans have a duty to perform in the present international crisis by giving our moral support at least to the reserve units, supporting their time, money and effort to maintain the standard of our training in the reserve units."

Then, while the assembly stood in darkness, Lieut. Arnold Dafoe of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, sounded Last Post. A respectful silence was observed and Col. Kidd recited a special prayer for the fallen before Lt. Duffy sounded "Reveille."

IMPOSES TRADE

Dr. A. Walters, in proposing the toast to World War I veterans, stated that Vimy was the greatest single battle Canadians ever fought, and that it was the greatest concentration of Canadian troops in World War I.

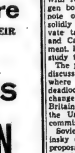
Vimy was decided to Canada by the French," said Dr. Walters. Bn., C.E.F., and that it was that Canadians pay tribute to the veterans "who were there and made history."

"Veterans of World Wars I and II have attained a high degree in business, professional and public life," he said, in commenting on the splendid achievement of gallant men who "realize that their war record, while outstanding, is not enough."

Failure to think of the veterans of two wars as the backbone of the country," he said.

WELCOMES NEW PRESIDENT

"I am sure that they will continue to be a great stabilizing and steadying influence," he added.



W. O. Bailey, president of Branch 99, welcomed the guests and members in a brief address at the opening of the meeting, and Chris Ryan extended the thanks of the Legion to the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, who catered for the banquet.

During the program Leonard Leonard recited "Gunga Din" and a fracture ruptured a cyst, which is believed to have formed as the result of a more serious skull injury some years ago.

After the meningitis was treated in the Belleville General Hospital, he was sent to Toronto for brain surgery.

Cyst Which Caused Meningitis Removed

TRENTON (Special) — The many friends of Thomas Whitley, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Whitley of this town, are hoping that he will continue to show marked improvement following the removal of a cyst in the skull operation at the Toronto General Hospital on Thursday.

Mr. Whitley had been unconscious for two weeks as the result of meningitis which was followed by a fracture of the skull. A fracture ruptured a cyst, which is believed to have formed as the result of a more serious skull injury some years ago.

After the meningitis was treated in the Belleville General Hospital, he was sent to Toronto for brain surgery.

Two Canadian Girls Join RCAF To See World

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Two Canadian girls who joined the RCAF to see the world have just added London to their list of visits, and are seeing "missions accomplished."

The well-travelled tourists are Rose Marie Boulding, 24, Pembroke, B.C., and Joan Passport, 22, Langenburg, Sask., who operate on the premise that "quick trips are better than nothing at all."

Between them, they have travelled through parts of Austria, Germany, Switzerland, the Netherlands and France since being posted to duty with the RCAF Sabre jet fighter wing at Baden-Sellingen in the West German province of Baden. They figure they are typical on the whole of the 55-odd women in the women's division on the station.

PLANNED TOURS

They like to travel. And they are prompted by periodic planned bus tours arranged for RCAF personnel at reduced military fares in the country where they are stationed and the high-priced prowl of the Nard Canadian dollar.

They don't dig in London wear a sample of their technique. Starting from Trafalgar square on foot, the girls covered the Mall, Buckingham Palace and the changing of the guard, the Houses of Parliament, Westminster Abbey and other stand-out attractions. They topped the day with an American musical in the west end—a practice they maintained.

In the following days, they digested museums, art galleries, Madame Tussaud's wax museum and the Tower of London and worked in Canadian Legion Club beds.

Miss Boulding is a former federal civil servant who was employed in Victoria and Vancouver. Miss Passport was a school teacher in southern Saskatchewan before joining the RCAF for the standard three-year hitch. Each figures their station to date is her career and a help to travel.

MANY ATTRACTIONS

"Geographically, it's a springboard to travel," said Miss Boulding, "but it has just about everything you want in itself or nearby. The German people is friendly and hospitable. The towns offer opera, plays and other attractions and there is golf and skiing in the nearby Black Forest in season. Yet the girls plan to add Scotland and Scandinavia to their travel list before leaving for home in 1955. They draw two 48-hour passes and 21-year-old, 30 days' leave annually plus eight days' travel time.

They found England friendly, but the weather and food have missed their centrally-heated barracks. And they are into fellow Canadians.

THANKS FROM B.C.

BELFAST (CP) — Viscount Brookeborough, premier of northern Ireland, received a letter of thanks from Vancouver parks commissioner J. S. C. Mofit for the premier's gift of two swans, flown to Vancouver's Stanley Park. Mofit visited this country last summer.

IN MEMORIAM

MARACLE. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Ida Maracle, who passed away April 10, 1952.

I have only memory dear
Grandma.

To remember the whole life through.
But the sweetness will linger forever,
Even as memory grandma.
—Ever remembered by granddaughter Dorothy.

BAGER. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Ida Bager, who passed away April 11, 1952.

Sweet is the memory that lingers
Of a mother we loved so dear
Her memory time shall we keep it,
Her love we shall always revere.
—Ever remembered by son Howard.

BAGER. — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Ida Bager, who passed away April 11, 1952.

Sweet upon the hill top that overlooks the bay,
There is a spot that's very sacred,
For it's where my dear Mom lay.
Sweet memories I'll always cherish,
While my mem'ry shall remain,
Longing for the day we'll meet her,
Never more to part again.
—Lovingly remembered by all her daughter Marjorie.

A10

TERROW. — In loving memory of a dear father, Thos. Terrow, who passed away April 11, 1953.

We lost a Dad, with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than words untold.
Without a farewell he left alone,
With only memories for us to know.
One we love has gone and God has gathered
One of his loved ones home.
—Sadly remembered by daughter Marjory, sons Clifford, Bruce, Bill and Donald.

A10

TERROW. — In loving memory of a dear father, Thos. Terrow, who passed away April 11, 1953.

Dad was so kind, dad was so true,
To his children and friends he was always true.
He's gone to rest with a heart of gold,
But his memory will live on.
—Sadly missed by wife Florence.

A Lift for Living

A Nation Under God

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

This Palm Sunday commemorates the entry of our Lord into His capital city of Jerusalem. Centuries ago the Psalmist said: "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord." When he said that the great Hebrew singer was thinking of his own people, but we are the heirs of Israel's God.

It is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as well as the God of Jesus whom we have in mind when we sing "Our Father's God to thee, author of liberty." Hence we are justified in taking the Psalmist's words to our own hearts and in saying, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."

But what are the blessings which a nation derives from her belief in God—the God who is the Lord as portrayed in our Bible?

First of all, such a belief in God gives the blessing of a solid foundation on which to build. A nation, like an individual, if it is to be strong, must settle the seat of sovereignty. There must be some voice which has the last word.

SOVEREIGN AUTHORITY

What is the sovereign authority in the United States? It is not our President. It is not our Congress. It is not the Supreme Court. Our President is the commander-in-chief of our armed forces and in time of war is granted almost dictatorial powers. He salutes no uniformed officer, no foreign ruler. But there is one thing which the President of the United States does salute. And that is the American flag, because the flag stands as a symbol of the sovereign voice of the people.

Yet this so-called sovereign people, when it inaugurates a new president, requires him to take an oath or affirmation. He swears that he holds his powers under the jurisdiction of a Divine Authority. And when our Congress convenes to represent our people in the making of laws, its sessions are opened with prayer, invoking the wisdom and counsel of a Divine Lawmaker.

AREAS OF FREEDOM

Moreover, our Constitution explicitly sets aside certain areas of freedom, such as that of conscience, in which the citizen is responsible directly to God alone. Thus our sovereign people recognize the supreme sovereignty of God. This is a "government of the people, for the people, by the people, but as that same Gettysburg Address put it, "this is a nation under God."

The belief in God as the Lord not only gives a nation a firm foundation, it also begets dignity and value in the individual. Each of us is a child of God for whom Christ died. However unequal in ability, all men are equal before God and His government. When a person feels this intrinsic spiritual worth, he has a basic self-respect. This self-confidence assists him in every phase of his life.

SAVED BY HOPE

In 1944 I spent a Sunday in St. Louis. At nine o'clock in the morning over the National Radio Pulpit I spoke on the subject "We Are Saved by Hope." About three hours later I received a telegram from Miami, Florida.

It read something like this: "Will you ask Dr.—(a distinguished surgeon in St. Louis) what the chances are of treating a boy classified 4F because of cleft palate so that he can be re-classified?"

As I heard that telegram read over the 'phone I thought of this fact: Here were the telephone, the telegraph, the radio, the hospital and the church, all geared at that moment to helping one poor handicapped boy.

To me such a case vividly shows the value of the individual in a nation whose God is the Lord revealed by Christ. The most humble child merits the best medical and surgical skill. Life is worth more along the Mississippi and the St. Lawrence than along the Yangtze and the Volga.

Leaders of government who do not look up to God soon come to look down on their people. That tragic fact is now known to the poor peasants of Russia. May we of the West never have to learn that lesson.

SHEEP ISLANDS

The acreage of the Falkland Islands, crown colony in the South Atlantic, is divided into sheep farms.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

QUEER NESTING SITES

Would you consider for a moment choosing a locality for a home where the odor is bad enough to give you a feeling of security from intrusion? Some birds nest in skunk cabbage—presumably for that reason. Human beings are by no means of one mind when it comes to picking out a good place for a home. Birds have even more diversified tastes, although the same kinds hold similar opinions.

Every phoebe must find a beam on which to make its nest, and greatly prefers the under some old bridge. A barn swallow will use a verandah beam, but loves one in a tumbled-down barn. The friendly little house wren wants some nice ready-made house, generally seizing on one with a very tiny entrance.

However, wrens have been known to nest in empty tin cans, discarded kitchen pots, old hats, a pocket in a pair of overalls hanging on an outside peg, and even a glove. Using saliva like cement, chimney swifts stick their twig nests on to the inner bricks of chimneys.

Kingfishers and puffins both dig holes for homes, the one carving into a sandbank for a distance of perhaps 20 feet, the other digging out a shallow burrow in the ground.

OTHER EXTREME

Nighthawks go to the other extreme, taking no trouble, but placing their eggs on bare rocks in unsettled districts or flat-topped, pebbled roofs in cities.

Duck hawks and gannets like ledges on high cliffs for home sites, while grasshopper sparrows go to a little hollow in a field, line it with grass, and arch over the top to conceal and shield the nest. Nothing suits red-winged blackbirds better than a swamp of reeds.

Even the fragile frond of a bracken sometimes hold the nest of a little warbler. But the most artistic site is chosen by parulas. Those breeding in the south must be satisfied with Spanish moss; however, parulas breeding in the north rarely choose anything but vines lichen, not only in which, but also with which to make their nests. In the centre of a bunch of this hanging variety they twist the living moss (popularly known as "old man's beard") into a basket-like receptacle for their tiny eggs.

One of the most eccentric locations for a nest is chosen by herons and grebes. The home is literally a floating mass of mud and vegetation, often placed in water several feet deep. To prevent it from floating away, it is generally anchored to some plant that is growing in the water.

DEFENCE POLICY VIEWS VARY

John Foster Dulles, U.S. Secretary of State, will fly to London and Paris next week to seek an agreement on his plea for united action to prevent Southeast Asia falling under Communist domination.

Just exactly what type of action Mr. Dulles desires is not known—and is not likely to be known until an agreement for such action has been reached or until it is evident that no such agreement is possible.

In Washington, however, Senator Pat McCarran has expressed the view that "we are on the edge of war" in Indo-China. Sending the hard-pressed French defenders naval and air reinforcements, he argued, "would only bring the Chinese Communists in force. In such an event," he continued, "I don't see how we could avoid sending troops."

Apparently Senator McCarran envisages another Korea as a type of limited war.

But does Mr. Dulles have such an action in mind?

Remembering a speech he made on January 12, we may have a reasonable doubt on this matter. The U.S. Secretary of State then announced that the Eisenhower administration had decided "to depend principally upon a great capacity to retaliate, instantly, by means and at places of our own choosing."

This is the so-called "new look" in the U.S. defence policies, but the world has never had an explicit explanation of exactly what this "new look" involves.

Mr. Dulles' speech did not pass without comment. Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Canadian minister of external affairs, promptly criticized him. His anxiety was chiefly about the meaning to be attached to the word "our" in the statement quoted above. Mr. Pearson said that "from our point of view it is important that the 'our' in the sentence I have quoted means those who have agreed together, particularly in NATO, to work together and by collective action to prevent war or, if that should fail, to win it."

Adlai Stevenson, Democratic presidential candidate in 1952, in a speech at Miami Beach, Florida, took similar point. The U.S., he said, had rejected the traditional policy of "meeting aggression by direct and local opposition." Instead, it planned to depend on the power to retaliate to prevent aggression. Mr. Dulles had said that some Communist successes should be regarded as "normal."

"All this means," said Stevenson, "if it means anything, that if the Communists try another Korea or a dozen Korea's or dropping atom bombs on Moscow or Peiping or wherever we choose, or else we will concede the loss of another Korea."

In Stevenson's view, therefore, the type of limited action which Senator McCarran appears to anticipate is not in keeping with the "new look" announced by Dulles earlier this year.

But Stevenson appears to doubt that, in fact, atomic weapons will be used in such a situation as now faces the U.S. and the world in Indo-China. Atom bombs are not used to halt the war in Korea, because of the fear that the use of these bombs would enlarge the war. Today the danger of this result would be greater, because Russia now possesses, as she did not in 1950, "massive power of retaliation with atomic weapons."

Dean Acheson, whom Mr. Dulles succeeded as U.S. Secretary of State, is even more definite in his denunciation of the "new look" policies.

"To make it appear that we have the initiative in this field through so-called massive retaliatory power is a fraud upon the words and the facts," he stated in an article published in the New York Times Magazine.

Mr. Acheson argues that the "massive-like Korea's" is "the one and the only one we or anybody else can afford."

"The plan of meeting any aggression with massive retaliation in places of our own choosing certainly suggests that we propose to strike not at the place the aggressor group has chosen but at some other place," he says. "Presumably this is a place more vital to them, a place which would hurt them badly. . . . It would be foolish to assume that this would not produce counter-retaliation, which would hurt us as much, or perhaps more, and would be designed to prevent any further strikes by us. And then we would be in World War Three.

"So the threat means that we would meet any aggression by precipitating World War Three. Clearly we would not and cannot do this. Anyone with any knowledge of our country and our people would know this."

That last sentence is a striking one. But it is extremely difficult to forecast what any country, or any people, will do under certain stresses. And the stresses in the cold war are mounting and accumulating.

In this connection it is interesting to note remarks made at West Hartford, Conn., on Tuesday by General George C. Kenny, who headed allied air forces in the Far East during the Second World War. The Russians, he predicted, will attack the U.S. as soon as they "believe they can beat us." The next war will be short, he said, and "instant retaliation will be the last." The way to win, he declared, is to copy the system of the old west. "It is not necessary to draw first, but if the other man goes for his revolver, beat him to the draw."

Even in the old west there were times when movements were misinterpreted, resulting in gunfights which both parties desired to avoid. And there are those who believe that it is more difficult to keep an effective watch on an enemy's atomic bombers several thousand miles away than on a foe's gun-hand at a distance of a few feet.

We thus have at least three contrasting views—that the power of instant retaliation is the key to peace, that massive retaliatory power is a fraud, and that instant retaliation will be too late.

It is from this atmosphere of uncertainty and controversy in the United States that Mr. Dulles is flying to London and Paris to seek agreement on "united action."

Any chance for straight talking at the Geneva conference went out the window with the announcement from Moscow that the Danes concluded a $280,000 deal to sell the Reds herrings.

Candidate of the month for the Now They Tell Us Award is a news item to the effect that the United States Army has a new railway snow plow which will throw 300 tons of snow a minute 110 feet in any direction at any

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT'S A BEAUTIFUL DAY!

I thank God that I am alive today, well and happy. Twenty years ago, I had no idea that I would be alive today, and I am not going to worry about tomorrow. Today is a beautiful day! I accept it as it is—and with that attitude I report!

The day is the thing, and what matters most is how we handle it. Never will this same day ever again exist. Big things have been done in a day—things that have changed the history of the world, and often-of a single human being.

We make our own days and we are personally responsible for what we do with the one today. It can be a beautiful day, if we will it to be, for the value of a day depends upon what we put into it, and what it puts into us, if we succeed in making some one else happier, nourished your heart.

through a good word spoken, or through encouragement to some one who is discouraged, more than anything in money, or personal activities.

Material profit is ordinary, but spiritual profit is extraordinary. Let's live another day! I should inspire the humblest. It's always a beautiful day when we wake up in the morning, determined to make it so—with everything "Many for joy returns!" Returns from kindnesses rendered, good cheer from others, and rewards for having lived a useful life.

To have lived triumphantly today is no small thing. The sum of such days is the measure of success and genuine happiness. It's always a beautiful day if you have

FOR TODAY

From dawn to dusk I would be true,
Glad in the tasks I find to do;
Glad that the strength is mine to bear
Whatever comes of toil and care.

I would not spoil this day with sin
Nor to the stranger bar my gate,
And when those hours have run
Let me not view them with remorse.

Let me be watchful of my tongue,
Let me curb speech from it be flung;
Let all that I shall speak today
Spread happiness along my way.

I pray these eyes of mine shall see
The beauty of each vine and tree,
The smiles of friends, my
The good in worth
And all the glories of the earth.

Lord, as I start the toil of day
This is the daintiest prayer I say;
Help me to keep my honor bright,

How To Sell

(The Cobourg Sentinel-Star)

In these days of depression talk and pessimistic outlook, there is the challenge thrown to us all of the good salesman. During the latest war and the prosperous aftermath, salesmanship did not require too much energy or intelligence. When there is money available, people are ready to buy. We are now in a period of transition wherein more advertising and more selling ability is necessary to put over to prospective customers the desirability of purchasing a product.

The small pamphlet with the caption "philosopher", printed in Kalamazoo, tells of a master salesman. The story is reproduced for the benefit of our readers, and particularly those who may need impetus in the selling of their product.

"Most of us," runs the story, "use one box many times before we get home with something we never intended to buy at all. We have kidded ourselves into thinking we saw it and made up our minds we were 'just looking' after analyzing what the salesman did or said to influence our purchase. But if we are honest with ourselves and remember the transaction, almost always we will find the word or sentence or demonstration that caused us to reach for our checkbook or to repeat our monthly budget galley-west.

"The best job of selling I ever saw done on the retail level happened here. Here you look out on Cuba. It was in a combination tobacco and candy store. The clerk was in front of the old cathedral. There were a number of American tourists in the store, and among the gift trinkets and assorted novelties, there was my wife's party group. I stepped over to the cigar counter to buy a brand of cigar a friend back home had asked me to bring him.

"A fellow American, watching the transaction, pointed to the cigar I had purchased and then said to the proprietor, 'How much are they?'

"The brand the gentleman just bought,' the man said graciously, 'are 12¢ each, or $1.20 a box. Of course with the present rate of exchange, that is only $4.95 in U.S. currency.'

"Is it a good brand?'

"Oh yes, one of the best. You would pay about 30c retail for it in the States.'

"Get anything cheaper?'

"Yes, sir, and some very good ones, too. We sell a lot to the man who knows tobacco. If you have a little time, let me show you about our wonderful Cuban cigars.'

"Starting with the cheaper grades, he picked up one cigar after another. He had a story to tell of each. The tobacco in this cigar came from such and such a place, from such and such an elevation ranging from sea level to so many feet above it. The kind of soil, of rainfall, of care in harvesting, of care, of curing, of aging, of selection and painstaking manufacture.

"Finally he came to the most expensive cigar in the case at $33 a hundred. He picked it up tenderly, looked at it lovingly and almost reverent. 'I realize', he began, 'that this is a little more than you are in the habit of paying, but I can't refrain from telling you about this fine cigar. It happens in all the world that the tobacco that goes into it, or the workmanship that turns it out. Take the wrapper to begin with...'

"And before his prospect's eyes, he carefully removed the silky leaf, described it in detail and let under his customer's nose, it came from. Then came the plaudits. Note its color, its aroma when crushed. He did the same with the filler and binder. Then, as a final appeal, waving a story about each leaf, extolled its virtues as a smoke and reverence with which a Tiffany salesman would display a fabulous diamond.

"All the time the prospect's eyes were getting larger and larger. He had never dreamed there was so much care, so much romance in a cigar. He felt pained the man should destroy such a creation of man and nature, even in so gentle a manner. And finally the salesman said, 'But after all, you know that, this is probably more than you are accustomed to paying for a cigar, but since it is one of such in your country, due to the duty and the higher profits your merchants must make. But because I have seen that you really love good tobacco, that you are a discriminating buyer and perhaps even a connoisseur of fine tobaccos, I couldn't help showing it to you. For myself, I am a poor man and I look that thing after I smoke this cigar regularly or even often. But I reason it is Christmas or a great holiday, or something very special in the family like a wedding or a baby, this...(and he held a fresh one in the palm of his hand as if presenting a jewel of great price)...is the cigar I smoke myself.'

"Did the man buy? You may as well ask if a starving kitten will wolf down a saucer of warm milk. He bought not one cigar, not ten cigars, not one box. He bought 1000 cigars at 33c each! I saw him by chance the next day. "That was quite an order you gave that cigar salesman yesterday." He replied, 'Gosh, yes. I never smoke a fine cigar in my life and not many 50-centers. But when that guy took that thing apart and told me all about it, and when he said it was what he smokes himself and that it was very best and I went over board. Maybe I'm a sucker, but I believe him. Besides, I'll just wait until I pass 'em out back home and tell my friends they cost a dollar.'

"That tobacco shop owner probably never read a book on salesmanship in his life. But in the ten minutes he had packed a condensation of everything worthwhile that is contained in many books on how to sell.

"A quality product . . . a thorough knowledge of it . . . a sincere personal testimonial. Use those tools, Mr. Salesman, and the world is yours."

Tips-Add Up To Big Gouge

(By Sydney J. Harris in Miami Herald)

Whenever I go out of town—and especially when I visit New York—it's the Small Gouge that irritates me much more than the large swindle.

I resent paying a penny extra for cigarets at a hotel newsstand. Or paying a quarter for a paper bucket of ice sent up to the room. Or fifty cents for candy in a theatre lobby. Or more than a dime candy sells for half that price just outside the door.

I resent the doorman with a perpetually outstretched paw and the bellhop who is sure he is going to make his genteel blackmail stick. And the hotel clerk who will be held a pittance to make you feel like a worm unless you tip him. And the waiter who has the money going to an impersonal "syndicate" for millions.

All these are trivial instances . . . yet they reflect a philosophy of Grab that is not only too much harmful to a democratic society; but which puts a needless added strain on personal relations.

The fabric of any good social order depends on a measure of warmth running not only in one's own community, but throughout one's country. If the visitor to another city feels plucked and fleeced by his own countrymen, how much more suspicious will he be of the foreigners in a strange land? ●

The whole organization of the hoist and travel ads is a self-defeating mechanism, so long as the people organizations are agreed toward getting as many eggs out of the goose as they can possibly.

Even though newspapermen are supposed to be (and are) experts at getting free passes and expense accounts, I have never yet returned to my home in the country without losing money—for it is impossible to put down the innumerable tips for the bribes and "extras" that a visitor inevitably encounters.

This has nothing to do with the tipping system, which is a perfectly ridiculous one with the nature of travelling; or with any thing that I adopt the attitude of Simmer that pervades a ruthlessly materialistic culture. The chief is a robber at least cut an heroic figure; the modern cadger is a contemptible and unlovely combination of distraction and quarters you to death.

THE FACTS A RE AS STATED.

If you haven't the facts to back up your statement that four teenagers died playing football last article in this column Feb. 13, titled Football Mortality. Four high school boys and three college men killed playing football in the 1953 season up to Nov. 30. I stand solidly behind everything I said in the article. Coaches and the town sports who promote high school football and the Canadian Medical Association Policies Committee recommends (Newsweek, Feb. 22). They speak plainly about "waves of hysteria" which mark school contests, cheering that is unsportsmanlike or unsportsmanlike acts condoned only as the team wins. The flattering, publicizing and courting of stars for college material, the illegal subsidies and grants (bribes) waiving of college admission requirements, secret payment of such players, over-material, the disparaging of non-players and spectators, the loss of precious social status—these are some

Dr. Brady is a graduate of the evils that go with high school football. So innocent is the business that wide-awake principals permit special assemblies of the entire school body so the leaders can whip up enough "school spirit" to get a contribution out of each pupil for the football team.

One thing I cogitate a good deal but without any satisfaction is this: Why so many people worry along through life with little or no milk in their everyday diet? Some of them say they do not like milk. Others say it "makes mucus." A few others say they can't afford 1½ pints of milk a day. And those days, whether rightly or not, a good many say they are "allergic" to milk.

If you do not like milk, the most nearly perfect food for man you do yourself a great injustice if you do without it before you try something other than, say, pasteurized milk—milk in its purest, freshest state, warm at cow-side or cooled. If you are choicy about it; Grade-A raw milk; Certified (cream-line buttermilk); or the cutured (artificially sour-ed) milks; or powdered milk, you have preter, skim or separator milk. Any one of these supplies all the vitamins that is in milk. Of course the calcium in milk is one of the most enormous nutritional features that make milk the most nearly perfect food for man, and for children, youths, adults or elderly statesmen.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In one of our largest Canadian museums, an attendant who is a bird-keeper, has one of the most first-class amateur naturalist, interests of visitors in wild nature. He finds that in the course of a year or two as many people are interested in birds as in mammals, or botany. He does not count the casual visitors who merely wander through the museum looking at everything as though they were visitors to a department store on the way. He clocks only those who obviously are intent upon the exhibits.

Twenty times as many people come in to a bird's specimens to study and examine the bird exhibits as come in to see the mammals, wildflowers, snakes or trees.

It could be that bird spotting has received more than its share of publicity as an outdoor sport, but a great deal besides birds is to see in a walk in the open air, and the fact that so many are bird spotting has been given tremendous publicity by magazine articles, radio and television shows in which prominent people, including movie stars, authors, athletes, are shown to be actively interested in the sport of perusing wild birds in fields and woods only to identify them with field glasses.

Last week I spent the weekend in company with a large group of men and women of all walks of life who were gathered to see wild swans crossing the Bay of Quinte on their way from the mid-southern Atlantic coast to their summer breeding grounds in Alaska. While hunting swans, we saw many new and interesting birds and a tremendous variety of spring. These travelled-over fields and creeks. A check of the game is to call out the location of any bird seen, and in a few minutes, despite how few of these expert bird spotters knew the names of the birds they saw, they did. They knew pines, all right, but called spruces or balsams. They knew willow, which was elm, red cedar dogwood was raspberry bushes, and they knew that the first jewels of wildflowers were hepatica, trillium and hot cross buns (as mentioned the fact. They were all for birds.

As a natural science, it is all very well to be a specialist. But in amateur awareness of nature, it is a pity to be single-minded.

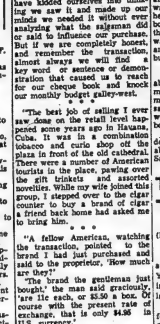
STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

By DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FAITH NEEDS NO DEFENCE

All students of history have been shocked by the extent to which, in the annals of humanity, crime has frequently been committed in the name of religion.

One of the Crusades, the Eastern knights who aspired to wrest the Holy sepulchre from the heathens agreed to feed the Venetians to pillage several cities—one of them Constantinople—in return for transporting their crusaders from Italy to the Holy Land. Thousands of men were killed, enslaved, raped, populations sold into slavery, art treasures destroyed, and whole areas burned—all with the consent of the noble knights as a means to the end of reaching the Holy Land.



Much blood has been shed over the issue as to whether the Holy Spirit proceeds from the Father and the Son or only from the Father. The Latin word "filioque" has been a bone of contention and has caused thousands of men to cut one another's throats.

John Calvin consented to the burning of Servetus, a Unitarian, because he believed that, when Ambrosius was arraigning the Doctrine of the Trinity against Arius, the quarrel waxed so warm that Ambrosius slapped Arius across the face.

And all this bloodshed and unkind cunning conduct on the part of people whose greatest pride was that they were the followers of Him who said, "A new commandment I give unto you that ye love one another."

Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee Graphically Described in Daily Mail's Golden Extra of 1897

(By BOYD UPTER)

"With a pageant, which for splendor and appearance and especially for splendor of suggestion has never been paralleled in the history of the world, the British people will today celebrate the longest and most glorious reign in the history of their country."

So states the London Daily Mail in its Golden Extra of Wednesday, June 23rd, 1897, on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria. With similar restraint the Daily Mail unfolds the splendid panorama of events of that great day as the "representatives of every portion of the greatest Empire the world has ever known, escorted the Queen from Buckingham Palace to St. Paul's Cathedral to render thanks for sixty years of unexampled progress and prosperity."

The grand and the humble, the big and the small happenings of that memorable occasion are chronicled by the Daily Mail in story and engravings, and printed in gold on eight pages of heavy, special paper.

UNUSUAL MEMENTO.

This unusual memento, which includes everything from the Royal Menu at the state dinner to the observation that the wet London heat caused great distress among the black troops on parade, recently came into the possession of Mrs. Harry Carr-Braine, 18 Carl Street, who returned to Belleville recently after visiting her parents in the old country. Sechlade in the Cottwolds, Gloucestershire, England. The newspaper was a prized possession of Mrs. Carr-Braine's father and is in an excellent state of preservation.

The Royal Horse Guards, the Scottish Borderers, the colonial troops led by Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who "rode through the cheering as unconcernedly as though they were merely under fire," headed the grand procession. "One Canadian volunteer officer in a plumed slouch hat rode a horse which plunged and danced at the music and the cheering," says the reporter of the day, and "it enabled the Canadian to give a splendid exhibition of horsemanship."

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, then premier of Canada, came next and received a splendid ovation. He was followed by the New South Wales Lancers and the New South Wales Mounted Rifles who accompanied the premier of New South Wales and Victoria.

As the Victorian Mounted Rifles, troops of New Zealand, Queensland, the Cape, South Australia, Newfoundland, Tasmania, Natal and Westralia, marched past one can almost hear the echoes of the cheers "that rose higher and louder with the cumulative effect of the passing of the various detachments" and feel from the pages the "pride and triumph at the thought that these grand fellows were Britons."

Grave, dignified Zaptieh from Cyprus, Dyaks from North Borneo, Sikhs of the Hong Kong Straits Settlement police, British Guiana negro police, the West Indian Regiment, Hausas and Sierra Leon giants, and Masai soldiers were living proof that the empire on which the sun never sets was indeed the greatest and most far flung empire that ever had been.

PROUD ACHIEVEMENT.

In a second story on the procession another writer, in speaking of the colonial troops had this to say,

"Up they came, more and more, new types, new realms at every couple of yards, an anthropological museum—a living gazetteer of the British Empire. And you began to understand, as never before, what the Empire amounts to. Not only that we possess all these remote, outlandish places, and can bring men from every end of the earth to join us in honoring our Queen, but also that these peoples are working not simply under us, but with us—that we send out a boy here and a boy there, and the boy takes hold of the savages of the part he comes to and teaches them to march and shoot as he has taught them, and to him and believe in him and die for him and the Queen. A plain, stupid, uninspired people, they call us, and yet we are doing this with every kind of savage man there is. And each one of us, you and I, and that man in his shirt sleeves at the corner, is a working part of this world-dwarfing force. How small you must feel in face of the stupendous whole and yet how great to be a unit out of it."

Following the procession of the colonial troops came a procession of British and foreign potentates. Guards, Horse, Hussars, Lancers, Artillery and Dragoons, complete with gold mounted generals, general staff officers and side-de-camps, presented such a picture that the reporter was moved to write that "one gained a feeling of might and magnificence of the British Army such as one had never before realized."

After the might and magnificence of the army came the splendor of the court with ambassadors, envoys and special representatives from almost every country in the world. Victoria's widowed daughters and daughters-in-law the report tells us, put aside the marks of their personal sorrows and appeared in white.

At last the Queen herself appeared, all signs of her personal sorrows put aside, "evidently feeling the pride and delight of the occasion."

MOVED TO TEARS.

"Her Majesty was unaffectedly rejoicing with the rejoicing of her people. Some, who had glasses, said that there were tears of love and joy in her eyes as well as smiles of love and joy on her lips. The people cheered and lost themselves in an ecstacy of affection," says the Daily Mail.

"The Queen's procession has passed. It is over and we are all the richer and the better for it. We have seen a pair like this of which no eye has seen since the world began," says the Daily Mail reporter in describing the unparalleled burst of untypical British enthusiasm.

The remainder of the front page describes the Queen at St. Paul's Cathedral, at her Jubilee House, and a description of her telegraphic message to her colonials throughout the world.

Page two of this well-preserved paper, is given over to a full page engraving of Queen Victoria surrounded by her children. The illuminated margin is cornered by engravings of the Queen's residences, Windsor, Buckingham, Balmoral castles and Osborne House. They cameos in the margin show Victoria as the young Queen, and at ages 20, 30, 50 and 60 years later.

Stories on page three include, "Making a Monarch", "Famous Children of a Famous Mother," a story of the Queen's children; "Wonders in Fused Gold", (10 tons of royal plate); "Sixty 22nds of June", (how the Queen has spent the day throughout her reign), "Wars of a Reign", and "In Distant '37," A story of London at the beginning of the Queen's reign. These stories are profusely illustrated. "Making a Monarch" describes the regalia used in the symbolism of the various ceremonies which take place in the anointing of a British sovereign.

REGALIA DESCRIBED.

The 13 items of regalia used were completely described. These included the Virge with Dove, a sword of pure gold, three feet, seven inches long, encrusted with jewels. Edward's staff, 4 feet seven inches long, covered with gold ornaments and the curtana—the pointless sword of mercy repoted to have been a weapon of Ogcerth the Dane.

"Value of the Royal Plate lies more in its weight than in its antiquity," says the writer of an article about the royal dinner service. The 800 pieces, twin spoons and forks of six different patterns were valued at £ 800,000 at a time when the pound was a sum to be reckoned with.

Among household items listed are "Queen Anne" famous regiments, Guards, Horse, Hussars, Lancers, Artillery and Dragoons, complete with gold mounted generals, general staff officers and side-de-camps, presented such a picture that the reporter was moved to write that "one gained a feeling of might and magnificence of the British Army such as one had never before realized."

Twenty-five years ago, John Shaw, a native of Foxboro and resident of Hastings County all his life, took possession of the Oak Hall, having purchased it from the estate of the late C. H. Vermilyea and this week is celebrating his Silver Anniversary of business in this city.

"Jack" as he is familiarly known was born near Foxboro, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw and received his early education in the public schools around that district and the high school in Belleville. For many years he farmed with his father on the old Pinkie farm near Foxboro and in 1910 he married Winnifred Gordanier.

Three sons were born of this union, Ralph Shaw, now in Vancouver, B.C., Bill Shaw, who is in the store, and Leland, who died some years ago. After four years of married life, Mr. Shaw bought the general store in Foxboro, which was later run by Bartley Hamilton for many years, but, believing he could advance faster, sold the business and with Walter Townsend, secured the Chevrolet agency for Kingston.

After following different vocations he purchased the Oak Hall in March of 1919 and has continued in the men's wear business ever since. The store enjoys a wide patronage and with congenial surrounding and an obliging staff, it is a pleasant place to deal.

Mr. Shaw has been taking it easy the last few years and he and Mrs. Shaw spend their winters in Florida, knowing that the business is in capable hands.

In his youth he was a bicycle rider of note, when cycling was the popular pastime in these parts. He rode in many races and once he pedalled all the way to Toronto to enter the Dunlop road race and came home with a prize and is quite proud of that fact. Now he is interested in a more leisurely pastime, that of bowling. He has been a member of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club for many years and his long black cigar in the corner of his mouth is a familiar sight on the greens.

He is a member of the Kiwanis Club and fraternally is identified with the Masonic Order.

Congratulations are pouring in to genial "Jack" on the occasion of his 25 years in business in Belleville.

Cost-of-Living Bonuses For Jail Employees Turned Down by County Council

Cost-of-living bonuses for jail employees at the Hastings county jail were turned down Friday afternoon by members of county council at the concluding session of their April meeting.

Salaries of jail employees were adjusted at the January session at which time a cost of living bonus of $300 per year was dropped. The net result was that make jail employees with under three years service took a $10 cut on their pay, while two matrons received an extra $50.

Under the new schedule adopted in January jail employees on reaching their maximum will be receiving $90 more than before.

Sheriff T. W. Solmes brought the matter to the attention of councillors early in this week's session and the matter was laid over for discussion in new and open.

Salaries of jail employees exclusive of the governor and matrons have a maximum of $2,340 and a minimum of $1,940 with annual increases for four years of $100.

CONSIDERABLE DISCUSSION

The matter saw considerable discussion on the part of councillors before a motion was tabled by Finance Chairman Reeve Russell E. West of Stirling calling for a cost-of-living bonus of $200 be paid to jail employees, Reeve Irwin McGee moved an amendment directing that no cost-of-living bonus be paid.

In support of his motion Reeve West noted the qualifications called for as a jail guard and noted that anyone who could meet the qualifications could find work elsewhere at more money than the county would pay them.

Reeve Theodore Tryon of Bancroft supported Reeve West's motion. "It appears that we expect guards to do a competent job for less than we are willing to pay.

Several of the councillors spoke against the county paying any cost-of-living bonus with Reeve McCoy noting that the county mill rate had already been set. "We will have to be careful on how much we pay or we may come out on the short end of the stick," he said.

Reeve Earl Sager noted that there were other county employees doing important work, who did not earn as much money as it was now paid to jail employees. Reeve Wells of Marmora said his village had received many applications for the job of police chief and one was hired at $2,400 per year.

"This man," he said, "had left the police force in Belleville to accept the position."

BIG MAJORITY

The motion to pay no cost of living bonus was carried by a comfortable majority.

Council voted for the finance committee chairman, Reeve Russell West and Warden Fred Mitchell have authority to purchase new chairs for the split jury.

A grant of $500 was voted to the Parkdale recreation centre. Deputy Reeve Cecil Ketcheson of Thurlow stated that residents of this VLA area had done much work themselves on the project and the recreational centre would do much to keep children of the area occupied.

COST OF LIVING

Payment of $500 to the Belleville Chamber of Commerce as the county's share in the publication of a city-county tourist folder was authorized, Reeve Ritchie Wells, as chairman of the county council publicity committee, said satisfactory progress was being made on the booklet.

During the noon recess councillors were shown the International Harvester film on the Kitimat hydro project in British Columbia.

Appreciation of council to Warden Fred Mitchell for the capable manner in which he had conducted the session was expressed by Reeve Bernard Hunt. In turn Warden Mitchell thanked councillors for their co-operation and for the spirit of harmony, which had existed during the session.

Will Supervise Army Personnel Schools in Europe

KINGSTON (CP) — Rev. A. M. Laverty, chairman of the municipal board of education, today announced the appointment of director of education A. C. E. Ritter as supervisor of schools for Canadian service personnel in Europe by the department of national defence.

Mr. Ritter, now in his fourth year as director of education for the municipal board in Kingston, will leave to take up the new position in August.

He will have supervision of education of the children of all RCAF and army personnel at the European bases.

Mr. Ritter came to Kingston in 1950 from Sudbury where he had been an inspector of public schools in the Sudbury area.

A graduate of Queen's University in arts, Mr. Ritter has been appointed for a period of two years during which he will be given a leave-of-absence here.

Will Describe RCAF Flight Over N. Pole

TORONTO — A first-hand account of a flight by RCAF North Star over the North Pole will be broadcast Sunday, at 10:30 p.m. on the CBC Trans-Canada network by Leonard W. Brockington, Q.C., of Toronto.

Mr. Brockington returned a few days ago from a tour of Arctic establishments in company with the Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence, and other distinguished people. He will give an account of the whole trip which, in less than five days, took in Churchill, Resolute Bay, the North Pole, Thule in Greenland, and Goose Bay.

GET INCREASED BENEFITS

KITCHENER (CP) — Increased insurance benefits and some adjustments in wages were included in a new working agreement reported Friday by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company of Canada. Insurance benefits will be in effect until June, 1957, and the contract with the United Rubber Workers of America (CIO-CCL) was extended to March, 1955.

Slaving All Day Over A Kitchen? Why Not Let The Kitchen Work for You!

When you "slave all day over a hot stove", you often burn up a lot more than fuel. You burn up a great deal of energy too, and, in today's Canadian farm or suburban home at least, unnecessary energy, at times.

So says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, which has been studying running water installations in Canadian rural areas. While the convenience of running water is being put to excellent use in barn and farm-yard all advantage is often not being taken of it in the average farm kitchen, the Institute finds.

It is certainly not enough to pipe water into the kitchen and leave it at that. A well-planned kitchen can save the out-of-town dweller endless drudgery, and the running water system is, after all, the heart of an efficient kitchen layout.

A quick look at a typical rural kitchen of a few years ago shows how little real planning went into its make-up. Location of sink, range, ice-box and table were rather haphazard, and preparation of a meal usually entailed a walking marathon from sink to table, table to sink, sink to range, range to ice-box and so on hour after hour. Meanwhile, the odd jaunt out of doors to see what the young fry were up to, or who was coming up the driveway, added to the daily mileage.

Planning has altered all that. Running water is now piped to a modern sink unit, probably one that combines both a sink and deep tub. This should be located under the kitchen window, giving both good light to work by and a view of what is going on out-of-doors.

A swivel faucet that mixes hot and cold water can deliver water at any temperature to either the tub or sink. Add a good drain board and work surfaces on either side of the sink and right away over 50 per cent of the marathon is eliminated.

Right here most of the preparation of food, the peeling up after meals, even a good deal of a family laundry, can be done without moving a step. And all the while it is still possible to keep an eye on what goes on in the yard or garden.

Modern kitchen units of this kind usually include plenty of storage space beneath the sink. Where once there was only a jumble of ugly pipes there is now a useful set of concealed shelves for such things as soaps, cleansers, dish-cloths, mops and other accessories.

As a result, with running water, work surfaces, storage space and drain board all in one spot, almost half the work of the kitchen is taken out of without moving a step. From here, the planning more or less works itself out, according to the size and shape of the kitchen.

In kitchens that are square and spacious, the "L" shaped plan is usually most practical. Here the best arrangement is to have the refrigerator near the entrance door, follow on with the work surfaces and sink unit, then on to the stove, which should be near the dining area. In most modern kitchen layouts, particularly where the kitchen is fairly large, a dining area is included right in the kitchen itself. This, too, helps cut down work.

Where the kitchen is long and narrow, a "U" shaped plan will probably suit the purpose best. When possible, the sink should be placed at the base of the "U", with work surfaces on either side, cupboards above and below, and the refrigerator and stove at either tip of the "U".

An extremely important part of the running water installation, and one that is too often taken for granted, is the hot water heater and tank. A constant and adequate supply of hot water is a must if all the other amenities of the kitchen are to be used to full advantage.

In almost every phase of kitchen work, whether it be the preparation of food, washing clothing or dishes, general house cleaning, canning, preserving or a dozen and one other daily chores of the rural housewife, hot water is a vital necessity. And so it is very important to make sure that the hot water heater is adequate to take care of all the calls that will be made on it.

With a well-planned kitchen, the modern Canadian farm or suburban housewife finds that she has not only more time for many useful tasks about the home, but more leisure for the fuller enjoyment of life as well.

Who's Who In The Building Trade

WILLS HARDWARE

The prospective home maker will find the answer to many of his building problems behind the attractive green and white facade of Wills Hardware at 181 Front St.

Wills Hardware carries a complete line of general hardware, basic housewares, tools, pipe, copper bottom stainless steel ware, household gadgets, and cleaning supplies,—handy electrical appliances and a complete stock of plastic goods, included in the general hardware supplies is a stock of ropes of all sizes.

In the paint department Wills Hardware features the famous Flo-Glaze colour-ray system which offers the professional or amateur decorator 1,600 colors in any finish. It is the most complete color system offered Bellevillians and there is no extra cost. Color albums are available for all colors. These albums are available for loan for solving special decorating problems.

A recent addition to the Wills Hardware service is a completely separate power tool department with a complete line of power tools including eight inch tilting arbor saws, band saws, jointers, drill presses, jig saws, portable electric saws and all types of power tools accessories. All units are set up for demonstration.

Tools to delight the man who likes to do it himself bearing the famous names of Delta, Atlas and Black and Decker are all represented in the Wills power tools department.

A complete range of good-quality Stanley and Miller's Falls, carpentry tools, is also carried.

Originally W. S. (Bill) Wills and H. P. (Pete) Wills, entered the hardware business with a small marine section on the second floor of the store. Now the Wills Marina on South Front St. is under the management of H. P. Wills and the hardware store under the management of W. S. Wills. It is hoped that by the addition of new lines of merchandise the Marina will be converted into a year round business.

SCHWAB'S SUPPLIES

Schwab's not only carries a complete line of greeting cards, stationery, luggage, games, toys and office supplies, it is also a good place for the prospective decorator to do business.

In a downstairs paint and wallpaper department, Schwab's carries the latest and most modern wall paper developments and patterns. Latest inventions in wallpaper including plastic coated washable patterns and simulated knotty pine, plywood, and wood finishes, are on display in Schwab's show room or available for home inspection at the customer's leisure in a complete series of sample books.

A complete new range of styles and patterns, brought out this year, is available.

All new wall papers have been specially designed with the man or woman in mind who is building or repapering his own home.

Specially featured in a complete line of paints, is the new Harmotone Velvet OFW paint that goes on like walls, wallpapers, or woods equally well with brush or roller. This new paint discovery is especially easy for the amateur painter to use. It goes on quickly, dries in a few hours to a satiny finish, and is washable.

Schwab's also carries a complete line of deckle transfers for brightening up kitchen, bathroom or children's room walls.

Varnish, crack filler and wall paper trim round out Schwab's service to the interior decorator.

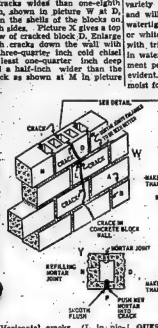
FARM BUILDING TIPS AND NEWS



Do It Yourself

Owner Should Repair Concrete Block Cracks

By J. RALPH DALZELL
Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

If you have cracks in your concrete block foundation, they may be repaired without too much time and labor, before you paint the basement walls. Settling of the earth is the usual cause of cracking, but cracks may have appeared it is unlikely that further cracking will result.

Cracks wider than one-eighth inch, shown in picture W at D, open the shells of the blocks on both sides. Picture X gives a top view of cracked block D. Enlarge such cracks down the wall with a three-quarter inch cold chisel at least one-quarter inch deep in a half-inch wider than the crack as shown at M in picture X.

Horizontal cracks (L in picture W) must be enlarged as shown at G in picture Z. Enlarge all mortar joints along the crack. Mix one part cement and three parts sand to a putty consistency. Dampen the crack and force mortar into it with a trowel or kitchen knife, as shown at C and G in pictures X and Z. Fill to completely, then smooth the new mortar flush with the face of the wall. The mortar should dry in about two days. Ready-mixed mortar is available at most hardware and supply stores.

To repair mortar joints, remove all loose particles, dampen and add mortar as explained. Small cracks may be filled easily without chiseling. Fill as shown at F in picture Y, where H and D illustrate two adjoining blocks. Control joints sometimes found at corners of concrete block foundations should be filled with an elastic caulking compound.

If oil paint is to be applied, use a stiff wire brush to remove loose particles and then apply one of the cement block fillers available at hardware stores. The filler will tend to prevent damp spots and also makes a smooth, hard surface to accept the paint. Rub in the filler with a scrub brush, using a circular motion, and smooth, before it dries, with an old paint brush. When filler will not come off when wiped with a finger, spray the wall lightly with water, and allow to dry for at least twenty-four hours.

Some paints resist any possibility of lime coming through from the blocks. Other paints resist dampness from emerging from the wall. The new rubber-based paints have this quality.

Portland cement paint in a variety of colors may be used, and will tend to make the wall watertight. Any old calcimine or whitewash should be removed with trisodium phosphate mixed in water. Use two coats of cement paint where dampness is evident. To cure, keep the wall moist for the first twelve hours.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. How thick should a poured concrete foundation be for a one-storey house with basement? A.—Ordinarily eight inches; but check your city building code.

Q.—How can I remove oil stains from flooring?

A.—Try a paste made of gasoline and fuller's earth applied over the stain. Retard evaporation by placing a board over the application.

When A Young Man's Fancy Turns to Housing

The swing to spring is again bringing with it the annual increase in real estate activity. As in the past, thousands of houses will be bought and sold in the three months between winter and summer.

For the prospective buyer, it can mean a time of joy or a period of sorrow, depending upon how thoroughly he investigates the purchase. With such a large amount of money at stake, it is essential to know the difference between a well constructed house and a "jerrybuilt" dwelling.

Certain danger signals to watch for include cracked walls, deteriorating roofs and faulty chimneys, any of which is usually a forewarning of later trouble.

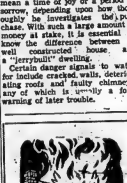
A buyer should determine whether the house has sufficient space for the growing needs of his family. Adequate closet and storage space are "musts" for any home owner. Other considerations should include the proximity of the house to schools, shopping districts and public.

Equally important is the zoning regulations governing the district in which the house is located. Encroachment of industry is generally a sign of declining property values. If the house is flanked by a vacant lot, make sure that the lot will not be used as a commercial site.

Before buying, make sure that the house is insulated. Because of our climatic extremes, a well-insulated house is a necessity. Mineral wool insulation, for example, reduces annual heating costs by as much as 30-40 per cent. In addition, it prolongs the life of the average heating unit by cutting down on the amount of work the furnace or burner must do.

FEARS RABIES OUTBREAK

CHATHAM (CP)—Kent county's medical officer of health said Thursday night he fears other cases of rabies may turn up in Blenheim after two children were bitten by a rabid cat there last week. Dr. E. G. Berry said the children showed no signs of contracting the disease.



Stirling

STIRLING—Canon J. M. Brownlie of St. Paul's Church of England, Marmora, was the guest minister on Sunday at St. John's Church of England, Stirling. Rev. H. C. Secker, rector of St. John's, officiated at a choral communion service at Marmora.

Mr. Sid Mason is a patient in Belleville hospital, where he went for treatment on Tuesday.

Stirling Municipal Council convened Monday evening with all members present. Routine business was passed and a few minor accounts ordered to be paid.

The council decided to adopt daylight saving time at midnight, April 24th and so keep in line with Belleville and Trenton.

Canadiens' Cripples Return To Lineup For Tonight's Clash With Wings

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

SOFTBALL CONFAB

North Bay, as the fringe of the great, wide northern space, the home of the "trappers," where the hearts are as big as houses, and the golfers carry shotguns to move partridge off the greens, will be the mecca for softball officials of the province over the Easter holiday week-end when the Ontario Amateur Softball Association's annual convention gets under way.

According to secretary Frank Feaver, the advance registration indicates the largest attendance since the association began 32 years ago.

There will be plenty of fun for the boys, but they have a lot of work to do as well. Fr'instance, there are 62 amendments due to come to the meeting. Ten deal with the association's constitution, 33 with bylaws and 19 with playing rules.

One of the most important rules changes suggestions is that a hit batsman gets a base on balls, just as in baseball. This suggestion, which emanates from St. Catharines, would become effective unless approved by a two-thirds affirmative vote at the meeting.

A proposed by-law change would increase player strength on each team to 18 from 15. Another asks that peewees cannot begin to play at least two hours before sundown. Then there is the Belleville by-law change asking that a ban be placed on peewee players wearing spikes.

We will go along with the Belleville suggestion. Those youngsters do not realize the danger that lies in the spikes and they can't be expected to know how to use them properly. Most of the kids slide willy-nilly without thought as to what damage their spikes can do. They are not necessary in our opinion, so why invite disaster, and the possibility that some youngster may be permanently injured. There is plenty of time for moppets of this age to wear the spikes and learn how to use them.

Speaking of softball, officials of the Belleville District League are anticipating a big turnout at the general meeting held in the West Moira Street fire hall tomorrow at 2 p.m.

EARLY ACTION!

A tip of the hat to the 1954 edition of the Belleville Arena Commission.

It appears this august assembly is not allowing the alfalfa to send up green shoots between their pinkies, as far as hockey for next season is concerned.

A couple of weeks ago at the inaugural meeting, the commission decided to send out feelers for private sponsors for the Senior "B" hockey club, season 1954-55. Up until yesterday those contacted had shown no inclination to take over the helm.

Chairman Gerald Hyde and his merry commissioners decided to take another fling at sugar-daddying the puck-chasers.

"The commission took over the project," Chairman Hyde told this department, "first, because no private sponsor seems inclined at the moment to do the job and, secondly because we believe that action should be started immediately on the question of imports for next season's team."

"It should be clearly understood, however," said the chairman, "that the arena commission will not stand in the way of a private sponsor should one want to take over the franchise. If he can prove he is sincere and will do the job properly the commission will be glad to turn it over to him, and help him in every way possible."

The commission lost no time in questing for imports. It already has a letter from Don Horan, starry centre of the North Bay Trappers, and second leading scorer this season of the Northern Ontario senior hockey circuit, who would like to come here and play next season. Don is well known here. He starred with Bill Cook's Junior "B" squad a few season's back and made a lot of friends here. He is a likeable chap and one of the better senior hockey players in Ontario. He would be a grand asset to the 1954-55 edition of the Memos.

Chairman Hyde said that he and Alderman Bruce Smith would co-operate in the handling of the team should no private sponsor decide to take over. Smith will handle the squad, while, "Well I am just the chairman," said Hyde.

He has the right idea. Now is the time to get next year's supply of hockey imports for a puckish bird in the hand is worth a dozen in the faraway woods. We understand the Duncan twins are returning next season, and the services of a well known, hard hitting defenceman is being sought.

Beliveau, Harvey Said Ready For Important Fourth Battle; Cocky Wings Ooze Confidence

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Some of the bedevilment that is conctinually harrassing National Hockey League coaches fastened itself today upon president Clarence Campbell, who doesn't know what to do with the Stanley Cup.

For the present, the emblem of hockey supremacy remains in a Montreal jewelry store, embrouded with ifs.

If Jean Beliveau and Doug Harvey, crippled, returned to action can give Montreal Canadiens the needed zing, the cup-defending champions won't be so badly off and coach Dick Irvin will be happy.

If Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay, Red Kelly and other first platoon boss stars shine in full-season form, the worries of the favored Red Wings and coach Tommy Ivan will approach the vanishing point.

COULD BE; TIED

More specifically, if Canadiens win tonight, the best-of-seven cup final will be all tied up at two games apiece and the shiny cup stays put in the jewelry store. The fifth game is scheduled Sunday at Detroit and the sixth, if the hockey Wings and coach Tommy Ivan will approach the vanishing point.

COULD BE; TIED

The fifth game is scheduled Sunday at Detroit and the sixth, if the hockey Wings and coach Tommy Ivan will approach the vanishing point.

If the Wings take tonight's tussle, Campbell must trust the cup on the hockey-special Detroit train in order to provide for any contingency. Until Friday and Saturday Beliveau and Harvey will be back in tonight's arena to bolster the rookie centre and the bumping defenceman missed the third game because of leg injuries.

There was also a possibility that a grizzled veteran might return in Canadiens' cause. There were howls from the fans for Elmer Lach Thursday night, when Canadiens suffered a devastating thrust from Kelly and Harvey. If Lach is called on, a chance for him to wind up his hockey career in a blaze of glory rests with him.

WINGS FAVORED

Regardless of the return of Beliveau and Harvey, the odds tonight will up in favor of the Red Wings.

Canadiens' hopes for tonight are pinned not only on the return of Beliveau and Harvey, but the return of Big Jean to the line with Dickie Moore and Bert Olmstead. This line has been the most powerful scoring trio throughout the playoffs. If Lach can come back his job will be set up passes for Richard.

The scoring threat of the Red Wings will be as menacing as ever. They have such scoring power that a game can be pipped wide open in a matter of minutes. The defence has the best goals-against average of any team in the league, with Red Kelly, Marcel Pronovost and Bob Goldham the standouts.

SAINTLY EMBLEM

The Cross of Lorraine, the emblem carried by Joan of Arc, was used by the Allies in 1940 as an emblem of resistance.

Billy Patton Takes Lead Over Ben Hogan

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Billy Joe Patton, a carefree amateur who has no illusions of greatness, took the lead in the Masters golf tournament over Ben Hogan, the grim little money man of pro golf, at the 36-hole mark.

It happened as Friday Hogan three-putted the 18th green when he had a chance to tie.

Patton, tied for the lead with Dutch Harrison after the first round, survived a shaky finish, to score a two-over-par 74 on the second round for a 36-hole total of 144.

Hogan, the defending champion and an odds-on favorite to become the first repeater in the history of the Masters, had a 73 on top of his par 72 in the opening round, for 145.

Par for the sprawling 6,800-yard Augusta National course, is 36-36—72.

In second place was Lloyd Mangrum who had rounds of 71-75—146. Harrison, Thirkell and Snead, leader, played badly in the cold wind and shot himself out of contention with 76-79—149.

Sign Players In Intercounty

GALT (CP)—John Walter, left-handed pitcher with Oshawa Athletics last year, has been signed to a 1954 contract with Galt Terriers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

Walter worked in 20 games with Oshawa last year. He finished with an earned-run average of 3.16 and 102th best in the league. He won five games and lost three.

KITCHENER (CP) — Verne Kaiser 24 year old outfielder formerly obtained by Kitchener Panthers from Galt Terriers in the winter trade has signed for the 1954 Senior Intercounty Baseball season.

Manager Don Gallinger said Kaiser will start the season at third base. He played that position in Galt in 1949 and has his best season in the league.

GUELPH (CP) — The Guelph-Waterloo baseball club of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League signed Bob Calori as promotional director.

Calori was also recently signed as quarterback of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Maroons Whip Moose Jaw 8-2

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons came up with a three-goal drive in the first period in the third period to whip Moose Jaw Millers 8-2 Friday night and take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven western Canada Allan Cup series. One game is tied.

The teams fought through a scoreless first period with the Maroons forging ahead 3-2 after 40 minutes of play. They held the visitors scoreless in the final frame.

'Kid' Matthews Will Fight Don Cockell

SEATTLE (AP)—A lot of money —somewhere around $28,000—has overcome a lot of reluctance in big time and Seattle's Harry (Kid) Matthews is about to have another go at British heavyweight boxing champion Don Cockell.

It will give the no-longer-youthful boniface mass-inventor-wider-fighter a chance at revenge on Cockell who defeated him in a split decision here last August.

It was agreed to Friday when manager Jack Hurley, with an alacrity which belied his words, said he was being "forced" to send Matthews against the Briton in London June 1.

The 33-year-old Seattle fighter has not looked too promising in recent bouts. Since his fight with Cockell he has been dropped from the National Boxing Association ratings as a heavyweight contender.

Cockell He just turned in an upset win over Roland La Starza, one of the top heavyweights in the United States.

Don Smythe Meets Choong In Semi-Final

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—California's busy Joe Alston was the only American hope as he moved into the semi-finals today for a crack at regaining the United States men's singles badminton championship he held in 1951.

The FBI agent from South Pasadena will also be fighting to keep the men's and mixed doubles titles he shares with Wynn Rogers of Arcadia, Calif., and his wife, Lois.

Alston meets the formidable Nandu Natekar, 30-year-old all-India champ from Bombay, who eliminated Ong Poh Lim of Malaya Friday.

The Malayan shuttlecock wizard, Eddie Choong meets Toronto's Don Smythe in the other semi-finals match. Choong is a strong favorite to carry the U.S. crown abroad in the first year it has been up for international competition.

Dr. Dave Freeman of San Diego, the last time winner of the championship, is not defending his title.

In men's doubles Choong and his brother, David, downed Robert Hairabedian, Niagara Falls, Ont., and Robert Williams, Niagara Falls, N.Y., 15-4, 15-6.

Yankees, Tribe, Sox Claim Winners But 'Bums' Are Tabbed in National

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel predicts that New York Yankees will win their sixth consecutive American League pennant. Manager Al Lopez forecasts a Cleveland flag and pilot Paul Richards declares his Chicago White Sox will beat out both the Yankees and Indians for the championship.

In contrast to the variance of opinion in the American League, practically all eight pilots have tabbed the defending champion Brooklyn Dodgers as the team to beat for the National League championship.

"We are the champions and we should do it again," declared Stengel, winner of five straight pennants, "I don't see any reason why we shouldn't."

"The second team should be Cleveland, on their good pitching and that, possibly, they'll be regulated who I see playing second base and Dave Philley who will help their outfield. Third has to be Chicago. They've changed their pitching and have added a couple of pitchers. Boston should be fourth, whether Williams plays or not. Washington is fifth. The other three I can't rate in order."

INDIANS STRONGER

Lopez based his belief on a Cleveland pennant "because the Indians are stronger whereas the Yankees are weaker."

"Nobody can tell me that a team could lose three players of the calibre of Johnny Mize, Vic Raschi and Billy Martin in one season as the Yankees did and not suffer," Lopez said. "Mize won 4 NL ball games for them.

"On the other hand we're much stronger in pitching than we were a year ago at this time with the addition of such fellows as Bob Houtteman, Hal Newhouser, Don Mossi and Dick Donovan."

"The way I see the order to finish is: Chicago, New York, Cleveland and Boston," predicted Richards.

Will Build Now Speedboat

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—James G. Thompson Jr., who raced in the Gold Cup speedboat trials last year on the Detroit river, says construction has started on a new contender for the world speedboat record.

He said Miss Supertest II is being built at Sarnia and will be fitted with the engines from Miss Supertest I.

"We never had trouble with the engines," he said.

Thompson entered speedboat racing from straight line to Canada IV from Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, pitted it and Paul Rickards' new boat, Miss Supertest. The new boat will be built along the same lines as Sir-Mo-Thom, holder of the world record. It will be a 21-foot three-pointer.

Signs With Sox

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford Red Sox of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League announced the signing of Bob Thurman of San Francisco, one of the first Negro players ever signed by New York Yankees. He played briefly in the major leagues with Chicago Cubs. He will pitch and play outfield.

TROTTERS WIN

MONTREAL (CP)—The smooth-passing Toronto Trotters Friday night defeated Montreal Royal Mount 77-58 to take a four-point lead in the two-game Canadian-eastern Canada junior girls' basketball finals.

The second game will be played tonight.

WIN Y GAMES

BRANTFORD (CP) — Hamilton and Brantford teams won out in the first two games of the annual Ontario YMCA basketball championship here.

Brantford Sings, defending champions, defeated Sudbury 79-44. Hamilton defeated Toronto High Park 86-34.

Sport in Brief

NEWARK (AP)—Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., former featherweight champion, has been rejected from boxing in New Jersey state as the result of an examination by state athletic commission physicians.

Pep was stopped in 1:33 of the second round by Lulu Perez at Madison Square Garden Feb. 26. The referee halted the fight on the automatic three-knockdown rule and Pep was suspended after the bout.

Bob Christeberry, commission chairman, made the suspension permanent Friday on the recommendation of a report by Dr. Irvin McCowan, medical director of the state athletic commission, and Dr. Edward Dolan, chief of the commission's medical advisory board.

The former champion is scheduled to meet Bobby Courchesne Monday night in a bout at Holyoke, Mass. It was he who won the Massachusetts commission to decide whether the bout will go on.

"There comes a time when it is time to retire," Dr. Stevens said in his report. "I think Pep is over the hill."

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The shouts of 30,000 baseball fans lining a 32-block parade route through the heart of the city Friday welcomed the Milwaukee Braves home from their spring training.

"We're a first-division ball club again," manager Charlie Grimm said, several days after the team's train pulled in from Chicago. "I think you'll be happy again in September."

Two bands blared as the Braves and Boston Red Sox, who opened a three-game exhibition series here later, piled into open convertibles outside the station. Ticker tape and shredded paper fluttered down on the parade.

CHARLOTTE, N.S. (AP)—Southpaw Joe Page, former New York Yankee relief pitcher, figures his comeback will be viewed as a new and barring an unforeseen complication he should be wearing a Pittsburgh Pirates uniform opening day.

Page, bidding for a comeback with the Pirates at the ripe old age of 36, reported here: "I haven't had one bit of trouble with the arm this spring."

He showed up unexpected at the Pirates training camp in Florida and asked general manager Branch Rickey for a comeback chance. Said Mickey, never the one to let a strike go by, told Page to go ahead.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Larry Cahrelli, former Philadelphia Eagle end, has signed as assistant coach with Winnipeg Members of Canada IV from Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, pitted it and Paul Rickards' new boat, Miss Supertest. The new boat will be built along the same lines as Sir-Mo-Thom, holder of the world record. It will be a 21-foot three-pointer.

Cahrelli will work under Bombers' new head coach, Al Sherman, former backfield coach of New York Giants.

Cahrelli was assistant coach with the Eagles 1943-50; assistant coach of Washington Redskins 1951; scout for Dallas Texans, 1952 and Redskins in 1953.

LONDON (CP)—The yacht Bluebobbie owned by Duke of Edinburgh is scheduled to leave May 26 from Liverpool for Canada aboard the Empress of Scotland.

The dragon class racer, a weekend pursuit for the Island Sailing Club at Cowes, will be under the command of Rear Admiral E. Hewitt of the Royal Navy. Part of the Bluebobbie's itinerary includes racing for the Queen's Cup of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club in Toronto.

It is understood that the duke may handle her when he makes a flying trip to Canada this summer.

REGINA (CP) — Mac Speedie, all-star end in the Western Conference last season, has signed with Saskatchewan Roughriders for the 1954 season. Speedie joined the Riders last year after a fine career with Cleveland Browns.

The United States and British jointly control the Canton and Enderbury islands, halfway between Hawaii and Australia.

Quebec Trims Ottawa Juniors In First Game

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec Frontenacs Friday night scored a pair of goals in the final period to shade Ottawa St. Charles 3-1 in the opening game of their Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals. Second game of their best-of-three series will be played Sunday at Quebec.

Chick Bouchard scored two goals for Frontenacs and Giles Thibault picked up a single. Don McNabb scored the lone Eastview counter.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—In a recent Gallup poll among baseball pitchers, Birdie Tebbetts, the new Cincinnati manager, said he believed he would have to take Tommy Hedges, whom he caught at Detroit. Hedges won 26 games for the Tigers over a three-year span in the mid-30s.

"Several years later pictures of Tommy's curve there wouldn't be any of the argument about whether a ball breaks," Birdie said. "I'll get a ball on him for shaking off my signs and I went out to him and said 'Okay, wise guy, you're not throwing anything you want to and I'll catch it. You aren't get any more signs from me today.'

"We went along all right for an inning or so, and then I called for a spot that was perfect for a fast ball. I was set for it, but it wasn't a fast ball. It broke down and hit my foot and nearly killed me. I was dancing around and Tommy hollered 'All right, Birdie, want to give up? I spent six pitches setting that one up for you.' I never tried on him again."

Ball players have their heroes, too. Marty Marion's was Joe DiMaggio. Though they served their playing careers in opposite leagues, the former St. Louis Cardinal shortstop saw Joe in spring exhibition games, in all-star games and in several world series against the Yankees.

"I loved to watch that guy, saying he did," says Marty, now a Chicago White Sox coach. "I couldn't even take my eyes off him when he was in the batting cage. I'd have to take him as the best I ever saw. My old teammate, Stan Musial, is a great ball player, but he never had quite the throwing arm that DiMaggio did."

Word comes from a reliable source that the Australian Lawn Tennis Association came within a single vote of having Harry Hopman relieved of his duties as captain of that country's Davis Cup team, despite his record unbroken string of successes.

Removed of the strange little character who annually conducts a "war of nerves" against the American team would have gone a long way toward improving the present strained relations between the two tennis groups. Sir Norman Brookes, president of the Australian L.T.A., said to have come around to that way of thinking.

TO REPRESENT CANADA

NEW YORK (CP)—Mrs. Margaret Trudel, 29-year-old Quebec City mother of three, Friday was named Miss Canada to the Mrs. America contest committee. Mrs. Trudel will represent Canada in the title annual Mrs. America contest finals at Ellinor Village, Fla., April 21-25.

Wet Fly Fishing

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Selmar Tables.)

Since the introduction of the dry fly about 35 years ago, wet-fly fishing has been neglected for the good many anglers. That noble animal "the dry-fly purist" came into being who would "take them dry or not at all." Too often he took them not at all. Undoubtedly, the purist was an excellent conservation agent.

Some of the smart fishermen, the ones mostly, remembered that they used to do right well with wet flies years before the dry fly became popular. So they continued to carry their wet flies with them and many times found that this nonconformation paid off in trout dividends.

During recent years, there seems to be a reverse trend to progress. Men are swinging away from the dry fly as a steady diet and spending much of their time on the stream using a cast of wet flies.

Just as rods, reels and lines have improved during the years, so have fishing methods become more efficient. Gone are the days when the fly fishermen fished fast water exclusively, walking around the long, pat pools. Now both wet-fly and dry-fly anglers spend much of their time fishing the quiet water.

OLD SCHOOL FISHERMEN

Every now and then I see a fisherman who is obviously "old school." These fellows are easy to spot. They confine their activities to the fast water, using a fairly short line and a cast of three flies, generally of the snelled, looped-on variety.

Always among them are the two schools of thought, one group believing that flies should constantly be kept "alive" (always in motion) and the other group maintaining that the flies should be allowed to drift "dead," with no motion imparted to them by rod and line. Both groups catch fish. I'm not taking sides.

When you watch these fellows operate, it is easy to understand why the old-school anglers cautioned their juniors to stick to the fast water and not waste time on the pools. Actually their tackle and their hook-under-arm casting technique would not be able them to fish the pools efficiently, particularly in a large stream.

With our present-day rods and lines, it is both possible and practical to cast 65 or 70 feet. Thus, in a large trout river, an able caster can cover a great deal of water with his wet flies. The old-timers, with their inefficient equipment simply could not do this. Consequently they had to pass up much productive water.

If the river is large enough, we fish wet flies with a long line, casting across and allowing the cast to "drift dead," sinking as it does so. When the end of the drift is reached, so that drag is inevitable, then the slack is retrieved in short, well-spaced jerks, until the line can be picked up and recast.

FISH NEAR BOTTOM

We have found that we have better success if our wet flies are fished deep, well down near the bottom. Nylon lines do not sink readily so we weight the leader, wrapping lead strips about the leader with. This serves the purpose after a fashion, but a weighted leader is a miserable thing to cast, having a marked tendency to tangle into the most hopeless snarls.

Now the line companies are coming out with sinking lines, purposely made heavy so that they will sink rapidly. One company actually is braiding strands of pliable steel wire right into the line to add weight. I have not yet used one of these lines but I have a couple of them and you can depend on it that they will see service this season.

As to the selection of flies—well, that is and always has been what the boys call a most controversial subject. Standard patterns, such as coachman, stone, whirling fun, cahill, the various quills, etc., almost always will produce. However, if there is a hatch of flies, then it is wise to match that hatch if possible, both as to color and size.

SNELLS LOSE STRENGTH

Long ago we discontinued the use of snelled, looped-on flies. Snells are too tricky. With use and lose their tensile strength. We find it far safer to carry eyed flies and tie our snells from nylon strands as we need them. That way is economical on space and our snells, being freshly tied, are dependable.

When it comes to size, I honestly believe that most folks use flies that are too large. With me and they catch fish with their 10 and 8 flies even when I think that smaller flies will take more fish. We seldom use larger than 12 and usually our flies run from 14 to 16 hook.

One of the outstanding fallacies in the belief that dry flies should be used exclusively if a hatch of insects is drifting. Most low flies are not. Wet flies will deliver the goods better than dry flies even when there is a hatch actively on the surface.

Large fish naturally are more cautious than the small fry and they dislike to expose themselves to their enemies, the birds, by feeding at the surface. Thus, a wet fly, which is fished a foot or so below the surface, often will interest big fellows when a dry fly will not. It must be remembered that not all the insects in a hatch are alive and struggling on the surface. Many are washed under and drowned by wave action in the riffles. A fly stimulates these and will be taken readily.

Of course, I like to fish dry flies

'Bums', Yanks in 1954 World Series So Say American Baseball Writers

NEW YORK (AP)—The New Brooklyn's, indicating something York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers will meet in the 1954 world series if the United States baseball writers know their stuff.

A poll of 115 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in the major league cities wasn't even close. The Dodgers drew 95 firsts or about 83 per cent of the vote tallied by The Associated Press in the 8-team loop.

The Yankees may be in for rougher sailing because they gave the defending world champs 81 votes or roughly 70 per cent in their bid for a sixth straight.

On the ballot of the experts, Milwaukee is expected to give the Dodgers their chief opposition. The Braves polled 13 firsts but their total total was 292 less than lies last year's 13-game pennant margin.

Points were figured on the basis of 10 for first, seven for second and so on down to one for eighth.

FIGHT FOR SECOND

Cleveland and Chicago are due to fight it out for second with the Indians having a slight point edge from the writers. Boston was picked for a solid fourth place finish and the consensus placed the Senators fifth.

There was a wild scramble for the sixth, seventh and eighth spots in the American with Detroit, Philadelphia and Baltimore fighting getting the call in that order.

After Brooklyn and Milwaukee in the National, the writers liked St. Louis to finish third; New York Giants fourth; Philadelphia Phillies fifth and Cincinnati, Chicago and Pittsburgh were plcked in that order although it was a remarkably close race for the cellar between the Cubs and Pirates.

SIDNEY TOWNSHIP
WET or DRY?

For some forty years, the sale of alcoholic beverages has been forbidden in our Township.

WITH NO ONE IN THE TOWNSHIP, MORE THAN A 15 TO 20 MINUTE DRIVE TO THE NEAREST HOTEL OR LIQUOR OUTLET IN BELLEVILLE OR TRENTON, NO ONE COULD REALLY BELIEVE THAT SIDNEY TOWNSHIP HAS BEEN ACTUALLY DRY. YOU CAN EVEN GET SOME ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES LEGALLY DELIVERED TO SOME PARTS OF THE TOWNSHIP.

The local option law has not stopped the citizens of the Township from legally purchasing all the alcoholic refreshment they wished, whenever they wished.

THE LOCAL OPTION LAW HAS PREVENTED, HOWEVER, THE TOWNSHIP FROM REALIZING FULLY, THE ENTIRE BENEFIT WHICH COULD BE HAD FROM THE TOURIST INDUSTRY. IT HAS ROBBED THE TOWNSHIP OF INCREASED TAX REVENUE AND INCREASED PURCHASING POWER.

The Dutch Mill Inn, which is interested in this vote, paid out last year, some $25,000.00 in wages, mostly to Township residents. It paid out over $30,000.00 in food, which included eggs, chickens, vegetables and other foodstuff grown locally. These sums and others were paid out of money received almost entirely from the travelling public, NOT FROM THE LOCAL AREA.

ON THE 21st. OF APRIL, YOU, AS A RESIDENT OF SIDNEY TOWNSHIP, WILL BE ASKED TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION OF WHETHER YOU ARE IN FAVOR OF PERMITTING LICENSED HOTELS, IN THE TOWNSHIP, TO SERVE ALCOHOLIC REFRESHMENTS WITH MEALS.

Let us understand this clearly. By voting yes to the two questions, licensed hotels in Sidney Township, (Which now forbids the sale of all alcoholic refreshment) will be permitted to sell WITH MEALS and ONLY WITH MEALS such alcoholic beverages as the customer may require, providing he is of legal age.

THERE IS ONLY ONE ESTABLISHMENT IN ENTIRE TOWNSHIP OF SIDNEY WHICH QUALIFIES FOR A LICENCE AS A HOTEL.

IT WILL NOT PERMIT ANY OF THE FOLLOWING:

1. TAVERNS or BEVERAGE ROOMS
2. COCKTAIL BARS or LOUNGES
3. ANY STORE FOR ANY ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE

BEFORE YOU VOTE

Remember:

1. BOOTLEGGERS ARE MUCH HAPPIER WHEN PEOPLE VOTE DRY.
2. THOSE INTERESTED IN A DRY VOTE, CAN ALWAYS COUNT ON THE WHOLEHEARTED SUPPORT OF THE BOOTLEGGERS.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The words in the bidding vocabulary are few. Actually, there are only 15 of them in all. And with these 15 words you must describe any of the billions of hands that may come from a bridge pack.

It stands to reason, therefore, that they are used in a way that will accomplish the most in giving information. So, some of the combinations of words are conserved for special purposes.

An opening bid of two in a suit announces a hand that insists on going to at least a game. Specifically, it announces a hand that contains at least nine tricks of some taking kind.

There are times when a player has a hand that will take only eight tricks at no-trump. It is not quite enough to insist on going to a game. Especially if partner has an absolutely blank hand.

With a blank hand partner would be forced to keep bidding if the opening was two in a suit. So, how can an opener give partner a signal that he need do so if his hand is blank?

The opener must use bidding words, of course. He starts with a bid of two no-trump instead of two in a suit. This has become the universal signal for showing an eight trick hand not forcing.

Notice that a two no-trump opener says he can take eight tricks at no-trump in his own hand. Therefore, partner need not reply with a bid unless he has one no-trump trick to make the ninth.

SOUTH
♠A Q 7
♥A K 9
♦A 9 5 4
♣K J 10

It has every reason to think it can take eight tricks in the no-trump department. To make a game it may need only one high card in partner's hand. Open with two no-trump.

It does not force like an opening of two in suit. It says: "Partner, you may pass with nothing; bid if you have a high card or more." The words "two no-trump" say that.

CAMPBELLFORD

Bowling Team To Complete In Finals

CAMPBELLFORD — The bowling team representing Branch 103 of the Canadian Legion in Campbellford will compete in Welland on April 24 in the provincial finals.

The team earned this spot by placing second in a field of nine teams representing district branches at Peterborough on the week-end.

Two other teams from this district, Bowmanville and Trenton, who placed first and third respectively, will also make the trip to Welland.

Bowlers in Branch 103 were

AT THE CAPITOL—Co-stars Main Powers and John Carroll furnish the romantic interest in Republic Studios' new comedy hit with music, "Geraldine", with Stan Freberg, Kristine Miller, opening Sunday at the Capitol Theatre. Also on the program a cut of no "Hell's Half Acre" starring Wendell Corey and Evelyn Keyes. Both hits are first city showings.

DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"The Day The Earth Stood Still"

Michael Rennie, an ambassador from an outer planet, arrives on earth in a giant space ship, demands to see the President of the United States, and requests that a meeting of the chiefs of state of every nation be called. His companion is an atomic robot with powers of utter destruction. The robot is imprisoned, and Rennie masquerades as an ordinary citizen while he wanders around trying to find the best way of carrying out his mission. In that guise he is befriended by Patricia Neal, a war widow, and her young son. When Rennie refuses electrical energy throughout the world to be stopped for 30 minutes, to demonstrate his planet's power, he is captured and killed. The robot, moving automatically against aggression, breaks loose, revives Rennie and they depart—after warning the world to live in peace or face obliteration.

Also "Thief in Silk."

Comrades Bill McComb, George Bibby, Paul O'Sullivan, Jack Stocker and Lionel and Don Holmes. The doubles team of Paul O'Sullivan and Don Holmes won first prize in the event against stiff competition.

AT THE McCARTHY—Meet the "Top Banana" in the hilarious person of Phil Silvers, whose burlesque spoofing has made "Top Banana" one of the most widely acclaimed comedy musicals of the year. "Top Banana" will be seen next Monday at the McCarthy Theatre the way it was seen on its year-long Broadway run as a smashing stage success. Johnny Mercer composed the hit tunes for this United Artists release in color by Color Corporation of America.

AT THE CAPITOL—Star Wendell Corey, (seen) Gene is a scene from Republic's flash dramatic hit "Hell's Half Acre" which arrives Monday at the Capitol Theatre for a three day engagement. On the same program the new comedy hit with music—"Geraldine" starring Main Powers, John Carroll and Mala Powers, and "Dreamer" complete. Both hits are first Belleville showings.

AT THE DELLE—Robert Wagner and Terry Moore are a romantic winning combination in Twentieth Century-Fox's latest CinemaScope adventure, in Technicolor "Beneath the 12 Mile Reef". A complete program of CinemaScope treats precede the feature attraction, showing today for the last time at the Delle Theatre.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes—and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 11, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This is Palm Sunday and we all should dwell thoughtfully on the meaning of this great day in history. Let it be can of prayer for those in tortured lands where freedom of religion is denied.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — We have many privileges. There are our responsibilities should be comparable. One duty is concern and care for our fellowmen. Pray and strive for justice and world peace.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Bittersweet benefit for wholesome activities, for giving help to those in need, the care of children, visiting the ill and lonely. Attend to necessary duties, go to church; relax when you should.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — This can and should be a delightful day. Don't leave your religion at the church door. Carry it with you in thought and deed the whole day—and every day—for better living, greater happiness.

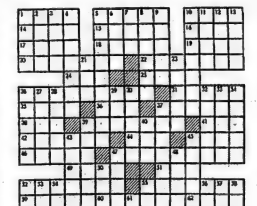
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Sun, Jupiter and Uranus in conspiracy! Variety in the air and renewed hope should be in our hearts for healthier days ahead. We must battle but we'll win.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Unless urgent, don't work until mentally or physically exhausted. And don't fret about necessary tasks; they can be a pleasure not drudgery. Go to church; pray fervently.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Although the day is favorable for good deeds, there are some restrictions where pleasures and extravagances are concerned—and this is well. In haste do not neglect family or seemingly insignificant duties.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Wholesome entertainment, charity and church affairs favored. Deep thought should be given to the solemnity of the week ahead. Essential work, domestic chores most highly sponsored.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Your personal interests, family affairs under fine Jupiter aspect. You have been blessed with God's goodness, so help to lighten others' burdens. Eat sensibly.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — One of those periods that gives one a lift, makes one feel it is good to be alive. You can help to give others a needed boost.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Not only what you do and say, but how you present yourself and your ideas will count today. Enjoy the company of children, celebrate. Develop a talent, and start all with prayer—a special one for this Palm Sunday.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Don't go over what someone has already done if it doesn't need re-doing. Generally, don't be too exacting or fussy. With a prayer on your lips and in your heart, you can begin a wonderful week.

YOU BORN TODAY: Your Sign, Aries, gives you unusual quickness of perception, mental and, generally, physical vitality. Idealism and artistic tendencies. You can be remarkably practical, too. You love your family, but will travel and enjoy others' company as well. You can do an excellent job if given responsibility in welfare or organization work. You can reach great heights in your life's work, but must learn to concentrate. Stun supersensitiveness, restlessness. Take regular healthful outdoor exercise. Birthdate of: Chas. Evans Hughes and Edw. Everett, Amer. statesmen.

Again she said "I am not guilty of this offence, your worship and I have nothing to say at this moment."

She stood with bowed head while speaking, but raised it when she began reading the statement from a slip of paper.

Prior to opening his argument Mr. Cass asked the crown through the bench if there was any evidence being withheld which may be used at a trial. Mr. Hall replied "I decline to accept any such undertaking."

Mr. Cass said the crown had evidence that the deceased died of strychnine poisoning and that strychnine was purchased by the accused Mrs. Bell, but, he added the, strychnine was purchased openly, was entered in a registry book and a duly sworn and signed reason given for the purchase.

The crown also had evidence, Mr. Cass said of the time of effect of strychnine and that a dose can be delayed by taking it in capsule form. Jenners has sworn he did not buy the deceased strychnine and there is no sworn evidence the deceased did not take the poison himself. There is no evidence the poison was administered through the capsules or of the act of another person. The person, other than Jenners and the Jenners' party, had not been called, he said.

There is no clear evidence that the Carter's Little Liver pill came from a drug store, Jenners' room, and that H was the last thing deceased took before death.

"There is," Mr. Cass said, "no evidence that was given by the logical conclusion of the guilt of the accused."

NO ATTEMPTS MADE

Mr. Cass pointed out that an insurance company witness had testified that his company had paid claims on policies on which were believed to be suicide cases but no attempts had been made to prove them.

"The crown alleges," he said "in my understanding that H's finances were the motive," and evidence before the court is that there is nothing unusual about the procedure of the deceased duties taken out. My inference is that the suicide clauses in the policies would not be invoked by a suicide to cover up his act."

Magistrate Wallbridge said the evidence regarding cheques issued and pertaining to the deceased must be weighed. "The liquor evidence merely confirms the accused contented liquor."

"Jenners," Mr. Cass said, "is the only person in any sense to give direct evidence. The evidence of Jenners in no sense incriminates the accused but is circulatory as far as she is concerned."

Mere possible guilt, or suspicion surely is not enough to send this accused woman to jail, Mr. Cass said. He added that it will be very difficult for the jury-men-jurors to obtain an unprejudiced jury.

Purely Circumstantial Claim

"The crown evidence is purely circumstantial," Mr. Cass said. "My submission to court is that proof of guilt required by the degree required in civil cases with regard to circumstantial evidence."

His submission, the defence counsel said, was there should be a greater degree of proof of probability rather than possibility or suspicion.

Mr. Hall quoted four possibilities in opening his argument. These are Jenners or other persons, accident, suicide, and murder.

Evidence failed to reveal that Jenners wanted Bell dead, that he wanted to assist the doctor, and further evidence revealed that no container was found. The defence suggested "accident" may have something in it but there is no evidence to support it.

Mr. Hall discounted the suicide suggestion in that the deceased had arranged for a party the night he died. He had taken out his 1954 licence as an engineer. He had spent a happy day previous to his death.

Mr. Hall suggested the evidence not only transcended the probabilities but the possible also pointed out the facts.

He said that a year ago the deceased had no insurance. The amount at time of death was $15,500. He accused H had been told by a fortune-teller not to buy him a new suit. "The one he wore was good enough to be buried in."

Joint wills had been taken out 66 days before the demise of Bell. It was the slow inexorable build up to the purchase of strychnine. This was for the extermination of rats.

"The only rats mentioned were those by Mrs. Bell."

The crown contended that while Jenners was not implicated," he is by very prominent figure in this case." While Bell was on holidays, the accused rented a house to get the border (Jenners) his breakfast. Accused had said, according to Jenners, that she would not spent nights with the other widow "if she were not decided between who she was."

The night of the "climax", Mr. Hall said, Jenners was awakened at two o'clock. If a doctor had been called by the accused would Jenners have asked her to do so, Dr. Cronk the family doctor, Mr. Hall said. Jenners testified he did not hear the telephone ring.

"If any thought of strychnine had entered Dr. Reg Anderson mind," Mr. Hall said, "he would have brushed aside the time that Had a doctor been gone at midnight the three-and-one-half hours would have ruled out strychnine.

"Why did Mrs. Bell tell Anderson after she had left a doctor at midnight, then confuse the symptoms?"

Recalling evidence of a finance company official who testified accused had called to borrow $500, Mr. Hall ceased a "cup of hot chocolate" the night before he died. Mr. Hall pointed out that this evidence was significant in that the witness had said no money was given. Mrs. Bells and Jenners had had nothing to eat or drink prior to Bell's death. The accused has denied ever having husband coros, one of the best mediums of administering strychnine.

Mr. Cass in rebuttal, suggested the crown had attempted to find the theory of suicide. He pointed out that the last thing the deceased had taken was a pill from Jenners' pill box. "There is a reasonable possibility that someone else placed strychnine in the box," he said.

He argued that deceased had planned a dance for a friend on the night of his (Bell's) demise yet the friend had not known of the booking. He had engaged a fiddler, yet had not secured one.

Mr. Cass contended, regarding the insurance policies that Bell, according to evidence, could have been insured for $25,000. He questioned the crown's statement of possible motive for murder and to $11,500. It actually amounted to $7,000. Regarding the joint wills, Mr. Cass said, "a man pondering suicide might do that in order to protect his family."

"As far as approaching a client," Mr. Cass said, "the only climax I can see is the crescendo of the crown's address."

COUNSEL ASKS QUESTION

"What does Duffy's statement prove?" asked Mr. Cass. "The court has been told repeatedly what happened in the Bell home that night." He similted that the accused had said a lot of things contradictory.

"But does that say she is a murderer, not even that inference can be drawn?" he said.

"It has been shown," Mr. Cass concluded, "that the accused has made a great number of contradictory statements, but all genuinely indicative of the proof of suicide."

Magistrate Wills said he had given careful study to the evidence and had studied authorities on similar cases. He said he had no right to weigh the evidence but had taken all evidence submitted into consideration. He then committed the accused for trial.

CURIOUS CHARGE

Following the adjournment, a large crowd massed in the main corridor of the court house to get a close-up glimpse of Mrs. Bell as she descended the stairs with her counsel, Jenners, Mrs. Archie Winters on her way to her cell after the end of the first summer.

Police and jail officials quickly cleared the corridor but the crowd was not to be denied. It took up a new position outside the building near the main entrance to the City Hall.

Photographers took up a position at the foot of the stairs and flashed pictures in the face of the accused woman as she descended the stairs. Outside another battery of photographers waited. They thrust their cameras close to Mrs. Bell's face and for a moment she looked as though she was going to say something in an undertone to the assistant matron, then as one other photographer trained his camera on her she covered her face with her purse.

PROVINCES MUST

PROVINCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Responsibility for initiating construction rests with the provinces, Mr. Winters said there is no lack of desire on the part of the federal government to proceed with construction but that federal participation depends on the provinces.

It was the responsibility of the provinces to decide how much effort they wished to put on the highway and how much they wished to emphasize on other phases of their road-building programs.

Since the agreement was signed in 1949, 803 miles of highway have been completed and 2,000 miles graded. A total of 229 miles have been approved for grading at the 1954 fiscal year-end. Contractual commitments to April 3 totalled $143,634,000 with the current season openi-ng to $71,517,328. Federal payments to March 31 completed now total $40,056,223.

Mr. Winters said he recognizes that the Trans-Canada Highway forms only a small part of the highway construction program in Ontario. However, he said Ontario is the key link in the highway and there are sections which have not been graded.

If traffic was to move from one coast of Canada to the other in relative comfort this province must be the link in the chain through Ontario be completed.

Mr. Holgson said that another federal-provincial highway conference will be held at an early date.

He also proposed that municipalities in highway areas be invited to attend.

The highway was needed to accommodate a greater increase in traffic on Canadian roads and would perform a valuable function in the event of an emergency. An accelerated construction program would help to relieve unemployment in many areas.

Mr. Hodgson said the cost a mile has risen from an estimated $60,000 in 1949 to $107,344. Steps should be taken to bring the cost back to $60,000.

TOLLS

In some years the board, which has its offices in Montreal, produced on the Prairies, has shipped more than 400,000,000 bushels of grain a season.

AMERICAN COMPETITION

Now, the Canadian Wheat Board, Canada's chief grain competitor, has cut shipping rates and federal assistance to Canadian farmers must come down if Canada is to gain in the race to capture overseas markets. U.S. wheat exports are subsidized by the American government. There is no similar subsidy in Canada.

In initial negotiations the board is understood to have offered to pay 14 cents a bushel, down from 16 cents, on wheat shipped from the Lakehead to Montreal. The rate would be 14½ cents on trans-shipments at such intermediate points as Port Colborne, Toronto or Sarnia. The rate also would be cut to four cents from 5½ cents in bushel wheat moved from the Lakehead to Georgian bay points.

As an indication of the magnitude of Canada's wheat problem, Minister Howe recently informed the Commons the board is still selling final portions of the record 432,000,000 crop of 1952-53 crop of 414,000,000 bushels.

QUICK REACTION

The report of tolls dispute brought reaction from various quarters.

At Winnipeg, George McIver, board chairman, said the negotiations are "your private business" and declined to comment further.

At Montreal, shippers confirmed the report for a cut but said negotiations are continuing. One informant said the request came at a time when the Montreal port is plugged with unsold wheat from last year's crop. This would have to be moved abroad before storage is available for the new crop ahead wheat.

Some Montreal companies reported earlier they intend to put less than half fleets into service when the navigation season opens.

SELL MORE WHEAT

One source said a cut in rates would help Canada sell more wheat. Canada had to get her costs down. Another speculated that under current conditions shippers might accept a small reduction for rates, but not as much as that proposed by the board.

At Port Colborne, Capt. Scott Misener, general manager of Colonial Steamship Lines, said he has not rejected the board's demands outright.

He merely told my office in Ottawa to tell the wheat board that we are prepared to discuss the carrying wheat at these rates because there is no wheat to carry at the moment."

Student Personalities At Albert College

A weekly feature of interesting facts revealed in interviews with those young undergraduat s who hail from countries beyond the seas.

By GEORGE H. CARVER

The three youngsters sleeping in a deserted Indian hut in the swampy jungles of Colombia nine miles from Barranquilla, were awakened by a strange noise.

Anything can happen in a South American jungle. Especially if you are sleeping in a thatch-covered hut. You can waken in the morning and find bedfellows ranging from deadly snakes, snarling jaguars, and chattering monkeys to brilliantly plumed birds of Paradise colorful parakeets, over-sized mosquitoes cargoed with malaria germs, and a squat hostile-looking Arhuacas Indian.

In this case the youngsters opened their eyes and saw a huge snake uncoiling itself through a hole in the dilapidated roof. They had no weapons but knives. They lay in a state of involuntary inertia until the reptile wriggled its way down and out of the hut.

Gert (Jerry) Von Greisheim, six-foot four blond student at Albert College smiles as he recalled the incident. He with two chums decided to spend a month's vacation in the jungle, visiting deserted Indian villages and studying the flora and fauna. They tramped nine miles through steaming jungle bearing only clothing kit, personal belongings and keen knives.

They lived on varieties of bananas cooked in various ways, the yuca, a form of wild potato and other natural foods They sought and found strange relics of the Arhuacas, including delicate neck laces made of colored stones

"JERRY" VON GREISHEIM

CLEVER ARTIST

Gert, known on the campus and in the class-room and dormitories as "Jerry" is spending his first year at Albert and in Canada He is a strapping youngster with a natural flair for painting and sketching and an ambition to become an aeronautical engineer, or failing that bacteriologist No pilot's life for Jerry.

"If you want to build a family, it is not so good" he said.

Not that Jerry has any matrimonial ideas at his age. He is merely looking ahead.

He was born in Barranquilla, the son of a German merchant importer. He has a sister Jany, 16, who with their mother left South American city a short time ago for their native Germany.

With his father having far-flung business interest in South America especially in Colombia and Chili, Jerry's early boyhood was spent on aircraft, steamships and trains.

When he was a toddler he went to Germany from his native Barranquilla stayed there six months and flew back. Then back to Germany for a brief period thence to New York. After a month in Gotham went to Colombia. His next trip took him through Ecuador, Peru and Chili. After fifteen days in Lima, Peru, the Greisheims moved on to Santiago Chile where they remained for the next twelve years.

After that period "Jerry" and his family took steamship and sailed up the South American coast to Panama. From this point they flew back to Barranquilla.

HEARD ABOUT ALBERT

He attended, a German Catholic school in Barranquilla for 2 years. One day while talking to a friend in Bogota, he was told about Albert College. It appears the friend's brother was a graduate and his recommendation of the Belleville seat of learning was good enough for Jerry.

This is his first year in Canada and he likes it although the climate is vastly different to that of South America. A steady diet of 32 degrees with occasional changes is good enough for him despite the rainy season.

Colombia, according to Jerry, who incidentally speaks, German, Spanish and English fluently as well as having a working knowledge of some Indian languages, is rich in natural resources as well as "rich in snakes, mosquitoes and malaria.

You can take your pick of the snakes. They all are poisonous. You can have a neat little coral, a larger mapana, a vibra, or any

Jerry made a slashing gesture with his hand "If you are bitten," he said, "you merely slash your arm over the bite and let it bleed freely. It is not safe to suck the poison out, because if the skin is broken around your mouth, you are merely transferring the venom."

He gave a colorful description of the many types of wild animals to be found in his section of Colombia. One of the most dangerous yet intelligent types is the wild boar. These animals reach the size of a large domestic pig and have keen curling tusks that can rout deeply into the earth or rip the "innards" of a man or beast.

WILD BOARS

Jerry told the story of long ago when a party of Britons on safari in the jungle came upon a herd of wild boar. Unfortunately one party shot a boar. Immediately the herd charged the safari forcing the men to take to the trees.

"Then" added Jerry, "the boars started to root at the base of the trees. They worked in pairs, relieving one another at intervals. Finally the trees tilted sufficiently to cause the Britons to tumble to the ground where they were subjected to vicious attacks by the infuriated animals. The story says that only one or two of the party survived."

He expects to finish at Albert next year, then comes the important decision as to what it will be aeronautics or bacteriology.

Dulles Presses For United Action In Indo-China

Wants Public Promise On Action From Eden

Queen Stresses Commonwealth's Power for Peace

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth acclaimed the Commonwealth as "a powerful instrument in safeguarding freedom and peace" when she opened Ceylon's Parliament in the Independence Memorial Hall here today.

Th Queen, here on the homeward half of her six-month Commonwealth tour, recalled that six years ago Ceylon "took her place as an independent and fully responsible member of the Commonwealth of nations. . . . I have no doubt that as a member of the Commonwealth you will make a valuable contribution, in a manner suited to the genius of your people, towards the pursuit of peace, liberty and progress."

Senate leader Sir Oliver Goonetilleke gave a vote of thanks to the Queen on behalf of the Senate.

Referring to a forthcoming south Asian prime ministerial conference, he said there is much anxiety in this region regarding "certain matters of common concern" to India, Pakistan, Burma, Indonesia and Ceylon.

POVERTY BLAMED

He said poverty is the basic cause of that anxiety and "assistance must come before it is too late."

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh arrived Saturday from Australia after a stopover in the Indian ocean aboard the royal liner Gothic during which they stopped briefly at the Cocos Islands.

The royal couple had a big and colorful welcome in this island capital and despite some political opposition by independence elements in preparations for the visit, there were no demonstrations.

A demented native, however, caused the royal car to brake sharply during Saturday's tour of the city when he leaped onto the road and stretched prostrate in front of it. Authorities said he was a "crazy exhibitionist"

Pravda Issues Icy Editorial Blast Against U.S.

LONDON (Reuters)—The Kremlin Sunday prepared the way for the General Far Eastern conference, opening April 26, by charging that the United States wants to wage a "cold war" strategy against Communist China.

Pravda, the official editorial blast against U.S. Far Eastern policy, bluntly hinted that the United States government may be preparing to use against China "any means of mass destruction, even atomic weapons."

The Communist party newspaper charged that Russia and China are the big powers which want a genuine peace settlement in the Far East.

RUSSIANS HOLD JAPANESE

TOKYO (Reuters) — A Russian patrol boat Sunday arrested the 33-ton Japanese crab - fishing boat Saiichi Maru and its crew of seven, the Japanese coast guard reported. It said the arrest took place about 15 miles northeast of Hokkaido island.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Spring-like weather prevailed over western Canada, most of the United States and southern Ontario on Sunday, and afternoon temperatures in the Great Lakes climbed into the 60s. In contrast, northern Ontario had a cool Sunday and there were a few snowflurries north of Lake Superior. This cool air moved down into southern Ontario Sunday night, bringing some cloudiness with it. However, the sun will break through the clouds in most sections today, and Tuesday will see a return to sunny, mild weather in all of the Great Lakes area.

LONDON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles of the United States urged Foreign Secretary Eden today to join him in an immediate public promise of "united action" if Red Chinese troops enter the Indo-China war.

As the two statesmen met at the foreign office, Prime Minister Churchill's government was reported willing to join, but only if the Russians and the Chinese show at the Geneva conference opening April 26 that they are not willing to negotiate a peace in Asia.

EDEN URGES CAUTION.

Eden is said to have outlined these objections to an immediate warning to the Chinese Communist government:

1. A declaration of common aims in the Far East cannot be rushed. The British government must prepare public opinion in a manner best suited to the genius of your people, towards the pursuit of peace, liberty and progress."

2. There is no new development in the Indo-China war which justifies hasty counter-measures. The issue of the Geneva meeting next month will slow military operations in Indo-China and give the West a chance to plan a careful program of action.

Another factor in the government's go-slow policy is the opposition of Britain's Asian Commonwealth partners — India and Pakistan—to British involvement in what they regard as the Indo-Chinese colonial war.

The U.S. secretary puts his arguments directly to Churchill tonight, when he dines with the prime minister at 10 Downing St.

The opposition Labor party meanwhile stepped up demands that Churchill tell Dulles that not "a single British man" will be used in Indo-China.

In Paris, where Dulles flies Tuesday, Premier Laniel and Foreign Minister Bidault, the French cabinet leaders were reported fearful that strong public words to the Reds now would doom to advance any chance of negotiating an Indo-Chinese peace at Geneva.

That also is the British government's view.

NEGOTIATE FROM STRENGTH

Dulles flew here Sunday from Washington to press his contention that the West can negotiate with the Communists in Geneva only from a "position of strength," and that such a position can be reached only through the strong declaration of united action.

On his arrival Sunday, he and Eden displayed no evidence of any rift in their airport statements. Dulles said he was sure his talks with the British leaders "in an intimacy . . . will prove profitable both to our countries as well as others."

Eden remarked: "I am confident that the work that we shall have to do together will be of service not only to ourselves but will contribute to the understanding and peace of the world."

The two diplomatic chiefs began their discussions informally Sunday night at dinner, at the home of the U. S. ambassador, Winthrop Aldrich.

MILLION DOLLAR FIRE DESTROYS PENHOLD HANGAR

10 Aircraft Burned But No Loss of Life

PENHOLD, Alta. (CP)—Normal flying operations at the RCAF's NATO flying training school here resumed today in the wake of a $1,000,000 flash-fire, which wiped out a hangar, 10 aircraft and maintenance shops Saturday. There was no loss of life.

The hangar, built in 1942 at a cost of about $100,000, was described as the nerve-centre of the 1,000-man flying school, located 100 miles south of Edmonton.

Group Capt. M. P. Martyn, officer commanding the station, said the loss will not interrupt flying operations. Training would go ahead as usual today and supplies would be drawn from Calgary.

An inquiry into the cause of the fire opened Sunday.

The fire was the first since the station was re-opened May 12, 1953, after its closing following the end of the Second World War.

GASOLINE EXPLODES

The fire broke out about 1:30 p.m. when one or six of a normal complement of about 100 planes were on the tarmac.

Flames, shot through with explosions as gasoline tanks ignited, sent billowing black smoke into the air and in about an hour the hangar collapsed. The entire rainy season's 24 hours later.

Lost in the fire were nine Harvard aircraft and one Expediter, along with maintenance shops and other maintenance records. The station has a normal complement of about 80 Harvards and four Expediters.

RCAF firemen, assisted by a rig from nearby Red Deer, fought the blaze. Unable to extinguish it, they concentrated on saving other nearby buildings. They were aided by a favorable wind.

PRINCESS GOES UNDERGROUND

Princess-Margaret, attractive in coveralls and safety helmet, leaves a coal mine at Nottingham, England, after an inspection trip. She descended 1,158 feet in the pit-cage, heaved herself a chunk of coal.

Kenya Peace Effort Fails Plan New Drive on Mau Mau

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—British authorities say their two-month attempt to negotiate a peace with the Mau Mau has failed. They promise to push their armed campaign against the anti-white terrorist organization with new vigor.

Acting governor Sir Frederick Crawford, acknowledging Sunday that the attempt at arranging mass surrenders has fallen through, said RAF Vampire jets will aid troops and police in routing out the terrorists.

The truce plan—called Operation General Construction—by Feb. 20 set up after the Mau Mau's No. 2 field commander, Waruhiu (Gen. China) Itote, was murdered. His death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment after he offered to persuade other leaders to give up.

He sent surrender messages to the terrorists' jungle hideouts, but no truce talks could be arranged. Crawford said two Mau Mau chiefs who did surrender and then were released to bring back their supporters just disappeared into the brush. Gen. China is still in jail.

The operation was opposed by many of this colony's 42,000 whites. They demanded a tough military action to wipe out the terrorism which has taken the lives of 1,090 civilians, including more than 15 whites.

Authorities estimate that 3,400 of the Mau Mau have been killed in battle, 1,000 captured and 350 hanged for murder. About 20,000 Kikuyui tribesmen, suspected of having taken the Mau Mau's blood oath to drive out the Europeans, now are in jail.

Mossadegh Said To Be Nibbler By Prosecutor

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Former premier Mossadegh maintained Monday night that he is still on a hunger strike, but his chief prosecutor said he has received a secret cookie nibbler.

Mossadegh, who began one-session contempt of the army appeal court pleured out when six officers searched his prison his room during the morning, appealed to the court: "I can't stand it any longer.

"I'm dying. Can I sit down and read my bill: I've not eaten."

But Col. Hassan Hedayat, prosecutor, the prosecutor told the court he left in the cell a six sweets last night in the darkness." Later he told a reporter: "he was cooking in there with a stolen tablets when the guards are not looking."

Mossadegh has declared himself on a hunger strike Saturday morning. He wants a bigger room during the trial and before the full text of his testimony and defence bill of grievances is read to the court session.

The court is hearing his appeal from a sentence of three years' solitary confinement on charges that he disobeyed the shah.

Urges Military Airports Be Moved to Remote Areas

WINNIPEG (CP)—Capt. A. R. Eddie, managing director of the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, said in a statement Saturday it was a "tragic and expensive mistake" to locate military airports on the airways. He urged that they be removed to remote areas.

He made no direct reference to the collision of a trainer and a TCA airliner at Moose Jaw Thursday which took 37 lives.

Capt. Eddie made the statement in amplifying a report of his vertical comments at Edmonton Friday. Following is the text of his statement:

"Yesterday I gave a verbal statement to the press which in general was fairly reasonably reported. However, in one important particular, considerable confusion in the sense of what I said. The complete paragraph as I said it was substantially as follows:

"'Air line pilots are not a prejudiced lot, but they are a professional approach to and a sober view of their responsibilities. Therefore it is frequently not the case with the air force student. By this I do not mean to imply that commercial pilots are any better than air force pilots, but the fact is that the two types under discussion are at different stages in their careers and they look at things well in the air.'

DID NOT DISPARAGE RCAF

"Part of the above was unfortunately omitted in printing but the complete thought certainly expressed no disparagement of the RCAF and its performance, and I should like to see this made clear'

"There is no question but that air line student pilots are subject to the normal tendencies of headstrong carefree youth (they haven't changed since I learned to fly 27 years ago) and I don't think the air force would wish to have them any other way. After acquiring a mere smattering of elementary flying technique they are given high-powered toys in which some of them roar about unpredictably in the atmosphere. In so doing they are definitely out of place on the airways. The fact that they are frequently found on the airways results from the 'pressumably political) decision to locate military airports on the airways.

"The solution to this tragic and expensive mistake is to remove air force training establishments to areas remote from the airways. This will be expensive, but how can public safety be balanced against money?

"The next move is up to the government."

Philippines' Cabinet Split On Dulles Plan

By DON HUTH

MANILA (AP) — President Ramon Magsaysay called today for consideration of an apparent choice between backing the United States in a warning to Red China to stay out of the Indo-China war, or splitting his political administration deeper.

Magsaysay has said Philippines security requires it to join "other free nations. . . in resisting Communist aggression in Southeast Asia."

However, the administration's foreign policy spokesman, Senator Claro M. Recto, has said the Philippines cannot act "except in concert with the U.S. on the Indo-China problem. But he has not yet say yes or no to the proposal of State Secretary Dulles of a United States front against Red domination of Indo-China.

WAITS DECISION

However, Vice-President Carlos P. Garcia has asked for a definite decision before Saturday, when he leaves for the Geneva Far East conference. "We cannot afford to dilly-dally on Dulles' invitation," he said.

Cancers Could be Caused by Viruses 'Hitch-Hiking' Rides Through Lives

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—New evidence that cancer could be caused by viruses "hitch-hiking" rides through our lives, but usually not causing cancer, was described today.

We can acquire the virus hitch-hikers early in life, or even before we are born. They ride harmlessly with us unless something happens, a thing can make the virus suddenly dangerous, such as added stresses from in hormones or some other event.

Support for this theory was described to the American Association for Cancer Research in a paper prepared by Dr. Ludwik Gross of the Veterans Administration Hospital, New York.

He finds that in mice a virus hitch-hiker can be the cause of leukaemia, the cancer of the blood.

He begins with a strain or family line of mice which get leukaemia, spontaneously. He grinds up tissue from cancer and other organs of such mice, and prepares an extract which contains any tiny particles of viruses for leukaemia in those organs.

Then he injects this extract into baby mice of a strain which rarely gets the disease spontaneously. He gives the injection before the baby mice are more than six hours old, a time when their resistance processes probably would be low.

Most of these injected mice develop leukaemia by the time they are 10 months old. This indicates that the injected mice have a virus of some agent which lay dormant for a time, until some change activated it.

Gross finds evidence that the virus can be transmitted by either the mother or father mouse of the leukaemia — susceptible family. Even the embryo or unborn baby of the susceptible strain contains the mysterious agent.

Gross also finds that the secret can cause other leukaemia or a cancer of the salivary gland in the neck in the injected mice.

DOWNSVIEW JETS MENACE TO CITY SAYS LIBERAL M.P.

Will See Clarton About Curtailment

TORONTO (CP)—Crash landing of a Vampire jet plane brought renewed protests today by residents of North York against the use of Downsview airport by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

A. H. Hollingworth, Liberal member of Parliament for York Centre, left for Ottawa today to present the views of taxpayers who have asked that the RCAF curtail or reorganize activities at the airport. He plans to see Defence Minister Claxton.

The crash of the jet Sunday, less than 60 feet from busy Wilson Heights boulevard, strengthened the movement against Downsview flying. The pilot was not hurt.

PROTESTED WEEKS AGO

A delegation representing North York council, board of education and North York ratepayers approached the defence minister in protest two months ago. They asked that operations at the airport were contrary to recommendations made by the United States government, following a study to determine how safely jets could coexist in residential areas.

Controller Hollingworth said reports should be situation outside of metropolitan Toronto. Along with Downsview, Malton airport has been used frequently by jets.

Ratepayers expressed fear that planes might crash into homes situated in the airport area.

Violent Death Claims 12 Persons In East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Violent death claimed 12 persons in eastern Canada during the weekend. One was a child who perished with the 3-year-old mother in a kerosene explosion and fire in their frame home near Lunenburg, N.S.

The biggest toll was recorded in Ontario, where eight persons died in a Canadian Pacific railway accident. Also killed in Ontario, four fire deaths, three traffic fatalities and one drowning; Nova Scotia and Quebec, highway mishaps; Newfoundland, one death from fire; New Brunswick, one death from a fall.

Near Sarnia, Jean Lapointe, 17, of Wikwemikong, Ont., and his brother, Murray, 7, died in a fire that also seriously burned their father, Joseph Ross, 40.

The fire, believed started when the girl used kerosene to light a stove, broke out while the children were alone. Mrs. Ross and Harry Lapointe, were doing morning chores in the barn. Mr. Lapointe suffered minor face burns trying to rescue the children.

William Herbert, 3, died Saturday when a blaze broke out in his small frame home at Wallaceburg, Ont. His mother Ann Van Luves suffocated in bed. She was burning brush that while fire was burning through the roof of the house. Neighbors said.

At Niagara Falls, Ray Ellis, 41, Toronto, died when his automobile left the road and overturned in a ditch. Mrs. Ellis and two children were riding with him. Mrs. Ellis was treated for shock and bruises.

Rogers was thrown from his father's car in a collision in Toronto Sunday and died shortly afterwards. He was Toronto's 24th traffic fatality of the year.

Ronnie Fryfogel, 6, was the other Toronto victim. He died in the path of a car in Stratford, Ont. Jacqueline Pearson, 26, was drowned in the Rideau river in Ottawa Saturday.

Rescue Men From Icy St. Lawrence, Dog Rides Boat 20 Miles Downstream

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Two brothers from Ogdensburg, N. Y., Dr. Eric and Wilson Hodges, dumped from their outboard motor boat, but spent 20 minutes in the icy water of the St. Lawrence river before they were rescued late Sunday.

Clarence Seguin, of Ogdensburg, fishing about half a mile away, rescued them. The accident took place between Johnstown and Cardinal 14 miles east of here.

The boat continued down stream with only a dog aboard. Police were notified by persons who saw the boat go by with only the dog in it. The dog was rescued about 20 miles east of the scene of the accident, after police commandeered a boat.

The men said they were thrown out when they made a quick move to prevent the dog from falling overboard.

Total Mobilization Is Ordered by New Viet Nam Cabinet

Defenders of Dien Bien Phu Smash Another Red Thrust

HANOI (CP) — French Union troops defending the beleaguered Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu were reported today to have smashed back another big rebel attack on the eastern fringes of the fortress.

At the same time the new war cabinet of the native Indo-China state of Viet Nam decreed total mobilization.

Created Saturday by the chief of state, Bao Dai, the Viet Nam cabinet of Premier Prince Buu Loc ordered the call-up by May 15. It was not immediately announced how many of the 14,000,000 Viet Namese in the French-dominated world would be affected.

It was the first time in the war that Viet Nam had called its young men in bulk into the armed forces. Previously the force of French, North Africans and Foreign Legionnaires carried the brunt of the fighting.

FRENCH HOLD HILL

In the Dien Bien Phu assault—fifth big engagement since the French forces seized a strategic 1,200-foot hill from the Vietminh Saturday—the French said the Communists suffered "heavy losses" as the defenders fought repeatedly with bayonets, but admitted that French losses also were severe.

The immediate Vietminh objective appeared to be Hill 781, which overlooks the fortress only five-eighths of a mile from its centre.

The Vietminh, armed with submachine-guns, rifles, pistols, grenades and plastic containers of high explosives, plunged up the jungle-covered hill five times into the heavy fire of French troops hitting it at long series of winding trenches.

As the Vietminh came close, the French Union defenders went "over the top" with bayonets and hand grenades.

FILL IN TRENCHES

A tank-led thrust Sunday night by units of the Dien Bien Phu garrison rescued French patrols which had advanced into the north-western fringes of the plain to destroy Vietminh trenches burrowed to within 1,800 feet of the French positions.

While French Union soldiers were destroying the entrenchments and outmanoeuvred" them, the French reported.

No World Slump Coming This Year Says UN Expert

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The head of the international monetary agency said today that the world should not expect a general economic recession this year although some countries might suffer.

Ivar Rooth, chairman of the board and managing director of the International Monetary Fund, gave this view to the United Nations Economic and Social Council in discussing the fund's 1953 report.

The fund, a UN specialized agency, helps governments gold and foreign money to help them to carry on trade between them.

CIRCUS AERIALIST FALLS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Irma Rodrigues, 17-year-old circus aerialist from Mexico, suffered a possible skull fracture Sunday when she fell during an "iron jaw" act. She fell about 14 feet after her mouthpiece, attached to a twirling wire, loosened and she lost her grip. It was the first fall of four girls in a "flying butterfly" act.

Civic Memorial Service Held For 37 Victims

MOOSE JAW (CP)—Moose Jaw bowed its head in prayer Sunday for the 37 victims of Canada's worst airlines disaster.

A special civic memorial service attended by ministers of all faiths, Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan, Mayor Louis Lewry, the city council and more than 1,000 citizens was held Sunday. A special Roman Catholic service was held later.

Flags atop business premises and all government buildings and institutions flew at half mast from noon to sundown.

The services were held as trains arrived and went carrying bodies of the dead to hometowns for burial. Names of the victims died when still undefined, but coroner Dr. Sigurdur Sigurdson said some of the bodies were expected to be identified today.

MARKSETT MORGUE

Bodies of the dead had been lying in a makeshift morgue at the Moose Jaw curling rink since Thursday when an RCAF Harvard training plane slid into the tail end of a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star 6,000 feet above this city.

The 33 passengers and crew aboard the airliner died in the plunge to earth and the following fire. The RCAF pilot was killed and a cleaning woman died when a house in Moose Jaw crashed into a house, demolishing it.

Names of the dead were read at the special afternoon service at Zion United Church by Mayor Lewry. The number attending overflowed into the church basement and a loudspeaker was set up.

Yugoslav Prince Fatally Injured

DATCHET, England (Reuters)—Prince Nicholas of Yugoslavia, once mentioned in newspaper columnists as a possible suitor of Princess Margaret, was killed in a car crash here early today.

His open sports car skidded and crashed into a road on the outskirts of this Buckinghamshire community near London, after making a sharp turn. It plunged upside down into a deep ditch.

CHILD IS STRUCK BY PASSING CAR

Running out from beside a parked car at the corner of College and North Park street, four-year-old Diane Arnott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Arnott, was shaken up late Sunday afternoon when she was struck by a passing car. The little girl was taken to hospital for a check-up which revealed no bones had been broken.

The little girl was playing in the vicinity of the intersection, when she ran out from beside a car and was struck by a car driven by Ross Cummings, 205 Station street.

Provincial Constable K. Williamson investigated.

Colored Views of England, Scotland Shown at Shannonville W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. of Shannonville United Church was held recently at the Hudgins home with a fair attendance of 43. The president, Mrs Harry Sine, welcomed the visitors and members and expressed her pleasure that so many were present. Easter hymns were chosen for the program with Mrs. L. W. Scott presiding at the piano. Mrs. Everett Stratton, group leader, took charge of the devotional. Mrs. Russell Wescott gave the scripture reading from Mark 16. Mrs. Elmer Vivian read the "Lesson Thoughts." Theme for the month being "He Is Not Here, He is Risen."

A poem, "Bells of the Angelus" was read by Mrs. Robert McFarlane. Mrs. Everett Stratton also ready a poem, "The Cross." Mrs. Stratton thanked the members of her group for their help with the meetings.

The secretary read a card of thanks from Mr. and Mrs. Saul McFarlane for the card they received at the time of his brother's death. Mrs. Robert McFarlane expressed thanks for the same. A letter of thanks was also read from Mrs. Ben Oliver for the plant sent to her and letters from Mrs. Forrester and Mrs. Burrows of the Hospital Auxiliary.

It was decided to invite representatives to visit one of the meetings and explain the work done by members. As their organization is taken as per invitation. It was voted to pay for twelve small chairs for the beginners at Sunday School, also for material to make a small table.

Mrs. W. D. Robertson read the names of those of her group who will be working in the May-June meeting. Miss Mabel Craig, 12-year-old soloist, sang sweetly "Bless This House," accompanied by Mrs. Harry Sine on the piano. Rev. L. W. Scott introduced the guest speaker, Senior Captain Brightwell of the Salvation Army in Belleville.

The captain favored with a card and solo and played his own piano accompaniment. Captain Brightwell explained the beautiful colored pictures of England and Scotland, taken on his trip last fall.

Mrs. Sine graciously thanked the captain for his contributions to the program and to show appreciation in a practical way $15 was presented to help in the Salvation Army work for which Captain Brightwell expressed thanks.

The president thanked the hostesses for opening their home for the meeting and Mrs. Stratton for her fine work as group leader.

Mrs. Stratton and members of her group assisted Miss Stickney in serving refreshments.

Several of the ladies were present and enjoyed the social time. Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Wood on the evening of May 13th, the regular meeting day.

Denies Planning To Seek Bail For Mrs. M. Bell

Ronald W. Cass, defence counsel for Mrs. Marion Bell, charged with the poison murder of her husband, Dr. Wilfrid Bell, today denied he had made a statement to the press with regard to obtaining bail for the accused woman.

Mr. Cass also stated that he had not said he would seek "change of venue in order for an early trial."

"To all practical purposes bail is unavailable in cases of murder charges," Mr. Cass said.

He told the Ontario Intelligencer that he intended to take no steps whatever until he had thoroughly examined the entire transcript of evidence in the case.

The story of an effort to secure bail for Mrs. Bell appeared in an early edition of a Toronto evening newspaper today. The story included the statement that change of venue might be sought in the Bay of Quinte area "so that she could be free to spend the summer in a Hastings county jail."

Police Blotter

Two city dairies were broken into during the weekend, it was reported today by city police.

During their routine check patrol officer found that the Grills Dairy Limited, Front Street, was insecure early this morning, while it was also reported that Reid's Dairy had been broken into. A small amount of cash was taken from the desk drawer at the Grills Dairy while nothing was reported taken from Reid's.

Two youths, one of them a juvenile, were surprised by police early Sunday in the act of stealing gasoline from a truck at College Motors on College street. The one juvenile was taken into custody and charged with theft, while the juvenile was turned over to his parents.

A number of minor motor accidents were reported with only one resulting in more than fender damage.

James R. Smith, Second street, was northbound on Pinnacle when he approached Victoria Avenue his car collided with the rear of a parked vehicle owned by Fred Danton. Damage of about $100 resulted to each vehicle.

IN MEMORIAM

FREDERICK. — In loving memory of my dear wife, Lilla Beatrice Frederick, who passed away April 13th, 1950.
She has gone across the river
To the shores of ever green,
But I long to see her beckon
Me to cross the stream.
Some day, some time, my eyes shall see
The face I loved so well.
Some day I'll clasp her loving hand
And never say farewell.
Never remembered by husband Will. A13

Robert D. Adams Retires After 47 Years Service

Regional supervisor of First Aid for the Canadian National Railways, for the province of Ontario, Mr. Robert David Adams, retired on March 31st, 1954, under the pension rules of the company, thus ending a railway service of some 47 years.

Mr. Adams started his railway career with the Canadian Pacific Railway in the stores department in March, 1907, was transferred to Quebec City a few months later and while there was promoted to railway storekeeper. In 1909 he was transferred to Chapleau to the same capacity. He severed his connection with the CPR in 1911 and entered the service of the Grand Trunk railway as clerk in the motive power and stores department.

In 1924 he was appointed First Aid instructor in the medical department, continuing as such until the end of 1931, when reduction of staff called him back to the motive power department. A short time later he was again transferred to the medical department and appointed regional supervisor of First Aid, continuing as such until his recent retirement.

FORMER ALDERMAN IN CITY.

During the years when he was employed in Belleville, Mr. Adams found time for a number of activities outside his railway work. In 1920, 1921, and 1923 he was a member of the city council and then for two years was a member of the Board of Education.

In 1946 as a recognition of his services he was made a Serving Brother in the Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem. In 1953 he received further honor when he was made an Officer Brother in the same order. This is one of the oldest orders in the world, dating from the year 1099.

On April 9, at the Toronto medical clinic offices of the Canadian National Railways, a farewell reception was held for Mr. Adams when he was presented with an initialled billfold and sum of money from the employees of the medical department, with the presentation being made by Mr. J. K. Tambling, system supervisor of First Aid, while Mrs. P. Beaugard, regional medical officer, presented Mrs. Adams with a beautiful bouquet of red roses. Mr. Adams acknowledged the presentation briefly and expressed his pleasure at having been associated with a very fine lot of fellow employees.

The party then repaired to the Royal York Hotel, where they attended a pre-arranged luncheon.

116 Candidates Confirmed In Anglican Churches Sunday

The traditionally beautiful apostolic ritual of "laying-on-of-hands" was conducted in Anglican churches of the city on Sunday when 116 candidates for confirmation were presented to the Rt. Rev. Kenneth C. Evans, D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario.

Capacity congregations greeted Bishop Evans at the morning service at St. Thomas' Church and at Christ Church in the evening. Beautiful Easter lilies decorated the altars. Choirs offered special music. The Rev. G. Cantrell acted as bishop's chaplain.

Thirty-two candidates were presented at St. Thomas' Church by the Rev. W. J. Robinson, rector. Eighty were presented at Christ Church by Archdeacon the Ven. J. B. Creeggan with an additional four candidates presented by Flight Lieut. C. H. White, chaplain at No. 8 Repair Depot, RCAF, Trenton.

Speaking at the morning service in St. Thomas' Church, Bishop Evans said it was a pleasure for him to see such a fine congregation and to note the spirit of the church was "strong and healthy."

"Confirmation," he said, "was not the end of a course of instruction but rather the beginning of a life of sacrificial effort to the church."

The fact that Christ predicted He would rise again three days after death proved he was not a "man," Bishop Evans said. No man in history ever knew he would rise again, and do it. He was not a victim of sveata, the fickleness of the mob nor the power of the Roman soldiery.

PERMITTED TO LEAVE

Jesus knew that Judas would not only abuse the trust placed in him but knew that he would actually betray Him for thirty pieces of silver. He had Judas with Him at the Last Supper and permitted him to leave to notify the police before the communion began.

Bishop Evans said since Christ is God the resurrection ceases to be a miracle and death is His servant not a lord unto itself. "Easter," he said, "was not so much the wonder of the Resurrection but the wonder of death. The miracle of Christ took place on Good Friday."

"Why should Christ submit to the horror of death of the cross? It was His way of proving that you and I be given immortality."

Bishop Evans and Mr. Robinson briefly addressed the confirmation candidates following the services.

At the evening service in Christ Church, the bishop spoke on "The Cross."

Afterwards the candidates were addressed by His Lordship in the parish house where a brief reception was held.

89 New Members Welcomed Into Bridge St. Church

In the presence of a congregation that filled the church auditorium and gallery, on Sunday, eighty-nine new members were welcomed into Bridge Street United church. Sixty-five joined on profession of faith, including thirty-four boys and girls from the church school, and eighteen from the O.S.D. The remainder were received by transfer.

Following the sermon and reception service, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was held with 220 persons participating, a record in the history of the church.

The evening service was well attended and the congregation heard "Olivet to Calvary", a sacred cantata, rendered by the choir. Mr. John Deacon and Mr. Robert Aspinall were the guest soloists, and under the leadership of S. Ann Gordon a very fine performance was given.

KEEP A STIFF UPPER LIP

In this money-mad, materialistic age any attempt to place a monetary value on the less dull unspoiled spiritual things of life should be resisted at every turn. It is with this sense of public duty that we must challenge the whole case of the 45-year-old miner who claimed damages for the loss of his wife's good morning kiss, and the statement of the 64-year-old bachelor judge that such a loss is not worth much in cash.

This odd legal gambit took place in Birmingham, England, as a result of an auto accident in which the miner, whose lower lip lost all sense of feeling, complained that he used to enjoy his wife's good morning kiss but that now all this was gone.

The bachelor judge, much safer no doubt among the rules and regulations pertaining to scars and lost wages than among the emotional complexities of a good morning kiss, awarded the miner $8,000 damages for his mental distress. The matter likely arrived at his decision on the basis of non-existent experience. But before hastily assuming that a married judge or a jury should have been substituted it would be wise to consider the possible dilemmas which such a substitution would present.

Setting sums on such losses as kisses is admittedly risky business. For a married judge the predicament would be intolerable. Even the anonymity of the jury room would be lost when a final decision was rendered by 12 good men and true. And could anyone calculate the future acute distress of the 12 wifekins on the jury should they be unable to agree that a wife's good morning kiss is priceless?

Obviously this whole matter is sheathed with thorns which on second cap possibly blunt. Men and women interested in the future of the race would be well advised to keep these problems out of court and remember, if possible, the old poet that it is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

INVESTIGATION, PLEASE!

Dr. John McKelvey, professor of obstetrics and gynaecology at the University of Minnesota, made a startling statement at Kitchener last week.

He asserted that the average baby most women need during pre-natal care could be cut from $60 to about $1.50 if "completely dishonest" practices of drug supply houses could be curbed.

Dr. McKelvey said only iron salt was needed to combat most anaemias, but drug firms insisted on compounding this iron with other expensive ingredients.

He said that doctors must share the blame in continuing to prescribe these treatments after medical science has proven them outmoded.

These charges are serious to be ignored.

Here is one case where a government investigation would appear not merely justified but imperative.

SUNSHINE IMPROVES MANNERS

One of the most pleasant features of warm, sun-shiny spring days is the improvement of people's manners in public. There seems to be some extra ingredient in spring sunshine that melts a frigid countenance as effectively as heat does a snowbank. Smiles and cheery greetings bloom on faces that have been emotional wastelands all winter.

There seems little doubt that lengthening days and warmer weather bring about a more comfortable outlook on the world generally.

Perhaps this change for the better is most noticeable among motorists. Motorists seem at their worst in winter. Pedestrians, at least, are inclined to behave like members of a different species in winter as they huddle in their steel and glass cocoons, looking for all the world like grim beasts waiting to pounce upon the unwary.

However, in spring, with windows open, dry roads beckoning, and all the world bursting into new life and song, the motorist emerges from his upholstered cocoon in his new-found patience at crossings and his generosity in giving rides to strolling pedestrians. Even strangers profit from this annual awakening of the motorist's better instincts.

Spring is truly wonderful and we won't spoil it by mentioning the rigors ahead in a hot, perspiring summer.

The Indian government has announced that it plans to spend 2,000,000 rupees ($428,000) to subsidize supplies for colonies and hives in order to increase the country's annual harvest of 1,000,000 pounds of honey. To bee or not to bee is no longer the question in India.

JUST FOLKS

WRECKERS

I watched them tearing a building down—
A gang of men in a busy town.
With a ho-heave-ho and a lusty yell
They swung a beam, and the side fell.
I asked the foreman: "Are these men skilled,
And the men you'd have if you had to build?"
He gave a laugh and said: "No, Patiently doing the best I can?
Just common labor is all I need. Or, am I a wrecker who walks the town
"I can easily wreck in a day or two Content with the labor of tearing down?
What builders have taken a year to do."
And I thought to myself as I went my way:
Which of these roles have I tried to play?
Am I a builder who works with care
Measuring life by the rule and square?
Am I shaping my deeds to a well made plan,
Or, am I a wrecker who walks the town
Content with the labor of tearing down?

Brilliant pianists in their age class, Cara Butler, 15, and brother Gregory, 13, are the talented stars in the two-piano recital being sponsored by the Rotary Club in the collegiate auditorium on April 28, starting at 8.15. The young piano artists are the children of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ormonde Butler of this city, who bid fair to make a brilliant name for themselves in the world of instrumental music. They will be the principals in the first two-piano recital ever held in the city by residents. The entire proceeds of the recital will be devoted to the Crippled Children's Fund of the service club. Tickets are now available from members of the Rotary Club.

Car Hemmed In, Makes Complaint Lands in Clink

The moral of this story is: "If you stick your neck out, some one will bang a collar on it."

It seems a resident of this city was in the habit of parking his car on the space of a service station while he was in a nearby pub inhaling a few beakers of brew.

On this occasion when he came to get his car, he found it hemmed in by two others belonging to customers of the station.

Forthwith he raised hob with the proprietor, demanding the cars be moved. "It is your hard luck," quoth the proprietor.

Whereupon the careless one stated he would call in the law. "Go ahead," smiled the station owner.

Not hearing from the matter within the next couple of hours and seeing the car still there, the proprietor called the police and asked if such a man had laid a complaint. He had, he was told.

"Then why doesn't he come and get his car?" asked the service station man.

"He can't," replied the law. "He is in the clink."

WOMAN JURIST

ANKARA (CP)—Mrs. Melahat Rusacan, 48, appointed a judge of Turkey's High Court of Appeals here, is perhaps the only woman in the world to have received a Supreme Court post. She graduated as a lawyer in 1929 and since then has held various positions in the ministry of justice.

Sacred Cantata Presented By Bridge St. Choir

Sunday night in Bridge St. United Church a well-presented and satisfying performance of J. H. Maunder's Sacred Canata, "Olivet to Calvary", was given. The experience was both aesthetically and spiritually worthwhile. The Cantata was presented as the major portion of a worship service conducted chiefly by the Rev. Miriam Collins, assisted by the Rev. D. McTavish. While the attendance was good, it was obvious that many missed a wonderful opportunity to hear good music sung well.

Mr. Alec Gordon, the organist and choirmaster, deserves great credit for inspiring the choir to achieve an excellence of performance all too rare in Belleville not only by his skilful, and sympathetic accompaniment but also by his capable direction. One feels when Mr. Gordon plays the organ that he is a musician of a high order of whom the whole city can well be proud. Through his mastery of his instrument he created an atmosphere which varied from the deep pathos underlying the irony of the first number, "When O'er the Steep of Olivet" to the triumphant joy of the finale with its assurance of the power of God's Love. In the "March to Calvary" one was very conscious of the continuously marching feet as Christ was driven to that "fateful hill," an effect gained by Mr. Gordon's unfailing sense of tempo and rhythm. Certainly, a large measure of the success of the whole performance was due to the solid foundation and essential spirit provided by the organ.

The members of the choir set a standard for the performance of Maunder's work which will not easily be surpassed. United under the guiding hand of Mr. Gordon, they achieved that sense of teamwork essential to good choral singing. A certain heaviness was noticeable in the men's parts early in the work, but this minor flaw was completely redeemed by the magnificence of the singing in later numbers, particularly in the number, "O Thou Whose Sweet Compassion". Throughout the whole work an artistic use of crescendo and diminuendo was apparent and did much to bring out the beauty of the passages. The choir also deserves to be congratulated on the clarity of their diction in all the work.

The soloists for this performance were as follows: Mr. Johnston, Deacon, tenor; Mr. Robert Arpinall, baritone; Mrs. Roger Riedel, soprano; Miss Helen Cook, soprano. The solo parts are written largely for the men, but all did much to contribute to a performance for which the listeners are truly grateful.

ANIMAL SERVICE NOISY

BRIGHTON, England (Reuters)—The barking of dogs frowned on by the voice of an Anglican bishop as he blessed more than 800 cats, dogs, budgerigars, goldfish, rabbits, parrots, tortoises, lambs, horses and exotic pets at a service in the grounds of the royal pavilion here Sunday. Most Rev. Warde, Bishop of Lewes, was conducting an "animal service" organized by the mayoress of Brighton.

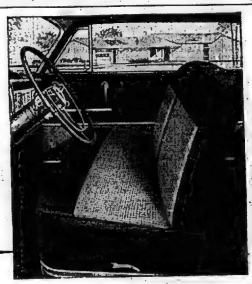
Health Dept. Activities At High Level

Activities of the Health Department for the month of March continued at a high level according to figures released Monday by Dr. A. M. Breuls, Medical Officer of Health.

There were 58 home visits to 41 infants under one month of age and a total of 121 visits to babies under one year. Four prenatal clinics were held at the YMCA with a total attendance of 44 and 87 infants and pre-school children attended four immunization clinics at City Hall. Four child health clinics had an attendance of 38 infants. At these clinics mothers were instructed in proper feeding and good habit development for infants and pre-school children.

Almost 45 per cent of nursing time was spent in schools, with 513 children inspected, 12 classrooms rapidly inspected for the detection of communicable conditions, 224 vision tests performed, and school health records initiated for 38 children, who enrolled for fall attendance.

New pupils were prepared for medical examinations by a vision and hearing screening. Parents were notified regarding nine children with vision defects, and tuberculin testing was carried out on 153 children at Albert College.



Several days were spent in home visits to crippled children with the district nurse from the Ontario Society for Crippled Children for the purpose of arranging for summer camp as well as clinic attendance.

Interpretation of Health Department services with special stress on communicable disease was presented to the St. John Ambulance Home Nursing class in an evening session.

Mr. Jackson complimented the Association on its fine slate of officers and wished them well in their new duties. The executive will be installed by Mrs. Scott at the May meeting.

ATTENDANCE BANNERS

Banner attendance was won for Queen Mary School seniors by Miss Wilson's class and for the juniors by Miss Horton's class. Senior winners for Prince Charles School were Mr. Frink's class and juniors, Miss Arkie's class.

At this point the audience broke up into small groups for discussion on how to improve meetings of the Association. Interested ideas on the subject of the hour and many constructive suggestions were forthcoming all of which will be taken into account by the new executive and should help to make the coming year more interesting and helpful to parents, teachers and pupils.

After the meeting adjourned refreshments were served by the social committee.

Weddings

FOWKE—BLATHERWICK

A pretty wedding took place in Ebenezer United Church on Saturday, March 27, at 3 p.m., when Dorothy Alvira Blatherwick, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Blatherwick, became the bride of Francis Earl Fowke, of Acton, Ontario. Rev. J. F. Lane officiated.

Mrs. Lane kindly presided at the organ and Mrs. Clayton Blatherwick, of Toronto, sang during the signing of the register.

The bridesmaid was Miss Sylvia Blatherwick of Bannockburn, and the groomsman, was Mr. Hugh Jordon of Acton.

Ushers were Mr. Kenneth Adamson, of Acton, and Mr. Clayton Blatherwick, of Toronto, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Sunday School rooms where the wedding luncheon was served by the Eldorado Women's Institute.

Mrs. M.B. Shorey Re-Elected Pres. Of Foxboro W.I.

Mrs. Lloyd Shepherd was hostess to the Foxboro branch of the Women's Institute for the recent annual meeting.

Following the usual opening with the president, Mrs. M. B. Shorey, in charge, the minutes and correspondence were read, and the treasurer's report given.

During the business discussions, regarding the purchase of some additional chairs, and plans for making the best use of same took a great deal of time.

At the beginning of the year the branch was divided into two groups under the Royal Conservatory of Music on Monday evening, April 5th, to an audience of about 50, family and friends.

At the reception which followed at the home of Mrs. Shepherd, Donna's grandmother, Mrs. W. R. Luscombe poured tea.

Assisting in the dining-room were Rosamond Lockie, Ann Harvey, Ruth Cloake, Marilyn McNeill and Sonja Ivey.

Guests included Mrs. W. R. Luscombe, Miss Luscombe and Mrs. Orland Pinkston, of Belleville; Mrs. Knechtel of Waterloo; Rev. Roy F. Hicks and Mrs. W. R. Luscombe, 14 Sinclair St.

Avondale H-S Assoc. Holds Euchre Party, Box Social

The regular meeting of the Avondale Home and School Association took the form of a euchre party and box social which was held on Friday evening in the Avondale School.

This social gathering was under the auspices of the Avondale Home and School Association on behalf of the Cub and Scout movement of that community.

The euchre party got under way with 11 tables in play.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Nobes, Charles Stewart and Robey Ling.

The auctioning of the box lunches then began with Mr. Jack Stewart as a most capable auctioneer. There were many prettily decorated boxes in all shapes and colors which were filled to capacity with various kinds of goodies.

During the luncheon period it was announced that two of the members were celebrating birthdays on that date, Mr. Frank Reid and Mrs. Jack Sills. "Happy Birthdays" was sung by all to those two very fine people.

After everyone had eaten, Mr. Ralph Knowlton, the Avondale Scout Master and Mr. Walter Clark, Cub Master of Avondale extended thanks to the Avondale Home and School Association and to anyone who aided in any way for their kind generosity in making the party possible.

This brought the evening to a close with a good time enjoyed by all.

Daughter of Former Resident Gives First Recital

Miss Donna Ivey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ivey, of Glenborough Park Cres., Willowdale, presented her first song recital in the Royal Conservatory

Donna has a lovely contralto voice, and as a result of her personality and gave a charming performance. She was accompanied at the piano by Mary Rezza and her teacher is Sadie McCarvish Martin.

At the reception which followed at the home of Mrs. Hicks, Mr. Ross Caldwell; Miss Dawn Parker, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Saunders, Peter Saunders, Mrs. George Lockie, Mrs. E. Jackson and many others.

Miss Ivey also placed second in the Kiwanis Music Festival held this year in Toronto. Miss Ivey's mother, nee Helen Luscombe, is a former resident of this city, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Luscombe, 14 Sinclair St.

'Life Outside Canada' Interesting Address at Albert College W.G.

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held at the Manor, Highland Avenue, on Thursday, with the president, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, presiding.

The program for the afternoon was in charge of Miss Helen Sulman. She herself, took the devotional period and opened her address by reading a poem on "Spring." She also read the Easter story from St. Luke, which told of the visit of Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to Jesus tomb, and of Jesus' appearance to Mary Magdalene. It is believed that Easter typifies the fact of renewed life and so one should try to build personal qualities that will be worthy of Eternal Life.

Mrs. A. C. Miller played two piano solos which were much enjoyed "Blumenstein" and "Canadian Capers."

GUEST SPEAKER

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Malcolm Robb. The subject of her address was "Life Outside Canada." Mrs. Robb was born in China, where her father was a doctor. Her family had a large house and many servants. Their life in China was pleasant for a time, but Mrs. Robb had the terrifying experience of being kidnapped by bandits and held for ransom. She survived the ordeal and the ransom was paid by her father.

Mrs. Robb was educated in England and learned to love that country. During the war, she served in the Air Force.

MAKES RECOVERY

England is now making a wonderful recovery after the war years. In 1939 the people were shabby and their food was poor. In the Coronation year the food was of better quality and the people were better dressed. The country by her single mindedness volion, has given her people inspiration to hold on and have faith in their country. She is a worthy daughter of her father, King George VI., who spent his strength in unfaltering service to his people.

In closing her address, Mrs.

Mrs. R.D. Arnott Addresses PTA On Girl Guides

A meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the separate schools of Belleville was held recently at St. Michael's. Mr. R. R. Collins, president, was in the chair.

The minutes were read by Miss K. Morrell, the treasurer's report by Mr. J. Colligan and the correspondence by Mrs. L. Callaghan.

The Spring Fair dance is to be held on May 28. Tickets for the draw are being distributed. The chairman, Mr. J. Colligan, has asked for the co-operation of all members in making the Spring Fair a big success.

An announcement was made that the PTA, with the assistance of the Catholic Women's League, will re-decorate the stage in St. Michael's auditorium.

As is the custom of the Association, it will again purchase hats and balls for the schools, so that the children can enjoy baseball in the nice weather.

Mrs. Bellanger introduced Mrs. R. D. Arnott, district commissioner, of the local association of Girl Guides. Mrs. Arnott told the members about the founder of the Girl Guide movement and of how it was started in 1910. She then showed how Guide work prepares our girls to be good citizens through the program of health, handicraft, intelligence and service. Their motto "Be Prepared" assures us that Girl Guides can take their place in the future of Canada.

A need was expressed for leaders and helpers in the Brownie and Guide work in our schools. No special previous experience is necessary, Mrs. Bellanger would be happy to interview any mothers or young ladies who are interested in this work.

In a short talk Rev. Fr. Murphy encouraged the members to enlarge the adult education program through panel discussions, study groups and more active participation in projects, by all members.

Refreshments were served at the close of the bridge.

8th Belleville L.A. Holds Spring Tea

A lovely spring tea was held on Wednesday by the 8th Belleville 'Cubs' and Scouts' Ladies' Auxiliary at the home of the president, Mrs. R. Quinsey.

Mrs. W. Dougherty and Mrs. Quinsey received the guests and invited them to have a cup of tea.

The tea table was lovely with its white cloth, pink candles and pink and yellow flowers.

Graciously pouring tea were Mrs. A. Lewis, Mrs. M. S. Button, and later in the afternoon, Mrs. P. Allcorn, and Mrs. W. Dougherty.

Dainty sandwiches and cookies were served by Mrs. Ashley, Cub Akela; Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. A. Francis, and Mrs. A. Campbell.

An attractive homecooking table was the scene of great activity with its delicious cup cakes, pies, tarts, date squares, cookies and cakes, with dustings of chocolate, coconut and pink marshmallow.

An unusual and pretty Easter egg cake was won by Mrs. A. Lewis. The table was in charge of Mrs. E. Butcher with Mrs. J. Yome assisting.

Busily at work in the kitchen were Mrs. E. Preston with Mrs. H. Regensburg, and Mrs. Maguire assisting.

A lovely and successful tea was enjoyed by everyone, due to the efforts of the conveners, Mrs. B. Smith and Mrs. P. Gelsthorpe.

Treasurer for the day was Mrs. R. Wardle.

Quinte S.T. Club Marathon Bridge Brought to Close

The Quinte Skating and Tennis Club Ladies' Auxiliary Marathon Bridge under the convenership of Mrs. William Van Tassel was brought to a successful close on Wednesday afternoon, with the playoffs of the winners of each group.

Those who had participated during the Marathon, either as regular members or as substitutes were invited and drew for partners from the gaily decorated tables.

In the absence of Mrs. J. E. Davis, the club's president, Mrs. Robert Smith, thanked the ladies for their attendance and said she hoped they had enjoyed their afternoons of bridge. Mrs. William Van Tassel reminded the various members of the coming rummage sale in May and the garden tea in June and extended an invitation to all those present to attend the tea.

Mrs. J. Lawrence and Mrs. Morley Ward, winners of group 1, and Mrs. Cecil Vince and Mrs. Charles Mott winners of group 2, played off during the afternoon with Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Ward received the high score for the tournament. All members of the winning teams received lovely prizes. Mrs. Carl Casey and Mrs. Bud Haines received the consolation prizes. The prize for high score in the week's bridge was won by Mrs. J. E. Dyble with the second highest being won by Mrs. George Campbell. The draw was won by Mrs. Carl Casey.

Mrs. C. Bearley, Mrs. Court Miller and Mrs. William Van Tassel were the committee responsible for the beautifully wrapped prizes. Mrs. Harold Mott and Mrs. C. Miller prepared the bridge schedule.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE OLDER PEOPLE AND THEIR CHURCH

Some time ago, in this column, I brought up the question of whether churches today might not, perhaps, be overemphasizing youth to the neglect of their older members.

Having heard such a complaint from a number of older people who wrote me that their churches paid little or no attention to them who had left their behind, I was interested to know if others among my readers had had the same experience.

I'm now happy to report that, of the many letters I have received in comment on this subject, the large majority of them declared that their churches took special pains to provide interests and activities for members in their later years.

In some cases, the letters I received were from individual church members who wrote me to clear their church of any charge of neglect. In other instances, staff workers wrote of all of what their particular churches were doing along this line.

From one church comes word of a monthly meeting for older women whose average age is over 70. "And we surely use each one who comes," writes the Church Visitor. This Visitor, and others in the church, make a point of keeping in touch with the older people who can't get out, calling on them to bring them news of what is going on and, as she puts it, "to tell them the little things about the church people they know." The older men are called on, too, and any who are able to take part in church activities, are assigned some definite task.

OLDER PEOPLE'S NEEDS

A letter from the Director of Music and Religious Education of another church brings news that in his church was erecting a new building in which special consideration was being given to the needs of the older people.

The two largest available assembly rooms in this new church will be given over entirely to the use of adults ranging in age from 30 to 75", he writes. "With approximately one half of these people being in their fifties. Our largest Individual Junior School classrooms will be given over to adult classes, and at the present time two of our largest adult classes are the 30 to 70 year old groups." He added that adults through the age of 75 are current participators in all parts of the church program.

"I believe the pastor is responsible if there are no activities for older people in a church," wrote one member of a church that has a busy schedule for all ages, adding: "Our pastor is interested in the old as well as the young, therefore everybody enjoys going to church."

On the other side of the question, a rather bitter letter came from a woman of 35 who agrees that the teen-agers have never had it so good. When she was a a teen-ager, she says, this was not the case in her church, but now things have changed, and she sees the girls and boys having so much planned for them, that, she says: "I wish I were 20 years younger."

OLDER PEOPLE NEGLECTED

And a woman who, I judge, is probably in her fifties, wrote "In my own church there is nothing of a social nature for the older folk. All around us there is a big stress on young people's work and clubs. Evidently it has been decided that the old folks of 50 or more can just sit home by the fire. All the church wants of them is their cash, their cooking and their attendance at services. They are all the church activities were for everybody, but not any more."

I am quite sure the woman is right who expressed the opinion that the pastor is the one responsible if older people in the church are neglected, for he is the one who sets the trend of events in any church. If the pastor of the church is a young man, it is only natural that his attention turns largely to the younger people. It takes a few added years to give a person insight into the feeling and the needs of those who no longer fall into this category.

Fortunately, there is the church with a pastor who is alive to the importance of making every member of his congregation, whatever the age, feel a useful and necessary part of the organization. For it is not alone the older individual, but the church itself, that is the loser when there is any one in it who feels he is no longer a valued member of the church family.

Overflow Readers' Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

"Never explain; never complain" was a rule of Benjamin Mendl's. It's a sound one, for nobody wants to hear the other fellow's grief. But you, my dear friends, might appreciate a little explanation of my failure to reply in replying to your letters. The old ship Enem is swamped again in a flood of mail, I am bailing out doggedly by answering in chronological order. Not one of you will be neglected, just be patient, as you always are. You will understand when I reveal that the first letter today is dated March 10.

QUESTION:

It is so helpful to have someone like you to turn to . . . Is there anything I could take in place of skim milk on my diet, . . . milk does not seem to agree with me . . . it seems I have to look at food and I gain 10 lbs. . . . by following some of your suggested diets. I lost 33 lbs. —A. T.

ANSWER:

Buttermilk, tomato juice, the canned unsweetened fruit juices are your answer. Some doctors prescribe calcium tablets for patients who cannot tolerate milk. Ask your doctor about this. See letter below.

THANK YOU FROM EMEM

. . . to Violet S., who told me not to publish her letter but to send it on a "calorie-saving" recipe book and confirmation of the use of vinegar to prevent potatoes darkening. . . . to F.B. for clipping from English magazine containing detailed instructions for making Simnel Cake,

LETTER:

I have a recipe for Soy Flour Muffins and many recipes for allergy muffins using rice, rye, potato and buckwheat flour, if you are interested. If "Thelma Mcf." has a child with celiac disease we could exchange recipes and ideas. The following recipe is suitable for anyone with a wheat or milk allergy or celiac disease.

SOY FLOUR MUFFINS

(Courtesy Vera K.)

One-half cup soy bean flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup water. Sift dry ingredients together. Beat yolks until thick. Add water and dry ingredients. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and stir until blended. Bake in well greased muffin tins in hot oven of 450 deg. Fahr. 20 to 25 minutes. Yield: 8 medium-size muffins.

I also have "Soy flour bermila" and "Nut Bread" for diabetics if you know anyone interested. Vera K.

ANSWER:

Yes, Vera, I do know people interested. Please, when you have time, copy out all of the recipes you refer to here and forward them to me. I will print them all here for the folk on diets who are anxious for them. Thank you so much.

QUESTION:

In some of your recipes buckwheat flour is specified. I have been trying to buy this for some time . . . without success. Can you advise me where the product is sold?—Viola B.

ANSWER:

Go directly to a Flour and Feed store. They will carry it for sure in the winter months. Some of the large big chain grocery stores handle it packaged too.

LETTER:

The paste for the meat (Spiced Beef) is just made out of bread flour and water but it must be a thick paste, very much like bread dough, perhaps not as thick and a slow oven of 250 to 300 deg. Now for the beef. I get a very good corned cut—select round steak from the centre part of the leg. If there is anything more I can tell you I would be very glad to help because this beef is tops.—Mrs. J. F. B.

ANSWER:

Thank you. Would it be asking too much to have you write out your Spiced Beef Instructions in careful detail including the proportion of the flour paste and approximate cooking time? I could put this in my beef file and have it on hand if for future reference.

QUESTION:

. . . what would be the best type of roaster to buy if one is to have only one roaster? the open pan with raised rack or the more conventional one with a top. What cooking utensils would you consider necessary for the average kitchen and priorities as to their importance. . . I would appreciate having more meat recipes to make our main course so fascinating we won't miss desert. —G. M.

ANSWER:

In recent years I cooked all our meat in an open pan with rack. Also—I small and 2 medium-size double boilers. I covered kettle large enough in which to mash potatoes and accommodate 2 lbs. spinach when crisp, and in which to boil a 5-lb. piece of meat such as smoked picnic ham or a whole fish, or a stew with dumplings or a tongue. (If you have a deep well cooker in your stove it would replace this.) If you want to conserve fuel without 2 or 3 vegetables at one meal, the 3-section triangular pans that fit on one burner are a good buy. Watch for meat recipes shortly.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TWO 4-YEAR-OLD FLOWER GIRLS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In my wedding party there will be a maid of honor, two bridesmaids, and two flower girls. The flower girls are both four years old. We have been told that it is not necessary for the entire wedding party, including the flower girls, to affect the grand walk usually seen at weddings. Please advise about this. — Ellen D.

You'll be lucky if you can train those little girls to "keep on walking" up the aisle, in their own 4-year-old steps! Such young, young ladies are not expected to walk with the keeping-time steps of the senior members of the bridal party. (And incidentally I think you would be very wise to plan to have a relative of these little girls take them into one of the front pews, when they reach the head of the aisle in the ceremony, not having them stand in the front of the church during the ceremony, and not having them take part in the Recessional.)

Golf Monarchs Ben Hogan, Sam Snead Meet in Playoff for Masters Title

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, called the "two greatest golfers in the world" by the grand-slam king, Bobby Jones, met today in an 18-hole playoff for the 1954 Masters championship.

The little man from Texas and the long-ball hitter from West Virginia tied with 289 totals Sunday after the regulation 72 holes. That is one over par for the exacting 6,800-yard Augusta National course and the highest score ever to earn first place in this major tournament's 20-year history.

The winner will join Jimmy Demaret as a three-time Masters' champion. And a victory for Hogan would make him the only man ever to win two Masters in succession.

Although neither could break par in the final round—Snead had a 72 and Hogan a 73—the wind-up was perhaps the most exciting in Masters' history. Adding an extra touch of drama was the spectacular comeback after a poor third round by Billy Joe Patton, the happy-go-lucky South Carolina amateur.

Patton finished with a 71 for a 289 total. Dutch Harrison, with a 68, and Lloyd Mangrum, with a 69, tied for fourth.

FORCED PLAYOFF

It looked for a while as if Patton would power his way to victory with his bold, shoot - for - the pin brand of golf. But he could be credited with forcing the playoff.

A hole-in-one had helped him to a four-under-par 32 on the front nine while Hogan was taking a 37.

Ben had started out with a three-stroke lead over Snead and a five-stroke margin over Billy Joe. With Snead sticking to par, Hogan thought Patton was the man he had to beat as he went off the 11th tee. He didn't know that Billy Joe had taken a disastrous seven and lost two strokes at No. 13 when his second shot landed in a creek.

"I made my mistake on the 11th," Ben said afterwards. "I thought Patton was the one to play for. So I tried to hook a three-iron shot onto the green, but it landed in the water and I took a double-bogey.

"If I'd known he'd shot that seven I'd have played it safe."

The stroke or two Hogan might have saved there could have won for him.

Pegs Take Series From Moose Jaw

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons won a berth in the western Canada Allan Cup finals Saturday night, defeating Moose Jaw Millers 9-1 before more than 2,500 fans to take their best-of-seven series 4-3 with one game tied.

Maroons now will meet the winner of the other semi-final between Weston Maple Leafs and Pemiteon V's for the right to represent the West in the Canadian final. The western finals will all be played in British Columbia. The Canadian finals will be played in the home of the western winner.

Playing-coach Odie Lowe and Gary Aldcorn, a rookie brought up from the Montreal Juniors for the series, paced the Maroons with two goals and two assists apiece. Pete Langelle, former Toronto Maple Leaf smoothy, also bagged a pair for the winners.

Edmonton, Forts Meet In Western Finals

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Edmonton Oil Kings and Fort William Canadiens meet Tuesday at Fort William in the opening game of their best-of-seven series for the Abbot Trophy, emblematic of western Canada junior hockey supremacy. The winner of the series will meet the eastern representative for the Memorial Cup.

Teepees Edge Toronto Marlboros 4-3, Grab 2-Game Lead in Junior Finals

TORONTO (CP)—St. Catharines TeePees took advantage of the breaks here Saturday to defeat Toronto Marlboros 4-3 and take a two-game lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Junior A final.

The victory, watched by 8,500 fans, put the TeePees to within two victories of entering the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup final. The third game of the series will be played in St. Catharines tonight.

The TeePees outplayed throughout the greater part of the game, scored two goals in each of the second and third periods for their victory. They were outshot 29-9.

"The good Lord must be on our side," St. Catharines coach Rudy Pilous said after the game. "We were awfully lucky to win that one. I've never seen Marlboros play better hockey, and I thought we looked terrible."

Left winger Hugh Barlow scored the winning goal with less than four minutes remaining in the game. Pete Koval scored two goals for the TeePees and Brian Cullen potched the other one. Dave Reid fired a pair for the Dukes and assisted on the other one which was tallied by captain Wally Maxwell.

Marv Edwards was great in the St. Catharines nets as he held off the Marlboro snipers time and again. Goal posts also helped the St. Catharines cause. Toronto snipers hit the posts on at least three occasions.

The Marlboros muffed numerous other scoring opportunities by missing open nets.

Koval sent the TeePees into a 1-0 lead in the second period when he scored on a backhander after taking Cec Hoekstra's pass. Reid scored his first goal of the night three minutes later to tie the score but Brian Cullen gave the TeePees a 2-1 margin before the teams headed for the third period.

Koval made it 3-1 at 5:04 of the third, banging in a pass from Don McLean. Reid scored his second goal 46 seconds later to narrow the gap to 3-2 and Maxwell tied it at 13:19.

Brian Cullen and Barlow combined a little more than a minute later for the winner. Cullen picked up the puck which glanced off Toronto defenceman Bob Baun, shot in front of the Marlboro net and Barlow slapped it in.

St. Catharines were tagged with five of the eight minor penalties handed out but none of them counted in the scoring. Edwards made the greatest save of the game off Wally Maxwell with 39 seconds remaining in the third period. Marlboros had sent out six forwards and Maxwell, left uncovered in front of the St. Catharines net, took a pass and fired a point-blank shot from about five feet out. Edwards smothered it between his pads.

What's news at Inco?

This shoveller needs no rest

Blast after blast drives a passage through the solid rock deep down in Inco's Levack mine. After the blasting, this mechanical loader moves in and picks up the rock broken by the explosives. It operates without interruption—often not stopping even while ore cars move into position for loading.

This powerful equipment is an example of the way Inco endeavours to take the backache out of mining.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

SOFTBALL!

The Belleville District Softball League adopted a new set of by-laws and assured itself of four teams at least with the possibility of three or four more, put some teeth in a few resolutions and laid the foundation for the season's operations at the open meeting held in the West Moira Street fire hall Thursday.

Paul Mercier's "Bluebirds" juniors, Northern Electric, Point Anne and Frankford are definitely in with the Bobcats and C.N.R. assured starters. There is a possibility of the RCAF and Trenton juniors entering the fold, also a T.P.T. team. The deadline for entries was set at May 1.

Lee Culhane was named umpire-in-chief and the executive by-lawed a resolution that all umpires must carry an OASA certificate. After some discussion, the league backed a motion that junior players be allowed to play with junior teams if they so desire. Players' signed certificates must be in the hands of the secretary before the first league game. The league will issue its own certificates which permits transfer of players within the loop with the consent of team managers.

Player insurance brought out some discussion and it was decided to waive the matter until OASA convener Don Lee returns from the annual convention in North Bay, where he will acquire all the facts pertaining to the matter. The league put a two-dollar tab on player certificates. The $35 entry fee was ratified, with President Jack Stevenson telling the league all monies will be spent in his interests.

The league will hold an executive meeting in the city hall council chambers on May 4, following up with a general meeting at the same place on May 18. Balls on May 24, with a good attendance with plenty of spirit and enthusiasm apparent.

The league paid tangible tribute to Warden Dick Allen of Kingston penitentiary for his outstanding hospitality to its teams during their many appearances at the institution's softball congresses. It will forward a box of cigars to the popular warden, who retires from active duty tomorrow. This department joins the league in wishing a fine gentleman, sportsman and ardent supporter of softball best wishes for a long and restful retirement.

POINT ANNE-MARMORA!

Tonight the Point Anne and Marmora Millionaires resume the Trent Valley Hockey League wars with the third joust of the finals series scheduled for Memorial Arena. The squads are all tied up with one victory each in the best-of-seven series with the fourth game scheduled for Marmora Wednesday night. The Pointers absorbed a 10-1 shellacking in the second game after blasting the Millionaires 11-8 in the opener. Thirty goals in two games is a lot of puck-dunking so tonight's tussle should provide plenty of fireworks. The teams are evenly matched, the first two games notwithstanding and from here in the clashes will be dog-eat-dog tussles. Game at 8.30.

GRACIAS, SENORS!

From Kingston comes a despatch that the Kingston Baseball Association will suspend any player who plays with the Central Ontario Baseball League entry of that thriving village, or any other team for that matter.

Gad, men, we betcha those COB Ellers down thataway are seething with anger or weeping into their suds in dire disappointment.

As a matter of fact, as secretary of the COBL, we extend our sincere thanks to the KBA moguls. They could not have done the senior loop a higher favor. It will mean that the Kingston COBL entry will be at full strength at all times, especially on the road trips. We won't be bothered with that bugbear that always affected Kingston teams in that they could not round up sufficient players, the real reason being because they were playing in a city league outfit.

Thank you, Mr. President!

MINOR MEET!

Suggestions and plans for the coming season will be aired at the annual meeting of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association which confabs at the Kiwanis Centre on Wednesday night starting at 7.30 o'clock. Election of officers for the coming year, also is on the agenda as well as a lot of other important business. All interested in the kids' diamond activities are urged to put in an appearance.

NIPPY FOR THE NAGS!

The well known corner around which spring is said to be hiding definitely is not in the High River, Alberta, district.

Word comes from that part of the wild and woolly west that on April 8 the harness horse boys were exercising their nags on a track that was nothing more than a sheet of shining ice. The sulkies were on runners and the thermometer registered one below zero. There was six inches of snow on the level. Gad, what hardy cusses these westerners are.

Hab Centre Gets First Tally In Spectacular Series Clash Gerry McNeil Montreal Hero

DETROIT (CP) —The acclaim that wild-eyed Montreal fans love to shower on their hockey idols by rote without doubt today to Ken Mosdell and Gerry McNeil.

It was Big Moe, in his 11th big-time hockey campaign, who whipped in the only goal Sunday night to defeat Detroit Red Wings in sudden-death overtimes and keep Montreal Canadiens' now exuberant hopes alive in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final.

The Wings still hold a 3-2 edge on games, with the sixth game in Montreal Thursday. Canadiens lost 3-0 at Montreal Saturday on goals by Johnny Wilson and Ted Kelly and it was all or nothing Sunday night.

And it was McNeil, recalled to his old-time job from the role of practice goalie, who fended off everything the precision-like Red Wings could throw at him in 65 minutes and 45 seconds.

The big goal by Mosdell was a long time coming. Throughout the four games of the semi-finals against Boston and now five more of the final he hadn't as much as had an assist.

Given freedom the game, Mosdell said in the hotel lobby when someone wished luck, "Luck, hell, I think I'm about due." In the regular National Hockey League season the veteran 31-year-old centre surprised everyone by scoring 22 goals.

SPECTACULAR GAME

Despite the hard, close-checking the game was one of the most spectacular of the playoffs. It was a gruelling affair in the summer-like heat of Olympia Stadium before 14,583 howling fans but it was brilliantly executed from start to finish.

The goal by Mosdell stunned the spectators. He started off slowly from his own blue line, where a Detroit attack had been broken up, gathered speed and swung to his left. Bill Gadsby, the Red Detroit defence, met him but Mosdell spun around without losing the puck and let fly with a backhander from about 20 feet out.

The puck sailed, a few inches high, across the goal crease and a Bowman forward desperately for it. It barely clipped the goal post and went on into the corner of the net. The clock showed 5:45 of overtime.

The performance of McNeil was the big part of a desperate gamble coach Dick Irvin took.

McNeil hadn't played in a regular game since Feb. 11 when he suffered an ankle injury at Chicago. He recovered slowly and then had a couple of minor accidents in practice. By that time Jacques Plante had taken over the job regularly and McNeil was sidelined.

SHAKEUP PRELUDE

But in the two games against the Wings, Plante didn't look particularly good on several shots. Irvin had already made shifts in his lines in an effort to get scoring power, but after splitting even with the Red Wings in the first two games in Detroit, Canadiens dropped two at home.

Then came the decision for a real shakeup. McNeil was in; Plante was out. Gaye Stewart, with Buffalo all season and a standby for Canadiens during the playoffs, was called to take over a wing position.

Detroit's hopes were deflated in the second period when a goal by Glen Skov was disallowed by referee Bill Chadwick. The puck went into the net from a scramble just outside the crease but Chadwick quickly signalled no, goal because the puck had been kicked in by Skov.

The best guess for Tuesday's game is that McNeil will be in the Montreal nets. Those not dressed for Sunday night's game were Calum MacKay, Paul Meger, Johnny McCormack and defenceman Jim Macpherson.

Barons Trounce Hershey Bears For 3-1 Lead

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons beat Hershey Bears 3-1 Sunday night and moved ahead, three games to one, in their best-of-seven Calder Cup playoffs in the American Hockey League.

The fifth and possibly deciding game of the series will be played in Hershey Tuesday. If necessary, the sixth game will be played here Wednesday and the seventh at Hershey next Saturday.

Eddie Olson shot Cleveland into a 1-0 lead in the first period, but Ellard O'Brien tied the score after only 58 seconds were gone in the second.

The winning goal was scored at 16:13 of the second period by Tony Poeta, rookie right wing. Centre Ray Ross added the clincher at 17:41 of the third period.

Edmonton Whips Stampeders 5-2

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Flyers, drawing solid support from goalkeeper Glen Hall, defeated Calgary Stampeders 5-2 Saturday night in the third game of their best-of-seven Western Hockey League semi-final before 7,500 fans.

Flyers trail the series 2-1. Fourth game is scheduled here tonight.

Playing coach Shud Pollis and Jimmy Anderson led the Flyers with two goals each. Don Pollis added the single.

Archie Scott and Ray Wiliuk scored for Stampeders.

ITALY WINS AGAIN

PARIS (AP) — Italy defeated France 3-1 Sunday in an international exhibition soccer game before 32,000 fans here. It was the 20th match between the two nations since 1910 and France hasn't won a victory in the last 34 years.

Major Leagues Open Season In Eight Cities on Tuesday

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—When the major league baseball races decided last March would be short? Ted Williams fractured his collarbone and Milwaukee's Bobby Thomson broke his ankle?

Can the Red Sox overcome the early absence of Williams, their star slugger, and put an end to New York Yankees' long reign in the American League? Can Cleveland finally do it after finishing second to the Yankees for three straight seasons? How about Chicago?

Can the Braves continue their momentum and overtake Brooklyn Dodgers despite the loss of Thomson, their hard-hitting outfielder, for at least another month?

How much will Enos Slaughter help the Yankees?

And what about Baltimore, which returns to the majors after 51 years?

All these answers will begin to take shape Tuesday when the major league season is under way in eight cities, with President Eisenhower throwing out the first ball in Washington. Approximately 360,000 fans are expected to attend the openers. For the first time in years all openers will take place the same day, and all games will be played in daylight.

The opening schedule, starting times and estimated attendance:

National League

Chicago at St. Louis 3:30 p.m. 18,000.

Milwaukee at Cincinnati 2:30 p.m. 30,000.

Philadelphia at Pittsburgh 1:30 p.m. 30,000.

Brooklyn at New York 1:30 p.m. 35,000.

American League

Baltimore at Detroit 2 p.m. 30,000.

Cleveland at Chicago 2 p.m. 30,000.

Boston at Philadelphia 2:05 p.m. 30,000.

New York at Washington 3 p.m.

Despite industrious efforts on the part of the 16 other clubs to strengthen themselves, the defending champion Yankees and Dodgers are prohibitive favorites to add to their laurels.

Sudbury Wolves and Matane Battle to 4-4 Overtime Draw

MATANE, Que. (CP) — Matane Red Rocks and Sudbury Wolves proved well-matched adversaries in the opening game of their best-of-seven eastern Canada Allan Cup final series Sunday, fighting to a 4-4 overtime tie.

The Wolves fell behind in the overtime period when Jacques Nadon rattled one in at 1:50, but Yacker Flynn saved the day, tallying an equalizer a few minutes earlier.

Some 4,300 fans turned out for the game in this little town, 250 miles east of Quebec City.

With Matane, up against their toughest opposition so far, Gerry Plamondon, a one-time Montreal Canadiens player, said the Red Rocks are counting on the breaks to win the series.

"These teams are about even in strength and the breaks are going to count," he said.

SILVERMAN CONFIDENT

Coach Max Silverman of Sudbury was more confident.

"I'm sure we'll take it," he said after the game. "Our boys were tired today after the long train trip but they'll be in better shape for the next game."

There was little to choose between the two teams Sunday. Matane held a slight edge in territorial play, firing 38 shots at Sudbury goalie Al Millar while Marcel Pelle handled 34 in the Matane goal.

The second game of the series will be played Tuesday but officials still have not decided whether it will be in Matane or Quebec. The winner of the set meets the western Canada champion for the Allan Cup.

Andy Milne of Sudbury and Rene Pepin of Matane were the scoring stars of the opening game, each notching a pair of goals. Yacker Flynn and Nick Comluk scored the others for Sudbury while Bob Breault and Jacques Nadon each collected one for the Red Rocks.

CAME FROM BEHIND

Matane had to battle from behind three times to tie the score. Sudbury had to rally once, in the crucial overtime period, after Nadon's goal had given Matane a 4-3 lead.

The Red Rocks peppered Millar with 17 shots in the first period but Sudbury scored the only goal, Tomick connecting on a pass from Fiori Coegan.

The Red Rocks came back in the second period with Pepin's first goal but Milne matched the counter to again give Sudbury the lead. Breault's goal, while Jan Speck of Sudbury was sitting out a penalty in the last minute of the period tied the score at 2-2 when the period ended.

Milne rattled in his second goal in the third period to put Sudbury ahead for the third time but Pepin's second counter of the game again deadlocked the score.

Nadon's counter at the 1:50 mark of the overtime period put Matane ahead for the first time in the game but Flynn batted back less than three minutes later to tie the game.

Dukes Trounce Kingston 5-0

TORONTO (CP)—Weston Dukes shut out Kingston Vics 5-0 Saturday in the first game of the Ontario Hockey Association junior B round-robin semi-finals.

The Vics, apparently weary from a four-hour bus ride, were no match for the Dukes as they were outshot 45-14.

Gil MacNeil scored three goals for Weston to bring his playoff total to 19 markers. Bob Garner added the other two tallies and assisted on two of MacNeil's goals.

Hockey 'Wives' In Montreal Have 'Beef'

MONTREAL (CP)—The strongest supporters of the Montreal Canadiens hockey team have a gripe—they have to let Maine and take care of the children during playoff time.

The wives of Canadiens' top-flight players wish at times their husbands played another sport.

"Baseball wives travel to Florida during the training period, football wives travel . . . but we just sit at home and listen to the radio," said one hockey wife.

Even when hundreds of Montreal fans were in Boston for the semi-final playoffs, Montreal's National Hockey League club's most devoted followers were sitting at home.

SET ROUTINE

Mrs. Ursula (Doug) Harvey has a set routine: "I generally do my ironing during a broadcast. I get so excited I run at a terrific rate. It's the only way of getting the job done and I'd go crazy if I just sat there and did nothing."

The women have a few other complaints about playoff time.

Says Marlene (Boom Boom) Geoffrion: "Firm clubs and stand pat, get nervous and talk hockey all the time—that is, when we wives get a chance to talk to them at all."

Mrs. Eddy (Paul) Meger says her husband becomes particular about his diet during the vital end-of-season period.

"I bought a cake mix the other day and told me to put it away until after the playoffs. When that happens I'll be able to stop serving ice cream for dessert and we can have pies and cakes again."

Playoff time is also the period when the Junior hockey fan's family must strictly be "seen but not heard," say the wives.

"We have to take the kids and leave the house to our husbands. They have to have their rest and it's pretty difficult to keep the children quiet. So we go out."

Generally speaking, Montreal's hockey brides will be glad to see the season end.

"They've only had two Sundays at home this season and well, it will be sort of nice to have them home again," is the general opinion.

LUCKY VICTORY

VIENNA (AP) — The highly-touted Communist Hungary soccer team which upset England last year gained a lucky 1-0 victory over Austria Sunday when an Austrian fullback inadvertently booted the ball into the goal during a mixup in front of the goal.

It was the Hungarians' first international match since their big upset over England last November and soccer fans figured it as giving a good line on Hungary's chances in the world soccer championships.

REJECTS PROTEST

ATHENS (Reuters) — Greece has rejected Russia's protest against the granting of American military bases here, it was disclosed Sunday.

Stengel Takes 'Slaughter' Insurance Swaps Pitcher, Players For 'Ole Enos'

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Enos Slaughter, the old warhorse of the St. Louis Cardinals, has joined the 1954 Yankees, and if history repeats itself he will be just the insurance Casey Stengel needs to wrap up his sixth straight American League pennant.

The 38-year-old veteran of 16 years with the Redbirds was dealt to the Yanks Sunday—less than 48 hours before the opening of the season—for pitcher Mel Wright and three unidentified players who will be assigned to Card farm clubs.

Five times before the Yanks have reached into the National League for players other clubs thought were washed up, and almost every time the deal turned out to the advantage of the world champions.

They obtained Johnny Mize from New York Giants, Johnny Hopp from Pittsburgh, Johnny Sain from Boston Braves, Bill Wight from Chicago Cubs and Johnny Schmitz from Brooklyn.

Mize retired this year after helping the Yanks for five seasons and Sain came back in answer to an emergency call from Stengel. He won 14 games last year.

So with Mickey Mantle's bad leg still a question mark, and the Yanks floundering along under their worst spring training record since Stengel took over, Slaughter could be just the shot in the arm they need.

For his party, Slaughter, who compiled a lifetime batting average of .305, was unhappy over the deal—so unhappy that he broke down and wept when he was told of the trade.

BIGGEST SHOCK

"This is the biggest shock of my life," he said, tears streaming down his face, "something I never expected to happen. I've given my life to this organization and they let you go when they think you're getting old.

"What gets me is that they let you go before you're finished. I've still got some good years of baseball left in me. I'll give Casey Stengel 100 per cent just as I've given every ball club I've ever played for."

August A. Busch, Card president, explained that Slaughter was traded because of the team's youth movement.

"The Cardinals are trying to build a young ball club," he said. "We are looking for an organization that will give us strong teams and pennant winners for years to come and we must look to the future. Although he won't be with us, Enos will always be a Cardinal."

Royals Blank Ottawa Senators For First Win

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Royals blanked Ottawa Senators 5-0 before a crowd of 3,000 Sunday in the third game of their best-of-seven Quebec Hockey League semi-final.

It was Montreal's first win in the semi-final series and goalie Bob Perreault's second playoff shutout. He whitewashed Sherbrooke Saints by the same score during the quarter-finals.

Saturday night at Ottawa, the Senators handed the Royals a 1-1 deadlock with a pair of third-period goals to shade Royals 3-1.

Gary Blaine, Royals forward and part-time defenceman, scored two goals Sunday while Eddie Litzenberger and Gerry Desaulniers netted one each. Desaulniers, Dick Gamble and Lulu Denis helped by holding Ottawa's Howie Hopgale, Leo Gravelle and Dusty Blair-pointless. The three Senators form the highest-scoring line in both regular and post-season play.

REMEMBER WHEN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings was suspended and Detroit players Eddie Wares and Don Grosso were each fined $100 after a New York fault on referee Mel Harwood during the fourth game of the Detroit-Toronto Stanley Cup final 12 years ago tonight. That was the year Detroit won the first three games and Toronto captured the next four and the Stanley Cup.

May Expose A.H.L. Players To Open Draft

CLEVELAND (AP)—A proposal to expose American Hockey League players to an unrestricted draft by National League clubs was studied Saturday by the American League's board of governors.

American League president John S. Bolsinberger, at a meeting of the board here, appointed a committee to meet in Detroit with Clarence Campbell, president of the National League, to discuss the proposal.

The plan, under which National League clubs could draft AHL players at $15,000 a man, allows each National League team to protect 18 players after which all others may be picked up by other National teams. Then, any other players would be available for the American League, or thereafter, to the Quebec and Western Hockey Leagues.

Three AHL teams — Cleveland, Syracuse and Providence — have been operating independently of the National League. But Buffalo, Hershey and Pittsburgh are National League farm clubs and stand to be affected less by a draft agreement.

Solienberger said another proposal—That of affiliating with the Quebec League into a new circuit —also was being considered, and he would appoint a representative to talk to Quebec officials.

YONKERS OPEN AGAIN

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Harness racing in the metropolitan area, banned by numerous investigations during recent months, opens at Yonkers Raceway today.

Since Yonkers closed out the New York season last fall, the laws governing the management of the sport in the Empire state have undergone a complete revision. And the state harness racing commission has been replaced by a one-man czar, George P. Monaghan.

Pentiction Wins

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Penticton V's dumped Nelson Maple Leafs 6-3 Saturday night to win the one game of the Leafs in their best - of - seven British Columbia senior hockey final.

Nelson leads the series 3-2 with one game tied.

Grant Warwick paced the winners with two goals.

SAYS IKE WILL RUN

WASHINGTON (AP) —Chairman Leonard W. Hall of the Republican national committee said Sunday he expects President Eisenhower to be a candidate again in 1956.

Forts Oust St. Boniface 7-5

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Fort William Canadiens moved into the Western Canada Memorial Cup junior hockey final Saturday night defeating St. Boniface Canadiens 7-5 in a sudden-death eighth game of their semi-final series.

The win gave the Forts the best-of-seven round 4-3 with one game tied.

Vic Marks and Don Chiupka led the winners with two goals apiece. Gary McLeod, Max Maddox and Stan Balnak scored once each.

Leo Konyk accounted for two of the St. Boniface goals, Ed Dodge, Bill Sutherland and Al Johnson added singles.

WINS BRITISH SOCCER

KILMARNOCK, Scotland (AP)— Ireland Saturday held Scotland to a scoreless tie in an amateur international soccer match to win the British championship.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Special signals in bridge describe hands that normal bids are unable to do. Since a normal opening bid of one shows a better-than-average hand, an opening of two shows something unusual.

In answer to an opening bid of one, partner is not expected to respond with a bid unless he has more than two tricks. Therefore, an opening of two is used to ask partner to bid with less.

If the opening is two in a suit, partner is ordered to bid even if he has nothing. If the opening is two in no-trump, partner is told to bid only if he has one high card (queen or king or ace) or better.

Rule says an opening of two no-trump shows eight high cards; the true count of eight no-trump tricks. Also permits this to be reduced to seven high cards if they contain four sure tricks.

In expert play this is modified still further, if desired, an opening of two no-trump may be with a hand that promises eight winning tricks of any kind, such as with sequence cards.

SOUTH
♠ A Q 12
♥ K J 8
♦ K J 10
♣ K Q J

This hand contains only seven high cards without four sure tricks. But it has a good chance of taking eight tricks. It may make a game if partner has a high card stopper.

Partner may pass an opening of two because he may not have more than two tricks. Fearing this, an expert may start with a bid of two no-trump and ask partner to bid with only one high card.

What you have just read is not for the tender ears of beginners. I am simply explaining an expert ramification. Its purpose is only so that you will not be surprised if an expert uses it.

But I am telling it to you in fear and trembling. Because now you will start stretching your hands into two no-tnump bids, as if you were an expert. What am I saying?

Duke Will Not Race Yacht Here

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Contrary to published reports in Britain, the Duke of Edinburgh will not sail his racing yacht Bluebottle during his visit to Canada this summer.

This was disclosed today by Bluebottle's sailing master, 31-year-old Lt.-Comdr. Richard Hewitt. He said that under present arrangements the Bluebottle, which is now in Montreal and Toronto, will be back in British before the duke arrives in Canada in July.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood's nicest romance will be climaxed this Sunday when Suzan Ball and Richard Long are married at the el Montecito Presbyterian church in Santa Barbara.

The bride will be beautiful in a French lace gown over flesh-colored satin. She'll use crutches, because she didn't want to wait until she learns to use her new artificial leg.

Suzan's right leg was amputated above the knee Jan. 12 after a year-long battle with cancer. Her comfort and support during the illness was Richard Long, an actor with a maturity beyond his 26 years. Suzan is 21.

A bump during a dance rehearsal for her first starring picture had injured her knee. She ignored the pain, but the knee was hit again in an auto mishap, and doctors advised amputation.

NOT READY TO QUIT

"But I wasn't ready to throw in the towel," she recalls. "I knew I would always regret it if I overlooked one possibility of saving my leg. And if something new were found, perhaps my case could help others."

She found a doctor who believed her condition could be improved by treatment. She put herself under his care, and she seemed to be improving. Dick was her constant companion.

"I had to leave town for a film location in Canada," he says. "As soon as I got on the train, I knew I was hooked. I couldn't live without her. When I got to Canada, I telephoned her and told her so. Luckily, she said she felt the same way."

Still on crutches, she flew to Canada to visit him.

BREAKS LEG IN FALL

One day later he dropped in for lunch at her San Fernando valley home. She remembers: "I noticed my dog, Cezanne, had spilled some water on the kitchen floor and I said to myself, 'I'll probably slip on that.'"

She did. Dick heard her scream and rushed to the kitchen to find her on the floor her leg broken. She was rushed to the hospital. Bone grafts failed to heal the break, and her condition worsened so that an amputation was necessary.

After a brief honeymoon, Dick will return his acting chores. Suzan will resume training with her new leg. She expects to continue her film career later this year.

CROWDED LAND

Belgium, most crowded country in Europe, has a population of 9,725.00, or 710 to the square mile.

AT THE BELLE—The rollicking mystery comedy "Remains to Be Seen", has been brought to the screen by M-G-M, with June Allyson and Van Johnson. June plays a "real gone" vocalist; Van is seen as a "hot drummer", and both become involved, in a murder mystery, divided between suspense and laughs. The film starting today at the Belle Theatre is preceded by a Tom and Jerry cartoon, and a Peto Smith comedy creation.

DRIVE-IN THEATRE
"THE PRISONER OF ZENDA"

Stewart Granger plays a dual role in this adventure drama of intrigue in a mythical European kingdom in the last century. On the one hand, he portrays the king; and on the other, a carefree English tourist who is called upon to take the place of the king when subversive forces, led by James Mason, kidnap the legitimate ruler. Deborah Kerr is the princess with whom the swashbuckling tourist falls in love. Also "The Lady Says No."

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, APRIL 13, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Sum up carefully all related problems confronting you. Stars indicate some irritating conditions. Curb any inclination to extravagance.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Another "be cautious" period, especially for matters other than routine, obligations. A possibility of gain through friendly outside support, unexpected sources.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Show an enterprising spirit despite the moods and methods of others. Avoid "situations" and don't worry over things that may never happen.

July 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Despite unavoidable obstacles you may be able to bridge unusual situations and, carry on to success. Forethought, study, keen observation are master keys now, and you have them to use.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — With ardent desire you will have much of the battle won. It won't be easy, but it seldom is to conquer worthwhile objectives. Never allow morale eclipses to dim you from your goals.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Another friendly outlook for your best. Don't give up. You folks seldom do. Tenacity, sincere thinking overcomes much. Anything good is on the string. Let's go, Virgo.

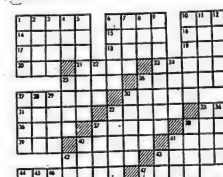
September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Reserved, sensibly conservative conduct is recommended during this mixed period. The user of quick and original ideas—yours or others'—will have grand opportunities today.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Things may and could proceed along the even tenor of their way if you go along sensibly without being upset. You may have to curb self some. This we all must do at times.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—With reliability and a well-balanced, patient outlook, your day and affairs will have top rewards. Avoid restless moods that are both tiring and unnerving. Self-reliance a big aid.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—A made-to-order day in which a thoroughly serious, busy nature can make fine headway. Press constructive activities. An early start with a frank, open, progressive approach best.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Proceed with forethought and measure your desires according to your ability to deliver. These are essentials to success during this mildly suspicious period.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—The exercise of tact and courtesy are highly important now —especially in financial and business affairs, in contracts, loans. Leisure hours favor relaxation, romance.

YOU BORN TODAY are versatile and make congenial, interesting hosts, hostesses, or guests. You can make friends easily, yet are often too sensitive. You cannot be driven but may be influenced, so be careful lest you become prey to unscrupulous people. The faults found in Arians can—and should be corrected. They are: quick temper, impetuosity and, at times, unintentional selfishness. Birthdate of: Jefferson, 3rd U.S. Pres.

New 'Cloud-Seeding' Scheme Expected to Increase Rainfall

SASKATOON (CP) — At least 2,500 anxious farmers have subscribed $5 a quarter-section for a new "cloud-seeding" scheme to increase rainfall on 2,000,000 acres in the Saskatoon area.

Clouds accompanying storm systems would be bombarded with silver iodide crystals, each capable of attracting moisture and beaten to a potential rainfall.

The program, to be carried out by the Water Resources Development Corporation, Denver, Colo., has been endorsed by Dr. B. W. Currie, head of Saskatchewan University.

Saskatchewan's physics department.

NOT RAIN-MAKING

Director of the program is Dr. Irving P. Krick, president of the corporation which is the parent body of the Canadian Weather Modification Ltd. He emphasizes the scheme would not be "rain-making."

The silver iodide would be dissolved in acetone and vaporized in a small generator-furnace operating at 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit; this would send 1,000,000,000,000 of microscopic crystals a minute into ascending air currents.

Water passing out of existing storms would increase in volume, Dr. Krick, a meteorologist, said that only about 10 per cent of the storm cloud formation falls to the ground in the form of rain.

When a storm passed over the area, generators placed at about 12 strategic points in the district would begin operating.

"The 90 to 95 per cent of water vapor drifting in by the storm is what we work on," Dr. Krick said. "We simply help improve on nature by increasing the precipitation over that which would fall."

NO INTERFERENCE

Farmers in districts further on in the path of the storm would not be deprived of natural rainfall. As the storm left moisture there would be a continual build-up of moisture in the clouds.

Previous operations with the silver-iodide process revealed that rainfall was more uniform over areas adjacent to where the generators were operating. The rain drops produced by the chemical seeding are smaller than usual, Dr. Krick said, and this lessened the the danger of soil erosion. It would also increase the water supply.

Dr. Krick also noted that tests had given evidence that this cloud-seeding could be used also to reduce incidence of hail and thunder storms.

Prisoner Climbs 'Red Hot' Boiler To Make Escape

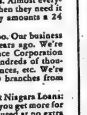
TRENTON, N. J. (CP)—A prisoner in a Pennsylvania county jail at nearby Philadelphia climbed up a "red hot" boiler Sunday in a second spectacular bid successful escape attempt only a few hours after a remarkable breakout from the death cells of the New Jersey state prison here had ended in death for a condemned man.

Maurice Dixon, 25, got out of the Philadelphia prison only to be caught minutes later in a street-car.

Prison guard J. Clark, who made the capture, said Dixon, serving a term for assault and burglary, escaped by scaling a "red hot" boiler in the powerhouse where he was working. Dixon, Clark said, then climbed through a skylight onto the roof, jumped to the 25-foot ground and raced to the street.

Dixon was seen leaving, and Clark notified the police to stop two blocks from the prison. Dixon was found sitting in a trolley, with his head down in an effort to shield his face.

CONDEMNED MAN KILLED



Authorities here meanwhile had little to the blame for the escape from death row of John Vasovich, 34, who later was shot to death by a tower guard.

Two other condemned slayers helped Vasovich in the break—the first from the prison death house in 22 years. But he was cut down by submachine-gun bullets before he could reach the 30-foot walls. He had been scheduled to be electrocuted the week of April 25 for slaying a guard.

One guard was suspended Sunday and officials hinted that additional guards might be relieved of duty.

John J. Van Note, 54, a death house guard for 15 years, was suspended 24 hours later when it developed he was held captive for almost three hours while Vasovich picked the lock of the death cell.

JOHN NIAGARA talks about:
Why Niagara may be a good place for you to borrow . . .
MONEY
We agree with people who say, "don't borrow money unless you must"—however, when you do have to borrow money, we think Niagara is the kind of loan company you'll want to do business with. Here are some features you'll want when you borrow.
You'll find "service" high on your list, we're sure. At Niagara, we do too. We like to think we're prompt—some loans are made in 20 minutes. And polite—our company has been designed to serve our customers. Almost everyone can borrow money at NIAGARA when they need it . . . cash quickly, and on many amounts and 24 month payment period can be used.
"Reliability" will be important to you, too. Our business started in Welland, Ontario, over 25 years ago. We're associated with the Industrial Acceptance Corporation whose Merit Plan has been used by hundreds of thousands of Canadians to buy cars, appliances, etc. We're an all-Canadian Company with over 80 branches from coast-to-coast.
And here are two additional points about Niagara Loans: Rates are lower on many amounts . . . so you get more for your money. Loans to $1500 are life insured at no extra cost to you . . . when you can get this family protection, why do without it?
If you need money for any good reason—just drop in or phone, anytime.

Car Production For Ford Company Up 50 Per Cent

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A 50-per cent increase in passenger car production highlighted Ford of Canada operations for 1953, it was revealed in the directors' report issued today.

The company showed a net profit after taxes of $30,029,513, equal to $12.07 a share compared to a 1952 net profit of $19,942,920, equal to $9.25 a share.

The report said sales of Ford products in Canada were up 36 per cent and a 50-per-cent increase in the previous peak in 1952. Passenger car production was 124,185.

Total sales value, $200,443,029, was highest on record and showed an increase of more than $43,000,000 over 1952. Canadian sales were $237,468,964.

Sales of Ford's English vehicles in Canada were up to more than 5,000 in 1953 from a little more than 1,000 in 1952.

LUNG CANCER INCREASES

NEW YORK (AP) — American Cancer Society says deaths from lung cancer in men have increased 500 per cent in the last 30 years and that "causes of this rise have not yet been demonstrated scientifically." The society dealt with the topic Sunday in its annual report, which declared that periodic check-ups against all forms of cancer can save 41,000 lives annually in the United States alone.

Garson to Make Statement On Imprisonment

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson is expected to make a statement to the Commons this week on imprisonment of a 15-year-old boy in the Prescott Ad Pass penitentiary, near Montreal.

Justice officials said Saturday they knew of no other case in Canada of a 15-year-old being held in prison. However, "soon" 16- and 17-year-olds were also in prison at St. Vincent de Paul.

They said the Juvenile Delinquents Act, which provides for segregation of young offenders, has not been brought into effect in all parts of Canada. In these sections, the ordinary law is applied, no matter how young the offender might be.

The case was brought up in the Commons Friday by Erhart Regier CCF member for Burnaby-Coquitlam, who said the 15-year-old boy is serving a two-year sentence.

Later, outside the House, Mr. Regier said officials told him the boy had been sentenced for throwing an empty tomato can at a man who was attacking his mother. The man was cut on the forehead.

Angus Macdonald, Premier of N.S., Dies in Halifax

Death Ends Public Career That Extended 21 Years

HALIFAX (CP)—Premier Angus L. Macdonald, the father of Canada's Second World War navy, has died early today at the age of 64 to end Nova Scotia politics' most colorful era.

The intense, silver-haired Liberal government leader died in Victoria General Hospital shortly after midnight to end a public career that began in 1933 when he was literally conscripted from the ranks to revitalize a badly-battered Liberal party.

The announcement of his death was made at 4:30 a.m. by Health Minister Harold Connolly, one of those widely mentioned as a possible successor.

Speculation as to who will succeed him will be touched on Attorney-General Malcolm Patterson, 64, and Education Minister Henry Hicks, 39.

Mr. Macdonald entered hospital several days ago to be treated for what was described briefly as "general fatigue." There were reports that he never completely recovered from a persistent cold contracted during a visit to Britain last fall.

EXPECT ADJOURNMENT

It was almost certain that today's scheduled sitting of the legislature would be adjourned after cabinet ministers and members paid tribute to the man who last year led the Liberals back to power for the fourth time in his record of leadership.

Neither Mr. Macdonald's wife nor his four children were at the bedside when he died. The hospital said he succumbed "unexpectedly in his sleep."

Mr. Macdonald's death followed by only a few weeks that of Senator J. Walter Jones, former Liberal premier of Prince Edward Island and another of the Maritime-bred political figures whose vigorous prosecution of the Maritime viewpoint gave their names headline stature across the country in the '30s and '40s.

Funeral arrangements for Mr. Macdonald were not known immediately.

Seek Compromise In Procedure On Palestine Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) United Nations delegates sought today to reach a compromise on an Arab-Western impasse so that the Security Council can get on with debate on the dynamite-packed Palestine issue.

The Arabs, after two fruitless council meetings, still demand that the council give priority to Lebanon's complaint that Israeli forces attacked the Jordan village of Nahalin March 28 and killed five Arabs.

The United States, Britain and France, at the council meeting Monday, again insisted that Lebanon's complaint—and rival Israeli charges also before the council—should be by-passed for a broad discussion of the increasing violence along all the frontiers between Israel and her Arab adversaries of the 1948 Palestine war.

The Soviet Union's Andrei Y. Vishinsky, council president for April, backed Lebanese delegate Charles Malik.

The council recessed until Thursday.

BRAZIL OFFERS COMPROMISE

Brazil's Hugo Gouthier put forward a compromise proposal Monday. He recommended that the council hold the general debate in it to any of the specific Arab and Israeli complaints and with the council taking no action against any country until after the whole debate.

Britain, the U. S. and France supported this. But Malik said he would not accept a general debate unless the council first adopted a resolution on his charge against the Israelis.

Because the question is a procedural matter, Vishinsky cannot veto a general debate.

Denies Charges Of Gerrymander In Riding Change

TORONTO (CP)—W. H. Collings, chairman of the provincial electoral distribution committee which recently set up eight new ridings in Ontario, said today the committee members unanimously approved the report.

Mr. Collings, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Beaches, commented on a claim Monday night by Donald C. Macdonald, Ontario CCF leader, that in the redistribution the principle of representation by population was "crucified on the cross of political expediency."

Mr. Macdonald said the committee had been made a rubber stamp for decisions made earlier by Progressive Conservative members.

In reply, Mr. Collings said the charges of gerrymandering were "squirted off the bias." He said the unanimous report was signed by Premier Leslie M. Frost, C. Grossett, by Liberal House leader Farquhar Oliver and by veteran Liberal Harry Nixon. All of these were members of the committee, as well as by the committee's Progressive Conservative members.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Synopsis — Southern Ontario will enjoy warm sunny weather today and Wednesday with afternoon temperatures in the 60s. Northern and central regions will be warmer with a few showers expected Wednesday evening as a disturbance moves eastward across Lake Superior.

HOUSE DEFEATS NON-CONFIDENCE MOTION OF CCF

First Day of Abbott Budget Debate Held

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has defeated a CCF non-confidence motion calling for reduced taxes for low-income groups and higher taxes from the wealthy and from corporations.

Progressive Conservatives sided with Liberals Monday night in defeating 125 to 26 the CCF motion at the end of the first day of debate on Finance Minister Abbott's budget which does away with the Social Credit group supported the CCF proposal.

Leader by CCF leader Coldwell said the government should have increased the income-tax exemptions for those with low incomes and boosted tax rates on corporations and individuals with higher incomes.

Another non-confidence motion, presented earlier by the Progressive Conservatives, failed in a voice vote in the House. It was moved by J. M. Macdonnell, the party's financial spokesman, and criticizes the government for not reducing taxes which were "an excessive burden" and hampered Canadian producers against competition from abroad.

RENEW DEBATE

Opposition Leader Drew will resume the debate today.

The new confidence proposals launched the House into the budget debate, expected to continue for several weeks.

The PC motion said the House regrets that the government:

"1. Has failed to reduce taxes which are an excessive burden on the Canadian people and place our producers under a severe disadvantage in meeting competition from abroad.

"2. Has failed to reduce unnecessary expenditures.

Exotic Orchids Admired by Queen

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh today spent half an hour at a colorful display of exotic orchids from Ceylon, India and Malaya.

The orchids, arrayed on the wide verandah of the governor-general's residence, included three varieties found in the jungles of Ceylon.

The royal couple left the grows in the jungles of Polonnaruwa—a ruined city which the Queen will visit Wednesday—is regarded as Ceylon's rarest orchid. Queen Elizabeth also received a delegation of brilliantly-robed leaders of the native Veddha tribe in the British protectorate in the Indian ocean about 600 miles from Ceylon.

They gave the Queen gifts of lacquered hand-made bowls, teak carved and a collection of assembled for her children.

British Association With EDC Is Approved

PARIS (AP)—An agreement on the terms of British association with the European Defence Community was signed today by all six members of the EDC interim committee.

Signing for France was Herve Alphand, her representative on the committee and its president.

His signature followed approval of the agreement by "a large majority" of the cabinet of Premier Laniel which considered the pact Monday.

It has been under negotiation with the EDC interim council for weeks.

Prime Minister, Opposition Leader Pay High Tribute to Late Premier

OTTAWA, (CP)—Prime Minister Laurent today joined his colleagues in mourning the death of Premier Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia.

"His very sudden death has shocked us all," he said in a brief, active career in the Canadian political scene," the pri mennister said.

"Those of us who had the privilege of working with him admired the high personal qualities which he showed in every phase of his service of his fellow Canadians. We all became deeply attached to him as a dear, personal friend.

"He was never one to spare himself. He gave his all right up to this very day of his death."

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today paid tribute to Premier Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia as a great Canadian who served his country with unwavering devotion.

"Angus Macdonald will always be remembered for his distinctive qualities of character, of friendship, industry and integrity. I had the privilege of knowing him well ever since the First World War. Our political relations were always cordial and a warm and close personal friendship," said Mr. Drew.

"His deep and hidden pride in Scotland and his Scottish ancestry only served to make him a better Canadian, whose purpose was always to maintain in Nova Scotia and elsewhere those ancient loyalties which were so close to his heart. . . . We can ill afford to lose men like him in these uncertain days."

THE COURSE OF TRUE LOVE?

Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor and Barbara Hutton's estranged husband, Porfirio Rubirosa, are shown as they posed pleasantly for photographers in a Paris night spot just before Rubirosa blew his top at the newsmen, which in turn irked the Hungarian beauty, who left in a huff. Rubirosa became annoyed because the photographers continued to shoot pictures of the Dominican diplomat's sharp comments, became incensed over the Dominican diplomat's sharp comments, grabbed her coat and left him with a group of his friends. Oppenheimer, Leading U.S. Atomic Scientist, Suspended As Govt. Adviser on A-Matters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer has been suspended as a government adviser on atomic matters for security reasons—including accusations that he sought to block development of the hydrogen bomb. He declared he will fight the accusations.

The AEC's confidence proposals launched the House into the budget debate, expected to continue for several weeks.

The AEC action said the House regrets that the government:

"1. Has failed to reduce taxes which are an excessive burden on the Canadian people and place our producers under a severe disadvantage in meeting competition from abroad.

"2. Has failed to reduce unnecessary expenditures.

U.S., Britain Ready to Study Southeast Asia Defence Pact

LONDON (Reuters)—The United States and Britain are ready to examine with other interested countries collective defence arrangements for southeast Asia and the western Pacific, a communique issued today after talks in Washington stated today.

The communique, issued after two days of talks on Indo-China in London between Foreign Secretary Eden and John Foster Dulles, United States secretary of state, said the two countries consider that increasing Communist activities in Indo-China threaten the peace and security of the entire area of southeast Asia and the western Pacific.

Dulles and Eden also discussed atomic developments during their London talks, but no clear decision was reached.

The communique, read by Eden to the House of Commons, said that in the letter, the scientist took up the allegations raised in Nichols' letter including the statement that he had argued against development of the hydrogen bomb in 1949.

Oppenheimer said he as well as the entire general advisory committee on atomic matters, made up of top-level scientists, argued against the rapid build-up of H-weapons, which the scientist referred to as a "crash program."

He said the committee submitted a report to the AEC stating that such a program might weaken rather than strengthen the position of the United States."

But, Oppenheimer said, he and the other members of the committee "did not signals after President Truman announced in January, 1950, that the United States would proceed with the H-bomb program.

"I never urged anyone not to work on the hydrogen bomb project," Oppenheimer said.

McCARTHY NOT MENTIONED

Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) in a television speech last week that development of the H-bomb was delayed for 18 months by asked whether supervisors might have been behind the delay.

Neither Nichols' nor Oppenheimer's letter mentioned McCarthy.

Oppenheimer, now 49, acknowledged that in his younger years he had associated with Communists and contributed to some Communist causes.

The scientist, now director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, declared:

"I have reviewed two decades of my life. I have recalled instances where I acted unwisely. What I have hoped was, not that I could wholly avoid error, but that I might learn from it.

"What I have learned has, I think, made me more fit to serve my country."

OTHER SCIENTISTS

The letter, dated last Dec. 23, advised Oppenheimer:

"It was reported further that you were instrumental in persuading other scientists not to work on the hydrogen bomb project and that the opposition to the hydrogen bomb, of which you are the most experienced, most powerful and most effective member, has definitely slowed down its development.

"The commission has no other recourse, in the discharge of its obligations to protect the common defence and security, but to suspend your clearance (to have atomic information) until the matter has been resolved.

"Accordingly, your employment on Atomic Energy Commission work and your eligibility for access to restricted data are hereby suspended."

In reply, Oppenheimer wrote a letter dated on March 4 which he called "a summary account of relevant aspects of my life."

FRENCH SEVER SUPPLY ROUTE FOR VIETMINH

Communication Line Cut by Secret Drive

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—The French high command announced tonight that French and Laotian forces, executing an encircling movement, have sealed off the Vietminh's main communications route in Laos and central Laos.

The operation, carried out in extreme secrecy during the last 10 days, was accomplished without a fight, the French said.

The communications route which the French and Laotians stopped up is a narrow pass in the lime stone hills of central Laos which spills out to the north into Indochina's valley of Nasingha.

The Communisted rebels had apparently treated the main section of 2,000-foot high limestone peaks for several months, but were caught by surprise by the French-Laotian pincer.

Four London Youths Seriously Hurt in Collision

ERINDALE, Ont. (CP) — Four London youths were taken to hospital in Toronto early today after their car crashed into the rear of a parked transport truck on Highway 5 just near this settlement 15 miles west of Toronto.

In serious condition are Glen Wong, 23, with head and chest injuries, and Mon War Gin, 28, with facial cuts, chest injuries, possible internal injuries and shock.

In fair hospital condition are Don Wong, 18, with shock and concussion, and Guy Young, 20, with possible fractured ankle, shock and minor cuts.

Driver of the truck, Jack Sweetfeger, 36, of Woodstock, was not injured.

Provincial police said the truck driver had made a U-turn and stopped the truck on the top of a hill because of brake trouble. He said he couldn't start the truck off the road because of a soft shoulder.

Unknown Thief Takes $400 From Subway Boxes

TORONTO (CP)—The first man to break into Toronto's subway system in 1954 has lost to ride the underground on a bicycle, police said today.

The unknown thief, whose bicycle was found lying across the tracks in front of the first moving train, stole $150 from a Toronto transit commission bank box and $250 from the cash drawers of two refreshment stands in the down Dundas street station.

Police said the thief entered by the subway entrance before dawn and pedalled more than a mile through the dark, eerie tunnels, riding between the rails within two feet of the charged third rail.

He glided committed past three different cleaning crews, until he reached a station where crews had finished work.

Red Secret Police Chief Flees From Embassy

Granted Political Asylum After Turning Over Papers

CANBERRA (CP) — A diplomat identified as the chief of the Russian secret police in Australia has fled the Soviet embassy here and may break wide open an Australian espionage ring similar to that exposed in Canada after the Second World War.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies told a shocked House of Representatives today the flight of Vladimir Petrov, third secretary of the embassy in Canberra, which has turned over documents which involve Australian "contacts of considerable importance."

Menzies said Petrov has asked for political asylum in Australia and "has disclosed complete willingness and capacity to convey to our own security people a great number of documents and what may turn out to be much oral information and explanation."

MANY CODE NAMES

He said much time will have to be spent in translating and studying the material "to establish the meaning of particular expressions and code names."

He promised to make a fuller statement later. Parliament is on the point of dissolution in preparation for the general elections scheduled for six weeks from now.

Menzies said the Soviet embassy in Canberra before Petrov's request for asylum had been granted. The prime minister consulted opposition leaders before granting asylum, and received their approval.

The high Australian official said tonight that Petrov's wife is still with the Soviet embassy and he understand she has elected to stay there. She is likely to go back to Russia.

"They have no children that we know of."

The official said Petrov "is in real and grave danger."

LIKE GOUZENKO CASE

Menzies said a royal commission will be set up to investigate all aspects of the affair — a similar action to that taken by Canada in 1946 when Igor Gouzenko, code clerk at the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, in an almost parallel action asked for asylum and turned over evidence which resulted in the trial and jailing of Canadians on charges involving conspiracy to spy for the Soviet Union.

"I do not propose to mention people until investigations are over," he proceeded that a coherent case can be prepared. Petrov will of course be questioned surveillance of the persons named, most of whom have been given some inkling of the notice of the security service."

WOULD COMPEL TESTIMONY

Menzies said he told he will seek to strengthen the commission's powers by introducing an amendment to the Royal Commission Act to authorize the commission to compel witnesses to attend and give evidence.

He did not name any names those investigated by Petrov until their methods were known. Investigated activities had been investigated. But they would remain secret in the royal commission's files.

Strange New Chemical in Grain May Keep Down Blood Pressure

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A mysterious new brain chemical may help keep blood pressure down despite arguments and other excitements that stir it up, a physician said today.

The chemical is found in nerve centres deep in the brains of humans, cows and horses.

It is not yet known exactly what it is. New experiments with it were described by Dr. Alfred Leimdorfer of the Stritch School of Medicine, Loyola University, Chicago, in a report before the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Extracts of this nerve tissue injected into dogs and cats cause a deep and long fall in their blood pressure, he said. The nerve chemical seems to play a role in normal regulation of blood pressure.

Nerve impulses and emotional strain undoubtedly play a part in blood pressure, Leimdorfer said. Emotional reactions can bring about a rise in blood pressure, as adrenalin, which send up blood pressure. If that happens often enough or long enough, arteries can become damaged.

The brain receives all sensations and the brain's control switches regulate all reactions. The brain thus is "the main line of attack and defence in this enormous struggle," Leimdorfer said. It regulates what happens under emotional strains.

Expand Search For Missing Couple in Plane

SEATTLE (AP)—More than a score of planes were to take part today, weather permitting, in an expanding search for a missing Canadian West Highlines official and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Coles of Hamilton, Ont., disappeared Monday after Coles, 58, radioed the civil aeronautics administration station here that the engine of his private plane had conked out 10,000 feet over this city.

The CAA lost contact with the Coles at 3,000 feet, although the "blip" of their single-engined Beechcraft Bonanza was followed by air force radar men until it was some two miles from the Seattle-Tacoma international airport.

An air force search plane Monday sighted an oil slick in Puget sound some 20 miles south of here but a coast guard patrol boat sent to investigate reported negative results.

Search was started at Fort Rasrovorny, who disappeared in Tokyo Jan. 28 this year.

Russian officials have consistently refused to confirm rumors that he asked for political asylum and now is in hiding somewhere in the United States.

Reuters said Petrov made a voluntary request through the Australian external affairs organization for political asylum.

NO LONGER RED

This request has been granted, protection provided for Petrov and the Soviet embassy notified, he said. He quoted this statement from Petrov:

"I have to ask the Australian government for permission to remain in Australia permanently.

"I wish to become an Australian citizen as soon as possible.

"I have no protection for myself and assistance to establish myself successfully in Australia.

"I no longer believe in the communism of the Soviet leadership.

"I can no longer believe in communism since I have seen the Australian way of living."

Theatre Managers Protest Proposed Stock Car Races

Theatre managers in the city are objecting to what they term unfair competition from certain entertainment attractions not catering to any municipal and provincial seat taxes.

Belleville's three theatre managers, George Forbes, Frank Mascaro and Willard Fawcett, appeared on city council Monday evening, drawing particular attention to stock car racing which they claimed was in direct competition to theatres.

Acting as spokesman for the group, Mr. Forbes said that theatre managers had no quarrel with sports as counter attractions but they failed to see where stock car racing came within that category.

He noted that theatres are called upon to pay per seat licence fee to the municipality and the province collects an equal amount. He said that the stock car racing was called upon to pay the same fees.

The grandstand at the Belleville fair grounds was built with public money," he went on. "On the other hand theatres have spent large sums of money to renovation.

Alderman Wilbur Countryman pointed out that the city had nothing to do with operation of the grandstand but that the fair grounds, this coming under the jurisdiction of the parks board. He referred the delegation to the parks board.

Southview Ave. To Be Built During Summer

In order to make available additional building lots in Parkwood Heights, work on the street will proceed with the construction of Southview Ave. during the coming summer.

This was voted by council on Monday evening following a brief discussion on the number of building lots which would be opened up with the completion of the roadway.

It was noted that the city owns 12 building lots on this particular street, eight of which are on the other lots are owned by the parks board and by private citizens. Cost of the roadway was estimated at approximately $6,000, payment for which would be under local improvements.

Alderman Thomas suggested that owners of property on Hyde Park and Porter Ave. be contacted for the purpose of these particular roadways constructed at the same time.

It was pointed out that it would be impossible time if construction of these two streets was desired.

Tenders for the widening and repair of Coleman Street, will be called, and tenders calls for construction of street curbs for Bayview Heights will be held up for two weeks. Alderman Countryman suggested that council proceed cautiously with this work and recommended the work not be done until more definite petitioners for it.

Repair of a sprayer machine for use with street patching was recommended.

OBJECTS TO DUMPING

George DeVuyst objected to the dumping of garbage at the intersection of Bayview Ave. and the Bay Bridge road. He said garbage was being dumped here and then set afire.

A city advertisement in the provincial paper for a truck driver, which has a provincial distribution, among 10,000 members, was authorized.

The matter of flooding at the rear of Mrs. Wallace Colton, 458 Catherine Street was referred to the building inspector and engineer. Alderman Moxam felt that grading at the Prince Charles school grounds had something to do with the flooding, but other alderman felt the condition had existed for some years.

A request for a change in the building by-law to allow expansion of a business property on Cannifton road was referred to the planning committee. J. Belanger, owner of the property in question, pointed out that this was a class "B" residential area prevented him from enlarging his building.

City council will obtain a written report as to what authority council has over the board of health, the sanitary inspector and the medical officer of health.

The matter was brought before council by Alderman J. Bradford, who wanted to know if the above board or officials had received notification of insanitary conditions existing in the city address. If notifications had been received he wanted to know why something had not been done about the matter.

Bearers were Rodger Brant, Dick Brant, Willie Brant, and Ralph Scero.

The deceased was born in Belleville General Hospital on March 27th, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Maracle and died at his home, Tyendinaga Reserve April 7th.

He is survived by his parents; one brother, Homer Maracle, 11; and two sisters, Ella, 5, and Margaret, 2.

Interment took place in Pentecostal cemetery, Tyendinaga Reserve.

MRS. SARAH ELIZABETH HILL (Tyendinaga Reserve).

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Hill, Tyendinaga Reserve, was held from her late residence to Zion Methodist church, Church on Saturday, April 10th, for service at 2.00 p.m. Rev. W. Smith officiated.

Bearers were Clifford Maracle, Leslie Claus, Franklin Claus, Melville Hill, Clinton Maracle, and Walter Brant.

The deceased was born in Tyendinaga, the daughter of the late John and Sarah Brant, and has lived her whole life in the area. She died suddenly at her home on Wednesday, April 7th. She was in her 76th year.

She was predeceased by her husband, the late Thomas Hill. She is survived by one son, Leonard Hill, Oshawa; Russell Hill, Cornwall; Dale; Thomas, John Hill, at home, and Abraham W. Hill, at home.

Also surviving are two sisters, Jessie Duly, Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. Wallis Ball, Collins Centre, N.Y.; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

She was a member of All-Saints Anglican Church, Tyendinaga, and Guild and Homemakers' Club.

Rev. Smith took place in All Saints' cemetery.

FRANCIS CARL CLAUS. (Deseronto).

The funeral of Francis Carl Claus, Deseronto, was held from his late residence, Church street, on Saturday afternoon, April 12th. Rev. W. Smith, pastor of the Tyendinaga Reserve, officiated.

The deceased was born in Tyendinaga, the son of the late Arthur Claus and Margaret Maracle, and lived all his life in Tyendinaga. He drowned in the Bay of Quinte, Deseronto, on October 24th, 1953. He was 30.

He is survived by his wife, the former Dorothy Maracle; two brothers, Clifford Claus, Deseronto; Ernest Claus, Tyendinaga, and Donald Claus, Buffalo, N.Y.; and three sisters, Mrs. Ruby Woodruff, Kentucky; Mrs. Marie Lindsay and Mrs. Lou Brant, both of Deseronto.

The deceased had been employed by Verdon Paper Mills and was a member of Christ Anglican Church and the Hastings and Prince Edward Fish and Game.

Interment was in Christ Anglican cemetery.

Mayor Anxious Veterans' Homes Be Sold Quickly

Mayor John Both is anxious that veterans' rental housing in the city be disposed of as soon as possible to allow a greater tax return for the city.

Last night in council Mayor Both tabled a recommendation from the Federal Mortgage and Housing to be petitioned to sell rental houses in Churchill Heights. He noted that legislation had been set up making this possible and he wanted to see "start the wheels rolling as soon as possible."

Alderman Countryman felt the matter should be left with the finance committee to go over some weeks ago. He said the committee had not yet had time to set in motion the information regarding the procedure to be followed.

Alderman Duffy admitted that the finance committee meeting would be one way to get the required information but on the other hand he did not want to put the city in the position of being forced to put up for sale at too high a price.

The same attitude was taken by Alderman Thomas who said the city did not want to force the sale of houses if the present tenants were not in position to pay the price asked. He thought the recommendation should be that the houses be made available for sale.

Mayor Both said that under the set-up present tenant would have the first opportunity to purchase. No one would be evicted. He said that under the present agreement the city gets very little in taxes from the houses. If the houses were sold the city would receive normal taxes.

The matter was referred to the special committee.

REMEMBER FAMILY

COLDWATER (CP)—Three municipalities plan to erect monuments to the pioneer Steele family, once prominent in this district. Planning memorials are nearer Orillia, Coldwater village and Medonte township. Captain Elmer Steele received a $1,000 land grant in Medonte in 1838, after serving in the Napoleonic wars. He was Simcoe county's first member of Parliament.

Parking Meters On Market Square Being Considered

The advisability of placing parking metres on the market square will be considered by the city property committee which will report at the next regular meeting.

Alderman Robert Temple as chairman of the city traffic committee said the idea of placing metres on the market square would be to move cars instead of allowing them to remain parked all day. The matter would have to be considered, however, from the standpoint of interference with market vendors.

Alderman W. D. Vice said the matter was being taken under consideration by his committee.

Whether metres on the market would be a paying proposition was questioned by Alderman Don Thomas who pointed out that the rights of market vendors who have paid for space for three days a week, would have to be considered. With Wednesday afternoon holidays, the metres would be operative only two-and-one-half days a week.

The same aldermam was of the opinion that the market square should be left as a free parking area. He noted it was the only section for parking south of Bridge Street.

Mayor Alderman Temple pointed out that while it would possibly make longer to put metres on the market the city did not issue debentures for their purchase and they would pay for out of revenue. The metres would not cost the city anything.

Alderman Argue felt it might be a good idea to have parking metres operative until 8 o'clock in the evening. Then, he said, parking spaces would be available after the supper hour. As it is every parking space along Front Street is filled early in the evening.

Low Window Awnings Under Council Review

Low store window awnings that knock the hat off pedestrians whose height exceeds six feet constitute a problem in city council last night.

Alderman William Argue introduced the matter tabling a recommendation calling on the city to be prepared that would cause all street awnings to be a height of at least 8 feet above the level of sidewalk.

Many low awnings are both discourteous and unreasonable," the six foot two, alderman said as he introduced the motion.

Alderman Thomas came to the support of Alderman Argue claiming that awnings must be as low as possible if valuable merchandise is to be protected from the sun.

In any event pedestrians "should not be compelled to bow to walk into awnings," he said.

The alderman said that only a few months ago he was confident to fade certain merchandise and low awnings were necessary and less buildings across the street were still without them.

One city official pointed out that there was already a by-law calling for awnings to be over feet above the sidewalk. The matter was referred to the public works committee for investigation and report.

IN MEMORIAM

DUESBURY. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harold James Duesbury, who passed away on April 13th, 1952.

Days of sorrow and days of sadness,
Years of loneliness and pain,
Still he called him home, to suffer
no more,
To rest beside his wife and family.

Sadly missed by his wife and family.

DUESBURY. — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, Harold James Duesbury, who passed away April 13th, 1952.

Who would I give to clasp his hand,
His face to view and see his smile
That made me glad awhile.
—Ever remembered by grandchildren.
Ann.

Council Accepts Company's Offer To Dig Ditch

The offer of the R. J. McFarland Construction Company to dig an open ditch to alleviate flooding conditions on the property of John Smith on Mary Street, was accepted by city council Monday evening.

The flooding condition at Mr. Smith's property has been attributed to council on several occasions in recent months since the raising of property levels at McFarland's and other adjoining properties during the waterworks flood Mr. Smith's residential property.

City Engineer Charles Mott said that from three to five acres drained into the area and expressed doubt that the present tiles across Dundas street would be capable of draining away the water in case of a heavy rain. He recommended a tile of at least 16 inches be placed under Dundas street.

Under the agreement McFarland's would dig the open ditch, while the city engineering department would set the necessary levels, do the installations of the culvert across Dundas street and the necessary backfill. If this phase of the work was carried out.

Council intention however, is to connect the open ditch with one of the existing small culverts across Dundas street.

Bucket Brigade Helps to Save Burning Home

A bucket brigade, members of which were aroused from their sleep at an early hour, were credited Monday morning with saving the residence of C. Stinton, Ameliasburg, from destruction by fire.

Damage amounting to approximately $500 resulted to two rear rooms to which the blaze was confined. Volunteer firefighters and firemen from Belleville, who were called to the scene.

"The bucket brigade really did a marvellous job in holding the blaze until the arrival of the Belleville department," said Fire Chief Gerald Vance. "They had the blaze practically under control by the time we arrived.

The Stinton family was aroused by the smell of smoke shortly before four o'clock. Two rear rooms used as a workshop were discovered to be ablaze.

Mother Welcomes Two Sons Held By Reds 7 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Constantin and Peter Georgescu, held as hostages for seven years in Communist Romania, arrived in the United States today into the welcoming arms of their mother.

The boys, 29 and 15, were accompanied on the flight from Europe by their father, Valeriu Georgescu, 50, a naturalized American who refused last year to spy for Romania in order to obtain the release of his sons from their native land.

Georgescu's revelation to the state department of Romania's spy demands caused the recall of the first secretary of the Romanian legation in Washington following state department charges of blackmail. The state department has not disclosed how it brought about their release.

Communists Gain In Nazareth Voting

NAZARETH, Israel (Reuters)—The Communists emerged today as the strongest political faction in this ancient city where Christ lived as a child.

The Reds made sweeping gains in Nazareth's first municipal election Monday winning six of the 15 city council seats contested by 67 candidates. They also secured 3,054 votes—36.3 per cent of all cast by the 7,773 electorate.

Moslems won four seats, candidates of the United Western churches three and Greek Orthodox church candidates two.

'Political Bogeymen' Assailed by Truman

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — Former president Truman said Monday eight political bogeymen who proclaim themselves custodians of freedom in the United States are making a mockery of the very institutions "they so callously pretend they are seeking to preserve."

"They have no more respect for the due process of law and order than the Communists they say they hate, but whose methods they copy," the former president added.

LIQUOR CHARGES

L'ORIGINAL, Ont. (CP) — Three Fournier, Ont., men Monday were fined a total of $1,400 on liquor charges after police seized liquor at an auction sale on a farm near here Feb. 24. Biggest fine was to Gaspard St. Amour Barber, who paid $1,000 and costs for selling liquor illegally.

QUEBEC WOMAN IN MRS. AMERICA CONTEST

Mrs. Margaret Trudel will leave her children, Nicole, Lise and Paul, behind in Quebec City when she heads south for Florida in hopes of winning the "Mrs. America" title and the $15,000 in prizes that goes with it. Mrs. Trudel is an English war bride who came to Canada in 1945. She won the Mrs. Canada title after submitting her photograph to a panel of judges, but she admits she is "speechless" over the prospect of becoming Mrs. America. (Central Press Canadian).

Autobiography of Former Hastings Minister Relates Inspiring Story

"Dig or Die, Brother Hyde,"—the exhortation that launched the 70-year Methodist ministry of William J. Hyde, an uncle of Charles L. Hyde of this city, has been chosen as the title of his autobiography which is being published this month by Harper and Religious Books.

The book, described as "the heart-warming and inspiring story of 70 years gladly spent in the service of the Lord," spans the career of William J. Hyde from his days as a 22-year-old preacher from Canada who started rebuilding lives and establishing churches on the flat prairie of Groton, Territory of Dakota, in 1886.

His presiding elder's farewell—"dig or die, brother Hyde"—was greeted on his arrival by the leading Methodist in Groton who told him, "I'm sorry you came."

How Mr. Hyde overcame these initial obstacles and thrived on the bleak prairie makes a story packed with anecdote and the simple joy of life. Life in the Dakota territory as experienced by Brother Hyde, was filled with drama and his later life teemed with incidents that will thrill anyone who has ever raised a large family, attended church, or taken an interest in world-history or biography.

Brother Hyde's story, from its beginning as he carved a spiritual kingdom on the prairie, to the days when he was wangling a pipe organ from Andrew Carnegie for a suburban Cleveland church, is charged with every nuance of the human situation from the riotously funny to the deeply tragic.

William J. Hyde was born in Tudor township north of Madoc in 1863, the son of Daniel Hyde who had emigrated from London in 1854. He was one of ten children and the brother of Daniel C. Hyde, the father of Charles L. Hyde.

The future minister was seven when his family moved to Bayside where he attended public school. He later attended Albert College.

He attended Holloway Street Methodist Church and went forth from this church as an exhorter to South Dakota. The Bishop of Groton allotted him a parish that had no church.

He rented a room over a store and started a congregation. In three years he had a church building at a time when there were only nine churches in the territory.

The church sent him subsequently to Chicago as an evangelist, and he labored fruitfully in this field for 30 years.

While living in Belleville he organized the evangelistic team known as the Hallelujah Band which was composed of Willie Hyde, Willie Finkle, Asa Vermilyea and Rev. Enos Farnsworth. They sang throughout the entire Bay of Quinte area.

William J. Hyde married Minnie Grills, who predeceased him by about ten years. He died last year leaving four children, all of whom are living, in the United States. One son manages a book publishing firm in Chicago. His close relatives in this area are a nephew, ex-alderman, Charles L. Hyde and a niece, Mrs. Frank Treverton.

Soo Asks Help For Jobless

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Sault Ste. Marie, with 3,900 unemployment claims listed at the local office, will make a direct appeal to the Ontario government for definite financial aid in supporting the families of jobless whose unemployment insurance benefits have lapsed.

City council Monday night decided to make the request because of the impossibility of the city's welfare budget meeting the growing demand.

Alderman Anthony Nimo blamed recent shut-downs of break-ins on the high percentage of unemployed in the district.

Arena Commission Approved By Council to Sponsor Senior Hockey Team in City

The Belleville Arena Commission will again sponsor senior hockey in the city for the 1954-55 season.

This was decided by city council Monday evening when members approved of a recommendation favouring the commission to operate a team. However, if before the start of the next hockey season a competent private sponsor is willing to operate the team he will be given the opportunity.

Arena Commission Chairman Alderman Gerald B. Hyde told council that last winter's hockey team which failed to make the playoffs had made a profit of $831. Receipts for the season had been slightly over $19,000, with costs of $17,567.

He was of the opinion that considerably more profit would have been made if the team had been a winning one. He said he had brought the recommendation in to council sufficiently early so that ample time would be given to bring in imports for next season's team if these should be deemed necessary to get a winning team.

NO INTEREST SHOWN

Alderman Hyde said feelers put out regarding the possibility of a private sponsor had shown there was no interest.

Aldermen Argue wanted to know if operational costs of the arenas had been taken into consideration in arriving at the profit figure for last winter's hockey team. He was told that this had not been considered.

The question of a playing coach or manager was brought up by Alderman Thomas, who asked if Alderman Smith and Alderman Hyde named as co-managers by the recommendation, should not be named as business managers only.

"That is the intention," returned Alderman Smith. He noted that an effort would be made to secure a competent playing coach or manager.

MUST HAVE HOCKEY

Alderman Hyde noted that hockey was necessary if the Belleville arena was to show a profit on its operation.

Mayor Roth asked about concessions at the arena. "I don't know anything about hockey," he said, "but I understand there is money in catering."

Alderman Reid wanted to make sure the recommendation did not rule out any private sponsor for hockey. He was assured this was not the case.

POLICY CHANGE IS NEEDED

Hon. Walter E. Harris, minister of citizenship and immigration, last week heard a charge that his department was destroying the character of intellectual immigrants by leaving them in menial jobs.

When Mr. Harris addressed a meeting of the Canadian Trades and Labor Club in Toronto, an editor from the Ukrainian Teller told of professors working in bakeries, washing dishes and sweeping floors.

Mr. Harris replied that the cause of this situation was Canada's lack of experience in receiving intellectuals as immigrants. He hoped his department would do better in the future. He hoped the present intellectual immigrants did not mind serving temporarily as guinea pigs.

Mr. Harris appears to have a high capacity for hope, for he had apparently already been told that a number of these people had committed suicide. This intellectual immigrants had committed suicide. This would appear to suggest that they found the guinea pig roles somewhat unsatisfactory.

Every professor who immigrates to Canada cannot be immediately supplied with a position fitting his intellectual capacities. The immigration department ought not to be saddled with such duties. But immigrants should be free to seek whatever types of jobs they wish and to fill any positions they can obtain by their own efforts.

Opposition to such a policy may be expected from some labor groups, fearing competition for jobs in industries where unemployment already exists. The obvious answer is that the immigration department ought not to permit the entrance of immigrants whom it knows are equipped only to fill positions of a type where there is already a more than adequate supply of job-seekers. But it most emphatically does not follow, as a corollary to such a policy, that the department should encourage the immigration of workers in every category in which there is a shortage of supply of labor.

In some cases, where special skills are needed, it will obviously serve both the nation and the immigrant well to "import" workers. But in other fields the lack of available labor may be the result of a low standard of pay. To provide important labor for such jobs is merely to perpetuate the situation which creates the labor shortage. It is unfair to those Canadians who are already holding jobs in these low-paid categories and who otherwise might reasonably expect that the law of supply and demand would force their wages up. And to require that the immigrant serve a specified period of time in such low-paid work has been done upon occasion in the past, is not providing him with that equality of opportunity which would do most to make him a contented and valuable citizen in his new homeland.

SHIGHTLY DECEASED

A coroner's jury in Great Britain decided recently that a man died 24 hours before his heart stopped beating for the last time. This unique decision came about in the following fashion. The victim's heart stopped beating for 3 minutes following a serious accident and he was pronounced dead. Subsequently the heart started beating again and continued to do so for 24 hours at which time it stopped for the second and final time. A pathologist subsequently testified that the man's central nervous system began to disintegrate as soon as his heart-beats ceased and he further testified that the injured man had "died" when his heart ceased functioning the first time.

This is the sort of knotty problem that we are always glad to see someone else untangle. We have heard of people accused of being dead but refusing to lie down, but this is the first time that we have heard of the corpse putting up such a stout argument on his own behalf. It is perhaps as well that no mention is made of the "dead" man being conscious during the 24 hours in which his heart continued to beat. The problem of ruling in that case would certainly be extremely difficult of solution.

With a precedent already established that a man is dead because his nervous system starts deteriorating when his heart stopped beating, is it possible, should such a person return to consciousness or experience lucid interval, with resumption of his heart beat, for him to alter his will? A person given even a temporary reprieve from the threshold of the grave might find his discovered some value in "taking it with him" and in a subsequent lucid moment pass along the secret. What this could mean to the "dead" man's heirs, including the inheritance department of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, is frightening to contemplate.

Disintegration of the central nervous system is not a process confined to the stopping of the heart beat. Central nervous system disintegration, so we are assured by neurologists, commences in everyone, at varying rates of speed, after the age of 30. Should coroner's juries start contemplating the rate of natural disintegration and the accumulated wastage of missed heart beats, the 15-minute time limit on a stopped heart could conceivably be greatly reduced.

None of this should embarrass most of us, or the medical profession either, but scientific integrity and the inexorable pressure of jury rulings might well compose a severe strain on the status of certain citizens whom we have heard described as "dead from the ears up."

There is no easy solution to a problem of this nature. All we can suggest is that in matters of heart stoppage, at least, once is definitely enough.

Ketcheson, Ald. Ingersoll, Ald. Paterson, Ald. McFee, Ald. Marsh and Ald. Panter; ex-Mayor Curtis Bogart, R. Greatrix, Z. F. Milburn, George Wagon, George Dulmage, J. T. Osborne, F. D. Diamond, W. Fanning, W. A. G. Hardy, W. W. Pope, Col. Lazier and Arthur Lewis. However, those present were enthusiastic and a special committee was appointed to carry on the work of getting things started. George Dulmage is the secretary pro tem.

Mr. Joseph L. Walters has returned to New York City after spending a few weeks in "the old home town."

Letter to the Editor

Got Much Information About Early Potteries

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

On January 29, last I wrote a letter of appreciation you were so kind as to publish in your columns. This appeal for information about the early pottery works of Canada and particularly of the pottery of the Hart Brothers and Lazier in Belleville, has met with what I can call only a phenomenal result.

As a result of this letter, I have heard from kiln writers in Belleville, the district, Picton, Trenton, Foxboro and even Toronto. It is evident that the Ontario Intelligencer has a wide distribution and a fine, loyal, co-operative readership. I have at length replied to all who have written me and I find myself now with a wealth of information concerning the old pottery kilns, have made arrangements to visit a number of correspondents in the Belleville district during the season and I look forward to collecting a good deal more of valuable information.

The willing response surely indicates an interest in local history wider than in many communities and I recommend Belleville and district citizens for this admirable trait. It is also gratifying that only your kindness in publishing my appeal has made my success in acquiring all this data. For your kind help I can only say I am extremely grateful.

Manitoba Toots A Horn
(Winnipeg Free Press)

It is widely known—in Manitoba—that modesty is the province's most shy virtue. Let the other nine have their horns. Manitoba, realizing that is keystone, maintains its unblemished dignity. However, there are moments when it is simply imperative to pin on the orchid. One of these is upon us.

Saskatchewan, our youthful sister to the west, is next summer holding her Golden Jubilee, and all are to be a party. Its whistles, ice cream and, of The committee in charge, which seems to have its wits about it, has decided to mark the province's historic sites with Red Silver cairns (oh the quest on the wind! It is the echo of the prairie story.) What to make of Elm of course.

Right then trouble commenced. Sure Saskatchewan had elm logs. Sure the country folk would send them. They did, in considerable quantities. All green. The committee was sunk in gloom. Something must be wouldn't do. So Manitoba was queried. Hasn't that province more than its share in the first place? Couldn't she do something? She could, and she did. Thus it is that elm logs, 3,000 feet of them, are floating their way northward on the Winnipeg gumbo, have been forwarded to Saskatchewan, and Silver cart-making goes on apace.

Everything else you'd like, sister? Happy birthday to you!

Zippers Hard to Fix
(Windsor Star)

One important element in the high costs of living is that of repairing items that break. But get repairing an article now is equal to the cost of it new a few years ago.

This can be illustrated by a simple, useful and very inexpensive item, zipper slippers. These gadgets on wearing apparel, luggage, etc., have become a part of our way of life, so to speak. To a large extent they have replaced buttons and buttons.

When something goes wrong with a zipper, it is annoying, perhaps even embarrassing. Often it is costly. It isn't just the sewing on of a button, at the expense of a few moments and a bit of thread. Few of us have the time to repair a zipper, so a new zipper. This cost is not simple and small as a single button.

Part of the higher cost of repairs is due to the higher wages of workmanship. But it is also due to the complexity of the construction of modern products. The repairs are not simple and small as before. This is apparent in a wide-range of commodities, from the zipper to automobiles.

When designers are turning out items not repairable, they should first they should pay more attention to the simplicity and price of repairs. The phrase about "it not being the original cost but the last cost" has an ever increasing pertinence.

Handling Words Is Difficult
(Rural Bank Monthly Letter)

An artist in words seeks lucidity and melody. If what he says is not clearly understood as he means it then it cannot be had and not spoken. If he uses cloudy language and hard combinations he loses not only the aesthetic enjoyment he might have had in writing but he loses his audience.

If any one doubts the difficulty in the simple presentation of ideas in words, let him attempt to teach, without active demonstration, his son how to ride a bicycle.

His perplexity is not caused by rules of grammar or syntax. Indeed the pupil will would be hardpressed to justify by a rule the use of the right or the left foot in this or that sentence construction.

Clearness of ideas is the first thing that may be gained in analyzing the thought that is to be conveyed, the next is to find the right words, these lie at the base of communication of ideas.

There are qualities needed no matter what language is used. Men of the English race are not good at words in hearing perfect speech. The same principles of thinking apply whether one is to speak French or perfect English.

Thinking itself needs words. Only by throwing our nebulous notions into some sort of understandable language within our minds can we avoid sloppy thinking. Words are the tools of expression and by them we exchange thoughts even with ourselves.

The beginning, then, of communication of ideas is words. Our thinking is done in words. The extent to which we express them, but words also affect our thoughts and help to create that condition our bias in whatever we are thinking of communicating.

Excellent 'Medicine'
(Galt Reporter)

According to a Swedish newspaper the newest medicine for Winston Churchill at his country home in Chartwell, is a two-year-old Swedish woman. Its plaint was that she had never got as much as a glimpse of her famous next door neighbor. Then the prime minister heard about the child and sent her a present.

She came, got tea and cakes and enjoyed Mr. Winston's hearty conversation. As a special stimulant, the P.M. later poured her a generous dram of whisky.

The old lady, who had never had a drink before, enjoyed the gift, and smacking her lips, said: "It was excellent. I must have a bottle of whatever my late husband took before meals each day for 50 years. But, of course, he was a total abstainer."

WASH THOSE GERMS AWAY WITH SOAP AND WATER.

The trouble with so many Yankee wisecracks (I'm afraid they've got mad if I call 'em morons) is that they confuse disinfectants with antiseptics. Even more so, the better the nostrum vendors like it.

An antiseptic, generally speaking, is an agent that opposes or retards decay or spoilage, or slows or reduces the growth or multiplication of germs. A disinfectant is anything that destroys germs (germicide). An antiseptic is ordinarily used in or on the body. A disinfectant is used on inanimate objects or surfaces. In twentieth century practice, that is. In the nineteenth century there was an awful confusion in the medical mind as there is today in the popular mind about antiseptics, germicides and disinfectants.

Probably a good many of you credulous customers and your doctors regard me as a pretty poor sort of writer with a lot of peculiar notions. Nothing your opinion could ever hurt my right. After all, I do roll somersaults every morning; I use rainwater when I can; I use no toothwash and never brush my teeth. You may or may not be influenced by my advice about the germ killing nonsense.

Many letters indicated that I don't believe one should kill anthrax, mad dog, T.B., cancer, smallpox, foot, or in self-defense.

Germs are a form of life, perhaps more vegetable than animal, but it is all right to kill them, for it is always in self-defense.

In the nineteenth century doctors were as intent on killing germs as people are today.

Essential properties of the opposing theories in the gay nineties were two dangerous germicides, namely, phenol (carbolic acid) and corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury), and one most dangerous but more spectacular disinfectant, hydrogen dioxide (peroxide).

Early in the twentieth century all antiseptics, germicides or disinfectants were excluded from operating rooms and aseptic became the operative principle of surgery and obstetrics. Absolute cleanliness, that is. Keep the germs out and there need be no attempt to kill 'em.

Aseptic technique is composed of equal parts of knowledge, skill and conscience. One other than medical students and students of nursing master it.

When a Salvygramp comes bearing a "new, patented, healing, antiseptic" the nethest is out of luck. Try to get this fact through your head: one plain teaspoon of salt solution (teaspoonful table salt to pint of boiled water) or soap and water will remove any germs that can be removed from the surface of the skin surface, and no antiseptic, no matter how powerful it smells or looks, can have any effect on germs which have invaded body tissues. We pay a tribute to the nostrum vendor?

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

Senator McCarthy isn't the only lawyer to have got delusions of grandeur. Investigation is going on in our larger communities, lawyers have risen to considerable popularity and power on the strength of their ability, in cross examination, to bully, panic, intimidate and humiliate witnesses. It is a talent that comes of long familiarity with courtrooms together with a special personality: aridness, pugnacity and domineering. Such lawyers, once established, get a way with murder as far as the bench is concerned, just the way McCarthy got away with murder as far as the president was concerned.

Those of us who have suffered at the hands of such lawyers, even as witnesses, say, in a libel suit recent, can sympathize with McCarthy's victims. The thing is out of control, or are well established. Is there no such thing as bad taste, the ability to be tactful, held in considerable contempt in the larger part of the world. Even Hitler's Germany fought a bloody war against the rise of dictatorship, and one of the things which maintains that the state is everything and the citizen nothing is there are many latent inclinations among ourselves that the status of citizen is slipping while the state of government is taking on some surprising bulges. In the realm of law, of course, we have always accepted for centuries in most western countries that a citizen's rights are amendable to law, but that the law transcends the state and there are many cases of bitter struggle under way with regard to that very point. But when the state is a private party which does with the law as it pleases.

It would be, of course, that there are too many of us in the world now. Citizens are a dime a dozen. Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin felt that way about us. If would be a bad business if we began to feel that way too.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SO YOU WANT TO BE A WRITER!

I have received hundreds of letters over the years from people telling me that they wanted to be writers. Many of them wanted me to tell them how. They become writers for the same reason that one becomes a musician, an artist, a lawyer, or a doctor—because he or she can't help it! I have no advice to write a book though I love poetry.

I recently read an article about Robert Frost. He began as a boy to write poetry, and now he says he writes for love. He writes no prose, for when he does, unconsciously he drifts right into poetry. Poets are born, and so are writers.

Somerset Maugham was educated as a doctor, but while serving as an intern he became so interested in people that he suddenly had the urge to write about them. And so he did, and produced his first novel—and a good one—named "Liza of Lambeth." It was such a success, that he was so continually interested in people, that he decided to devote his life to writing. People were his great interest, and he could write only about them in his naturally interesting manner.

Jane Austen wrote wishes most to do, is usually done. But there are few writers. She produced a great novel, known as "Pride and Prejudice," and now and then Jane Austen. No one told her how to write. She just went ahead and wrote, because she couldn't help it!

That's the way it works out. If you have something to say that people will want to know about, you are reasonably sure to be successful in your undertaking. Every writer had to write his first poem, as well as his first novel. These things don't just happen, however. They come only after great thought, often struggle, and in many cases, hunger and discouragement.

Identified By Dollar Bill
(J. M. Carlisle in Detroit News)

Current favorite story around the capital concerns the time Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, treasurer of the United States, was shopping in New York. Her store purchases were more than her cash on hand. So Ivy wrote out a check. The clerk asked her for some kind of identification. But she had was a telephone credit card, but she had forgotten to sign it. Finally, she asked the clerk if he had a dollar bill. He produced one.

Said she, "My signature is on it."

The clerk decided she was a little "techee" and summoned the manager. Finally, he convinced him that she was really the United States treasurer.

Quickie Art Not Profitable
(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

It may pay to be quick, but it paid Alfred Verbist only $200 when he established a world record in a non-stop marathon by completing a painting measuring 40 hours and 25 minutes of continuous painting.

The young Belgian artist sold all the canvases for an average of $5 apiece when he quit.

The painting marathon seems to be a new gimmick. We have gone through flag-pole sitting marathons, dancing and piano playing marathons, and the six-day bicycle races; but it is indeed a new twist to the cultural arts to see how many paintings a painter can paint without stopping.

IS THEOLOGY OF ANY VALUE?

We often rear people say, "I don't think much of theology. I believe in the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount—particularly the Golden Rule—and I just go along trying to obey it."

One may be pardoned if he fails to work up much enthusiasm over such sentiments. In the first place, keeping the Ten Commandments and practicing the Sermon on the Mount constitute quite an achievement. There is really no possibility of our being able with any considerable satisfaction to live up to such standards unless a Power outside our own enables us so to do.

"[illegible] outside ourselves. The word "theology" means the knowledge about God." Theology declares that a loving God rules the universe and that He has shown his love in the ministry and mission of Jesus Christ. The essence of theology is that we avail ourselves of the resources of power available. If we submit to the will of God and trust Him with childlike simplicity, God indeed we have something in our hearts which will enable us to keep the Ten Commandments. The Sermon on the Mount becomes a message of supreme joy. We can even aspire to loving our neighbor as ourself if we have the power supporting motive and will to do it.

Still more than that, at a time when many in the free world feel themselves adrift, theology is of the terrible night of doubt and soul-searching after the light of the hydrogen bomb, the simple, rather old-fashioned, bravery of faith becomes something of great light, a fixed point from which they may once again find their bearings.

To that frightful fire-ball flare in the Pacific, in testing-grounds, Colonel de Castries and his men, standing fast and brave of hauntion and fear and agony of death in Dien Bien Phu, are a symbol of the same fact, indeed answer. They demonstrate that the human spirit, behind bunkers is learning how to exterminate itself individual courage and discipline are not yet outmoded concepts, and that men still can take pride in their manhood.

Indo-China's Gallant Men
(Hamilton Spectator)

Colonel Christian de Castries and his outnumbered garrison cling to Dien Bien Phu with a tenacious stubbornness, and the world owes them a debt of gratitude that perhaps it does not realize.

The hawk-nosed Frenchman and his polyglot little army of fellow-countrymen, Foreign Legionnaires, Moroccans, Negroes, with their sweat and blood, a grim struggle, are writing another bright page in the history of gallantry.

Scores of millions of men and women far out of earshot of the Communist guns in the jungles surrounding the Indo-China war into focus, giving form and meaning to fighting words that have been remote, unpopular, even ignored because they were so many confusions and unanswered questions in it.

Still more than that, at a time when many in the free world feel themselves adrift, theology is of the terrible night of doubt and soul-searching after the light of the hydrogen bomb, the simple, rather old-fashioned, bravery of faith becomes something of great light, a fixed point from which they may once again find their bearings.

Motorists Asked To Be Careful During Holiday

"Children should be seen and not heard, is a modern version of an old saying," says Belleville's Chief of Police S. W. Probert "and in today's traffic it is certainly a point to keep in mind.

"Children are more carefree than careless, and it is an adult responsibility to keep them from harm they encounter through inexperience.

"In the schools, safety education begins at an early age and it is surprising how few accidents happen on the way to or from school.

"By far the greatest proportion of school child traffic accidents occur while the child is under the jurisdiction of parents. So mother and dad have some homework to do when it comes to the safety of their children.

"Setting a good example to children is the most important rule for parents. If teacher instructs them to cross only on the green light and mother jaywalks across the street against the red on Saturday morning, Mary child is confused and safety lessons are wasted.

"Motorists too, must keep in mind that the high performance of modern vehicles demands high performance on the part of the driver; in the vicinity of schools, near parked cars, or where children are playing, the motorist must be sure at which the driver can stop in time to avoid an accident if a child should suddenly dart into the road.

"Posted speed limits are the maximum speeds permitted under ideal conditions. They are 'Child Safe' but a street crowded with children can scarcely be called ideal. Good driving judgment and sense insist on a reduction of speed under these circumstances. Accidents will be reduced if drivers will act as if their own child might turn out from between those parked cars.

"Easter will be here in a few days. This is a ten-day holiday for the 800,000 pupils of Ontario schools. Normal school-day habits and discipline will be set aside. Mr. Motorist, please think of this and be ready for emergencies."

Belle Haven Club Auction Brings Fine Response

On Thursday evening, many members and friends of the Belle Haven Club for disabled and handicapped persons of Belleville and district, gathered at the Orange Hall, where a very successful auction sale was held.

At 7.30 p.m. Mr. F. E. Fulwell, prominent local lawyer and member of the club and chairman of all the club's public meetings, in his usual capable and genial manner, welcomed everyone to the event. A short program was put on after the singing of the National Anthem. A lovely vocal duet, "Bimbo" was given by Freida and Larry Cambo. Larry is only four years old. Miss Dorothy Mitchell, a member of the club, rendered a fine piano solo. Two songs, "Dorgie in the Window" and "Heart of My Heart," were sung in an excellent manner by Miss Florence Smith. Russell Green, a member of the club, then played two fine violin solos. His accompanist was a pianist from Shannonville. By request, Miss Mitchell played "The Old Rugged Cross" in her usual fine style.

At 9 o'clock sharp, the auctioneers, Bunnett and Sullivan who very kindly and generously donated their time and services, started the auction sale. The articles donated and sold were many and varied, including electrical appliances, furniture, canned goods, linens, leather goods, clothing, cosmetics, groceries, radio, vouchers, tickets, potatoes, coal, books, chickens, paint, soft drinks. Members of the club donated their own lovely work such as leatherwork, weaving, sewing, knitting, crocheting and artificial flowers. Friends of the club donated homemade pies, cakes, cookies, fruit, pickles and jams, crocheting, sewing and knitting. Several cash donations from the club's friends were gratefully accepted and deeply appreciated by the club.

The hard, long, and efficient work of the auctioneers along with the brisk, enthusiastic buying of the crowd, made the sale a huge success.

Donors and buyers were from Belleville and district, Prince Edward County, Trenton, the Bellville Road, Shannonville, Tuxboro and Napanee.

The members of the club express their gratefulness and deep appreciation to each and everyone who in any way, helped to make their sale so very worthwhile and successful. Because of the generosity and kindness of all, many disabled and handicapped persons of Belleville and district will be aided in a fitting way.

RCAF SABRE BEATS COMET JET RECORD.

Sqdn. Ldr. Robert Christie of Vancouver established two speed records in a flight from Vancouver to Ottawa in an RCAF Sabre jet. Aided by a tailwind, he flew the Vancouver—Ottawa 2,296 miles in three hours 46 minutes. Best previous time was made by a British Comet, four hours and 23 minutes. From Winnipeg to Ottawa the Sabre took one hour, 51 minutes compared to two hours, ten minutes taken by the Comet.

Questions Will Be Answered At Next Meeting

Questions relating to the recent lay-off of several men from the city public works department and who are now off the city payroll will be answered in writing at the next meeting of council.

Alderman Robert Temple wanted to know how many men had been laid off; who the men were and how long they had worked for the city. He also wanted to know if there has been any consideration given to the men for pension and whether there was any plan or policy behind the lay-offs.

Chairman of public works, Alderman Bruce Smith admitted there had been some lay-offs. These men had been laid off on the recommendation of the city comptroller, city engineer and works foreman.

"I feel that if we are paying city officials to run the city's business it is up to them to run it efficiently," he said. "If they find men, who are incompetent or who are not doing a job, then they should be laid off."

Alderman Countryman suggested that Alderman Temple write his questions for the city comptroller and that the answers be given at the next council meeting.

Clerk Comptroller H. D. Bateman said there had been four men laid off from the public works department. Two of these were elderly men, who were unable to keep up with younger men. Two others had belonged to the night gang, which had been disbanded, the night foremen being given work elsewhere. He said there was no pension provision for hourly-rated employees.

If there had been other lay-offs it had been due to lack of work, the clerk-comptroller said.

Council Turns Down Proposal City Manager Form of Govt. Be Voted on by Electors

City Council Monday night turned down a recommendation that would have led to a city manager type form of municipal government for Belleville.

Had the recommendation carried city taxpayers would have been asked to vote at the next municipal election on whether or not they favored a city manager type of government over the present system.

At a previous council meeting Alderman Wilbur Countryman presented a notice of motion that he would bring in the recommendation with respect to a city manager and the matter saw initial discussion by council when introduced last night.

Mr. Countryman presented a long list of reasons as to why he favored a city manager over the present type of city government, stating if this was introduced it would save council a great deal of detail at council meetings. Instead of attending all the time consuming detail council would be a policy making body and the city manager would carry out that policy, he said.

He noted that the city manager type of government was in effect at Niagara Falls and at Sarnia. There were twenty centres in Quebec which had the system, while it was also popular in the United States.

"What about Chatham?" asked Alderman Tice. "They had a city manager there and then went back to the old system."

"They were unfortunate in getting the wrong man," returned Alderman Countryman. "Anyway it is not the number of centres that matters. The matters is whether a city manager is more efficient."

NEED RIGHT MAN

Alderman Duffy agreed that the city manager type of government was more efficient, the only weakness being that the right man was vitally important.

Alderman Hough the question of what the salary of a city manager might be and if it was considerably more than the present clerk-comptroller was receiving, would not having be offset.

"You pay for what you get," returned Alderman Countryman, "and in my opinion we would save thousands."

Alderman Thomas suggested that if the only advantage of a city manager would be that he had more authority, why not merely change the present by-law to give the clerk-comptroller more authority.

Alderman Temple felt the whole basis of municipal government was that of representation of the people by the aldermen. He wanted to know how the suggested system would differ and what powers would be taken away from council.

"Under the present system an alderman can get up and ask questions, and the people have the right to know," he said.

"The weakness of the present system is that we as aldermen are subject to a lot of outside pressure," said Alderman Duffy. "A city manager would not be subject to such conditions."

Another weakness of the present system is that council members were making decisions on matters of which they knew nothing.

"Representation by alderman is fine, but it is not efficient," he said. "Here we are a bunch of amateurs deciding on matters that should be decided by professionals."

NOT INTERESTED IN NUMBER

"I guess then a benevolent dictator is the best form of government," replied Ald. Temple.

Alderman Keegan asked if it was the intention to reduce the number of aldermen if a city manager type of government was adopted. Ald. Countryman replied he was interested in getting the city manager principle started and he did not care how many aldermen there were.

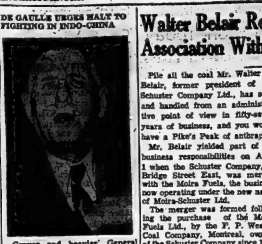
Voting for the electors to be given the opportunity to vote on the city manager type of government were: Mayor Roth and Aldermen Argue, Clarke, Countryman, Duffy and Keegan. Opposing were: Aldermen Bradford, Hyde, Moxam, Reid, Safe, Smith, Temple, Thomas and Tice.

Mystery Blast Rocks North Carolina Town

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)

Rescue workers today probed the ruins of three downtown buildings demolished Monday by a mysterious explosion. The bodies have recovered from the debris and officials fear two more may be hidden in the rubble.

About 15 persons were injured in the blast which centred in a furniture store half a block from the heart of Goldsboro's business district.



The dead were identified as M. W. Edwards, 60, owner of the store: Mrs. Eunice Smith Collins, 34, cashier; and Luther Shelton Denning, 16. Two other store employees are missing.

U.K. REASSURES CUBA

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba has received official assurances from the British government that the latter will suffer no harm from the bacteriological warfare tests Britain will undertake soon in the Bahamas. In a recent friendly note to the British Government, Cuba expressed fears that the scheduled tests so near its coasts might have harmful effects.

DE GAULLE URGES HALT TO FIGHTING IN INDO-CHINA

Grayer and heavier, General Charles De Gaulle, is shown as he held a press conference on the Indo-China subject. He stated that France should attempt to halt the war through international negotiations or other means. The general dealt at length with the H-bomb, which he said, could destroy humanity in an instant. He openly praised Marshal Juin as a great military chief and condemned both the French government and NATO for their recent action against Juin. — Central Press Canadian.

Better Marketing Methods For Cheese Proposed

TORONTO—Demand for better marketing methods for cheddar cheese has been made by Roscoe Robson (P.C., Hastings E.) in the Legislature. He stressed the need for better and more attractive packaging. He thought that cheddar cheese, mostly produced in local, neighborhood factories, should appear in the markets in readily identifiable packages. He suggested a government grant to the Ontario Cheese Producers Association to encourage research into the subjects or both improved packaging and marketing.

Hon. George Doucett, Acting Minister of Agriculture, told the House that the Ontario Agricultural College carried on a great deal of research, and that funds voted this year could be used in the direction suggested by Mr. Robson.

Walter Belair Recalls 57 Years Association With Coal Business

Pile all the coal Mr. Walter N. Belair, former president of the Schuster Company Ltd., had purchased and handled from an administrative point of view in fifty-seven years of business, and you would have a fair stack of anthracite.

Mr. Belair prided part of his business responsibilities on April 1 when the Schuster Company, 34 Bridge Street East, was merged with the Moira Fuels, the business now operating under the new name of Moira-Schuster Ltd.

The merger was formed following the purchase of the Moira Fuels Ltd., by the F. P. Weaver Coal Company, Montreal, owners of the Schuster Company since 1934.

Formation of the new company saw one of the oldest coal companies in the city cease private operations.

FORMED PARTNERSHIP

It was back in 1899 when Walter Belair and the late William E. "Bill" Schuster formed a partnership after purchasing one of the Belleville agencies of the old Rathbun Company. The Rathbun Company, well-known organization operated agencies throughout the district which handled its large holdings of lumber and sawmills in the north country.

Mr. Belair was connected with the Rathbun agency here for two years prior to the formation of the partnership.

Mr. Tom Holgate joined the partnership but left after being associated with it for five years.

In 1904 the business was formed into a joint stock company known as the Schuster Company Ltd., under which it has operated until the recent merger. Mr. Belair bought Mr. Schuster's shares in 1930 and has operated the company himself since that time. In the First World War Mr. Schuster had served overseas with the Canadian Forestry Battalion.

The company conducted its business until 1934 when it was purchased by the Weaver Coal Company Ltd. Mr. Belair stayed with the organization in the capacity of president and general manager. He is remaining with the new company in a limited capacity.

Mr. Belair, who was born on Albert Street, in 1880, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex Belair, went to the high school classes directly into the coal business.

"Gosh were the days when anthracite was eight and nine dollars a ton. Now it is $26.50 and $27.75 thanks to the machinations of one John Lewis of Pennsylvania," Mr. Belair commented.

CHARTER MEMBER

He is a director and charter member of the Belleville Club and was an ardent golfer and curler until a short time ago when health conditions forced him to relinquish his favored outdoor pastime. One of the better known bridge players, he has been a member of the Belleville Bridge Club for the past eight years.

He was a member of the Belleville Curling Club until the curling rink was removed in the late twenties. He had been curling at least 35 years.

Mr. Belair is the sole remaining charter member of the Belleville Council Knights of Columbus, and a past grand knight of the organization.

He married the former Vivian Adams, of Belleville, and eight children, two boys and six girls were born to the union. There are 30 grandchildren.

A son, John, is the Rev. M. J. Belair, C.S.B., a Jesuit priest at St. Mary's University, Halifax. The oldest son "Jimmy" is in charge of yard and dock operations for the company, having held that position for the last twelve years. The daughters are Mrs. Harold O'Connor, Katonah, N.Y.; Miss Margaret Belair, at home; Mrs. E. Moore, Toronto; Mrs. William Lewis, Toronto; Mrs. Roy Weller, Guelph, and Mrs. Vic Pickwell, of Belleville.

The offices of the former Schuster Company will be removed this week to those of the new company on Bridge Street. They will be taken over by the Canadian Pacific Telegraphs which, manager Jack Hinchey says, needs the space due to increased traffic and expansion of staff.

Weddings

BILLEN—GUMMER

CAMPBELLFORD — The Rev. Dr. D. Mansel Smith officiated at a pretty wedding in Elmbank United Church on Saturday, when Betty Anne Gummer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gummer, of Victoria Street, Campbellford, became the bride of William Lewis Billen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. (Jack) Billen, of Seymour township.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length white gabardine, with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Zoeba Billen, attendant for her sister, was wearing a grey gabardine suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groomsman was Donald Clements.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother was wearing a navy dress, white hat and a corsage of pink roses. The bride groom's mother also received, wearing grey with a navy hat and yellow roses.

Guests were present from Peterborough, Warkworth, Toronto, Dartford, Norham, Cobourg and P.E.I.

The bridal couple left afterward for a wedding trip to the United States. On return they will live on the bridegroom's farm in Seymour North.

Prior to her wedding, the bride was honored with a shower of miscellaneous gifts for her friends, and also by a shower given by her fellow employees at the Ball Shoe Company, in Campbellford.

Alliance Tabernacle Pledges $4583.50 For Foreign Missions

The annual missionary convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, West Moira and Coleman Streets, concluded with a note of triumph in the Sunday evening service, with the church filled to capacity.

Mrs. Ethel Bell, of French West Africa, told of her experience being on a raft at sea for twenty-one days after shipwreck. "Only God could perform such a miracle in saving us," said Mrs. Bell. Other speakers in the convention were Rev. E. Irwin, of French West China, Rev. J. Anstiss, of India.

The pastor, Rev. Eric Strain, reported that the Belleville branch of the society had donated $4,220.25 on this year's effort. The pledge made in the Sunday services was $4,583.50. "This money is to foreign missions only," said Rev. Strain, "and such a splendid pledge is a credit to this church and the city of Belleville."

Ladies Bowling League Closes Season With Turkey Dinner

Mrs. Spafford Speaks to Aikens W.M.S. on 'Mission Work Today'

The Easter thank offering meeting of Aikens W.M.S. Auxiliary was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Harold Aswell, with 18 members, one visitor and the Baby Band members present.

The meeting opened with quiet music by Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton and suitable Easter hymns were sung. Mrs. Aswell read the theme "New Life Through Love" and the call to worship, "Jesus stand among us, in Thy risen power, let this time of worship be a hallowed hour."

Mrs. Moon continued with the meditation, based on the Easter Scripture passage from Matthew 28.

The Easter thank offering was dedicated by the singing of "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." Mrs. S. Marshall led the discussion on the program for the month on "Radiant Lord." She was assisted by Mrs. O. Pearson, Mrs. R. Marshall and Mrs. Ted Jones. Many interesting things were learned on the country of Korea and its people. They are said to be a hard working, patient, kindly, people and there are so ready to listen and receive the gospel that Korea is one of the brightest spots of missions, so, therefore, may the material be for their needs. Mrs. Jones as dedicated Christian men and women, who, under the direction of the Korean church, can help train many others as doctors, teachers, pastors or social workers.

TODAY'S MISSION NEEDS

Mrs. Stanley W. Spafford, Bay of Quinte Conference Branch president, brought a challenging address at this meeting. She compared the missionary work of this time to the new super-highways being built to accommodate the travel of today. Yesterday's ways of doing missionary work are not adequate for today's needs. The work of the Christian church throughout the world has suffered a setback.

A group of representatives from several countries: India, China, Japan, Indo-China, Africa, England, France and Germany met last summer to talk over this situation and study changes that must be made. A future meeting is planned for this year. Some of the changes underway were brought out. "We should," said the speaker, "learn to depend more on Christian nationals and make it possible for them to be better trained to work in their own countries rather than sending more missionaries from our own country. Also let us see that our missionaries are sent to be placed by the church on the field, as they know where and what the need is, and that our money be spent as they see fit.

"Another change that would be helpful is the sending of short term missionaries to do special work. The lack of adequate Christian literature is very real. The question is asked, 'Who will they read after they have learned to read?' There is a great need for the writing of simple stories for adult Indian readers, so that our missionaries be given special training in journalism.

TEAM WORK

"Team work among nationals was also stressed as being very effective. A unique suggestion for the training of people, who are going into foreign countries to work, be given short term lay workers so they may be a Christian witness as they go about their task. It is important that our workers of today should be Christ-like. That is if the most greater some where other than where they have been stationed that it would be possible for them to be moved.

"Greater co-operation among denominations was another change that was suggested. For instance at the mission field in Nelore, India, we have a W.M.S. supervisor of nurses and at Madras there is a Medical College we have Dorothy Pearson, but other denominations have their workers as well.

"Greater co-operation at home is being stressed this year in our study of India, one program for all denominations is being prepared by the Dominion board. It is our duty to endeavor to make the whole church membership-mission conscious. Bible study is one way we can help as well as teaching our children in the home the same faith we have "Christian stewardship is of vital importance and we can do much in this respect if we really feel the need. All these changes require new roads and it takes money and general. "A raised allocation is a symbol of the need."

MORE MEDICAL CARE

"In India there are 77 million homeless as well as many thousands of displaced persons, and many never have medical care from birth to death. The average person in India lives only to 27 years of age."

Mrs. Spafford left a challenge with each one present to put much more into the work of the Christian church and Christian missions.

Mrs. Moon expressed sincere appreciation to Mrs. Spafford for a fine address.

Reports of the annual meeting of Belleville Presbyterial held recently in Napanee were given by Mrs. H. Hamilton and Mrs. Fred Moon.

Mrs. E. Hubble thanked these ladies for interesting detailed reports.

The president brought this informative meeting to a close by repeating the Easter benediction. "Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep . . . make you perfect in every good work to do His will."

Mrs. Moon and her executive served refreshments during the social hour.

Out-of-Way Spots Visited By Army Girls

MONTREAL (CP) — For more than a year now two Canadian girls have been driving to out-of-the-way spots in Ontario with their Gospel message and offers of help in all sorts of emergencies.

Now, Captain Peggy Green and Lieut. Jean Perry of the Salvation Army plan to continue similar missions in isolated parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Quebec and the Maritimes.

After their present respite in Montreal, they will drive, to Winnipeg in May. They plan to be back in Quebec in the autumn, and next spring will go into the Maritimes.

LIVE ON ROAD

Known affectionately as the "Salvation Army Gypsies," the young women have lived on their small truck and preached from it since it was dedicated in Toronto last year by commissioner William Dalziel, Salvation Army commander for Canada.

Main object of their venture, say the girls, is to carry the Gospel to settlements where people cannot get to churches.

They have visited the sick, attended the poor and helped the injured every place they went.

SARNIA TORNADO

Soon after hitting the road last year, the team ran into the Sarnia tornado. They worked among rescue workers and homeless victims of the storm for several days.

In northern Ontario later they heard of serious forest fires, secured a large food supply from the department of lands and forests and drove into the fire area. For days they worked around the clock, feeding and caring for fire-fighters.

Both are musicians and often put on an impromptu concert at some lonely spot. Peggy playing the accordion and Jean a mouth organ.

They expect no thanks for their efforts. "All we want," they explain, "is to drive our caravan wherever God needs us."

Views on Emigration Given CP by Scotswoman

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—When it comes to emigrating to Canada, it's the woman who pays.

That is the reasoned view of Mrs. Margaret Clark, a Scotswoman who went to Canada, farmed on the Prairies, started a kindergarten school in Saskatoon and also lived in Winnipeg and Regina.

Mrs. Clark, now back in Britain, was asked by The Canadian Press for her views on Canada. In a written reply she said she considers it will be many years before Canada is mature enough to offer women a life that is broadly cultural rather than universally practical.

SAYS WIVES UNHAPPY

"In every case of emigration that I know of," she says, "the wife is more unhappy and either ostracizes it as well as she can at present because of the opportunities for women in the future, or cannot conceal it and affects the whole family."

Unlike the malcontent minority found among any group of emigrants, Mrs. Clark is neither disgruntled nor embittered. She came back from Canada for personal reasons. She admits some types of women—those particularly interested in sports—may do well in Canada, but she is all right where they are.

"The unhappy wives I mean are living in all parts of Canada—in Vancouver, Montreal, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina and Kingston, Britain. It is taken for granted one can have friends with these tastes and who understand for example the use of an object simply because it is beautiful and not because it is useful or practical."

SOCIAL DRAWBACKS

Two disturbing aspects of Canadian life were lack of privacy and the attitude of "nice" women to drink.

"In the first case people 'pop in' or visit no matter what you are doing, and in the second case the social advantages and art of drinking in moderation are not commonly recognized. I realize both are the result of the pioneering days, but I will take a few more years for Canada to mature in these things.

"Personally, I learned a great deal in Canada—to be adaptable, for instance, and to be a good cook. But no one tried to learn anything from me nor indeed was anyone even interested in anything outside her own way of life. A very soon found it was better not to mention my previous interests, as Canadians only thought I was shooting a line. Other women have had similar experiences. I could retell them by the dozen."

There was one exception — Mrs. Clark met only Saskatoon—but that was a professional group whose job was to be interested in others.

In recounting her experiences, Mrs. Clark acknowledged the dangers of generalization and stressed that she bears no grudges whatever. She now lives in Ickenham, Middlesex, "about 20 minutes from London." She gave this parting tip:

"Let young men look to Canada, but let them look very young and alone. They will be able to make better use of their environment and be happier in the long run if they marry in Canada after they have become established."

East-Tyendinaga W.I. Elects Officers

The annual meeting of the Tyendinaga East Branch of the W.I. was held on Friday afternoon last in the home of Mrs. Charles Aswell, with 23 members and three visitors present.

The president, Miss G. Mowers, was in charge of the meeting.

The treasurer's report was given by the secretary treasurer, showing a favorable balance for the year, and the standing committee convenors gave full and informative reports on the year's activities.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Mrs. Roscoe Robson, the district president, was the guest speaker, and conducted the election of officers, which resulted as follows: president, Mrs. Frank Thompson; vice president, Mrs. Grant Kimmerly; 2nd vice president, Miss Irene Mowers; secretary treasurer, Mrs. Harold Kimmerly; district director, Miss Irene Mowers; publicity, Miss Geraldine Mowers; Mrs. Robert Harvey and Mrs. Harold Wimbury; pianist, Mrs. Ernest Waddingham.

Conveners of standing committees: Community welfare and public relations, Mrs. Garry Provost; agriculture and public health, Mrs. Roy Stafford; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. Cameron Aswell; historical research and current events, Mrs. Wm. Bell; citizenship and legislation, Mrs. Fred Keyworth; resolutions, Mrs. Charles Akey; sick and flower, Mrs. R. Hubble; Mrs. Miles Aswell; social committee, Mrs. L. Layford and Mrs. Ernest Waddingham.

Two resolutions were drafted to be taken to the next meeting.

Miss Mowers thanked Mrs. Robson for her inspiring talk which was enjoyed by all present.

Canadian Girls In Training To Hold Camp

TORONTO (CP)—Another Canadian Girls in Training camp, the second of its kind, is scheduled for 1956, the CGIT said today.

Leaders of the inter-denominational organization for girls, meeting here at a joint conference of 28 provincial CGIT committee chairmen and secretaries in the Canadian School of Missions, decided to begin plans to the fall for a camp similar to the first one held at Skeleton lake, Ont., in 1952.

The site of the camp has not been decided but senior CGIT members from all 10 Canadian provinces are expected to attend. The purpose of the camp will be to give the older girls a chance to voice their views on improvements for CGIT programs, policies and aims.

Mrs. W. Hunter was in charge of the program, which consisted of reading by Mrs. A. D. Provins, Mrs. C. Marisette and Mrs. R. Tucker, a solo by Mrs. Garnet Dupre accompanied by Mrs. C. Akey. A guessing jar of jelly beans was won by Mrs. Bruce Mumford and a jigsaw puzzle contest won by Mrs. A. Hudson and Miss Bowers.

A demonstration was given by Irene Mowers on how to make a Christmas corsage, after which the meeting closed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TO SERVE FIRST COURSE OF PROGRESSIVE DINNER

Mrs. Beeckman:

In May my Camp Fire girls Group is having a progressive dinner soon. She is serving the first course, fruit cocktail. What do you suggest there should be on the table besides the centerpiece and the silver necessary for the course?

2. There will be present the troop leader, the assistant leader, and the members of the group, including of course my daughter, the hostess. How should they be seated? — E.

1. Your daughter has a wonderful opportunity to make this first course a Festive First Course. . . a gay introduction to the courses to follow the the various homes in which the group are "progressing". The centerpiece could not, I think, be just the customary centre bowl of flowers, but an arrangement of more interest and imagination.

For example, there might be a low flower arrangement on the table, . . perhaps small white dark-green flower pots (easy to paint) in which are growing Spring flowers of colors in harmonize with the colors of the fruits in the fruit cocktail Hyacinths, for example, of various colors, or any other Spring flowers. Beneath the two or three centre flower pots, she might use a mirror, or a mirror plateau, if she has one or can borrow.

Instead of flower pots, she might charmingly arrange flowers in little straw baskets, easy to locate in this Easter season. Or to make a lovely flower garden effect, the flower pots parade down the centre, and, as a favor at each place, a small basket of small flowers, or perhaps a colorful candy Easter eggs. Since this is to be a dinner, there should be candles; perhaps tapering like Tulips or a very light green. The low candlesticks can alternate with those of the center decoration. . . . to give a lovely "light" to the table-setting.

2. The troop leader, who would be the guest of honor, should be seated at the right of your daughter, the hostess, and to the left, the assistant leader, to receive the next degree of honor. Then the other members of the group according to their positions in the Group.

I think it would be charming to have decorative place cards, . . . to be taken as favors by the guests, along with any other favors placed at the individual places.

BREAD-AND-BUTTER PLATES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At our informal little dinners I always have the bread-and-butter plates placed, because I serve certain hot-roll specialties which I've learned to make and which our guests love once in a while. I'm quite sure when these plates should be removed. The maid, I have to serve these dinners before these plates should be removed before the salad course is served. But I should think it would be better to leave them on the table until after the salad course, and not until the dessert course. What's right? — M.W.

Bread-and-butter plates remain on the table through the salad course. . . they should be removed just before the table is cleared for the dessert course. This is the reason, for they would of course be used to hold the heated crackers or whatever accessory is served with the salad.

HALF-HATS RIGHT FOR MANY OCCASIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A widow, 45 years of age, will be married in her home, either at 5 P.M., or after 6 P.M. Fifty guests have been invited. I will cut and serve the cake. Should I wear a hat.

C.

My advice is that you wear a hat, at either hour. Today it's very easy to choose a pert little hat, or half-hat, or even a wide bandeau that will be just right for such a festive occasion. It can be a bit of a pleasething in the entirety of small flowers, or of flat leaves and flowers of some radiant details. This type of "little hat" is appropriate and harmonious with a tailor-afternoon dress or a simple dinner dress, and completes a costume for such an occasion.

"More Meat Dishes Mary"

By Mary Moore

"More meat dishes, Mary" is what some of you are writing to me.

"I'm delighted."

For some reason, I am thinking lately that meat these to be on the economical side. If I have guessed wrongly let me know and I will try again and to hack with cost. Horrors; What have I said!

Last night I made individual Beef and Kidney pies for four or six. This could have been baked in one large casserole, so the amounts for either way of serving are still enough for four.

BEEF AND KIDNEY PIE

One lb sirloin beef (I used shank), 1 veal kidney (or 2 pork kidneys), flour, salt, pepper, water, plain pastry. Cut kidney so that you can trim out the fat portion (the little veining portion in a veal kidney need not be trimmed out). Cut into 1-inch pieces and soak in cold water while you cut the beef into inch pieces. Drain and dry the kidney and roll all of the meat in salted flour. Sauté it until brown in 2 tablespoons fat, then add 2 cups boiling water and some pepper, cover and simmer 2 hours, adding a little more water as it needs it and stirring frequently. Make plain pastry. If made enough pastry to make an apple pie for today's dinner so I used three cups unsifted flour, 1 cup best quality shortening, 1-2 teaspoons salt and 5 tablespoons ice water.) Roll enough pastry out to fit either four individual casseroles or 1 large one. Chill it. Turn the prepared meat into four casseroles or 1 large one. (This should be quite wet, as the pastry soaks up some of the moisture and the baking separates some.) Fit on top crust. Bake at 480 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. for above 30 minutes or until crust is baked and gravy is bubbling through the gashes.

MOCK CHICKEN LEGS

Buy either 1-2 lb. pork shoulder or stewing lamb, and 1 or 1-2 lbs. very sliced veal steak. Cut the pork or lamb into 6 even chunks and run a wooden skewer through them at the tip. Sprinkle generously with salt and pepper. Cut the thin veal into 6 long strips, and securing one end of it with your thumb midway down the skewer, begin wrapping it around the skewed piece of pork, in a spiral, making two layers of veal by the time you are finished and finishing at the middle of the skewer. Fasten securely with a toothpick. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, then roll in breadcrumbs, then in 1 beaten egg to which you have added 1 tablespoon cold water, then in crumbs again. Let rest on wax paper 30 minutes, turning over once. Brown on all sides in shortening. When "meat" is well browned, place it on a trivet, add about 2-4 cup boiling water to pan, cover and let cook very slowly for about 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Time depends on quality of meat. Or this may be baked at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 to 2 hours. You may need to add more water whether they are simmered or baked. They should not be allowed to dry out. To make gravy remove "drumsticks" to hot platter. To the drippings in pan add 1 1-2 cups boiling water and scrape pan to loosen the little hard bits. Stir together 1 1-2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1 1-2 tablespoons cold water. Stir this in until thick. Strain gravy if desired.

BAKED CHICKEN LOAF

This requires 4 cups diced boiled chicken, and is ideal when you find a bargain in boiling fowl but want to make a real swish dish out of it. To three slightly beaten eggs slowly add 2 cups hot chicken broth, and 1 1-2 cups soft breadcrumbs, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1-2 cup finely chopped celery, 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper or pimento, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Mix and pour into a loaf pan and stand it in larger pan containing hot water. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 1 1-2 hours or until when tried with point of knife it comes out clean. Let this stand in warm place for about 10 minutes before attempting to unmold it on warm platter.

That ought to keep you out of mischief for a while.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE'S EVERY REASON FOR DROPPING THE YOUNG MAN

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few months ago I met a soldier who is stationed at a camp near my home. We liked each other right from the start, and every time he got a pass he would come to see me and we would go out together. We had wonderful times and everything seemed fine.

A couple of weeks ago he got leave and went home to see his family, who live in another state. Last week-end, he came to see me again and told me that while he was home he had been married, yet at the same time he claimed it was the be loved.

What I want to know is, do you think I should believe him and keep on seeing him, or let him go?

E.M.

Dear E.M.:

Doesn't your own good sense tell you that you should have nothing more to do with this young man?

Either he deceived you from the beginning, letting you believe he was free to become a good friend of yours although he was already committed to a girl back home, or else he got himself into some mess which required him to marry a girl he didn't particularly want to marry. Either way, he doesn't sound to me like anyone to whom you could place much confidence.

There is, of course, the possibility that he may be a nice boy who made an unfortunate mistake somewhere along the line before he met you, and who is sincere in his feeling for you. Be that as it may, however, my advice to you would be to insist that he get his life straightened out before you have anything further to do with him.

CAN FIRST COUSINS MARRY?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is there any law against marriage between first cousins?

A.F.R.

Dear A.F.R.:

Some states forbid the marriage of first cousins and others do not. If you are thinking of taking such a step you should, of course, check with the marriage licence bureau in your own state.

The only reason why there has ever been popular disapproval of a marriage between cousins is because of a belief that the children of such a marriage might not be normal, or might inherit some disease.

Modern medical opinion, however, is inclined to tone this down somewhat. There are, it is true, cases where there might be a danger of certain undesirable traits being passed on. On the other hand other types of trends that might be inherited are believed possibly be inherited are believed possibly to die out in the passage of time.

The only sensible thing to do when such a marriage is contemplated is for the young man and woman involved to check carefully with their family physicians in order to find out just where they stand in regard to traits that might be inherited.

FULL GOSPEL C.A.'s

FRANKFORD — The C.A.'s of Frankford Full Gospel Church tourneyed to Campbellford on Friday night where they were guests of Campbellford C.A.'s. President Carl Andrews presided over the meeting. Gail Walker rendered a vocal solo, "It's Real," and Miss Jean Wood conducted a Bible quiz, followed by a duet by Beverly Wannamaker and Helen Patrick.

Gary and Ray Walker played a duet on the vibra-harp. Mrs. Harold Twigg brought a message on "Christ Died For Our Sins."

MISSIONARY MEETING

The W.M.C. of the Full Gospel Church held its regular meeting of the month on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Carl Andrews. President Mary Reid welcomed everyone and led in singing of W.M.C. chorus. Mrs. Mary Patrick, prayer leader, conducted a missionary quiz and work was handed out. Mrs. V. Cooney closed this part of the meeting.

A time of fellowship was enjoyed by everyone.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

EXERCISE KEEPS THE BODY YOUNG

Is the endeavor to cultivate loveliness of appearance women chase blither and yon with magic steps at the beauty parlor and the cosmetic counter. Looking like a magic formula that will give them perfect complexions, hair like shining silk fibres and hands of lily whiteness, they part happily with their hard-earned money change. But what is true in the way of beauty aids doesn't seem to interest them. They're funny that way!

Suggest exercise to some of them and they shudder— home girls especially. They claim that pounding the domestic treadmill is all the exercise they want. But they don't realize that it isn't the right kind of exercise. Arms and legs have plenty of motion during the day's activities, but it is the mid-section that needs muscle toning. If it doesn't get it, the tummy waistline will disappear and hips will begin to bulge.

Exercise does more than have a favorable effect upon the figure. It sends blood to the skin and glands, to function normally. It conditions the lungs and makes a sluggish blood stream.

There should be a time set aside each day for a brief workout. Unless it is planned it will be overlooked. Almost any woman can spare fifteen minutes in the campaign to retain youthful lines. In addition, one should have as much outdoor life as possible. Career girls who sit at desks and typewriters in special need of fresh air and exercise if they would avoid middle-aged spread.

Torso twisting and bending movements are the best guide. Here is a good one, not exhausting yet effective:

Stand tall, lift the hands high. Then touch the floor with the finger tips without bending the knees. With both hands do wide circles to right and left, pivoting at the waistline.

Another: lift clasped hands high above the head then send them down to the knees and repeat. This is called the wood chopping exercise. It gives the hips and thighs a vigorous work-out.

British Style Trends Show Buying Spree in Cottons

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — British style trends indicate a buying spree in cottons.

The Queen's choice of this fabric for part of her tour wardrobe has given unchallenged supremacy to spring and summer styles in cotton. Store managers say it will be the top fashion fabric for debutantes, fashionable race-goers and holidayers.

Cotton coats, suits and dresses now in store windows have all the latest fashion points. They include paper cotton coats at 45 shillings, smart for race meetings at Ascot or Longchamp or for royal garden parties or town wear. With a white lace design on grey and tan backgrounds, the coats resemble expensive models in real lace over taffeta.

PARTY ORGANZAS

Dark cotton dresses and suits are teamed with lace, straight cotton coats with huge patch pockets. Wide-skirted garden party cotton organzas are worn with corded cotton coats in princess line—one dark background's sporting contemporary designs in white and pastel colors.

There are wide-skirted cotton dresses, with fashionable necklines, in the same two-colored cottons. Many plain colored cottons have inserts of printed lace at neck and bonds.

Britain's Easter brides—weather permitting—could wear a complete trousseau in cotton. There is everything from frilled and berthboned cotton panties, with matching half-slips, to boned bras and Victorian nighties in the finest white cambric. Lace-designed cottons appear in wide-skirted and housecoats costing as little as 85s. Cotton housecoats in many styles are priced upwards from 50s.

FINE PETTICOATS

"Peek-a-boo" petticoats are one of the biggest sales numbers. Half-slips, with pretty frills peeking under the dress hem and stiffened to buoy out the skirt, are selling fast. Many manufacturers are making dress styles with petticoats already attached and included in the price. They cost around 30 shillings.

Brides with expensive tastes can pick couture wool suits, the jackets lined with striped or Paisley cottons that match chic blouses with fashionable necklines. Expensive cotton coats have pure silk linings, teamed with matching cotton skirts and pure silk blouses.

Woollen suits and dresses are worn with gaily-striped boater hats, matching necklines and gloves. The taller collar shown in Paris in February is already on sale at 10 shillings. In white piques and butcher stripes, with varied edging it will lighten many dark office dresses on colder days.

CAMPBELLFORD

Emergency Relief Committee Plans Aid to Fire Victims

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford Emergency Relief Committee, working in co-operation with the Canadian Red Cross Society, held a special meeting on Tuesday night to consider ways and means of more aid to the 31 victims of Sunday's fire here.

The committee comprises members of various service clubs and local organizations; they have $500 in the treasury following a campaign to raise funds after the fire that occurred just previous to Christmas in 1952.

The Rev. H. Howson, of Christ Anglican Church, is current committee chairman and bank manager R. D. MacDonald, treasurer. Sub-committee members are now soliciting donations for furniture to assist in the rehabilitation of the victims: Thomas Smith, William Allen and Mrs. Chris Newman. They ask citizens, who will respond to the furnishing appeal, to phone Campbellford 237 or 305.

FOOD DONATED

Peterborough branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society have donated food parcels to homes where the fire victims are staying at present. Representatives of this city have forwarded parcels of clothing. President Miss Jean Buck and Mrs. Charles Ray are attending the special meeting.

The Salvation Army, who assisted at the fire, informed the relief committee meeting officials that a contribution of $200 had been made available towards the relief fund from national headquarters in Toronto.

Rotary Club officials said they would contribute a substantial fund and it is expected that other service clubs will also contribute. Definite funds to date stand at $700.

The Red Cross annual drive for funds, which closed last Saturday, may inspire the need for community giving again within the next few weeks, officials pointed out, hopefully.

CAMPBELLFORD

Chief Constable, P.S. Principal, Organize Club

CAMPBELLFORD — A club for boys between the ages of 10 and 16 was organized under the leadership of Chief Constable George Rose and Mr. William Rothwell, principal of the Campbellford Public School.

The worth-while effort to curb the juvenile trouble and to provide the boys with a purpose, met with fine success in its inaugural stages.

Club rules stipulate that all boys shall be between the ages of 10 and 16., there shall be neither profane language nor smoking, each member shall turn in to the club funds, one half the revenue obtained by doing jobs assigned to him by the club until such time as he has paid in $15 during the year.

EXECUTIVE FULL AUTHORITY

The executive advised by Mr. Rose and Mr. Rothwell shall have full authority. A club member's conduct must be beyond reproach and he must display good sportsmanship, observe all traffic rules. be courteous to his elders, maintain a high standard of scholastic effort. He must not enter the pool rooms or play pool. The membership is limited to 40 members and violations of the constitution shall result in trial before the club.

The club will meet on Monday evenings from 7 to 8 o'clock in the School basement.

It is understood that the Tennis Club House is going to be taken over by the boys and fitted up for games. The club will be on the look-out for jobs for the boys for the coming months.

Gouzenko Starts Work on New Book on Spies

By JOHN TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Igor Gouzenko is starting work on a new book based on his experiences with Soviet military intelligence in Moscow during the war.

In one of a series interviews, the former Russian embassy code clerk whose revelations cracked a Soviet spy ring in Canada eight years ago, talked of plans for the book, his third.

He said it will deal with Soviet attempts during the war to extract information from an Italian by blackmail. Gouzenko said he learned of the incident while a clerk with the intelligence administration in 1942.

"They use blackmail on a large scale," he said. "Even we no doubt they have used blackmail on Allied prisoners of war."

Gouzenko, living in seclusion and under RCMP guard since his defection from the Russian embassy in Ottawa in 1945, published his autobiography, "This Was My Choice," in 1948. His second book, "The Fall of a Titan," based on the last days of the revolutionary writer Maxim Gorky, will be published in June.

The former Russian clerk posed in a Toronto hotel room for a photograph with his wife and child to portray himself and his wife in a movie, "Man on the Hiding," now being filmed in Montreal and Quebec's Laurentians.

For the photograph, Gouzenko wore the pillow-case mask he will wear in an explosive to be filmed last January he was similarly masked when interviewed on United States news commentator Drew Pearson's television program. Because production is in hiding, his features cannot be shown in public.

Gouzenko, burly, stocky, fair-haired and looking younger than his 38 years, wore a blue serge suit and a dark blue tie. He talked in rapid English of the plan he has urged upon the Canadian and American governments to bring about further defections from Soviet spy groups he says he believes still are operated in Canada and the U.S.

His plan, advanced in newspaper articles last fall, would provide special protection to spies who would desert the Communist apparatus with documentary evidence as Gouzenko did in 1945.

No Possibility Raising Wreck Of Comet Jetliner

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (CP)—A government spokesman said Monday "the possibility of sabotage cannot be excluded" as a possible cause of the crash of a Comet jet airliner in the Mediterranean last Thursday with the loss of 21 lives.

J. D. Profumo, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of transport and civil aviation, told the House of Commons that the possibility of sabotage and "all other possible causes will certainly be fully investigated."

He said there is no possibility of raising the wreck which went down in 1½ feet of water about 70 miles south of Naples.

The crash was the fourth disaster to these pioneering jet airliners in 13 months. The last two occurred after the planes had taken off from Rome airport.

"The possibility of sabotage cannot be excluded and this and all other possible causes will certainly be fully investigated," Profumo said.

ASKS FOR AIRPORT CHECK

Labor member Harry Rynd asked: "In view of these strange series of accidents connected with Rome airport will the inquiry or investigation include some special attention to the security arrangements at Rome airport?"

Profumo replied: "That seems to be a matter for the inquiry when it is set up."

He also said that it was a matter of "vital importance that everything be done to get to the bottom of these mysterious tragedies."

Spokesman for de Havilland, maker of the Comets, and the British Overseas Airways Corporation have said they were unable to account for the crashes.

The plane's certificate of airworthiness has been withdrawn and all Comets have been taken off commercial routes.

Princess Cast As Dance Hall Hostess in Play

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret is understudying the role of a dance-hall hostess in a forthcoming stage play for charity.

The play is "The Frog," adapted from a chiller by the late mystery writer Edgar Wallace. Set designer Reginald Walley declared:

"The Princess is a born actress. She has played the part right through several times during the illness of the principal, Mrs. Gerald Legge."

The 23-year-old Princess also is helping out as an adviser on costumes and hair styles of the early 1930s, the period of the play.

The play will be presented at the Scala theatre in June. Most of the parts are enacted by society figures.

Madoc Junction

EGGLETON W.M.S.-W.A.

MADOC JUNCTION — The April meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held on Thursday, at the home of Mrs. William McMullen, with a pot-luck dinner being served at the noon hour.

The meeting was held in the afternoon with Mrs. Kitchell presiding over the program, which had been prepared by Mrs. Bert Reide.

After the call to worship, the devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Harlow reading John 15, and prayer by Mrs. Reide.

Easter hymns were sung with Mrs. Bruce Stapley as pianist.

Two Easter readings were given, "Love" by Mrs. Milton Reid, and "The Green Hill Far Away", by Mrs. Clancy. Two Easter choruses, "When Jesus Came", by Mrs. Bruce Stapley, "Resurrection Morn" by Mrs. C. Silts were enjoyed.

The roll call showed 12 ladies present, and seven children.

Easter "Thank-Offering" envelopes were handed in.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy offered her home for the May meeting and Mrs. Harry Clarke will prepare the program.

Mrs. Bruce Stapley rendered a piano solo, which was greatly enjoyed. This was followed by a reading on "Stewardship" given by Mrs. Clancy, and a reading "Khalla Dee's," by Mrs. R. Danford.

The sixth chapter from the study book was given by Mrs. Bert Reide.

Mrs. Fitchett thanked Mrs. McMullen for opening her home for the dinner and meeting. Mrs. Reide for preparing the program; and everyone who had assisted.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Tape Recorders Triple Capacity Express Terminal

TORONTO (CP)—Tape recorders and other innovations have tripled the capacity of a big railway express general terminal here, despite the fact it was impossible to enlarge the building itself.

The problem of steadily increasing shipments has been overcome at the CNR express terminal here, a building that was geared to handle 7,000 shipments a day when it opened 35 years ago. The traffic has grown to about 20,000 shipments daily, but because of its location and layout the building—in the railway yards west of Union station—could neither be enlarged nor added to.

So they found ways to handle the stuff faster.

LOWER TRACKS

Starting with physical handling of goods, the express-car tracks were depressed so that goods can be moved in and out of trains at platforms level with the car floors. Previously parcels were lifted up to, and down from, the train doors.

A survey showed 90 per cent of all express packages weigh less than 100 pounds, and measure not more than about four feet on the biggest dimension.

Powered moving belts and roller belts—were arranged in such fashion they can be switched into various traffic patterns, and can be reversed to handle either inbound or outbound traffic.

But it took the tape recorders to master the biggest bottleneck—the transcription of waybills.

Parcels brought to the terminal by pickup trucks are fed onto the conveyor belts to the proper train platform, after which the "callers" go to work.

Armed with headset and microphone, the caller plugs into a convenient outlet and is connected to a tape recorder in the cab of the waybill for information. One 12-minute tape can record up to 75 waybills to be transcribed by battery of billing clerks.

The shipments and the waybills come together just prior to the train departure.

Traffic has been boosted from 7,000 to 20,000 parcels daily, the new system provides for the day when volume reaches 30,000.

U.S. Senator Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Dwight Griswold, 60, (Rep. Neb.) died early today.

Griswold, who served three terms as governor of Nebraska, came to the Senate in January, 1953, having been elected to fill out the unexpired six-year term of the late Senator Kenneth Wherry.

Nebraska Governor Robert C. Crosby is a Republican, and presumably will name a Republican to succeed him.

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.-W.C.

St. Peter's Women's Missionary Society and St. Peter's Women's Club held a joint meeting in the school room of St. Peter's Church on Tuesday.

"Easter" was the theme for the meeting throughout. Mrs. Field Allan, president of the W.M.S. welcomed the members of the Women's Club and Mrs. Ken Nicol replied on behalf of W.C., expressing the pleasure of the joint meeting and hoped that more similar meetings would be held in the future.

Mrs. Cecil Woods conducted the devotional period, using the Easter theme and reading a poem, "Jesus Come Back".

A vocal quartet by Mrs. Frank Mrs. Hollin, Mrs. W. Armstrong and Mrs. Ken Nicol sang "Jesus, Keep Me Near".

Miss Vankleek spoke on the Easter story and its application to modern life and missions. She read a story written by Rev. James McNeil, one time moderator of the church, who mentioned specifically the value of women's work in the church. She also cited instances of missionary projects in Canada, stating that although the work abroad is most important, missionary work on the home front was not being neglected.

Mrs. Alvey and Mrs. Lewis gave readings or the church home in Vancouver.

A trio was given by Mrs. Hollin, Mrs. Nicol and Mrs. Franks, "Hailed to the Cross."

After a short business period, the women's club joined the W.M.S. for a social hour and refreshments.

Possible Scandal in U.S. Housing Operations Going Back to Truman Govt., Probed

By FRED S HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The decks were cleared today for a double-barrelled investigation of a possible scandal in United States government housing operations, evidently stretching back into the Truman administration.

The first official rumbling of continuing trouble in the Federal Housing Administration came late Monday when the White House announced the resignation of FHA commissioner Guy T. O. Holyday.

President Eisenhower at the same time ordered housing administrator Albert M. Cole to impound FHA's records "to facilitate the investigations which are being completed."

Shortly afterward Cole, Holyday's successor, announced at a press conference that his agency will investigate "serious irregularities and abuses" in the government-aid program of home construction and repair. Household-ers allegedly had been "fleeced."

CLAIMS UNDERCOAL ACTION

Cole also said the FBI will check on alleged "illegal or unethical action" by a supervisor in the subdivision project financing by FHA officials. Here, he said, investigators will search for evidence of "collusion" between apartment builders and federal officials, in the insuring of mortgages on inflated appraisals, something like the alleged $50 million cost the government more than $75,000,000.

Cole indicated that he expects few criminal actions, but "the great number of cases" he said indicates there was either gross negligence or collusion.

Allegedly off - color apartment project financing was said to have developed under the post - war "middle income" housing program which Holyday helped set up.

LONG LIST OF COMPLAINTS

But Cole said complaints about over - charges and shoddy work in the home repair field have been coming in for years, right up through 1953 when the Eisenhower administration came to power.

Cole said efforts of Holyday, 61-year-old former mortgage banker from Baltimore, Md., and good Christian gentleman," but said Holyday, who was appointed by Eisenhower about a year ago, might be held partially responsible for what appears to be housing repair program because "I believe he has been aware of it and did not act."

Holyday, in Trenton, N.J., Monday, at first declined to discuss the situation. But later he told reporters he would meet with Cole today — if Cole wants to see him.

Reject Plan to Form New Union of Jobless

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto and Lakeshore Labor Council (CIO-CCL) Monday night rejected a proposal to set up another "union of the unemployed" and termed the proposal an attempt to make jobless workers "a political football."

The proposal came from local 114 of the Packinghouse Workers and was supported by other delegates. Stanley Thornley of the Rubber Workers said the AFL is taking the lead away from us" and said there had been a "failure of leadership" in the unemployed situation.

David Archer, council president, said there already is a union of the unemployed in Toronto, and that the TLC and CCF both plan similar organizations.

"We don't want to set up a fourth organization to use the unemployed as a political football."

Russian People Not Dissatisfied With Communism

TORONTO (CP)—Gerald Clark, Weekend Picture Magazine writer who recently visited Russia, said Monday Canadians are mistaken if they assume the Russian people are dissatisfied with communism.

"The Russians aren't looking for anyone to liberate them," he said in an address to the Canadian Club. "It only because they have no way of making comparisons, they are sold on their system and their government.

"It's quite clear, by our standards, that the Russians are woefully backward. By their own standards, they are eating and living better than at any time in the past. And that, perhaps, is the only valid form of comparison."

Porter Defends Measure Ending Right of Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Porter Monday defended the newly-enacted provision of Ontario law abolishing the right of appeal from a police commission decision to grant or refuse a licence to carry on a trade or calling.

The attorney-general said he could not agree with criticism that the provision, contained in an amendment to the Municipal Act passed at the last session of the legislature, was undemocratic or unjustified.

He said police commissions are capable of making such decisions. They were in a better position to do so than an Appeal Court judge, could be.

"If anyone thinks a police commission makes unfair decisions he can come to me about it," Attorney-General Porter said.

Police Chief Jack Truaisch Denies Charge

KINGSTON (CP) — William S) O'Hara, Kingston lawyer, said Monday he has appealed to Attorney-General Porter of Ontario on behalf of 16-year-old Larry Gibson, sentenced to six months in reformatory after he pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking into a hostel camp here March 14.

Mr. O'Hara told the attorney-general that "a grave miscarriage of justice has been carried out."

He said in an interview that the youth pleaded guilty because Kingston police told him he would "get off lightly" if he "played along" with them. The lawyer said the Kingston police "ticked the youth into a confession."

Police Chief Jack Truaisch denied the accusation.

Mr. O'Hara said he knows of at least four persons who can testify the youth was not in the park the night of March 14.

(In Toronto, officials of the attorney-general's department said late Monday they have not yet received the appeal).

Redistribution Bill Criticized By CCF Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Monday night that in the redistribution bill setting up eight new ridings in Ontario, "the principle of representation by population was crucified on the cross of political expediency."

Speaking in the "Provincial Affairs" series of free-time broadcasts over a CBC-Ontario network, he accused Provincial Secretary Welsh of carving out for himself a little pocket borough with about 13,000 voters" from the riding of Muskoka-Ontario which had 23,000 voters. The government sponsored the bill which made it law.

"The government did this at the same time as it refused the suggestion of CCF House Leader Grummett that a new seat should be created for the Fort Frances pine area of the North where a whole new federal riding now sits on Island inside the provincial riding of South Cochrane.

"The government also failed in the face of the fact that, as compared with 1951, Attorney-General Welsh's riding of 23,000, the Windsor area has had a 43,000 increase in voting living better than at any time in the past. And that, perhaps, is the only valid form of comparison."

Attlee Could Be Tough Little Guy

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Clement Attlee, once described as the "nice little guy" in the British Labor party in his autobiography, published Monday, that he can be a tough little guy, too.

Attlee has led the Labor party for nearly 20 years. His remarkable unpretentiousness has bred several myths about him. Friend and "Clem" stays coolly and firmly in control.

In his book, "As It Happened," (Heinemann) Attlee disposes in one dry, characteristic sentence of a pre-war effort to unseat him.

"When I was ill," he writes, "it occurred to a few people that this would be a good opportunity to engineer the leadership of the party, but this move got little support."

TICKS OFF FRIENDS

In the same way he ticks off his pacifist friends who seemed, in their obsession on the wickedness of warfare, "to think that an inefficient army was less wicked than an efficient one."

There is also a sharp sentence on what he calls a "few of the intelligentsia, who can be trusted to take the wrong view on any subject." This will be widely interpreted as a reference to some well-known Labor party members.

These passages apart, Attlee's autobiography is chiefly remarkable for its dead-pan approach to great political events. The book is as flat in parts as certain aspects of Attlee's personality. He has been party leader for 19 years, including a six-year stretch as prime minister, but he writes his life story in a way that cribb--Tom Hopkinson, in the independent monthly Picture Post. The Observer, calls it "extraordinary for its unbelievable ordinariness."

Canadians Happy On Their Return To Homeland

SEATTLE (CP)—The tough, rollicking 3rd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, arrived from Korea Monday and promptly were dubbed the "Happy Canadians."

Obviously overjoyed at being home after a year's service in Korea and the prospect of 60 days leave, 1,400 Canadian soldiers piled high-laterally down the gangplank of the American troopship Marine Lynx and swung aboard trains for their homes across Canada.

Other units making up the big draft were the 4th Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers; 4th Field Ambulance, Royal Canadian Medical Corps; 5th Transport Company, Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, and a group of miscellaneous personnel.

Drum Major Joe Partito of Kitchener, Ont., led the battalion's crack band.

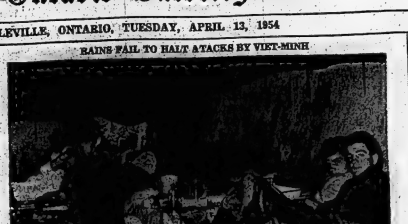
Reds Pouring Thousands Of Shells Into Fortress

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP) — Vietminh artillery blasted the defenders of Dien Bien Phu again today, but the Communist-led Indo - China rebels still delayed the massive all-out assaults the French Union forces expect this week.

Under a virtual umbrella of barrage, the Vietminh sent out squads to gather up the hundreds of their comrades killed or wounded in vain attempts earlier to retake the 1,200-foot eastern hill position the French seized Saturday.

The vital strong point is less than a mile from the heart of the Dien Bien Phu fortress. The French still held the hill today, after beating off violent rebel counterattacks Sunday and Monday.



Heavy fog curtailed French aerial assaults near Dien Bien Phu. But fighters and bombers ranged far to the northeast and north of Hanoi, blasting out big sections of the main highways over which Red China sends thousands of tons of war equipment to the rebels.

HELPS VIETMINH

The worsening weather offered a boon to the Vietminh, who can send send in human waves of foot soldiers where French tanks and jeeps, motorized equipment would bog down as the area grows mud-dier.

With every brief let - up in the heavy weather, troop reinforcements and more supplies are being dropped in by parachute to bolster the defences of Dien Bien Phu.

Ringing the fortress, four regular Vietminh divisions also have been reinforced during the last two weeks by thousands of guerrilla fighters and regional troops, in preparation for another major effort to overrun the French before the big-power conference in Geneva April 26 takes up discussion of the Indo-China war.

RAINS FAIL TO HALT ATACKS BY VIET-MINH

Casualties of the beleaguered garrison of Dien Bien Phu, in Indo-China, await to be evacuated to Hanoi by helicopter, in an underground clearing station. Rains have come to the area, but the Communist Viet Minh are expected. (Central Press Canadian.)

Cold-Blooded Technique Enabled Swedish Officer to Gather Information for Soviet Union

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A patriot officer regarding the Karlskrona naval base, Sweden's biggest base on the Baltic, shouted a command to halt." The non-commissioned officer prowling through the camouflaged fortifications stood fast.

"What is your authority for being here," the guard demanded brusquely.

"I spy for the Russians," came the reply from the uniformed non-com.

The guard laughed. The non-com continued his tour.

On Nov. 14, 1951, that non-commissioned naval engineer was sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor for military, naval and economic espionage for Russia and gross neglect of his duties in the Swedish Royal Navy.

At his trial he related the incident at Karlskrona naval base, one example of the cold-blooded technique that enabled him to gather military information for the Soviet Union.

The trial of Ernst Hilding Anderssd is only one of many major Communist spy cases which have exploded since the war's end in Sweden, Norway and Finland, small but strategic countries on Russia's northwestern flank.

Here is the broad picture, country by country, of the Soviet post-war spy offensive in northern Europe.

With two of the most dangerous spy rings ever to operate in Sweden smashed in recent years, Swedes now think they have the espionage situation pretty well under control.

The two rings were recruited among local Communists. According to statements in court, they were directed from the Soviet embassy in Stockholm.

More than half-a-dozen Communist diplomats have been expelled by the Swedish government since the war on charges of being involved with espionage.

NORWAY

Evidence of fifth column activities in Norway was first revealed during the past winter, when Norwegian security officers rounded up two Red organizations.

The first rounding occurred Nov. 15 last year with four arrests. The police acted after interrogation of alleged Russian spy Ivan Hansen, arrested three months earlier. Also involved was a Russian intelligence officer, G. F. Pavlov, who fled to Norway seeking political asylum.

Later three more persons were arrested, all farmers and laborers from the Pasvik valley, which forms the 130-mile border with the Soviet Union.

While espionage activities in the northern province spurred Ilnelled and somewhat amateurish, the round-up in Oslo Feb. 9, in which 12 persons were arrested, showed evidence of far more serious intrigue.

Alleged leader of the group was 47-year-old Asbjoern Sunde, former labor.

Denies Reports Pike Are Trapped In Drained Area

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP)—Conservation officer Harold Van Wyck Monday night denied reports that large numbers of pike were trapped in marsh lands that have been drained by marsh gardeners.

He said dikes and ditches have been built to prevent such a situation. The fish swim up the ditches to spawn and are free to return to open water, he said.

Earlier reports said a 100-foot-long carpet of flopping pike that had been trapped by the drainage of into nearby Lake Simcoe was being guarded by conservation officials.

CONVICTION THROWN OUT

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal Monday quashed a conviction against the Kitchener News Company of "unlawfully distributing, selling, or having in their possession crime comics" on the grounds that there was a duplicity of charges.

Dulles Carries United Action Call to Paris by Talking To Laniel and Bideault

LONDON (CP)—State Secretary Dulles of the United States turned toward Paris today in his quest for a strong Allied warning that "united action" would follow entry of Red Chinese troops into the Indo-China war. But the French government stood ready to join Britain in opposing any ultimatum before the Communists up their hand at the Geneva conference.

Dulles today held his fifth conference in three days with Foreign Secretary Eden, telling reporters he has entered the foreign office: "We shall have something to say this afternoon."

The U.S. secretary planned to fly to Paris later to talk with Premier Laniel and Foreign Minister Bidault. He leaves for Washington Wednesday night or Thursday.

British informants said Eden, at his talks with Dulles Sunday night and Monday, made the compromise offer of British support for the American's proposed anti-Communist alliance in the Pacific around China.

NO DECLARATION

But there would be no strong declaration of united action in Indo-China until the West finds out what the Geneva conference, opening April 26, whether the Communists really are willing to negotiate for peace in Asia.

In Paris, French and foreign observers agreed that Laniel and Bidault would go along with whatever stand the British took.

These sources said the French agreed with the British view that hard talk now could spike any chance of negotiating the Indo-China problem at Geneva, the main French objective.

Houck Urges Early Start On Hydro Phase

OTTAWA (CP)—An early start on the hydro phase of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project was urged Monday by William L. Houck (L—Niagara Falls).

The former mayor of Niagara Falls and member of the Ontario legislature said in the Commons that there is no doubt of the need for an early start.

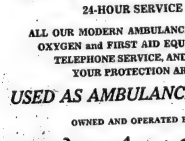
Ontario, expanding industrially at a phenomenal rate, needed additional power if it was to continue to maintain high standards. The hydro development of the St. Lawrence river was more urgent for the future of Ontario than the seaway phase.

Despite a $1,000,000,000 hydro development program, now underway in Ontario, the province still faced a power shortage by 1960.

The speech was the first for Mr. Houck, elected to the Commons for the first time at last summer's by-election.

Mr. Houck said some mention has been made of the possible use of atomic power to generate electricity, but he understands that the public cannot expect for years to see the atom's power harnessed to the needle and indeed it can be done.

Although the St. Lawrence river's power potential of 14,000,000 horsepower is more than the entire output of all power now operating in Canada, it was financially practical to develop only about 10,000,000 horsepower.



At the night sitting, Mr. Houck said the seaway project is the biggest political football that has ever existed in Washington.

Yet Ontario and New York state had agreed to share in the hydro phase of the project whose estimated cost of $600,000,000 was far exceeded by the benefits to Canada and the United States.

WHEN THE BIRDS COME HOME

There is joy in my heart when the birds come home
As they wing their way 'neath the azure dome;
I love the glint of their shining Wings
And my heart responds to the songs they sing;
O'er field and fallow and furrow-ed loam
I watch their flight when the birds come home.

There is cheer in my heart when the birds come back
As they mend their way o'er the airy track,
For the songs they sing drive the gloom away
And the memory dear of a winter's day;
And my spirit soars as on wings it roam
In that glad hour when the birds come home.

Guides their certain flight as the birds come home.

There's new life in my soul when the birds return
For their presence answers my spirit's yearn;
And faith revives like the morning light
That dispels the fear and the gloom of night;
I can trust His care who o'er land and foam
Guides their certain flight as the birds come home.

Mrs. Helen B. Anderson.

This is "Wild Life Week" set apart as a time to be kind to the birds. Muser, the Canadian naturalist and bird-lover and whose wildlife sanctuary at Kingsville has attracted tourists from many parts. Nature should find a place among the subjects of the school-room, that our boys and girls might learn to appreciate the natural attractions of this great Canadian land.

Mrs. James Heath rendered an appropriate solo.

Rev. K. J. Crawford read the Scripture lesson.

Beautiful slides depicting the missionary labors of the Rev. Lester Burry in Labrador and Newfoundland were shown by Rev. K. J. Crawford, who also pronounced the benediction.

ANGUS

Mr. Macdonald was called out of Nova Scotia early in the war to become the country's first navy minister. He was succeeded by Kingston constituency another Nova Scotian, Norman Rogers, who was killed in 1940 in an aircrash while he was minister of national defence.

EXPANDING NAVY

Under Mr. Macdonald the senior service grew from fewer than 2,000 men and half a dozen ships to more than 100,000 men and 300 ships, including the first Canadian aircraft carrier.

Not only did he introduce Canadian naval petition but during his career the RCN did 90 per cent of the close escort work on the North Atlantic convoy routes.

He entered the navy department with typical energy and assailed it with his rocky little corvettes in the direst weather. He made several wartime trips to Europe.

However, his heart remained in Nova Scotia and he was happy to resume his provincial premiership at war's end. Meanwhile, he had argued with the then prime minister Mackenzie King during the bitter conscription crisis that he would openly supported his old friend and fellow officer of the First World War. Col. J. L. Ralston.

Col. Ralston, who died in 1948, resigned as defence minister in 1944 after the cabinet turned down his recommendation that compulsory overseas service be imposed for Canadian troops.

STAYED WITH GOVERNMENT

There was a possibility then that Mr. Macdonald would follow his fellow Nova Scotian out of the cabinet. However, he was persuaded upon to remain in the government, also to succeed Col. Ralston as minister of the Ralston view on conscription.

Mr. Macdonald was one of the cabinet leaders who eventually forced the issue of the compulsory system of raising men failed to produce the numbers of reinforcements necessary in the closing stages of the war.

His relations with Mr. King were not improved by his independent stand later on as premier of Nova Scotia on the controversial post-war Dominion - provincial conferences.

In one typical and colorful Macdonald gesture, he told the federal cabinet that they had not heard the last "of my bonnets and me." Soon after he left office there came additional concessions before he signed the new agreement.

If he ever had any liking for federal politics he cooled noticeably after his argument with Mackenzie King. He was obviously delighted to return to the recall as Nova Scotia Liberal leader.

"ANGUS L's BACK"

He came home with the ringing political motto "Angus L's back" and won a resounding vote of confidence in the first test of his leadership. His next election followed a similar pattern when the motto was "All's well with Angus L."

Back in his native Cape Breton highlands he again practised Gaelic and appeared at the mod and the highland games in kilt and Glengarry.

Slim and soldierly - looking, he was one of the Commonwealth's youngest premiers when he played host to St. Hon. Ramsay Macdonald, then British prime minister, in the 1930s.

He floored the famous Scot by giving the address of welcome in gaelic, just to make him feel at home, and wrung from the British leader the embarrassed admission that he didn't speak Gaelic.

AIDS FLOOD VICTIMS

READING, England (CP) — A prize bull from the farm of S. H. Bull and Son at Brampton, Ont., was sold here for five guineas (about $700). The money will be forwarded to the Mayor's fund for relief of victims of the North sea floods of last years.

Carmel Young Adult Group Presents 'Mr. Bean From Lima'

RAWDON — Carmel Young Adult Group, under the direction of Mrs. Russell Pyear, sponsored a play social and play at Carmel Jubilee Hall on Friday evening, and were well rewarded for their efforts.

A large number of visitors were in attendance, including the president, Wellman's, Marsh Hill, Stirling, Frankford and nearby points.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear provided piano music as the guests were gathering.

The Royalty three-act play, "Mr. Bean From Lima," was staged by George Street Young Adult's Union of Peterborough. It was almost three hours in length and the large crowd rocked with laughter most after the first act started, as everyone entered into the spirit of the presentation and this cheered the actors on to present their best performances.

The play is hilarious from beginning to end.

The play was directed by Mrs. Cecil Wesson and Mrs. George Bedford with Lloyd Starks and Bill Sheppard as stage managers.

Dorothy Starks, Marie Seymour and Edith Walker were the make-up artists. The business manager were Graydon Hadwin and Don Johnston, Velma Powers and Esther Hadwin.

THREE SCENES

The three scenes were all in the St. Clair Nying room in two consecutive days in August, and while the action found themselves in many comical predicaments it eventually turned out all right for everybody concerned.

Rev. A. E. Baker was master of ceremonies and gave a short address at intervals. T. and Ll. Mrs. Graydon Hadwin outlined an introduction to the play and voiced the thanks of the Peterborough group for their invitation to Carmel.

The eleven characters were, in order of their appearance:

Inertia Gadkin, the hillbilly maid, Betty Scollard; Blossom Queasy, negro cook, Verna McTaggart, Mrs. Joslyn St. Clair, an ambitious mother, Isabel Cruickshank; Amy St. Clair, her youngest daughter, Shirley Starks; Zoe Dudley, adopted daughter, Marion Brown; Johnny Rand, Amy's best interest, Bob Gillespie; Elvira Skaggs, Amy's and Zoe's grandmother, Jean Montgomery; Hiram Skaggs, Amy's and Zoe's grandfather, Jim Renwick; Mrs. Ethel Dudley, Zoe's mother, the town's aristocracy, Evelyn Taylor; Burper Blather Sears, a would-be novelist, Peter Boon; Bob Dudley, Zoe's estranged husband, Willis Reynolds.

Following the presentation the party voted thanks. The Carmel group then served an abundance of pie to the gathering and everyone was loud in his praise of both play and pie.

HOUSE DEFEATS

"2. Has failed to improve the efficiency of its administration.

"3. Ignores the problem of unemployment.

"4. Has failed to retain and regain markets for our surplus primary products.

"5. Has failed to reach agreement with the provincial governments in regard to a simplified reallocation of taxing powers so that the provincial governments and municipal councils may have adequate financial resources to carry out their rapidly-increasing responsibilities."

AMENDS MOTION

Mr. Coldwell's motion amended the last point in the FC motion to say that the government has "failed to reconvene the Dominion-provincial conference from time to time so that an effort might have been made to reach some agreement with the provinces.

It also said deductions from taxable income for individuals should be increased to $1,500 from $1,000 for single persons and to $3,000 from $2,000 for married persons.

Mr. Macdonald's political criticism of Mr. Abbott's 1954-55 budget, which cut taxes by $40,000,000 a year, included excise and sales taxes on a number of consumer goods.

"The budget is a dud, he said. The tax reductions it would cause hardly a ripple in the life of Canadians.

The PC spokesman accused Mr. Abbott of wishful thinking in forecasting that an upswing in economic activity later this year would affect unemployment.

Scelba Winner In Budget Vote

ROME—(Reuters) — The two-month old coalition government of Premier Mario Scelba won a narrow victory in a test vote in the chamber of deputies Monday.

The deputies, recalled from the Easter week-end to vote on the budget, approved it by 306 votes to 284.

Defeat could have meant resignation for Scelba and a new political crisis for Italy.

The government was gambling with the welfare of the unemployed but proposed nothing to help them. It was relying on an upswing in the United States economy to help Canada.

Mr. Coldwell said tax cuts have been made on the wrong items, in many cases, because of the reductions for jewelry and cut glass but none for children's clothing and related items.

Reductions in income taxes for low-income groups would stimulate consumer buying and help the economy, he said. The exemption levels were too low and had been set when the cost of living was much lower than at present.

Canada could have reduced unemployment by one cent this year without danger, he said.

EARLY EXHIBITION

The first industrial exhibition held in Canada is believed to have been one at Quebec in 1197.

McCarthy Always Appears As 'A Young Man in a Hurry'

By SAUL PET T

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — Strip away the headlines and look at Joseph Raymond McCarthy, 46, of Appleton, purely as a man.

He is a man much praised as a bold exposer of Communists. He is also a man whose integrity, motivation and personal financial dealings have been widely questioned. He is a man who, when criticized, frequently ignores the point of the criticism but goes after the critics with a shillelagh.

He is a man of long-standing, intense ambition and furious energy—"a young man in a hurry."

He is a man with a sense of humor and an affinity for practical jokes. He is a shrewd, rough campaigner, who knows how to play to the crowd, a fighter who repeatedly scorns defence for offence but rarely loses his temper.

His personal habits suggest disorderliness but in broad outline, he has always been regarded as a careful, methodical planner, especially where his own political future was concerned.

With political friends and foes, whether in Wisconsin or Washington, he makes pleasant, affable company. Privately he does not play the role of zealot, stuffed shirt, deep thinker or self-doubting brooder. He likes to be called "Joe."

CARTOONISTS LOVE BEARD

Physically, McCarthy is a big, hairy man, whose dark beard delights unfriendly cartoonists. He has a large head, strong shoulders and huge hands. He has a few nervous habits—cocking his head to one side and hunching his shoulders. Some people also have noted that he has a habit of speaking through a suppressed burp.

However much punishment McCarthy gives his constitution, he seems to be able to take it. Not even two sinus operations and one for hernia slowed him down much in his re-election year 1952.

McCarthy seems to care little about clothes and is known to disdain hangers in favor of the floor or nearest chair.

The frenetic McCarthy pace has some phases of his life appear hectic to people assigned to keep up with him. Reporters recently quit the McCarthy home in Washington, months after his marriage, were surprised to see unpacked crates still standing in the living room, which was half - furnished and strewn with papers and documents.

In the fall of 1953, the senator married Jean Kerr, his former office assistant, who is 8 years his junior.

RE-TELLS ANECDOTES!

As a public speaker, McCarthy makes so many appearances he frequently has to repeat the same stories and anecdotes. Says a Madison, Wis., reporter who has covered the senator's last 3 speeches in this state:

"I guess that in 10 of those speeches he used the skunk story—the one to the effect that if you're cleaning skunks out of a barn, you're going to end up with a smell!"

Joe McCarthy was the fourth oldest among seven children born to Timothy and Bridgett McCarthy on a 15-acre dairy farm. Timothy's father came from Ireland, his mother from Germany. Both of Bridgett's parents came from Ireland. All of which makes the senator three parts Irish, one part German.

The McCarthy home was moderately well off. Joe studied in a country grade school about a mile up the road from his home. After finishing the eighth grade, he worked resolutely on the farm and also, according to his sister Mrs. Anna Long, decided to become a "chicken farmer."

"HE OVER-EXPANDED"

"But he over-expanded, "she recalls. "One year he tried to corner the market too soon. He got his brooders too early in the spring and many died of the cold."

At 20 while still working, he suddenly resumed his education and got through Manawa High School's usual four-year course in one year.

In 1930, he entered Marquette University in Milwaukee, first as an engineering student and later switching to law. He worked as a waiter and later managed a filling station but found time to box and coach boxing, be elected president of his junior class and debate with the Franklin Club.

McCarthy practised law only four years, first on his own and then in partnership. In 1936, he entered politics for the first time, running for district attorney of Shawano county on the Democratic ticket. He lost.

In 1939, McCarthy defeated the incumbent, Edgar V. Werner, in the non-partisan election of circuit judge for Shawano, Outagamie and Langlade counties.

SERVICE RECORD GOOD

McCarthy later joined the marines. As a lieutenant and later captain, he served 3 months, about half of them as an air intelligence officer in the New Hebrides, Guadalcanal, Munda, Bougainville and other Pacific islands. He also flew a number of missions in a tail gunner's seat.

In all, it shaped up as a good service record and not the type to excite later debate. Stories were spread during his unsuccessful bid for the Senate in 1944 that he had been wounded in combat. He was awarded a "tail gunner Joe."

Various newspaper accounts have said that the only injury McCarthy received resulted from an hilarious crossing-the-equator ceremony aboard ship, in which he fell down a ladder while his foot was fastened in a garter.

McCarthy was re-elected judge in 1945. The next year, he pulled an amazing upset by defeating Senator Robert M. Lafollette Jr., a three-time winner, for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate. McCarthy won by 5,000 votes, and went on to win the election by a much wider margin.

Canadian Destroyers Carry Out Special Refresher Course

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH CANADIAN NAVY IN FAR EAST (CP)—Racing in like whippets, Canada's three destroyers in the Far East planted a pattern of dummy bombs over "enemy" submarines to prove their efficiency against undersea raiders.

Jack Brayley

It was a refresher course in the anti-submarine work for which they were originally designed. It was carried out in icy weather in Japanese waters within sight of the snowy cone of Fujiyama.

After the exercise that started before dawn and lasted through the night and all the next day the ships went back to their post-war defensive operational patrols in Korean waters.

SUBS OUTGUESSED

A pair of American subs, acting as the enemy in the manoeuvres, tried every trick in attempting to evade the ships. They even attempted to elude the pursuers by a circular movement. But the dummy bombs straddled their position. The signal bubbles from the subs indicated a perfect strike.

The Canadian destroyers were in command of Capt. John Charles of Victoria, on the bridge of the Haida. The other ships sailing were the Cayuga and the Crusader.

The ships took turns acting as hitters while the others assisted in fixing bearings. When the "enemy" was located, the order to "fire" was given and lads like AB. Charles Spooner of Leamington, Ont., dropped signal grenades over the side. The subsequent underwater concussion was heard by the sub and she sent up an air bubble to indicate how close had been the strike. In every case the sub would have been destroyed had real depth charges been used.

The destroyers followed the subs with deadly accuracy and time and again marking bubbles reported direct hits.

Handling the mechanical apparatus were men like CPO. C. detCandido of Dorchester, Alta., PO. N. D. Bay of Windsor, Ont., PO. Fred Shaver of Saint John, N.B. At the helm, sometimes steering by the submarine-finding radio, were youngsters like LS. Ken Crooker of Hamilton and Halifax and AB. Larry MacLean of Apple River, N.S.

CONFIDENT TIMING

"We never miss 'em," was the confident prediction of MacLean as the order was given to set the dummy bombs for the last run of the day.

"See what I mean," he said a few minutes later when the signal bubble from the subs showed they had been neatly straddled.

On the way back to their Korean station, the ships tested their navigating skill and seamanship with a trip through the beautiful inland sea with its confusion of islands. LL-Cmdr. Clyde Pratt of Victoria and Halifax did the navigating.

As a final test of the exercise, the captain ordered action stations and they were manned in split seconds amid a flurry of signal flags and sharp orders.

Civil Action Against Guelph Sanitarium Opens

TORONTO (CP) — Hayward Avery, 74, began a civil action in the Supreme Court of Ontario Monday for unstated damages against Homewood Sanitarium at Guelph, He alleges:

Conspiracy, false imprisonment, malpractice, breach of statutory duty and common law negligence.

Mr. Avery, a native of Newfoundland, was a patient at the sanitarium from Dec. 30, 1946, until Sept. 26, 1951, when he was released on a writ of habeas corpus. The case opened before Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven. Since he entered Homewood, Mr. Avery has brought actions against his son, Donald, who allegedly had him committed, and against four doctors who examined him.

The action against the son was dropped March 3. The cases still are pending against the doctors.

Mr. Avery, who claims he was detained against his will for 33 months, on March 1, 1949, was declared incapable of managing his affairs by Mr. Justice John L. Wilson of the Supreme Court. The son was appointed to handle his father's estate.

On June 27, 1952, Mr. Avery was declared capable by Mr. Justice H. A. Aylen.

Recover Wing

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—The RCMP announced Monday the recovery of a wing section of the Harvard plane involved in Thursday's 21-death air disaster here.

The wing had vanished fro mthe Willowdale golf course, on which it landed after the training aircraft had been in collision with a TCA North Star.

Police, reticent about details of the disappearance, said information received voluntarily led to recovery of the piece of wreckage. They would not say where it was found or if any charges would be laid.

Earl Walls Knocks Out Tommy Harrison In Third Minute Of First Round

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

MORE POWER TO 'EM!

The open meeting of the Belleville Baseball Association slated for Thursday night of this week has been cancelled, secretary Drury Denyes announced today. Disappointed at the small turnout at the original "open" called last week, the executive, consisting of President Malcolm Robb, business manager Jack Carson and secretary Denyes have decided to carry on as a three-man team and pick their own executive personnel.

There, messieurs, are three brave men who deserve a lot of credit. Three guys, who believe in baseball for this city and are determined to give it to the city, despite the fact that up to the present only lake warm interest in organization of the association and the club has been shown.

The league opens its schedule on May 24. There is much work to be done before that time and the delay in calling meetings at which few turn up would be a waste of much valuable time.

Meanwhile the three baseball "musketeers" will "eat crackin'." In fact they already have the wheels in motion and some fast action is expected within the next few days.

The Petes have been busy and have named Dit Clapper, Max Swanston, Roy Tanner, Curly Alberico and Jack MacInnes to the executive. Two players will be added later on. They have a draw going for a $1,000 bond to raise required money and all-in-all indications point to a strong organization and a real slug from the Razzatazz.

• • •

The Belleville club is toying with the idea of getting out a seasonal program, also the sale of season tickets to bring in some much-needed finances. Efforts also will be made along sponsor lines and something should come of this before the week-end.

• • •

BIGGER AND BETTER!

The best evidence of the popularity of a product is a satisfied customer.

And that applies without a shadow of doubt to the district Senior "B" hockey group. The boss men of the circuit held a meeting in Peterborough on Sunday, the main item being the setting of the group's pool tables. And while we have no idea of the size of the chunks we did hear from an authoritative source that they were not exactly slong, silver lines. In fact everybody concerned was mighty happy about the whole thing, even the Goodyears from Kingston, who contributed by far the largest portion of the post-season fruit.

One of the brighter aspects of the meeting was the consensus of all teams concerned that the 1953-54 edition of the group was by far the best produced in the district for many a moon. Each and all predicted an even better season next year. In fact some of the teams already have designs for next year, and all of them will be back. The Orillia Terriace showed a little hesitancy but by the time the season heaves in sight the Fenlies will be on the line.

• • •

Stouffville, who skipped last year and entered a Toronto grouping, voiced its request to enter a team in this district group next season. Probably the sight of the other squads tucking away large chunks of folding money, their receipts from the group pool, had something to do with it, but the Clippers want in, but definitely.

Oshawa's bid to "up" the group to Senior "A" standing met with a cold shoulder from the rest of the clubs. In fact all but Oshawa voted against the move. The general feeling was that a lot of "A" clubs were folding, and that district "B" hockey was good enough for the district it has season can be judged a criterion.

• • •

Secretary Drury Denyes of the Belleville Memos, who represented this city at the confab, said there was plenty of enthusiasm and "giddy-up" at the meeting, which was attended by OHA vice-president Frank Buckland, Peterborough, and executive member Lorne Cook, Kingston.

PLAN IN KINGSTON

The handsome H. Corby Trophy, emblematic of curling supremacy in the city, will be the first prize at the Kingston Curling Club Sportsman's Bonspiel being played in Kingston on Saturday, April 17.

The trophy is competed for annually in Belleville when the Quinte Curling Club holds its bonspiel at the close of the hockey season. However, this year, the club is foregoing its usual activities due to ice difficulties, and the trophy is being put up for competition at the Kingston spiel.

President Bill Gault of the Quinte Club, expects two or three rinks from this city will compete in the bonspiel. The trophy was won last year by a Peterborough rink consisting of H. Bapte, skip, C. Campbell, D. Bapte and F. Stinson.

POINTERS FILE IT UP!

Leader Anderson Orr Point "bangtails" were on a hard track last night and for a while it looked as though they were going to pile up a basketball score on the leg-weary Marmora Millionaires. They slung home 10 packs before the Skeiks with the money title stuck payclirt. The Millionaires hit back savagely to ram home four markers but it was away too little and away too late. The series is developing into a marathon as far as scoring is concerned. 46 pucks have nestled in the rigging in three games with all trio of tills being decided by more or less lopsided scores. There is not that difference between these teams and one of these nights fandom will see both sounds "ours" and red down down to playing some close-chocking, tight hockey.

The teams go back at it again tomorrow night in Marmora and back in their home ballwick before a crowd of home-town fans the Millionaires are liable to tie the series again. The Millionaires have absorbed a pile of hockey during the past few weeks and it is a wonder some of the legs are not worn down to six-inch stumps. However, let's hope the business will be finished before the sun shines on both sides of the fence. The boys can then take a vacation and go back at it again.

Vicious Two-Fisted Attack Brings Bout To Dramatic End; Small Crowd Watches Battle

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Earl Walls, Canada's heavyweight boxing champion, says he "hates fighting." But the 6,350 persons who saw him perform Monday night probably are wondering what would happen if he suddenly "liked" the game.

The 22-year-old Toronto Negro unleashed the most vicious two-fisted attack seen here in years when he knocked out Tommy Harrison of Los Angeles, Calif., at 2:36 of the first round of a scheduled 10-rounder. It was his 26th knockout in 35 professional fights and his 19th first-round KO.

Walls weighed 194¾ and Harrison 183½.

It was sweet revenge for the 22-year-old lefty who lost a unanimous 10-round decision here Jan. 27 to Harrison. That time 14,727 persons paid a Toronto record gate of $45,291 to see the battle which Monday night, with prices slightly at a range of $10 to $3, the gate was $17,325.

Walls was 2-1 favorite for the first time in his career. Veritable description of him after he lost was that he was a "game fighter." He twice got up from the floor in the fight and took a sound beating.

REMATCH DIFFERENT

The rematch was completely different. The fans had hardly been seated from a 30-minute stretch prior to the main bout when Walls rushed out of his corner at the bell and clipped Harrison with a looping right to the temple. That started the slaughter.

He found the range with a hard left hook to the jaw and Harrison's knees buckled. He got up at the count of five and was belted from the corner of the ring to the other before he slumped down for keeps. The final knockout also was on a left hook to the jaw.

"The boy is good," said Dan Earle, ex-111-k.o. artist in New York trainer who was in Walls' corner. Phil Flynn, who has handled Jersey Joe Walcott, Paddy Young, Joey Micelli and others in a career of about 30 years, retired to sit out on a limb concerning Walls' prospects in the heavy ranks.

Sign With Intercounty

KITCHENER (CP)—Two of last year's standbys have signed 1954 contracts with Kitchener Panthers of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League.

Outfielder Alex Kvasnak and catcher Harry Pratka are the latest to come into the fold.

GALT (CP)—Pete Karpuk, former Ottawa football star, has signed a contract with Galt Terriers of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League for 1954.

Karpuk will hold down the third base position, replacing former manager Johnny Hanlon.

He is no stranger to fans here. He first played with the Terriers in 1951 and left to finish the season with Ottawa Athletics of the International League. He rejoined the Terriers last year but drew his release and ended the year with Kitchener Panthers. He did not play in the Intercounty last season.

Terrier manager Mike Pontarelli said Karpuk is the "unnamed" player released to Galt by Kitchener in exchange for rights to pitcher Bob Rockburn, who will be here in 1952. The deal was completed a few weeks ago.

Intercounty Umps Ready to Go

PRESTON (CP) — Between 35 and 40 working umpires will handle all classifications of Intercounty baseball games this summer.

At the semi-annual dinner meeting here, the Intercounty umpires reviewed the agreement passed for the 1954 season between the Intercounty Baseball Association and umpires' association. Five new umpires were approved.

The agreement sets standard fees for umpires in charge of senior games.

Senior clubs will be charged $30 when three men officiate. When only two umpires arbitrate the fee is $26, of which $15 is for the plate umpire and $11 for the base umpire. Division of fee under the three-man kyatem is $13 for the plate man, $9 for first base umpire and $8 for third base umpire.

The new umpires approved for this year are Jack Verity of Paris, D. Gambacort of Brantford, Tubby Navarro of Galt and Jimmy Tye and Reg. Bartlett of Ferrgus.

Marsh Artis, of Kitchener was elected president of the eight-man executive body. Other members are Bill Stanley, Woodstock; Bill London; Bill Almas, Preston, secretary - treasurer; Jack Simms, Vern Donahue, London, James Talt, Preston, Norm Hill and Ab Culiston, Galt, as directors.

Looks Like Teeps in Four Straight, Whip Marlies 2-1 for Third Victory

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines TeePees, led by one of the most devastating lines in junior hockey, were prohibitive favorites today to sweep their Ontario Hockey Association championship series from Toronto Marlboros in four straight games.

The Teeps, just about unbeatable behind the powerhouse line of Cullen, Gene and Barlow, defeated Marlboros 2-1 Monday night to give them a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. They meet in the fourth game at Toronto tonight.

The winner of the series meets Quebec Frontenacs in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada finals and the right to represent the east in the Memorial cup playoffs.

TeePees, extended to eight games by Toronto St. Michael's Majors in their semi-finals, gave 3,700 hometown fans plenty to cheer about as they scored two goals in the first period and limited Marlboros to one goal over the rest of the route.

The cruising, hard - checking game was almost a carbon copy of the second game in Toronto Saturday, but coach Rudy Pilous' TeePees were more alert. Marlboros, on the other hand, played back strongly but still lacked the needed scoring punch.

The St. Catharines brother act of Brian and Barry Cullen accounted for both TeePee goals. Brian gave Teeps a 1-0 lead at 3:48 of the first period on a pass with Hugh Barlow and Ian Cushman and Barry Cullen at 16:17, Barlow and Brian assisted on the second one.

Marlboros got back in the game at 11:42 on a goal by Jerry James but from then on TeePee goalkeeper Marve Edwards was unbeatable.

Marlboros came close in the third period. Dave Reid pushed the puck past Edwards but it slid along the goal line, hit the post and bounced out. A few minutes later Wally Maxwell put Bob Pulford a pass and he skated in uncovered only to hit the goalie with Edwards out of position.

Officials called a total of 14 penalties, TeePees took eight of them.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN
by Elmer Ferguson

Here's a real paradox in sport. Another gruelling struggle for possession of hockey's most coveted award, the Stanley Cup, is in its final torrid stages this week. This marks the final parting along a multi-million dollar trail — for a trophy that cost somethihr less than $50., and was given, originally, for competition among amateur hockey clubs.

It was back in the far-from-gay Nineties that Lord Stanley, then Governor General of Canada, donated the sum of ten pounds sterling for the purchase of the trophy to bear his name. Lord Stanley was rather an indifferent hockey fan. But during his tenure of office another distinguished Englishman, Lord Kilcourcie, was a visitor at Government House, Ottawa, and through his efforts the trophy was secured.

Lord Kilcourcie was fascinated by the hockey of the period, so much so that he asked to be tutored in what he described as "ice athletics". He proved an apt pupil and became a player on the Rebels Hockey Club, then a member of the Ontario Hockey Association. Lord Kilcourcie then learned that the Stanley Cup was merely for the glory of winning, with no tangible recognition given the victors.

He sought out his friend Lord Stanley and prevailed upon him to make some fitting donation yesterday one that would perpetuate the memory of Lord Stanley. Upon receiving the ten pounds Lord Kilcourcie had a trophy fashioned to be known as the Stanley Cup and presented annually as symbolic of Canadian hockey supremacy.

The Cup was awarded as a challenge trophy for amateur hockey, for the very good reason that then — in the days of nominal ice, small rinks, many of them outdoor, professional talent, small risks, many of them outdoor, professional rinks, maintenance of hockey headquarters, reimbursement of referees and other officials. "A million dollar trophy" is definitely symbolic. Competition for the $50 trophy, and of course for the monetary awards that are coupled with it, have run into the billion-dollar mark, beyond doubt.

McNeil in Giant-Killer Role As Canadiens Join Battle With Detroit Wings Tonight

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Gerry McNeil, the smallest goalie in the National Hockey League, essays the giant-killer role again tonight when Montreal Canadiens meet once more about the worst on hand over the Stanley Cup — the Detroit Red Wings.

The Montreal goalie, who chalked up two shutouts in the last three games of the 1953 Stanley Cup finals against Boston Bruins, is five-feet seven inches high and weighs 155 pounds.

McNeil is a spot dramatic and unenviable. Just a year ago he was plucked out of the blue by season series because of a bad case of nerves. But he has since steady Canadiens and help them along to hockey's big championship title.

Two months ago McNeil was put on the shelf in Chicago with an ankle injury. Jacques Plante, who took over from McNeil a year ago, was yanked from Buffalo. He was such a sensation that the job was his. McNeil, fearful, sat on the sidelines.

With Plante in the nets, Canadiens swept through to a four-game straight win over Boston Bruins in the Stanley Cup semi-final. Canadiens broke even with the Red Wings in Detroit in the first two games of the final and then lost two games at home. Plante looked the hero of goals.

By that time the Red Wings were favored to win the series and the netminding job was again beckoning to McNeil. The decision to change goalies was a quick one. Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens again went all out on applied psychology and something he calls the band.

An hour out of Detroit as the hockey special train rolled along, Irvin said to McNeil:

"It was just wondering if you would like to get your job back again."

"I certainly would," said McNeil.

That ended the conversation. When McNeil walked into Canadiens' dressing-room Sunday night his equipment was all laid out.

McNeil went into the nets and turned in a sensational game, although two months out of competitive action. He was beaten by Marcel Pronovost in the only goal of the game.

Coach Tommy Ivan said Monday he would send back his same Nine-Men lineup for tonight's game, with a minor variation. Clit Le Brun, who has a two-year contract by Canadiens five years ago and now belongs to Buffalo, has been recalled from Sherbrooke of the Quebec Hockey League. Dube may be called on for power plays, taking the place of rookie Earl (Dutch) Reibel who has been out of goals the fourth game here Saturday.

The last word from Canadiens: "We will go with his same lineup. That would include Ginger Stewart, an experienced NHL player recalled from Buffalo, who turned in a useful game Sunday.

Baseball Bugles Blow Fanfare, 1954 Season Gets Under Way

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The major leagues today opened what promises to be one of the most interesting baseball seasons in many years.

Rarely has a campaign started with so many vital questions waiting to be answered. The latest and perhaps the most important is: How much will Enos Slaughter help the New York Yankees?

Did the five-time American League pennant winners ignite another fiery drive to overtake the 29-year-old Slaughter from the St. Louis Cardinals on the eve of the race? Or did they blow their chance when they sold star pitcher Vic Raschi to the Cardinals six weeks earlier?

Can Slaughter, with a new manager at the helm, make it three in a row in the National League or will old age finally creep up on the Dodgers? Can Milwaukee Braves withstand the sluggers from Cincinnati to give the Dodgers a run for their money?

OTHER QUESTIONS

Can Ferdie Rod Sox hang on until Ted Williams recovers from his fractured collar bone to spark them with his big bat? Can newcomers Dave Philley and rookie Rudy Regalado help the pennant-less Cleveland Indians lacked the last three years when they finished second to the Yankees? Will the shift from St. Louis to Baltimore give the lowly Browns (now Orioles) the same shot in the arm that the Braves got last year when they were moved from Boston to Milwaukee?

Of course, the answers to these questions will be a long time coming. However, the prospects for close races in both leagues are bright since all last year's pennant ties appear strengthened and eager to take a crack at the defending champions.

For the first time in years all 16 clubs started the season on the same day. Some 215,000 fans were expected to see the eight inaugurals that featured five new managers, a new city and a batch of new faces — though mainly drawn from the opening-day line-ups were such familiar figures as Williams, Slaughter, Mantle and Gus Zernial.

Slaughter, on hand for the Yankees' opener in Washington, was not expected to see much action but Mickey Mantle, the young outfield star, was slated for duty, apparently recovered from his knee operation of last winter.

A sell-out crowd of 30,000 was assured to watch President Eisenhower throw out the first ball. After that either lefthander Chuck Stobbs or righthander Bob Porterfield was to take the mound for the Senators. Southpaw Whitey Ford, who holds a 5-0 lifetime record against Washington, already has been named to open for the Yankees.

DETROIT (CP)—Bob Evans, 158 of Detroit, scored a technical knockout Monday night over Jules Garceau, 163¼, of Windsor, Ont., at 2:39 of the second round of a four-round preliminary.

Toronto Stars Head Ontario Tennis Players

TORONTO (CP) — Lorne Main and Mrs. Hilda Doleschell, both of Toronto, were named top ranking Ontario tennis players of 1953 at the annual meeting of the Ontario Lawn Tennis Association.

Main, one of Canada's outstanding players, retains the same position he held last year. Mrs. Doleschell, a newcomer to the Ontario scene from Austria, has been playing locally for the last 18 months.

Mary Nunns and Harry Hall of Toronto were named top ranking junior players in the same positions in men's divisions.

J. S. H. Beck of Toronto was elected president of the association at the Saturday meeting, succeeding past president E. C. Cooke of Ottawa.

The new president said that the 1954 Canadian tennis tournament will be held in Toronto in July with the dates and location of Davis Cup matches dictating the date. The Canadian junior tennis tournament will be held at Ottawa in August.

The association will pay part of the expenses of a six-week tennis school to aid juniors that is being held by Derek Bouquet, club professional at the badminton and racquet club. Fourteen top Ontario juniors will work out at the school.

The 1953 Ontario rankings included in the men's senior division Ralph Osborne, Hitchcock, who was also elected with Beck on the 1954 board of officers.

ST. F. X. WINS

MONTREAL (CP)—Linie Frank Kerbet rattled home 22 points Monday night to pace St. Francis Xavier University to a 64-55 victory over Montreal Amateur Athletic Association in the opener of their two-game total-point eastern Canada intermediate basketball championship series.

Doug McClichol, Montreal Alouettes' football star, was tops for MAAA with 25 points.

Writers, Casters Raise Big Sum For Kiddies

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Sports Writers and Broadcasters Association announced Monday it raised $34,889.58 for crippled children through its third annual sports celebrity dinner last Feb. 18.

The amount enabled the association to pay off in one year cost of a $34,000 main lodge at a camp of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in building on Lake Erie near Port Colborne. It had undertaken to pay for the lodge and an $8,000 cabin at a camp near Kirkland Lake by 1956.

The net compares with $25,400 raised by the 1953 dinner and $10,820 in 1952. Proceeds of all three dinners went to the Ontario society.

A report from Jim Vipond of the Toronto Globe and Mail, in charge of 1954 dinner finances, shows $19,025 raised from sale of tickets for the $25-a-plate event; a $1,900 donation from the Ontario Provincial Lawn Bowling Association from tournaments last year; and a subsidy of $464.58 from donations toward dinner expenses. An anonymous Toronto financier donated an $8,000 gift. He made a similar contribution in 1953 when he matched proceeds from the dinner.

Actual cost of the meal, $4,982, was paid by the Ontario Hotel Association.

Choong Wins US Badminton Singles Crown

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Two United States badminton titles were won by a Malayan country for the first time during the weekend after some spectators from Malaya put spectacular proof of their ability to knock around a shuttlecock.

Eddy Choong, a mighty mite of the courts who hasn't lost a tournament singles match in more than two years, snatched the U.S. men's singles championship Sunday with a victory over Joe Alston, former champion from South Pasadena, Calif. The score was 15-5, 2-15, 15-13. He entered the final after knocking out Toronto's Don. Smythe in the Canadian champion, Saturday.

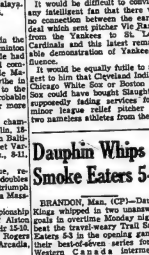
Eddy, who is also all-England champion, and his brother, David, lost a bid for the U.S. men's doubles title, but it was still all in the family, as their victorious opponents were Ong Poh Lim and Ooi Tek Mock, also of Malaya. The Choongs lost 15-11, 15-4.

FIRST TIME

This was the first time in the history of the American Badminton Association that the U.S. title had been opened to international competition. With the formidable Malayans in the wife and Smythe in the strong contention right up to the semi-finals, it seemed probable from the outset that one or more U.S. titles would be lost.

The U.S. women's singles championship went to Judy Devlin, 18-year-old student from Baltimore, who defeated Margaret Varner of South Hadley, Mass., 9-11, 11-6, 11-4.

Judy and her sister, Sue, regained their U.S. women's doubles title by a 10-15, 15-8, 15-13 triumph over Ethel Marshall and Bea Massaro of Buffalo.



The mixed doubles championship went to the hands of Alston and his wife, Lois, after their 15-10, 15-13 victory over Wynn Rogers and Mrs. Hulet Smith of Arcadia, Calif.

MATHEWS TO FIELD?

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Manager Charlie Grimm has changed his mind and said Eddie Mathews may still become an outfielder.

Grimm talked it over "with Mm," Grimm said Monday before he and his Milwaukee Braves boarded a train for Cincinnati and today's opening National League game. He finally liked the idea.

Three months ago Grimm was opposed. Lately, to use the young major league home run king off third base.

Talbot Suggests Ways, Means to Stop Major Loops Pennant Insurance Deals

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—No matter how glib the avowals of other National League executives, he couldn't have used Country Slaughter, the baseball public is not going to believe them and is, once again, taking a hideous view of New York Yankees' ability to sneak veteran stars of the rival league.

Either of two clubs which expect to challenge Brooklyn Dodgers—Milwaukee Braves and New York Giants—would have been strengthened if it had Slaughter available to play right field for them in games. Either team could have afforded his $70,000 salary, considering the prize at stake. But neither could have got him, and knew it. Yet, last fall, their presidents proclaimed that a 38-year-old Slaughter didn't fit into their plans were so much top dressing.

It would be difficult to convince any intelligent fan that there was no connection between the earlier deal which sent pitcher Vic Raschi from the Yankees to St. Louis Cardinals and this latest remarkable demonstration of Yankee influence.

It would be equally futile to suggest to him that Cleveland Indians, Chicago White Sox or Boston Red Sox could have bought Slaughter's services by packaging services for a minor league relief pitcher and two nameless athletes from the tall grass, as the five-time world series hero.

Perhaps it is only fair to state that no one complained when Raschi was yanked out of the American League and sold to the Cards. On the contrary, there was considerable rejoicing that the Yanks appeared to have weakened themselves. Now, though, there is the feeling that it was just a case of waiting for the other shoe to drop.

BROADEN RULE NEEDED

Are there means of preventing such deals? There are, and it should be quite simple. It would be necessary only for commissioner Ford Frick to take another hitch on a regulation they passed last March while the world was in mind of hailing such "pennant insurance" as reasonable.

The law says that such a player as Slaughter, after being waived out of the National League, must then be offered in turn to each American League club starting from the bottom in the league standings—that is, after July 15. In other words, after that date each of seven other American League clubs would have been given a whack at Slaughter before the Yanks.

Now may predict will some confidence that the next joint meeting of the leagues this summer will see the rule broadened to take in the entire year.

Pt. Anne Defeats Marmora In Third Game Valley Finals

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

The Point Anne Cementmen light, but when they got to take the game 13-4, thus holding the 3 games to one edge in the Trent Valley Hockey finals series.

The two clubs clash again Wednesday night with the Dr. H. Crawford Memorial Arena in Marmora the site of battle.

The Millionaires put up their best fight during a five-minute session in the last period when they blasted home four quick goals, two of which came when the Anderson-Williams crew were shorthanded.

Jones broke Don Bates' bid for a goose egg at 8.38 on a lovely passing play with Mantle where the latter fed Jones from behind after taking his pass, and blasted the puck into the net. Jones and Mantle then they got the next one less than a minute later with John Green of the charging and beating two minutes were over Jones had sunk his second goal and the score was tied 10-3. The same player finished the Millionaires scoring at 11.01 on a solo rush. Mantle and Jones hitting the goal post and bouncing out in front of the net. For a while it was feared that he was seriously hurt but he returned to action almost immediately.

SCORE EARLY

Gerry Goyer and Bill Strahan had scored early in the period for the Cementmen, Goyer getting his second and Strahan's, his third goal of the game and his second of the night. Goyer's counter saw Mulholland notched another pair near the end of the game to round out the high-goal period.

Jacklin opened the scoring at 1.46 and Bradshaw, the first with the game half over and Leo Goyer got the next one at 4.07, tapping in a scramble play with Williams and Gerry Goyer. Pat Gilmour made it 4-0 during the next minute.

Billy Strahan and Pat Gilmour opened the winners' attack with three goals and two assists each while the third member of that clear Strahan way, had a goal and two helpers. Gerry and Leo Goyer got Paul a great night and Williams stick, each scoring twice and assisting on the same number while Mulholland got one of each.

Jones was the marksman for the winners with three goals while Mantle drew a trio of assists and Brooks claimed one and one.

Fifteen penalties were dealt out by the white-sweatered pair, nine of the visitors' to the winners before a crowd of 1,135.

The teams:

Slammin' Sam Edges Brilliant Ben To Annex Third Masters Golf Crown

By MERCER BAILEY,

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)— Sam Snead, the drawling West Virginia mountaineer, two conquests in his winning field third Masters golf championship—he beat Ben Hogan—by one stroke in that 18-hole playoff round and also licked a bad case of "yips".

"Yips" is a Snead-coined word the Slammer uses to describe putting jitters, and he said before the tournament that he was in the midst of the worst case of his career.

But he handled his putter adequately Monday and came home with a two-under-par 70 to Hogan's 71, whose victory bracketed Snead with Jimmy Demaret as a three-time Masters winner. Hogan, too, was seeking his third Masters title and had hoped to become the first man ever to capture two in succession.

It was just a question of who got the breaks," Sam said after defeating the little Texan who swept the Masters, Tournament of Champions and British Open last year. BREAK ON 18TH

One of the breaks in Sam's favor came on the 18th hole, where he chunked it from 30 feet for a birdie three to go ahead of Hogan for good.

He used a six-iron off the tee and the ball landed back of the green behind a little hump. He used the same club for his chip shot.

"I told that six-iron, 'you put me over here, now you get me outta here,'" Sam said with a grin.

This was the third time these two golfing greats had met in man-to-man competition, and Snead has come out on top every time. He beat Ben in a San Francisco match-play tournament before the war and again in their 1950 playoff for the Los Angeles Open crown.

Snead picked up $3,000 for his victory and Hogan got $1,125. Each also got an undisclosed percentage of the playoff gate.

Sport in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ezzard Charles, the old pro among the world's heavyweight boxers, has won a "logical contender" label from the National Boxing Association.

Charles, who will meet champion Rocky Marciano June 17 at New York's Yankee Stadium, thus became the first boxer to earn such a high rating since Marciano won the title from Jersey Joe Walcott.

Nino Valdez, Cuba's hope for the championship, was listed Monday as the best of three "outstanding" boxers." Running behind Valdez were Don Cockell, the British champ, and Roland LaStarza, beaten within the last year by both Marciano and Cockell.

The list contained no Canadians.

LONDON BOXER RETIRES

BOSTON (AP)—The 38th running of the Boston Marathon, a race run on Patriots Day each April 19—really became a "Cinderella" story of Clarence de Mar, 65-year-old "Grand Old Man of Marathoning" and winner of the event.

Another veteran racer added to the field was Hawaii's Norman Tamanaha, 10th in 1951.

BIG CROWD

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—A chilled crowd of 5,000 fans braved the Monday night to welcome the return of harness racing to Yonkers raceway after five months of investigations and political turmoil.

Yonkers raceway is the first eastern trotting season was the earliest in history for New York's sulky tracks. Last year a record 30,566 attended the opening.

The slump in labor racketeer last fall brought about a searching investigation of the sport, the tracks, owners and stockholders and wound up with appointment of a state trotting "czar."

DERBY FAVORITE

LONDON (AP)—Favorite, morning colt running in the colors of the Queen, topped the betting for the Epsom Derby and a fourth favorite for the 2,000 Guineas classic at a mile and a half-Monday night.

Landau, who failed to live up to expectations in his last race, was listed at 10-1 for the Derby at the Victoria Club enclosure. Rowston Manor also was a 10-1 pick. The Derby will be raced June 2 at Epsom.

WILLIAMS BETTER

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, smiling and sun-burned, had more to be taken of his broken collarbone Monday and then took a Fenway Park workout with the doctor's estimate he may play ball for Boston Red Sox by the latter part of May.

"We are delighted with his progress," said Dr. Russell Sullivan who operated on Ted's collarbone after he broke it in a March 1 fall in Florida training. "I plan to remove the splint from the bone between May 3 and May 5."

His side was shy at least one high card to establish a long suit. But it looked close enough for a game try with what partner showed. And a good player will take a chance as this.

Opening lead from west was diamond king. Immediately evident was the fact that opponents can skim four diamond tricks right off the top. He hoped neither opponent had five diamonds.

If they take four diamond tricks, his nine tricks needed tricks are still possible. He can peel eight solids with two heart tops and six clubs. A successful finesse would make his ninth.

Which way should he try the club finesse? Foxy west helped to make up his mind. Instead of cashing the fourth diamond, west took only three diamonds and switched to a spade.

See what south figured from this? Since west did not take a fourth diamond, east must have it. If so, it would be dangerous to let east get into the lead for cashing the fourth diamond.

Rectoning it is unwise to lead a south club and finesse the dummy. If east has club queen and wins with it, down goes the contract when he takes the fourth diamond. Contract is set there.

So, south led a small club from dummy and finessed the jack in his own hand. West pounced on it with the queen. Now the good player plunked down his fourth diamond and the trick that killed the contract.

You may say it was a dangerous hoax for west to try. But it worked. And was south mad! He could have murdered the guy.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went in the house for a drink of water, and ma was in there taking off her hat. "Ma," I says to her, "I'm having just came home, and I said, Hay ma, I got something shining, and I picked it up and it was a diamond. Do you think it's real? I said.

Of course not, ma said, and I said, Why not, ma?

Because it's not human nature to find diamonds in the street, ma said, and I said, But I'm a good luck saint it?

Whatever it is, it simply doesn't happen, so there's no use bilding castles in the air where they dont exist, ma said, and I said, Suppose I went in the jooley store and asked the man what suppose he'd give me it's worth a thousand dollers?

Suppose the moon is made of green cheese and beggers ride on horseback through perpie closets, ma said, and I said, Shall I throw it out the window, ma?

You mile as well, ma said, and I said, Oh boy, I bet Lucky Leroy Shooster finds it, because he's always finding things, and he'll claim he found a real diamond, and I'll have a good rich man on him.

And I started to open the widow to throw it out, saying, Anyway, even if people do find diamonds, I guess they never find them rite out on the sidewalk in front of their own house. Nobody gets that lucky, I said, and ma said, What? Wait. Stop.

And she quick locked at her hand, saying, Oh, my goodness it's out of my own ring. I took my gloves off on the front steps, and that's what happened. Your father warned me not to have that stone tightened, she said, and I said, Oh boy, maybe he'll give me a reward when he finds out.

Dont you dare tell him, I'll give you a years allowance, ma said.

Which she did, being 2 dimes and a promise to make a lemmon merange pie.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Spencer Tracy, doing his first loan-out in 13 years, is happy to be back at the studio where he says he was once fired.

Tracy, long a member of the MGM star team, is doing "Broken Lance" for 20th Century-Fox. The picture for his services is probably around $150,000, but that's not the reason for his satisfaction. A couple of decades ago, when the studio was just plain Fox, he was under contract there.

"They fired me," grinned the whimsical Irishman. "Those were the days when I was still drinking, and I got drunk now and then. But never on a picture — always between. Anyway, they worried about me.

"I was all set for a big, expensive picture. But they came to me and asked if I was going to behave, I told them, 'that's a heck of a way to get me to behave!' If you're worried about me, why don't you let me go?'

MGM CONTRACT SAME DAY

"That's all they needed. I was out of the studio the same day.

"But at 8 o'clock that night, my agent took me over to MGM to have a talk with Louis B. Mayer. At 9 o'clock I was signed to a contract, and I've been there ever since."

The rest, of course, is Hollywood history. Within three years Tracy had won two Oscars for "Captains Courageous" and "Boys' Town."

Tracy who turned 54 last week, is still going strong. His hair is white, but he still has his youthful humor and lively sense of humor.

LEAVING, REPORTS SAID

There had been reports that Tracy would be leaving MGM, together with Clark Gable, Greer Garson and other long-time stars. Tracy now is one of the longest-lasting stars on the lot.

"But Bob Taylor has been there longer, than I have," he said.

"When I arrived 19 years ago, he had already been doing shorts for year.

"Will I sign again? I don't know."

Aylmer Takes Goderich 9-7

GODERICH (CP)—Aylmer Tigers went into overtime Monday night to defeat Goderich Sarns Pontiacs 9-7 in the first game of their Ontario Hockey Association intermediate "B" playoff series.

The game was tied 6-6 at the end of the third period. In the overtime Jack Marian scored a goal for Goderich in the first 10 seconds. Aylmer came back hard to put in three goals in less than four minutes.

Lou Mustos and Jim Peterson scored three goals each for Aylmer Cliff Stanford got two and Orval Kelly, coe. Don Emms, Goderich playing coach, got three markers; Meriam two and Billy MacDonald and Ted Williams, one each.

Aylmer will be played at Aylmer Wednesday night.

BLIND VS. BRAD

BRISTOL, England (CP) — Ten blind men challenged 10 deaf men to a chess match here. The blind men won by seven matches to three.

Kesselring Says Pro Golf Tough Business

KITCHENER (CP)—Gerry Kesselring, a big, confident golfer who burned up Canadian courses as an amateur, said Monday it's a tough business following the game's money trail in the United States.

Kesselring, who turned professional at 24 last year after being named top amateur by the Ontario Golf Association for the third straight time, stopped off at his home here for a rest before taking another fling at the winter circuit.

"It's a great life," he said. "I'd like to keep at it for another 10 years. But it's a tough league."

In his last year as an amateur Gerry won just about every title in Ontario. In 1946 and '47 he was Canadian junior champion.

Kesselring and his wife, Helga, first started on the pro circuit in mid-December. They logged more than 12,000 miles by car and Gerry's circuit in a couple of weeks.

Tri-Bells Lose To Winnipeg

TORONTO (CP) — Winnipeg Paulins defeated Toronto Tri-Bells 62-54 Monday night in the second game of their best-of-five finals for the Canadian men's senior basketball championship before 1,200 fans The series is tied 1-1.

The third game is scheduled here today. The fourth and fifth, if necessary, will be played here Tuesday and Friday

The Paulins jumped to a 15-10 lead in the first quarter and were ahead 27-23 at the half. They were leading 39-33 going into the last quarter.

Doug Grosham led Paulins with 21 points Carl Rid scored 16 and Herb Clarkson counted 13 . High man for Tri-Bells was Ray Moscoso with 15 points. Ray Thomas scored 14.

winnings totalled $821.

He bucked some of the game's best men and missed the money in only four of the 20 events he entered. He qualified in all but three tournaments and will head back to the mainland and will head back to the circuit in a couple of weeks.

AT THE McCARTHY:

There's a whole bunch of bananas in "Top Banana," United Artists screen version of the rowdy and hilarious Broadway musical hit, now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Top banana is, in burlesque parlance, a comedian, and "Top Banana" boasts a larger and loonier assortment of comedians than any other picture in recent memory.

Phil Silvers is the star of "Top Banana", produced in color by Albert Zugsmith, based on Ben Pesker, and directed by Alfred Green. The supporting cast includes Danny Scholl, Rose Marie, Herbie Faye, Jack Albertson, Johnny Coy, Herbie Faye, Joey Faye, Walter Dare Wahl, Johnny Tvanas, Dick Dana, Bradford Hatton and Morris Smith.

Most of the action, after (excluding the girls), Danny Scholl — who is the singing Ben Pesker, and Johnny Coy — a featured dancer — are comics, Albertson, and the two Fayes (Joey and Herbie) are old and well-known to burlesque afficionados as bananas. Walter Dare Wahl and Johnny Tvanas have been partners in a famous comic vaudeville act for many years. All the others are noted for their comic roles on the stage, the screen and on television.

Yes, we have some bananas in "Top Bananas," and Phil Silvers is the top one.

AT THE DRIVE-IN THEATRE

"THE PRISONER OF ZENDA"

Stewart Granger plays a dual role in this adventure drama of intrigue in a mythical European kingdom in the last century. On the one hand, he is the heroic king; and on the other, a carefree English tourist who is called upon to take the place of the king when subversive forces, led by James Mason, kidnap the legitimate ruler. Deborah Kerr is the princess with whom the swashbuckling tourist falls in love. Also "The Lady Says No."

HISTORIC CANAL

The first Lachine canal along the St. Lawrence near Montreal was opened in 1825.

AT THE BELLE—June Allyson and Van Johnson make their fifth co-starring picture in "Remains To Be Seen" MGM's fun version of the hilarious Broadway stage hit, showing tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre. June plays a "real gone" model artist. Van is seen as a "real" dramatic actor, both pursuing the same murder mystery drifted between romance and laughs.

AT THE CAPITOL—Wendell Corey made star in "Hell's Half Acre" thrilling new production now showing at the Capitol Theatre with Evelyn Keyes and Rex Lansbeck. On the same program it's a racing-car thriller romance, "Crescendo" starring Jason Robards, Jim Backus and Stan Levitt. Now playing. Ends Wednesday. See both of these Belleville showing bills on our new giant carved wide screen.

"LILI" is something to remember forever. It has everything — music, ballet, romance and pure enchantment. If you are young, you'll love it — If you're middle-aged you'll adore it — If you're old . . . you'll just be young again! Wary as I am of entering pictures because so many different factors, I nevertheless recommend "LILI" to all. I think it's one of the best pictures ever made. I predict it will be among the best loved pictures of our time!

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Stress qualities today, and foresight too, lest you overlook opportunities, perhaps fail to notice important details. Your own management will count.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Don't look for and expect quick or mountainous results from even your best efforts. Some days just won't yield, all we desire but foundation work can always be laid for future activities.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your keen, snappy ideas and plans may be somewhat stymied today but they need not be abandoned. Nurse them wisely and they will function better later. Good effort is never wasted.

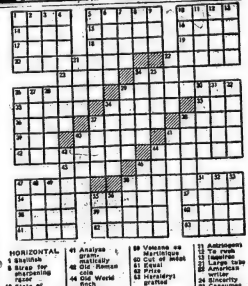
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — During the next few days extra care should be exercised in all important matters and transactions lest you make needless mistakes or overlook valuable opportunities. Don't indulge in worry.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — You may not be wise to seek an increase in salary just now but it is a responsive day for study, research, furthering education generally. Work confer with others where it can be beneficial.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—A friendly Mercury aspect encourages mental alertness, gabs for secretaries, backbreakers. Also favored: research in science, medicine, all new and improved products and methods, government, the military, etc.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Some favorable influences for the student, teacher, all seekers of knowledge. Caution is urged in financial transactions, signing contracts, investments.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Neither stimulating nor restrictive tendencies now. The day can be productive if you plan and manage cleverly; a wasted one if you procrastinate or are indifferent. It's up to you.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your Jupiter's position advises thoughtful care in expenditures, business transactions, investments generally. There are possibilities for fresh benefits, gain through constructive action.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Your usual calm reasoning and deductions can keep you in the right groove—and out of mischief — during this none-too-easy day. Don't be apprehensive or gullible.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You are signally fortunate with your planet Uranus favoring many potentials. Use your imagination and intuition to gain the important advantages possible.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Similar to Aquarius now. Have faith and enthusiasm in good plans—whether for the day or the future. Be cautious in finances, investments, making contracts. Personal matters are under better aspects.

YOU BORN TODAY have sterling qualities and the abilities needed for real achievement. But you also have failings that must be corrected. You have business acumen, ability to build toward an executive or managerial position. Many noted editors and other newspaper personnel and writers found in Aries. Curb any inclination to domineer or force your opinions on others. You are intelligent and you know that it is better to arbitrate, persuade tactfully. Cultivate patience, moderation. Don't underestimate opposition. Birthdate: James Branch Cabell, American novelist.

CAMPBELLFORD

Local Lodge Hall Officially Dedicated

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbell-
ford IOOF and Loch Leonard Rebekah Lodge 245 were hosts to Odd-fellows and Rebekahs from all over Ontario over the week-end on the occasion of the official dedication of the local lodge hall.

The dedication ceremonies were held in the new lodge building on Doncaster Ave., Saturday evening, and many of the visitors stayed over to take part in the 135th anniversary services of the IOOF which were held on Sunday. More than 700 persons were on hand for the services which were held in St.
Andrew's Presbyterian Church at 11 a.m. The Rev. R. K. Toombs of St. Andrew's preached the sermon.

Prior to the dedication of the hall on Saturday night, about 300
Oddfellows and Rebekahs attended a banquet at the Masonic hall.

DEDICATION SERVICE

The dedication of the hall was carried out in colorful ceremony in the new building on Saturday night, with Grand Master Byron Dundas of London, Ont., conducting the ceremony. High officials of the lodge from all parts of the province took part in the service, and during the evening, a large altar was built on the speaker's platform, with the lodge emblems a degree, and one of the principles for which the lodge stands.

Present on the platform besides
Mr. Dundas were Sister Norma
Bonnell, president of the Ontario
Rebekah Assembly of Ottawa;
District Deputy Grand Master
Stan Bateman of Springbrook; K.
R. Williamson, Grand Master of Belleville; Mrs. Williamson,
Master Newton Foster of Kingston, as well as many other Past Grands and other dignitaries.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Following the dedication ceremony, a number of presentations took place. Mr. Dundas, of Toronto, presented a flag to the lodge in memory of their father, the late George J. Smith. This was received on behalf of the lodge by Bro.
Charles Bentley, also of Toronto, also presented a silk Union Jack in memory of father, the late George J. Smith, who was an active Oddfellow before his death. The flag was received on behalf of the lodge by Earl Newman. Mrs. Dundas
Sister Ella Wynn together with Bro.
Earl Fox, Junior Grand Warden of the Grand Encampment of Sask-ing, presented a Bible in memory of the late Bro. Robert Fox. Bro.
Roy Lovell received the Bible on behalf of the Campbellford lodge.

The dedication of the hall represents an important step in the history of Campbellford lodge No.
248 and Loch Leonard Rebekah lodge, No. 245. The fact that the members of the two lodges is the same, is mere coincidence.

LODGES SET UP

Campbellford Lodge No. 248,
IOOF, was inaugurated in October,
1853 and its quarters in the Ferris Block. The late Mr. J. B.
Ferris was one of the builders was an active Oddfellow. Time went on and the lodge grew in membership, but its quarters were sufficient for many years.

The Rebekah lodge was set up locally in 1922, and membership in this lodge grew by leaps and bounds. Finally a short time lodge accommodation became inadequate. Both lodges then began to move toward securing larger premises, and if possible, own a lodge hall of their own.

Last year, the lodge purchased the building they presently occupy on Doxsee Ave., and through the efforts of the lodge members, it was completely renovated, painted and equipped.

As a rule, the anniversary services are held during the month of May but it was decided to move the services ahead this year, due to the official dedication ceremonies.

Local Oddfellows and Rebekahs will remember for a long time, the limelight they held the weekend. It was a red letter day for the local lodge, and the members are proud that the ceremonies were conducted so smoothly.

Story of Legless RAF Ace Related in 'Reach for Sky'

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Douglas Bader dared as a schoolboy to carve his initials brazenly in the headmaster's largest oak study door, and a crack young RAF pilot in 1931, he lost both legs accepting an acrobatic challenge.

Bader went on to become a
"domineering, aggressive fighter air ace, dubbed "old tiger" by the hell-for-leather Canadian pilots he led through the Battle of Britain.

His story—the part concerning his efforts to walk again like other men underlines such fortitude, daring and perseverance that Bader's Battle of Britain brilliance is but another episode—has been published in a book called "Reach for the Sky." It describes his career from his days as a cocky, energetic and fiercely-competitive schoolboy to his RAF days at 42 years of age as a flying executive for a big oil firm.

"MOBILE FIREBALL"

"Legs or no legs, I've never seen such a blustery blank mobile fireball as that guy," marvelled Flight
Lieutenant Brickhill, Australian
Canadian pilot who served under Bader in the Battle of Britain. Bader, a peerless athlete, was born to fly.

Steeped in the First World War traditions of such aces as Canadian Billy Bishop, Bader was stumental in evolving fighter techniques which helped stem the tide light Luftwaffe raids on England.
He emphasized getting fighter planes to the altitudes before the German planes arrived, then attacking out of the sun in one of the rows of fighter-escorted German bombers before the bombs could be away and dropped.

Bader, pronounced badeer, went down in France in 1941. He beballing out of his damaged plane was picked by Nelson one of his artificial legs. Shortly afterward his squadron flew over the little hospital where he was confined and a new leg was dropped by parachute to Wickson, now in Toronto.

By that time he was famous both to the Germans and had scored 22½ official kills. He recounted how his prisoner-of-war status by trying to escape at once and getting and hiding his own tors through a succession of camps till his release by American forces.

AUSTRALIAN AUTHOR

"Reach for the Sky" by Australian Paul Brickhill, like Bader a former Hurricane fighter pilot, and Pole, describes his aerial lect "an unpredictable mixture of public school (manners) and rude wheel" and followed him for eight months with a tape recorder in an effort to capture His book brings out these points.

Bader was nearly dead after his 1931 crash—he lost one leg above the knee and one below—and his friends at first feared he himself described as a "dying boy." He was discharged from the RAF, not because he couldn't fly but because nothing in the regulations covered a legless man.

He was captured because he flew a Spitfire combined 109 flight-ers alone—breaking one of his personal cardinal rules. In Canada he held the DSO and bar, DFC and bar, Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honor.

Bader's first command was 242

ACE WRITES BOOK

Douglas Bader, famed legless pilot of the RAF during the Second World War, has written a book, "Reach For the Sky." It days as a cocky English schoolboy to his days now as a

Squadron, the only Canadian outfit in the RAF. "They're a tough bunch," he was told before taking over in mid-June, 1940.

The Canadians had more battle experience than Bader and were openly sceptical when he arrived.
But he showed he could fly and they liked his brusque, open attitude, which he illustrated by slashing red tape.

CANADIAN COMRADES

Many of the Canadians were characters in their own right.
Bader, who Bader says now is with Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE), has a face like chipped granite . . . a large capacity for beer and a penchant for firing off a large revolver in public." The Stanley
Vincent, Bader says, was too wild and said so. Bader saw eye to eye with Wing Commander Hickey, as a "crack pilot, fearless and devoted."

There was Willie McKnight of Calgary, 20, "a flinty-eyed little cherub" with a "cold ferocity" he was a tough little man with a heart to be weakened for Bing Crosby records."

The Canadians came almost unscathed through the Battle of Britain, scoring 87 confirmed kills by the end of 1940 for the loss of 41 pilots. Then, in a series of blows in the period of early 1941, the Hurricane squadron lost Mc-
Knight, Laurie Crysterman, Ben
Brown, Hugh Dryden, Ken
Latta, and Ian Smith.

Smith, whose nickname as "dog-body"—was posted to command three spitfire squadrons in March, 1941. Bader was "shot down" by Arthur, another Canadian to fly in Britain. Bader was leading him when Bader led the first Battle of Britain Sweep in 1945.
Bader describes still flies globally and plays a game of golf equalled by one out of every 100 two-legged men. He was married in 1941 to a girl in Canada took place two years ago on business. Following his custom, he flew from Montreal to Toronto in Toronto to show what can be done by a legless type. He also chatted by telephone with Bob Grassick, an ex-342 man, in London, Ont.

31 Degrees Below Zero Called Mild Winter by Muscovites

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP) — Although mercury once dropped to 31 degrees below zero, Muscovites called it a mild winter. But they kept their children to school bundled up in as much as 10 pounds of furs and woolens.

Adults were weighted down with heavy clothing too but among the paradoxes of Russian life were the street-corner stalls selling ice-cream cones and a brisk midwinter business selling ice-cream soda.

Well wrapped but otherwise unmindful of the weather, women paraded on park benches and families strolled together on Sunday afternoons.

Most women wear great 3lb.

chins. Even indoors and in cen-

Days were short and nights extremely long. People went to work in the dark, street lights still when 4:30 p.m. and by 4 p.m. it was really dark. Now it's dark at Unheated trolley-buses were so cold it was better to walk. You couldn't see the city because the windows were frosted. Autobuses were rare.

SENTRIES FAVORED

Only concession to the cold mausoleum in Red Square. There the sentries' tour was shortened

20 minutes.

Moscow traffic kept rolling through the heaviest snowstorms.
The first fall of the flakes religiously brought out the clearing brigades.

Behind them came trucks looking like our street-flushers with re-

Finally, along the curb, dredge-dredge-trucks gobbled up the pileup snow and dropped it into dump trucks. Gangs of women kept the sidewalks shovelled.

Generally the winter motorists drove without chains.

PLENTY OF HEAT

Buildings tend to be overheated.
That's because districts are heated

The contrast between overheated

Dartford Pastor Dedicates Bible, Communion Table

CAMPBELLFORD — A new
Bible, the gift of Mr. and Mrs.
Sloan Ewing, was presented to the Dartford United Church at a service on Sunday afternoon. Mr.
Ewing presented the Bible to the Rev. A. L. Wilson, pastor of the church.

The Bible was given in memory of their daughter, the late
Margaret Jesse Elizabeth Ewing.
The new Bible will replace one that has been in use in the church since September, 1853. The older was donated to the church by Miss E. Ewing, and has become worn through many years of usefulness.

COMMUNION TABLE

At the same service, a new communion table was dedicated and declared. The new table was purchased largely through a bequest of the late Mrs. Jesse church by the Rev. Harry A. Frost.
A brass inscription plate on the table reads: "Donated to the Glory of God and in thankfulness to Him. Rev. Harry A. Frost, Janet Wilson Frost, Mary Frost."

The Rev. A. L. Sloe dedicated the Bible and the table and expressed his appreciation to the donors.

During the service on Sunday,
Carlee Honey, Bonnie Honey,
Arthur Ireland, Anne Pollock,
Wayne Pollock and Shirley Spear were confirmed, and joined in taking Holy Communion.

Crude oil pumped from wells near Edmonton and piped across 718 miles of rugged country is bringing prosperity to British Columbia. B.C. Making Bid to Share Alberta's Oil Boom Rewards

By PETER MURRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia is making a bid for some of the rewards of Alberta's petroleum boom.

Completion of the $23,000,000 Trans Mountain pipeline from Edmonton to Vancouver last fall brought the Pacific coast into the western Canada oil prosperity picture and made this city a potential major port for petroleum exports.

No one here will guess when these potentialities will be fully realized. Most oilmen view the future with cautious optimism, and say the outlook for market expansion here is dependent wholly on world conditions.

But already more than $40,000,000 has been spent on refinery expansion in B.C. by the major oil companies.

BOOST OIL DEMAND

Industrial expansion and increased population boosted by 100 per cent the demand in B.C. for gasoline between 1945 and 1953. Demand for stove and furnace oil jumped 650 per cent.

It was primarily this expansion, coupled with the continued growth of Alberta crude oil reserves following discovery of the Leduc field in 1947, that brought the Trans Mountain pipeline into being.

Until oil began flowing through the 718-mile pipeline across the Rockies last October, all crude oil refined in B.C. was imported from California and South America. Now the 24-inch line is pouring 40,000 barrels a day into Vancouver, less than one-seventh of its ultimate capacity.

The assurance of a guaranteed source of crude oil created by the pipeline was the signal for oil companies to expand.

NEW INDUSTRIES

It brought the prospect of new industries based on petroleum, and J. S. Eckman, chairman of the Greater Vancouver Metropolitan Industrial Development Commission, reports that a number of such industries are planning to start operations here. He describes future development as "unlimited."

The pipeline also gave rise to hopes that Vancouver may become a major oil port. Already 4,350,000 gallons of gasoline have been shipped to Japan, the first overseas export of gasoline from Canada's crude oil.

Depressed tanker rates at present hamper extension of oil exports. Because of a world surplus of tankers, it is cheaper to ship oil by tanker to California than the Persian gulf than by pipeline and tanker from Alberta.

Exporters here, however, are watching the big California market and its booming demand for petroleum.

BIGGER REFINERIES

Imperial Oil led the way in refinery expansion here by spending $13,500,000 to double the capacity of its loco refinery to 22,500 barrels daily. Located on a 400-acre site on the north shore of Burrard inlet 10 miles up-harbor from Vancouver, the loco refinery has also the capacity of 2,000,000 barrels.

Other refinery expansion includes:

Doubling the 7,500-barrel capacity of Shell Oil's refinery at a cost of $10,000,000.

Expenditure by Standard Oil of $10,000,000 for a new 11,000-barrel refinery replacing the old 8,000-barrel plant.

Building of a $6,000,000 refinery at Kamloops to serve the lower Okanagan valley with a 5,000-barrels-a-day capacity.

The pipeline operators hope to boost the line's capacity to 140,000 barrels by the fall of 1955. Most of this additional crude oil will be exported by a spur line from Sumas, B.C., to the state of Washington where two new refineries are expected to take 85,000 barrels a day of Alberta crude by the fall of 1955.

Completion last fall of the 718-mile Trans Mountain oil pipeline from Edmonton to Vancouver was the signal for refinery expansion in Vancouver. This picture shows the loco refinery on the north shore of Burrard inlet, near Vancouver, where Imperial Oil Company spent $13,500,000 to double the refinery's capacity to 22,500 barrels daily. Mist-shrouded mountains of British Columbia's coastal range tower over the refinery. In the background can be seen part of the inlet's north arm. (CP Photo).

H. Bomb Blasts Could Pollute Air With Radioactivity Lasting Thousands of Years-Physicist

TORONTO (CP) — Hydrogen bomb explosions could pollute the air with radioactivity lasting several thousand years, a Toronto physicist said Monday.

Dr. Karl Buckthought of the University of Toronto's physics department expressed his view in a letter to D. M. Johnson, Canada's permanent representative to the United Nations, made public Monday. He said destruction of world civilization is the "inevitable outcome" of an atomic war.

A mid-air explosion of a bomb of the hydrogen type would usually produce carbon 14, with a half-life of 5,000 years. Thus, every such explosion polluted the air with radioactivity effective for several millenia.

If radioactivity were introduced into the jet stream, which extends for thousands of miles with winds up to 100 to 200 miles an hour at the height of 30,000 feet, it might inflict radiation sickness and atom burns on millions of persons, said Dr. Buck thought.

Normally, such radio activity is dispersed within a few days near bomb test sites far out in the ocean.

COULD KILL ALL HUMANS

He said the explosion of 500 to 1,000 tons of hydrogen bomb material could pollute all the air of the earth beyond the safe limit for survival of human beings. He added that such an amount of bomb material is well within the present capabilities of major countries such as the United States and Russia.

A few cobalt bombs exploded to the windward of a major country would produce a cloud that would move across that country, destroying all life, he said.

"The H-bomb tests are not a private affair of any one country, merely trying out a new weapon for its arsenal," said Dr. Buckthought. "In view of the capabilities of hydrogen bombs, not victory for one side or the other but destruction of world civilization is the inevitable outcome of an atomic war."

STIRLING

Neighbors, W.I. Members Honor Young Couple

STIRLING — The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hessman, Oak Hills, was filled to capacity Thursday evening when neighbors, friends and members of River Valley Women's Institute gathered in honor of their daughter, Catherine, and her husband, who were recently married.

Mr. Glenn Bush was master of ceremonies and the newlyweds were given seats of honor. All enjoyed assembly singing and Mrs. Don McIntosh favored with a vocal selection.

Readings were given by Mrs. Jack Sager, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh, Miss Adeline Bush and Mrs. Ralph Ulman.

Master Kenneth Sager delighted with two appropriate numbers.

ADDRESSES

Brief addresses were given by Rev. A. E. Baker, Mr. Harold Little and Mr. George Hessman.

Mrs. Clifford Lansing read an address of appreciation and Mrs. Ross Bush presented the newlyweds with a large array of gaily wrapped parcels, which the happy couple opened. There was a delivery of linen, china, kitchen utensils and a large assortment of other lovely gifts. Catherine and David voiced grateful thanks for the program and gifts and invited their friends to pay them a visit at 4 Ashley Street when they are settled in their apartment.

Refreshments were served and the guests viewed the wedding and shower gifts which were on display in another room.

PRE-NUPTIAL SHOWERS

The bride was given two pre-nuptial showers, one at the home of Mrs. Roy Bush and Mrs. Glenn Bush, River Valley, and the other at the home of Mrs. Hugh Rosebush, Belleville.

About 25 girls from the Bell Telephone office attended this shower and during the evening the girls completed a bride's book and a recipe book.

Catherine received a lovely array of kitchen and aluminumware and expressed thanks to the girls of the office.

Mrs. Rosebush and her assistants served dainty refreshments.

The Fox and The Grapes
A HUNGRY FOX saw some fine bunches of Grapes hanging from a vine that was trained along a high trellis, and did his best to reach them by jumping as high as he could into the air. But it was all in vain, for they were just out of reach: so he gave up trying, and walked away with an air of dignity and unconcern, remarking, "I thought those Grapes were ripe, but I see now they are quite sour."

Oliver Suggests Private Engineers Run Highway Dept.

Would Hire Consultants While Probe Is in Progress

Scrub Woman Makes Real Clean-Up

BIRMINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters) — Mrs. Betty Fox, a 23-a-week scrub woman, was facing the gloomy prospect of giving up her job. She is expecting her fourth baby.

Quitting work would have meant hardship for her family. Her husband, a night shift worker at a car factory, would have been unable to earn enough, to make ends meet.

Now Mrs. Fox, 28, has quit her job for good—and with no pangs of remorse. She has just won £75,000 in a local soccer lottery for a sixpence stake.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's select committee to investigate alleged irregularities in the highways department began work today.

Chairman Kelso Roberts, Toronto lawyer and Progressive-Conservative member of the legislature for Toronto St. Patrick, said the investigation is not expected to "turn into a fishing expedition or a witch hunt."

"We will attempt to make a thorough, unbiased and objective study."

Mr. Roberts revealed that the attorney-general's department is attempting to have the date of the Supreme Court trial of A. K. Mills, former division engineer at Port Wilton, on charges of breach of trust, put forward to June instead of in the fall as scheduled.

CASE ADJOURNED

Farquhar Oliver, Liberal opposition leader and a member of the 12-man committee, urged the appointment of a committee of consulting engineers to report on the work of the highways department during the select committee's investigations.

"The investigation, arrests and suspensions have created an undesirable situation regarding road building in this province. I can't see how the department can spend hundreds of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money on highways with these charges and suspensions still hanging in the air."

Mr. Oliver said the select committee should be the senior investigating group and all agencies appointed by the government should report to and "hang" reports to the committee on their specific duties.

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) asked Harvey Cotsamn, provincial auditor, if he would make any statement on the department's top-heavy policy in awarding of contracts.

Mr. Colman said he preferred to answer the question at his next appearance before the committee, as the current examination was not yet complete.

The investigations started last October in the Fort William district. Mr. Mills and two other department employees were suspended and later charged.

The provincial police are continuing investigation showed it appeared possible that some of the contract firms employed by the highways department might have been parties to a conspiracy to defraud the government.

FIRMS' BOOKS STUDIED

Search warrants authorizing the seizure of these companies' records were issued by the magistrate conducting the preliminary hearing.

Mr. Colman said the investigation was based on additional three contractors.

"I have not yet received the reports on the result of the examinations . . . until those of the information can be sorted out and studied, it would be impossible and unfair to me to make any statement on the result of our examination of the books and records in the contractors' offices."

Balcombe Appeal Set for April 26

TORONTO (CP)—Date of hearing of the appeal against conviction and sentence of 2nd Lieut. Peter Balcombe, 20, born of Fort William, Ont., a sergeant in the women's army reserve. He is under sentence to be hanged May 20.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Severe "dogwood" weather moving eastward across southern Ontario brought scattered showers to the lower Great Lakes region Wednesday morning. A low-pressure area, which developed over northern Alberta Tuesday, is rapidly advancing south eastward and will bring rain and occasional thunderstorms to Ontario today. Warm weather is expected to continue over most of the province.

HEALTH MINISTER SWORN IN AS N.S. PREMIER

Harold Connolly, 53, In Temporary Command

HALIFAX (CP)—Health Minister Harold Connolly, 53, was sworn in Tuesday night as premier of Nova Scotia's 15th administration since confederation and successor to the late Angus L. Macdonald.

Premier Connolly told the legislature immediately after Lieut.-Governor Alistair Fraser administered the oath of office that his first act as premier was "temporary" and in due course the Nova Scotia Liberal Association will call a convention at which time a permanent leader will be selected.

The convention was a near-certainty for late summer or early fall.

Mr. Macdonald died early Tuesday after an illness of only a few days. The death of the builder of Canada's Second World War navy evoked warm tributes from Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and others.

Mr. Connolly will retain for the time being the post of minister of the 11 cabinet posts, the premiership and the highways and health portfolios.

There were no cabinet changes. The other eight ministers went through the traditional procedure of handing their resignations to Governor Fraser.

BY-ELECTION NECESSARY

Mr. Macdonald's death makes necessary a by-election in his riding of Halifax South but there is no indication of the date. The constituency in the past has voted overwhelmingly Liberal.

The late premier's body will lie in state in the storied red chamber of Province House from 2 p.m. Thursday to Monday morning when a state funeral will be accorded the man who fought and won four provincial general elections and led Nova Scotia's Liberals from apathy to ascendancy for years.

Mr. Connolly was a onetime editor of the now-defunct Halifax Herald and Star and has had a political career that has taken him to ways paralled that of the man he succeeds.

He represented Halifax ridings; Mr. Connolly in Halifax North, Mr. Macdonald in Halifax South. Each entered politics as comparatively young men. Mr. Connolly at 34, Mr. Macdonald at 43. Mr. Connolly is a Roman Catholic and so was Mr. Macdonald.

Russian Emigre Flees to Reds

BERLIN (Reuters) — Dr. A. Truchovitch, 50, a leading Russian émigré official, has fled to East Germany and reported to the secret police, the Soviet zone radio in East Berlin said today.

Russian emigre circles have been taken by surprise by the radio announcement, they said in Munich and Paris Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Alexander Trouchovitch, who headed the West Berlin office of the Russian emigre organization Narodny Trudovoi Soyuz and agent-fascist organizations in West Germany.

He had brought "valuable material" with him and was accompanied by another alleged agent of an espionage organization run by Reinhard Gehlen, former Nazi German intelligence chief, the radio said.

Royal Children Start Journey to Meet Parents Under Security Measures

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) — The tightest security measures ever used for a royal tour are protected the gleaming, 4,000-ton royal yacht Britannia for her maiden voyage tonight with Prince Philip and Queen Elizabeth's two children aboard.

Special passes were required to get past heavy police lines on the 60,000,000 yacht will transport Prince Charles, 5, and Princess Anne, 3, to Tobruk to meet their parents on their return from their Commonwealth tour.

Large crowds gathered outside Buckingham Palace in London to see the children leave on their first trip outside Britain. Crowds also gathered for a special trip ashore when they arrive at Malta and Suez for eight days. April 30 they sail for Tobruk.

Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret went with the children to this south coast port. Prince Philip met the royal party at Malta.

The children were taken into custody at Wallaceburg, about 25 miles southwest of this Sarnia district community.

Police did not release the names of the suspects.

Officers said they seized in Wallaceburg an automobile which they think possibly was the "getaway car. They said it had 1951 licence plates, similar in color to 1954 markers.

VIEWED BY BANK STAFF

Bank employees who were aroused early today drove to Wallaceburg to see the suspects in the holdup. Police did not say whether any of the money was recovered.

Translators Work in Relays On Mass of Spy Documents

By STAN HUTCHINSON

CANBERRA (AP) — Officials expressed belief today that the Soviet diplomat who has brought them a story of Red spying in Australia is one of the most important Russians ever to slip secretly across to the West.

Those officials said copies of the mass of "spy" documents which the fugitive Russian third secretary, Vladimir Petrov, carried recently out of the Soviet embassy here probably will be sent on to the other Commonwealth governments as soon as they are translated and investigated. The information might also go to Washington.

The capital still buzzed today over Tuesday's announcement by Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies that Petrov had fled communism and asked for Australian citizenship. Menzies said Petrov, claiming he headed the Soviet MVD state security police set-up in Australia, said the papers he brought detailed plans of a large-scale spy ring in the country.

Menzies said Petrov told the closest secrecy on all names contained in the documents and any testimony Petrov to avoid smears or premature accusations before the investigation is completed.

EXTRAORDINARY POWERS

The House of Representatives today empowered the chief of royal commissite extraordinary powers to summon witnesses for its investigation into the spy-ring allegations.

Relays of translators worked around the clock, transcribing into English the secret Russian files the fugitive handed over.

Reports were current today that the spy has translated revealed a pattern of espionage and of Australians helping the Russians to amass information about defence projects, including the super-secret Woomera testing range for British and Australian rocket weapons.

Petrov's defection was a severe blow to the Soviet spy service. It said leakages of atomic information were not involved in the Petrov case.

KIDNAPPED, SAYS WIFE

In a press conference at the embassy today Mme. Petrov said she believes her husband was kidnapped. And Ambassador Nicolai Generalov described the reports that Petrov had forsaken Russia as "nonsense."

Mrs. Petrov's eyes were red from weeping as she left to reporters. She said, "I don't believe my husband would go to your country like this. I'm sure he wants to speak to officials of the embassy."

MONEY PLENTIFUL

"It is understood Petrov told Australian officials that the Russians in Australia have almost unlimited funds, and have been using large payments for information of value as well as making contributions to further Industrial unrest.

Senator McCarthy Jumps Into Case Against Atomic Scientist

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States capital took a whirl at stimulus today toward the government's suspension and investigation of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, ploneer atomic scientist, on security grounds.

Senator McCarthy meanwhile said he has affidavits purporting to show that Oppenheimer once was a member of the Communist party, and that he had hired and recruited individuals who were Communists or at least had been Communists to handle atomic secrets. The senator did not say who had made the affidavits.

Oppenheimer, who has been accused of associating with some Communists and fellow-travellers in the past, said he thinks his experience makes him more fit to serve the government. He is contesting the charges and has asked for a hearing.

Today President Truman was asked about Oppenheimer Tuesday by Paul Pfeiffer, at the University of Missouri. Declining to comment in detail, he said:

NO SCIENTIST

"I inherited Dr. Oppenheimer. He was considered one of the greatest, in connection with the atomic bomb. He convinced me that I should not overlook him or gossip."

Lewis Strauss, a former AEC member, Sumner T. Pike, said the charges which brought about Oppenheimer suspension seemed to be the same as those he said had been cleared by a three-man AEC investment groups previously.

"Personally, I never had the slightest question of Dr. Oppenheimer's devotion to the United States," Strauss said in an interview.

Senator John W. Bricker (Rep., Ohio) said the late senator Arthur Vandenberg (Rep. Mich.) had reviewed Communist activities in connection with Oppenheimer several years ago and had wound up believing in Oppenheimer's loyalty.

Police Holding Two Suspects In Bank Robbery

OIL SPRINGS, Ont. (CP)—Police said today they are holding two men for questioning in connection with Tuesday's $1,900 robbery of the Oil Springs branch of the Bank of Toronto.

The men were taken into custody at Wallaceburg, about 25 miles southwest of this Sarnia district community.

Police did not release the names of the suspects.

Officers said they seized in Wallaceburg an automobile which they think possibly was the "getaway car. They said it had 1951 licence plates, similar in color to 1954 markers.

VIEWED BY BANK STAFF

Bank employees who were aroused early today drove to Wallaceburg to see the suspects in the holdup. Police did not say whether any of the money was recovered.

Red Agents Try To Induce Crew To Desert Ship

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Security police today investigated reported attempts by Communist agents to induce the crew to desert a British ship carrying 1,000 tons of French forces in Indo-China.

Police officials refused to discuss details, but it was understood that the crew of the 7,130-ton British freighter Radnor had been offered a bide-out, accommodation in Sydney and a job if they left the ship. The Radnor is being loaded with general cargo and 1,000 tons of dock workers to handle the cargo.

Seven of the crew are reported to have left the ship with their belongings.

DREW REQUESTS CONFERENCE OF ALL PROVINCES

Constitutional Issues Would Be Prominent

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Drew has asked for a conference of federal and provincial governments to discuss taxation and constitutional issues.

He said Tuesday that national unity has been weakened by bitter speeches made since Finance Minister Abbott's budget last week reflected Ottawa's proposal for a federal deduction of its new 15-per-cent income tax.

Mr. Drew, speaking in the Commons debate on the budget, urged Prime Minister St. Laurent to call a federal-provincial conference so that "we may seek to establish that federal structure of which we are all so proud."

The prime minister should say before the Commons adjourns today for the Easter recess that he will convene provincial premiers before the end of May.

NO IMMEDIATE REPLY

Mr. St. Laurent was in the Commons but made no immediate reply.

Mr. Drew, former premier of Ontario, said he was opposed to the government's decision against allowing deduction of the Quebec tax.

He said, however, that Mr. Abbott had not unreasonably approached the matter in rejecting Quebec's request for a special tax agreement with the federal government.

The problem should be met "before the unfortunate consequences may have gone beyond anything anticipated in the budget speech."

National unity was not helped by making the problem seem an isolated one between one province and the federal government. Some provinces had been made ignored the fact that there were two parties to the question.

"This is not the time to invite the attention of any province to seek consideration here in Ottawa" Mr. Drew said. "This is not the time for any premier of any province to be told that he may have difficulty in getting a sympathetic audience with a cabinet minister.

"This is the time for an invitation to be extended by the prime minister of Canada to the premiers of all the provinces of the provinces of Canada to meet and to discuss the way in which they can overcome these problems and revitalize and bring back into harmony the spirit of the British North America Act."

OTHER SPEAKERS

The taxation issue was discussed by other speakers in the debate.

Social Credit Leader Low Blackmore Abbott in a radio speech Tuesday night in which he said the budget was in fact a law for Quebec's claim to prior right to levy income tax.

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) said a federal-provincial conference would be a waste of time if every province but Quebec was represented.

He urged Mr. St. Laurent to make a statement on the question of taxation rights, but said that any conference should d i s c u s s the whole range of economic problems and not merely listen to "the lone voice of one certain premier."

He described the government's

Dulles Bids For French Agreement On Asian Defence

Said British Leaders Agree Military Alliance Needed

PARIS (AP) — British-American proposals for a military alliance to block Communist aggression in southeast Asia were accepted by Foreign Minister Bidault in discussions today with State Secretary Dulles of the United States, informed sources said.

An agreement is contemplated under the arrangements announced in London Tuesday by Dulles and Foreign Secretary Eden.

No official announcement of results of the Dulles-Bidault talks had been issued by mid-afternoon, but informants said Bidault approved the Dulles-Eden plan in case it "reconciles the views of the two great European powers with those of the United States."

This morning's talks were described yesterday by the Paris Aftion, especially that in Indo-China.

TELLS OF EDEN TALKS

Dulles gave the French a detailed account of his talks in London and an explanation of the attitude he and Eden have suggested.

The French - American discussions were said to have been extremely cordial. Bidault stressed that the French are opposed to any measures being taken before the April 26 Geneva conference on Asian problems.

The foreign ministry added that the outcome of this examination will be greatly influenced by what happens at Geneva" during the big-power conference on Far East affairs which opens April 26.

Eden also denied an assertion by the left-wing Labor leader, Aneurin Bevan, that he already had made a British commitment to take combat action in certain circumstances." Presumably Bevan was referring to an assertion by British troops to Indo-China if Chinese troops enter the war there.

CLEAR COMMITMENT

An authoritative U. S. official said that Bevan misunderstood Eden's statement.

"The British press voiced praise for the Churchill-Eden-Dulles conference in the Dulles-Eden proposal. London's Communist Daily Worker sounded its usual jarring note: "Eden agrees to 'new Korea.'"

ISSUE COMMUNIQUE

At the conclusion Tuesday of Dulles' two days of conversations in London with Foreign Secretary Eden and Prime Minister Churchill a communique was issued announcing that Britain and the U.S. will increase their aid to the military alliance of countries concerned in Southeast Asia, similar to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

This was the outcome of the "united action" proposals which Dulles brought to London.

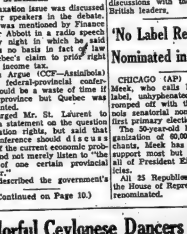
Diplomatic observers said many of the countries concerned in Washington before the conference hope the Atlantic for personal discussions with the French and British leaders.

'No Label Republican' Nominated in Illinois

CHICAGO (AP) — Joseph T. Meek, who calls himself a "no label Republican," was nominated Tuesday for the party's fifth Illinois senatorial nomination in the first primary election of 1954.

The 50-year-old head of an organization of 10,000 Republican precincts, Meek has said he would support most but not necessarily all of President Eisenhower's policies.

All 25 Republican members of the House of Representatives were renominated.



Colorful Ceylonese Dancers Thrill Royal Couple With Exotic Display

By GOMER JONES

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—Ceylonese dancers, spinning and leaping in a kaleidoscopic display of color, thrilled Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh with the most exotic show of their country at a royal commonwealth tour.

Ceylon's dancers and musicians took part in the special theatre performance staged by the Arts Council of Ceylon to show the visiting monarch some of the traditional culture forms of the island.

Male Udakki dancers, their bare chests adorned with beads and shell designs and wearing tight white trousers with wide frills, in small drums shaped like hourglasses as they twirled to the music chanting of the choir.

Kandayan dancers, among the most classic of all Ceylonese dance forms, and the Kohomba dance where the performers spin small drums at the end of long poles, also seemed to hold the royal couple enthralled.

An Oriental ballet told of the first plirimage to sri pada, the mountain sanctuary in Ceylon where Adam is said in Ceylonese mythology to have come after his first missal from Eden. It was accompanied by an off-stage commentary supplementing the actions of the men and women dancers.

A relief from the classic forms was provided by dancers dressed as demons in grotesque costumes performing around their mouths as they leaped about the darkened stage.

LONDON (CP) — Differences arose today over whether Britain has agreed to form a new alliance against Communist advances in Southeast Asia, or is just negotiating to form one.

The controversy followed Tuesday's communique issued after talks by State Secretary Dulles of the United States with Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden on the threat to Southeast Asia, pointed up by Communist gains in Indo-China.

Dulles and Eden announced that they are "ready to take part with the other countries principally concerned in an examination of the possibility of establishing a collective defence. . . . To secure the peace, security and freedom of Southeast Asia and the western Pacific."

Such an alliance, they said, would be "within the framework of the United Nations Organization."

EARLY EXAMINATION

Eden, under prodding from opposition Labor members, told the Commons today he was committed only to an examination of the possibility of such a pact and could possibly have gone further."

The foreign secretary added that "the outcome of this examination will be greatly influenced by what happens at Geneva" during the big-power conference on Far East affairs which opens April 26.

Eden also denied an assertion by the left-wing Labor leader, Aneurin Bevan, that he already had made a British commitment to take combat action in certain circumstances." Presumably Bevan was referring to an assertion by British troops to Indo-China if Chinese troops enter the war there.

CLEAR COMMITMENT

An authoritative U. S. official said that Bevan misunderstood Eden's statement.

"The British press voiced praise for the Churchill-Eden-Dulles conference in the Dulles-Eden proposal. London's Communist Daily Worker sounded its usual jarring note: "Eden agrees to 'new Korea.'"

Ceylonese termed the agreement "a surrender to American pressure," but party leader Clement Attlee backed Eden to the hilt.

The British press voiced praise for the Churchill-Eden-Dulles conference in the Dulles-Eden proposal. London's Communist Daily Worker sounded its usual jarring note: "Eden agrees to 'new Korea.'"

Bill Gardner, CNR Engineer, Completes 51 Years of Service; Friends Honor Him and Wife

A railroad career of over half a century was ended here Tuesday evening when William A. Gardner, 323 Foster Avenue, retired No. 8 passenger train from Toronto to a stop at the north station.

A rousing welcome awaited the veteran Canadian National Railways engineer as approximately 150 people, including family members, railway officials and friends were on hand to greet him as he stepped down from his engine.

Later at the Army and Navy Branch Royal Canadian Legion officials and friends tendered Mr. Gardner a banquet and reception in honor of his retirement.

Mr. Gardner's railroad career commenced 51 years ago, when as a 12-year-old school lad he was taken on as messenger boy at Niagara Falls, Ontario. His job was to carry messages and way bills across the bridge between the G.T.R. office and the Niagara Falls, N.Y., office of the New York Central and Lehigh Valley Railway.

JUMP A START

"I made four trips a day across the bridge," Mr. Gardner recalls. "Two in the forenoon and two in the afternoon."

But working as a messenger boy was just a start. Soon the young Niagara Falls lad and during the next four years he worked at various railway jobs, ranging from office worker to car checker.

In 1907 he started firing and three years later quit to work as a fireman with the New York Central. After three months in the United States he returned to the C.N.R. as fireman and was classed as an engineer in 1912.

Since then he has operated practically every type of locomotive in the service of the C.N.R. and later the Canadian National. He was transferred to Belleville in 1938 and has since worked out of this city.

Back in 1947 the Belleville engineer had the honor of driving the first diesel to pass through Belleville. It was a three-unit diesel hauling freight.

That same year, Mr. Gardner was transferred exclusively to passenger services and for a time was driving what was ejected passenger trains between Toronto and Brockville. He prefers the run west to Toronto.

"It is the ideal job in the world," Mr. Gardner said, referring to his job as engineer in passenger service.

SON FIRED FOR FATHER

And the name Gardner will be carried on in railway service. Mr. Gardner's son, Jack, is already with ten years' service as a railroader, first fireman and then on his last run. Riding on the engine with him was Jack's brother, superintendent of motive power, and Mr. Gardner's brother, T. S. Gardner, of Niagara Falls, yardman with the New York Central.

Congratulations were in order as the boisterous crowd greeted the veteran engineer at the station. Mrs. Gardner was presented with a lovely bouquet of yellow carnations.

WM. A. GARDNER

At the Army and Navy Hall the 200 railway officials and family friends turned out for the reception, where H. C. Drury, who lived railroading with brother of the Army and Navy, acted as the genial master of ceremonies.

Mr. Gardner's life history and railway services were related by Conductor Ferguson, while a toast to the retiring engineer was proposed by Lionel Trait, chief dispatcher.

SPEECHES IN ORDER

Following the banquet, speeches and presentations were the order of the day. Speeches were by R. Davidson, assistant mechanic; A. Cooper, retired division master mechanic; Albert Clarke, chief engineer of Branch 189 of the B. of L.E.; dispatcher Trait; Police Chief Walter Probert, City Solicitor R. A. Pringle, and Inspector Hayes.

Family members presented Mr. Gardner with a handsome gold wrist watch, the presentation being made by Cecil R. Bush; a gift and pencil set was presented by Mrs. R. Davidson of Niagara Falls, and A. C. Miller presented him with a power lawn mower, on behalf of railway friends.

Mrs. Gardner, who as former president of the local B. of L.E. auxiliary, took an active part in the C.N.R. cigaret fund for overseas men, also was on hand to receive a presentation. Bill Cleary and a group of six "old boys" presented Mrs. Gardner with a lovely wrist watch in appreciation of her work with the cigaret fund.

APPROPRIATE REPLIES

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gardner made appropriate replies in appreciation of the gifts received. Mrs. Gardner said she would treasure her gift and remember always "the boys" who presented the watch when she sent cigarets.

Out-of-town guests at the reception included Mrs. G. Phillips, Toronto; T. S. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Grant of Niagara Falls; H. Leverton, of St. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. F. Delaney, of Ingersoll; Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, Toronto, and J. S. Williams, Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner have two sons, Jack Gardner, son William and a daughter, Mrs. F. Armstrong, all of this city. There are two grandchildren, Billy Gardner, Jr., and Georgina Armstrong.

16 New Teachers To Take Training At City Schools

An increased interest in the teaching profession as a life vocation on the part of young people in Belleville and district has been indicated in the past two years.

This year as well as in 1953 an unusually large number of high school graduates in the Belleville area are attending teachers' training college according to A. A. Kells, secretary-treasurer of the Belleville public school board. This year 16 young people from this city and immediate district are training as teachers.

"It indicates that young people are looking more favorably on teaching as a vocation," Mr. Kells said.

All 16 of Belleville and district young people attending teachers' college will take their work of school training at city schools, April 26 to 30.

They are Margaret Walkom and Terry Orrill, who will be with Mrs. June Sine at King George; Beth Wilbur and Marilyn Bell, with Miss Bernice Blue at Queen Elizabeth; Jean Crooks and Joyce Firth, with Joan McCurdy, at King George; Marion Hall and Maribeth Bristol, with Miss Jean Szmurlo at Queen Elizabeth; Neile Sprague and Margaret Weddell with Miss Daisy Young at Queen Elizabeth; Don Lockyer and Bob Marner with Jean Harkins at Queen Elizabeth; Gordon Hamilton and Bob Harwood with Principal C. F. Frederick at Queen Mary, and Marilyn Lawrence and Enid Coombes, with Iva Horton at Queen Mary.

B.C.I. Junior Basketball Champions Presented With Trophies at Banquet

Belleville Collegiate Institute honored its 1954 COSSA junior "A" basketball champions through the medium of the Student Council and the Boys' Athletic Society at a banquet in the Memorial hall in the Queen's Hotel last night.

Said to be an aggressive team on a basketball court, the youthful championships displayed respect when faced with a delectable chicken dinner.

They were the recipients of handsome miniature trophies emblematic of their supremacy in junior basketball. The trophies were presented by Lawrence Moon, president of the Student Council. Appreciation of the gifts and the banquet was voiced on behalf of the players by team captain Tod Batchelder.

The banquet was chaired in a very capable manner by Don Fowler, head of the Boys' Athletic Society who brought the congratulations of his organization and the student body as a whole.

Among the guests were Principal George E. Currie, assistant principal Don Stirling, Cliff Hennigar, director of the Board of Education, Fred Bridley, of the physical staff and coach of the school football team; N. "Pete" Beach, Fred Hambly, Fred Ketcheson of Albert College, and members of the press and radio. Foreman Honest "Red" Townsend, physical director of the school, who acted as the host.

TRIBUTES PAID.

Laudatory tributes were paid the champions by various speakers. Principal Currie said "I am very proud to be with them again". He recalled the fine senior squad that brought titular honors to the school in 1950.

He commended the boys on their fighting spirit and said to him, "if your aim in life is as high as these basketball backets a great future is in store for you." He said, adding that his only regret was that he would not be with them next year "to see you win the senior title."

Mr. Barber brought the congratulations of the Board of Education, adding his personal tribute. Mr. Beach added the plaudits of the COSSA, and Albert College. He brought a message from the principal of Lowell College, late Institute which was edged in the championship game by Belleville by one point. "While I was somewhat disappointed in our defeat by the championship calibre ship, you are worthy champions. You had the spirit when it was needed," the message read.

Fred Bridley, C.P.E. gave a brief address, speaking on the possibilities of newspaper and radio work as a future for young men.

Lawrence Moore added his congratulations and extended a vote that blended excellently in their rendition of Negro spirituals and popular numbers. Included are Don Cherry, Jack Lee, Phil Beacon, Doug McIlwraith and Bruce Varcoe.

St. Ola Resident Suffers Heart Attack in Bush

Stricken with a heart attack while trapping in the bush, Earl Reid, 51, well known St. Ola resident, died suddenly Monday morning.

He was reported that Mr. Reid had gone out trapping with a brother-in-law, Oscar Phillips, when he was stricken while tramping through the bush he stumbled and fell to the ground. He died almost immediately. Provincial police assisted in bringing out the body with the aid of a horse and sleigh 4 miles to the nearest road.

Born in Limerick township son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reid, he had lived all his life in the St. Ola area where he worked as a carpenter. He was a member of the United Church at St. Ola and also belonged to the St. Ola L.O.L. No. 1389.

He is survived by his wife and two sons, Calvin and Russell, both of Trenton. Two brothers, Ivan of The Ridge and Arthur of Trenton, and two sisters, Mrs. Alfred MacKenzie, Sarnia, and Mrs. Oscar Phillips, Gilmour, and five grandchildren also survive.

The funeral is being held Thursday afternoon with service at the Ola United Church at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Greenbush cemetery.

Ireland's Will Occupy New Store on Front St.

Speculation on the occupancy of the property formerly occupied by Ritz Little's hardware ended today with the announcement that Ireland Appliances would take over the premises at ground floor.

Jack Ireland, owner of Ireland Appliances and Ireland TV Centre, expects to open his new location in approximately four weeks time. Overcrowding at his present location is the reason for increasing volume of business and the necessity to adequately display present lines of merchandise were given by Mr. Ireland as reasons for the move. All of Ireland's present staff of 22 will be retained.

The interior of the store, now rebuilt will be faced with perma stone and glass. The 36-foot width and 125 foot depth will make it the largest appliance store in eastern Ontario.

In addition to the new location, Ireland Appliances is changing its name to "Ireland's".

Eight Student Teachers Hired By School Board

Eight student teachers now attending teachers' college have been hired by the Belleville Public School Board with duties to commence next September. All the young teachers are from Belleville or immediate district.

In all ten new teachers have been hired by the board, two of them to replace teachers, who have resigned to take positions elsewhere. The two teachers to hand in resignations are Miss Hilda Burley at Queen Victoria, and Miss Orlena Shunk of Queen Alexandra.

New teachers hired include E. H. Hooter, 237 Albert street, now teaching at the Bradder School at Middleton Park, Trenton and Miss Marion Mulholland, now teaching at Carnifex.

Student teachers hired are Marion Barker, Mrs. Lorraine Mackiem, Jean Tonkin, Margaret Walkom, Margaret Weddell, Carol Weston, all of Belleville, and Lois Parliament of Wellington, and Robt. Harwood of Point Anne.

GRANTED YEAR'S LEAVE

Bruce Gorrill, teacher at Queen Victoria School, was granted leave of absence for one year to attend Queen's University.

The school board is continuing its program of completing the establishment of senior schools but for this year it will be necessary for one classroom of each grade to be kept at Queen Alexandra school.

On the recommendation of Fire Chief Gerald Vance the manually operated fire alarms will be installed at Prince Charles and Queen Elizabeth schools.

Miss Jean Harkins, teacher at Queen Alexandra school will go to Germany next year to teach the children of Canadian servicemen stationed in that country.

One hundred teachers from all across Canada will be recruited for teaching duties in Germany and the co-operation of school boards is being asked by education officials. The teachers will be on loan to the Department of National Defence for two years.

The request from the department called for a quota of but one teacher from Belleville.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in moderate trading on today's stock market.

Refining oils and steels were weaker. Papers, Tuesday's leaders, were strong. Ford, one of Tuesday's individual features, was down $1.25 in light trading.

Senior base metals were firm and only slightly changed; Juniors and Manitouwadge issues were weaker. Minaurum dropped 15 cents, Geco was down 45 and Consolidated Howey slipped 11, all in light trading.

Hollinger showed the biggest change, 25 cents. Algoma led the uraniums with a 10-cent gain. Gunnar showed the only moderately large loss, five cents. Bathurst base metals were ignored.

Western oils moved moderately within a penny range and losses and gains were in balance.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trade was slow at steady prices at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle 500; calves nil; hogs 340; no sheep or lambs; holdover from Tuesday 500 cattle.

Choice light steers 19-19.50; good steers 18-19; mediums downward to 16; good heifers 15.50-16; mediums 14; good heavy bulls 12-13.50; few good to choice yearlings 18; mediums 16; medium to good stockers 16-17.50.

Calves were steady at 25-27 for good to choice vealers; common to medium grades moved slowly at weak prices, making 19-24.

Hogs were 24.00 for grade A: B-1 23.60; dressed sows 25; stags 18. Beginning this week spread on grades A and B hogs will be 1.

CNR to Lay Off 600 Employees At End of Month

MONTREAL (CP) — A national drop in traffic will bring about a forced layoff of approximately 600 Canadian National Railways employees near the end of this month, a CNR spokesman said today.

The spokesman said there has been a drop of 50,000 loaded freight cars since the beginning of the year and it was this that entailed the layoff of motive power and car shop employees.

About 200 men were to be laid off at Point St. Charles shops in Montreal and 260 men at Winnipeg.

Some 56 employees would be let out at Stratford, 47 at London, Ont., a small number on United States lines and about 80 in the Maritimes.

Resume Search For Missing Pair

SEATTLE (CP)—A "saturation" search by air, sea and ground will be resumed today for a Hamilton, Ont., couple who vanished Monday in their light plane after it apparently developed engine trouble over Seattle.

No trace was found Tuesday of Gerald E. Coles, 38, vice-president and a director of Canadian Westinghouse Ltd., and Mrs. Coles, as 19 light planes, four U. S. air force helicopters and coast guard, yes terday took advantage of improved weather conditions for the hunt, which is being concentrated within a 10-mile radius of the Seattle-Tacoma airport.

Murder Case To Go to Jury

TORONTO (CP) — The murder trial of Joseph Schreiber is expected to go to the jury today, G. Arthur Martin, defence counsel, submitted in his address to the jury that every evidence was "entirely circumstantial."

He said there was no substantial evidence to show that the accused did anything to cause his wife's death.

The 37-year-old brokerage employee is charged with murdering his wife, Norma, last Dec. 15.

Schreiber testified Tuesday that he had only a hazy recollection of events on the night of his wife's death because he had been drinking.

Evidence disclosed she died of asphyxiation due to strangling.

Power at Sault Cut Off by Cat

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) A curious alley cat wandered between two powerhouse cables here Tuesday night and plunged the entire city in darkness for periods ranging from 30 minutes to one hour.

Workmen discovered the charred feline body today.

The short produced by the cat caused an explosion accompanied by a sheet of blue light seen over a large part of the city.

Three fire trucks rushed to the scene after telephone reports ranging from fires to bombing. All the firemen found was a small grass fire. A further hunt today revealed what was left of the cat.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Harry Hominik, 26, Fort William truck driver, was injured Tuesday night when his vehicle was struck by a CNR freight train at a Port Arthur crossing. Hominik went to hospital with a cut on his head and multiple bruises.

Police Making No Attempt To Find Man

ORILLIA (CP) — Police said today they have learned that an 80-year-old pensioner reported missing Tuesday sold his truck in Orillia and then boarded a train for Toronto.

Joseph Johnson was reported missing by Mrs. G. H. Lawrence, his landlady.

When neither Johnson nor his truck could be found police feared he might have had another attack of the amnesia to which he was subject.

Police said they are making no attempt to find him in Toronto.

Talking Can Spreads Oil In Two Ways

CHICAGO (AP)—An oil company has brought out a talking oil can to help promote the sale of a new line of motor oils.

The station attendant merely snaps a button on the top of the can and hands it to a customer while he services the car.

The can starts plugging the new oils, explaining their purposes and accomplishments in turn.

The talking can plays a tiny record and is operated on flashlight batteries.

Is Given 3-Year Term For Insurance Fraud

MONTREAL (CP) — Gerard Tremblay, described in court as the "key figure" in a ring that defrauded the government of more than $4,000 by collecting unemployment aid with the use of fake unemployment insurance booklets, Tuesday was sentenced to three years in penitentiary.

Tremblay, a former UIC clerk in Montreal and veteran of the Second World War Dieppe raid, pleaded guilty to stealing UIC booklets, conspiracy and obtaining $4,303 by false pretences.

Prosecutor Edmond Courchesne said Tremblay masterminded the false booklet scheme which he worked with two other men and a woman.

Doucett Voices Safety Plea

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett today appealed to Ontario motorists and parents to prevent Easter holiday traffic accidents, especially those involving children.

"Holiday week-ends are always peak travel periods with extra travel hazards for drivers and pedestrians alike," he said in a statement. "The coming Easter weekend is no exception. It is the first holiday week-end of the year and as winter relaxes its grip, more and more people take to the road. The Easter holiday releases from the daily discipline of school attendance more than 750,000 Ontario school children."

Mr. Doucett suggested that parents remind children of safety rules and set a good example themselves. He urged drivers to make sure their vehicles are in good condition.

Famed Missionary Urges Scientists To Warn World

LONDON (Reuters)—Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1953, says "scientists must speak up" if there is to be any hope of persuading governments to stop hydrogen bomb experiments.

The world-famed 79-year-old scholar, who renounced the world of science to become a medical missionary in French Equatorial Africa, wrote of "the anguish in my heart" in a letter on the H-bomb published today in The Daily Herald, London paper which supports the Labor party.

He wrote from his medical centre in Africa.

TOO MANY FARLEYS

Schweitzer said the problem of the effects of the H-bomb is "terribly disturbing." But he did not favor a conference of scientists to deal with the problem, as has been suggested by The Herald.

"There are too many conferences in the world today and too many decisions taken by them," Schweitzer said.

"What the world should do is to listen to the warnings of individual scientists who understand this terrible problem. That is what would impress people and give them understanding and make them realize the danger in which we find ourselves."

MUCH LIP AND LITTLE SERVICE

The executive of the Ontario section of the CCF has drafted a new platform which it hopes will be approved at the party's annual convention.

Instead of emphasizing nationalization as it has in the past, Ontario leader Leland Honderich, financial editor of the paper, observes Leland Honderich, financial editor of the paper, "observes the Toronto Daily Star," the CCF has borrowed a page from the book of the British Labor party and played down public ownership as the chief instrument of party policy."

This makes it practically unanimous. A twentieth century Diogenes would be a veteran world-traveller before he discovered a major political party which paid more than lip service to the economic principles on which its policies were supposed to be based.

If you doubt that statement, let us take a look at the world around us. Reading from left to right we come first to the Communists. They cannot complain of we first to the Communists. Naval Cadets Will Be Guests Of Air Force

TRENTON (Special)—The navy comes to town April 23. Preparations are now under way to receive naval cadets from Belleville, Cobourg and Port Hope part of the personnel that will be marching in a mammoth parade that begins at College Street school and proceeds to King Street United Church for morning services. Navy bands from Belleville and Port Hope will supply the airs for marching.

In the afternoon an expected 150 cadets will be the guests of RCAF Station, Trenton. A swim in the station pool and a tour of the base's installions is part of the program being provided for the visitors.

Lieutenant Fred Goldberg, commanding officer of the Trenton Corps, will take the salute at the march past from a point in front of the post office on Dundas Street. On the saluting stand with the Trenton Commander will be Lieutenant H. MacKenzie, commanding officer of the Belleville Corps and Lieutenant "Red" Creighton, commanding officer and the combined Cobourg and Port Hope Corps.

BOY IS HURT.

A 10-year-old boy riding a bicycle suffered injuries to his right knee and right hand yesterday in an accident with a pickup truck driven by Frank Lott, 88 West Street.

Mervin Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lawson was following the truck along West Street. When the vehicle stopped after crossing the C.P.R. tracks the youth on the bike crashed into the back of it.

PRESENTED WITH PORTRAIT

At an afternoon tea given by the Brownies of Batawa, Mrs. Thomas Bata Jr., was presented with a charcoal portrait of herself by the noted artist, Egbert C. Reed. Mr. Reed was especially commissioned to execute the portrait by the City Service Oil Company. It is a token of appreciation from the company to Mrs. Bata, who contributed to make the City Service radio series "Path of Duty" a successful endeavor. Mrs. Bata spoke on one of the programs.

The presentation this afternoon was made by Mrs. Thorne Spear of Trenton, division commissioner of the Girl Guides for Northumberland County.

Mrs. Bata herself a prominent figure in Girl Guide work is district commissioner of the Girl Guides of Batawa. She also holds other appointments in the organization.

MAY BUY RESUSCITATOR

The Board of Health last night arranged for a demonstration of a resuscitator the board is considering buying. The machine will be available to everybody in the town and district and it is proposed to have the members of the fire department operate it. M.O.H. Dr. E. W. Dow attended the meeting and board chairman Charles Bronson presided.

Twenty Members Law Association Will Give Aid

Approximately 20 members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Law Association are available at all times to render legal assistance, free of charge, to persons who require assistance and are unable to pay.

This public service—known as the Legal Aid Society of Hastings County, is a voluntary association of lawyers practising in the county. As part of their contribution to the impartial administration of justice and as a public service project, they will undertake any type of legal work for indigent cases. The only condition to be met by the person receiving free service is that he or she has less than $1,200 in assets.

Any type of work will be undertaken by the Legal Aid Society, from the defence of indigents in magistrate's court to counsel for the most serious civil and criminal cases. However, the bulk of work undertaken locally in the three years the Hastings County aid plan has been in operation are cases from the family court and magistrate's court.

ASSIGNED CASES.

Lawyers participating in the plan are assigned cases by the county director on an alphabetical basis. Out-of-pocket expenses connected with cases, such as payments for transcribing evidence, are paid by the Ontario Legal Aid Plan, which is administered from Toronto by W. Earl Smith, provincial director.

The present province-wide program of legal aid started in Toronto about four years ago. Hastings County, which adopted a workable plan in December of 1951, was the first area outside Toronto to implement an organized program of legal aid. Until this year, Robert A. Pringle was county director for Hastings.

In Toronto the sheriff acts as convener of weekly legal clinics, but in Hastings the volume of work is not sufficient to warrant clinics. However, anyone requiring legal aid will receive assistance if they contact the present county director, J. D. O'Flynn, president of the Hastings and Prince Edward Law Association.

In Trenton, Ramsay Park is director for legal aid and F. L. Ward is director for Prince Edward County.

In 1952 the local plan handled 48 cases. These included: civil litigation, 5; divorces, 1; domestic relations, 17; landlord and tenant applications, 3; and criminal cases in magistrate's court, 19.

In 1953 the number of cases looked after rose to 94 and included: civil litigation, 14; divorces, 2; domestic relations, 31; landlord and tenant applications, 3; and criminal cases in magistrate's court, 44.

Board Reverses Decision On Hiring Principal

Unforeseen factors with respect to salary negotiations have resulted in members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board reversing the decision appointing Mr. S. L. G. Chapman as principal of Belleville Collegiate.

This was announced today by Roy Dulmage, board secretary, who stated that in Mr. Chapman's place, Mr. E. Arnold Orr, principal of Sault St. Marie Collegiate Institute, had been hired as principal of the Belleville Collegiate.

Members of the high school board held a special meeting Tuesday night to consider the matter after unforeseen factors presented themselves at the conclusion of arrangements for finalizing the appointment of Mr. Chapman. Reversal of the board's decision was mutually agreeable to both parties.

Mr. Orr who will come to Belleville as collegiate principal is a native son of this city. He is the son of Mrs. Robert Orr and a brother of Mr. Bert Orr of this city and received his early education in Belleville schools.

He holds a master of arts degree in education and is a specialist in mathematics and was head of that department in Patterson collegiate, Windsor for 13 years. He has been principal at Sault Ste. Marie since 1948.

Forty-seven years of age, he is married with three children and is a member of the Baptist Church. He will commence his new duties during the coming summer.

The only other item of business conducted at last night's special meeting of the board was the hiring of Miss Edna O'Neill as secretary for Principal L. F. Reid of the Quinte Secretarial School. Now with Children's Aid Society here, she will commence her new duties May 1st.

Rubber Workers Seek Annual Wage Guarantee

TORONTO (CP) — The United Rubber Workers (CIO) today announced that its 21,000 Canadian members will seek a general wage increase of 15 cents an hour and a guaranteed annual wage from Canada's rubber and allied industries this year.

It said a meeting of the Canadian section of the union's international policy committee also decided to seek to complete the union's drive for pension improvements and comprehensive hospital and surgical care coverage won by most locals last year, continuation of the program to strengthen contract provisions covering wage inequities and fringe benefits, and negotiation of improved wage reopening provisions.

SUFFOCATED IN SILO

YORK, N. Y. (AP)—John Morgan, 22, was suffocated Tuesday when he fell into a silo filled with wheat. The young farmer climbed atop the 12-foot silo when the opening below became blocked; slipped and was smothered.

District Clubs At Conference In Cobourg

Of interest throughout the district was the regional conference of District No. 5 of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs held at Cobourg on Saturday last. Club presidents and members attended from Belleville, Campbellford, Napanee, Lindsay, Peterborough, Kingston, Picton, Tweed, Brockville, Port Hope, Oshawa, Trenton and Cobourg.

MISS NORMA ARKLES

Miss Norma Arkles, Belleville, regional adviser, was chairman of the conference.

The afternoon agenda covered reports from the presidents, discussion on constitution, membership and projects, and reports on United Nations. Special speaker in the afternoon session was Dorothy Constable of the London Club.

Some 120 members attended the banquet held at the Baltimore Hotel where each member received favors and head table guests included Provincial President, Mrs. Margery Pewtress, Miss Norma Arkles, Mrs. Catherine Kaiper, president of the Cobourg club, Miss Dorothy Constable, London, and Miss Harriet Bate, Lindsay, immediate past regional adviser. A presentation of a travelling clock was made to Miss Bate on behalf of all the clubs represented.

The program following the banquet was in the form of a "Skit-Kernala." Each club in the district was asked to present a short play or skit with a ten-minute time limit. Much work had been done planning these short plays and they proved ingenious, clever and entertaining. It was a most difficult task for the adjudicator, Mrs. Daisy McCullagh, Toronto, to hand out her decision.

Top prize went to the Lindsay club for their presentation of "The Family Album." The Oshawa club for their presentation of An Old-fashioned Show and the Napanee club for their original "Booster-Pusher Club" (written by fellow member Helen Hutchinson) shared second honors. The Lindsay club will, in turn, present their winning play at the provincial conference to be held this fall at Chateau Woodland, Haliburton.

Miss Norma Arkles was re-elected regional adviser for a second term, effective this fall.

"Music In General, Choral In Particular" Discussed at U.W.C.

The University Women's Club held its April meeting on Friday evening at Albert College Assembly. The president, Mrs. D. L. MacKinnon, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Douglas Burr and Mrs. L. Finlayson have accepted the responsibility of preparing a slate of officers for the next executive.

Plans were completed for the "Spring Fair" to be held in May.

The feature attraction will be an exhibition of all paintings by Mandy Macdonald, R.C.A., and the draw for the autumn scene in oils donated by him for the scholarship fund.

Mrs. J. H. Bateman will convene the bake sale; Mrs. J. E. MacArthur, the sale of books and Mrs. A. Pugh, the exhibit of stamps by the Belleville Stamp Club.

Mrs. W. Hurst extended an invitation from the Women's Institute Guild to hear Mrs. W. H. Gilleland of the Ottawa U.W.C. on the subject of Penal Reform.

WELCOME EXTENDED

The meeting then adjourned to the main drawing room where Mrs. MacKinnon welcomed the guests, the staff of Albert College, the Presto Music Club, the Music Teachers' Association, and husbands of U.W.C. members.

Mrs. W. E. Kellett, co-convener of the program committee, introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Don Wright, and Mrs. Wright, of London, Ontario, and distributed an interesting little brochure on Don Wright of the Don Wright chorus.

Mr. Wright's topic was "Music in General, Choral in Particular," a topic on which it would be difficult to find anyone more qualified to speak. His whole life has been connected with music. As his father was the founder of the Wright Piano Company, he was at an early age introduced to the piano. At age seven, he was a gold medallist in cello playing. At age ten, he undertook trumpet lessons, and he is perhaps best known for his accomplishment with this instrument, though he eventually learned them all.

Despite all his musical activities, Mr. Wright won a scholarship in honor classics at the University of Western Ontario, and was a record jumping record 23 feet, 8 inches, which is still unbroken." During these years he also conducted the university orchestra, and organized their first band.

On graduation, he became a teacher of classics and history in a London Collegiate, and it was during this period that he became the director of music for all the London schools. He wrote, for student use, two books of choral selections still widely used here, and in the States.

WROTE MUSICAL STORIES

During the Second World War, entirely gratis, he produced, directed, and made the musical scores for three troop shows per week.

In 1946 Mr. Wright was made manager Radio Station CFPL in London, and, out of 1200 auditions organized his CFPL chorus which would present his now famous choral group of 14 voices, seven men and seven girls. In 1950 he went into business for himself, as organizer of the Don Wright Productions.

Mr. Wright proved to be a person of fascinating personality with real showmanship along with his outstanding ability. While giving his audience a great deal of light-hearted enjoyment, full of sheer happiness, he put across a great many musical points worthy of deep consideration.

"Everyone," he said, "should, in this atomic age of rapid material developments and of great increase in our leisure time, regard music as vitally important for food for our souls, and the best possible hobby for leisure hours. We should educate ourselves and our children to the enjoyment of all types of music."

Taking part in an orchestra or a chorus develops co-operation and responsibility while giving worth while enjoyment.

"Most people," he said, "can participate in vocal music, it is cheap enough for everyone with no instruments required. Even more vocal music and orchestras in the schools have, in fact, been done by the children because such musical participation has a terrific influence for good that is beyond evaluating. No matter where you live, this world of music is to be found, and every bit of music has its place.

"There's an inherent special satisfaction to be gained from participation in music as evidenced by the popularity of the barbershop quartets, and of school children's orchestras of which there are four in Chicago."

URGES MUSICAL EDUCATION

He advised parents of children who are at all interested in music to give them an all-round musical education, if at all possible—classical, sacred, and secular, and, if possible, with more than one instrument. "Let your children listen to all kinds of music," he said, "and have them read about the careers of musical artists to stir their interests. In this way, as they grow older, they will acquire a wider taste and more enjoyable to them."

At this point Mr. Wright paused to create enjoyment for his audience with a beautiful trumpet rendition of "The Holy City."

Music, as a side-line hobby, he declared, cannot be beaten. Everyone can enter into it, the listener, the part-time musicians, and the full-time professionals, but beware, be cautioned, of making music your life-time profession. In addition to your music, be sure to have a solid rock job with which to make a living. During the years the financial rewards for musicians are poor. He himself, he said, is one of the happiest of men because his hobby has become his job, but in Canada especially, this happens most infrequently.

Music as a hobby, however, he said, can help a person in countless ways, in business contacts, in creating friendships, in making a little extra cash.

To those who insist on a musical career, Mr. Wright gave this advice, "learn your instrument, but don't stick to only one; try a number of others for the experience and the insight; learn, too, how the instruments are built, and what makes them work. For success, always make your music sound pretty.

Love and live your music as you play it. Never be afraid to work at your music for nothing, because always you are gaining experience which pays off in the end.

In conclusion Mr. Wright entertained his audience with a living orchestration involving four mouth organ duos plus a lot of foottapping for drums. It was clever and sheer fun! Mr. Wright really enjoys life and is himself his best advertisement for the music he loves.

Mrs. Douglas Burr, a friend of university days, had the pleasure of thanking Mr. and Mrs. Wright for the enjoyment of their visit.

A social hour followed with refreshments served by Mrs. J. Haig and her committee; Mrs. A. Gillis, Mrs. W. E. Kellett, Mrs. L. Monteith, Mrs. J. E. Pugh, Mrs. P. T. Seibert and Mrs. G. Sharpe.

Quinte Craftsmen Have Fine Showing Of Leathercraft

Last evening the Quinte Craftsmen met at the home of Mrs. Charles Ling, Bridge Street West, with about 15 members and visitors present. As this was the last meeting of the season, the evening was spent completing some of the unfinished leathercraft.

Articles exhibited included over 25 purses of both the shoulder and carry or underarm variety; a brief case; over-night bags; wallets; chain purses; gloves and belts. All these articles were done in lovely shades of leather, being tooled and laced with geometrical and floral designs.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, who was presented with a lovely rhinestone necklace accompanied by a beautiful card bearing the names of the club members, in appreciation of her untiring assistance in the making of the various articles.

The club which expects to carry on this interesting and useful handicraft next fall, is to be complimented on the fine work accomplished.

Christ Church C. C. Attends Meeting

The Contact Club attended Monday evening's Lenten service in Christ Church in a body. After the service, the members adjourned to the Parish Hall where a short meeting was conducted by President, Florence Lennox.

The girls were thanked for their work at the confirmation service and the reception for the Bishop and candidates after the service.

A sale of children's clothing proved most profitable to a number of members.

The remainder of the evening was spent in making articles for the fishponds for the forthcoming "Summer Tea and Shopping Spree."

Refreshments were served by Doreen Mills and Dorothy Ruiter.

Club Activities

TABERNACLE KEEN-AGE CLUB

Tabernacle United Church Keen-Age club held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. A. E. Cornish, 394 Bleeker Avenue, with a good attendance.

The president, Kit Cornish, was in charge of the meeting. A short business discussion was held.

Clara Lathangue conducted a contest and Miss June Bowerman of Albury, sang a delightful solo which was enjoyed by all.

The meeting was brought to a close with refreshments and a vote of thanks expressed to "Kit" for opening her home.

Mrs. L. Dandeneau's Jr. Pupils Present Private Recital

Mrs. Leonard Dandeneau R.M.T. presented her junior pupils in a piano recital on Saturday at her home, 258 Bridge street E. The program was as follows: Introductory: "Air" (Hayden), Jan Carruthers;

A prize for musicianship and good appearance at the piano was awarded to Margaret Butler.

Charles Weir Gives Talks on "Programs"

The Queen Victoria Home and School Association held its regular meeting at the school on Monday evening.

After a short business session, the president Mrs. O'Neill turned the meeting over to Mr. Mathews, who was program convener for the evening.

Mr. Mathews introduced Miss Arkles, a teacher from Prince Charles school, who sang for the assembled parents. Accompanying Miss Arkles on the piano was Miss Nichol of O.S.D. and together they delighted with their rendition of "The Shepherds Song" and "They Didn't Believe Me."

The main speaker of the evening Mr. Charles Weir, regional director of community program for the Ontario Department of Education was then introduced. Mr. Weir gave an interesting and educational talk on "Community programs" and explained the help given by the government in the form of grants and the main steps that were necessary in setting up a successful program for leisure time activities that can be enjoyed by all members of a community.

Mr. Weir followed his talk with the showing of a film, "When All the People Play", showing how the citizens of Annapolis Royal organized their community recreation activities. This film presented in action what the speaker had been outlining for the audience.

Mr. Rendell thanked Mr. Weir for his informative talk, and an enjoyable evening.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. O'Neill, who invited several members of the Board of Education who were present to remain for refreshments consisting of coffee and cookies served by Mrs. Tremaine and her group, bringing an enjoyable evening to a close. The attendance prize was won by Miss Snyder's kindergarten class.

GOOD MANNER'S

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TOASTS SHOULD BE CEREMONIOUS.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a very close and long-time friend of the bridegroom's family. I have been asked to propose a toast to the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother at the wedding reception next month. When I propose these toasts, to whom should I propose the first toast? Should someone respond to these toasts, as the bridegroom responded to the toast to the bride or to the bride-and-bridegroom? If so, who should it be? (The bride's father and the bridegroom's father are, of course, to be present.) And will you please say some idea what would be appropriate for me to say in these toasts? — Arthur K.

You propose the first of your toasts to the bride's mother, the hostess of the wedding. You rise, lift you glass, bow ceremoniously to the bride's mother, and say, for example: "A rising toast to the charming mother-of-the-bride — the perfect hostess of this perfect wedding. Our thanks to you, Mrs. Thompson, from all of us for letting us share the beauty and happiness of this memorable occasion." The guests rise to drink this toast, and when they are seated the bride's father rises to respond to this gracious toast.

Then you rise again, lift your glass, bow ceremoniously to the bridegroom's mother, and say, for example: "And may I propose a toast too the mother-of-the-bridegroom, a dear friend of mine, a guest of honor of today's wonderful occasion. A rising toast, please . . . to Mrs. Robinson." When the guests are seated after drinking this toast, the father of the bridegroom rises to respond to it.

A "FAR-FETCHED" INVITATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Far several years I worked next to a girl in our office, and we were quite good friends. Then she and her family moved to a distant city, we corresponded for a while, but for some time we haven't written each other. Yesterday I received an invitation, apparently from a friend of hers, inviting me to a linen shower to be given for my long-ago friend. Don't you think it is rather ridiculous to invite someone to a shower at this distance? Must I send a shower present, in reply to the invitation? (The girl hadn't even written me that she is engaged!)

Gene I.

The only reply you must make to the far-fetched invitation is to write a polite little note of regret to the girl who sent you the invitation. Certainly it is not cool to expect that you send a shower present. (How amazing it is to what lengths relatives and friends of some brides will go to extract shower-loot!)

DOILIES UNDER FINGER BOWLS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have just acquired some lovely crystal finger bowls, with matching plates. A present for our Crystal Wedding Anniversary! I realize it is really correct to use small lace or linen doilies under the finger bowls. But, since these would be a considerable expense, and also an expensive upkeep, I was wondering if it is absolutely necessary for me to buy some. Is it?—Nan W.

No, not at all necessary. Yesterday it was a 'must' to have lovely little real-lace or linen-lace doilies under the finger bowls. But today it is considered equally correct just to balance the finger bowl directly on the plate. And when the crystal-and-crystal, finger bowl-and-plate, is lovely, there's really no need for any supplementary detail.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE CURSE AND CURE OF HANGNAILS

Hangnails are the penalty one pays for neglecting a beauty chore — keeping the nails in perfect condition. Take care of your nails; give them a little attention each day, a manicure once a week and you will be free of hangnails. They come because the cuticle has been permitted to creep up on the nail fabric and cling there, then to break and split.

To forestall this unpleasant state of affairs it is necessary to use a cuticle cream freely. Before doing that soak your hands in warm suds, passing a brush over the nails. After rinsing, drying and creaming, use an orangewood stick to detach the flesh. Do that with a rotary motion of the stick. Be gentle, especially at the nail bases. Remember there may be injure the matrix that a deformed nail will result.

Even though one has a professional manicure every week or two, a certain amount of home work is a requirement. After the face cream is rubbed in at night — That's one dut, no woman should slidestep some cream should be massaged into the nails. It will not have any effect upon the polish. Light massage stimulates the underlying blood streams which impart the rosy color to the nails and supply them with nourishment.

Hands and nails both call for protective measures. They take a lot of punishment if one is a housewife. When hands come in contact with water many times a day, the natural oil that should keep the flesh soft and smooth, is removed. Harsh soaps are a menace. Bland ones can be found now that laundry work and dish washing.

Dust has a deplorable effect upon the shining surface of the nails. Therefore, when doing heavy work, like wiping up floors, wear rubber gloves. Cotton work gloves should be worn when gardening, or polishing furniture.

By Mary Moore

"I'll bet anything mother's readers will hear about this pie."

I quote Marianne.

She and Herbie had invited his buddy Jean and Don's fiancee, Lois, to dinner and I was to make an apple pie, and Marianne and Herbie were to buy and cook the steak and the rest of the dinner.

Apple pie seems a simple enough thing to promise, but I couldn't find decent Spy apples in our city and when my cooking reputation is at stake I have to have Spys. So I wandered through the store looking for other fruits that would do and after much cogitation decided on frozen blueberries—47c for 11 ounces.

Would 11 ounces of blueberries fill my pie plate, inside measurements of which are 8 1-2 by 1 1-4 inches? I did not think so. I usually add a little lemon juice and rind to blueberry pie filling as you know, but wanted something to extend those blueberries, so I added the pulp of one large navel orange and omitted the lemon juice. It was good, so I'm passing it on to you, with my usual modesty.

THE MENU:

Broiled Steak Catsup
Stuffed Baked Potatoes
Fresh Frozen Peas
Olives Radishes Carrot Strips
Blueberry Pie Gruyere Cheese
Coffee

STUFFED BAKED POTATOES

This is an exceptionally good way to use large old potatoes. Bake 1 large potato each, scrubbed using crisp skin and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until very tender—about 1 hour at this temperature. Cut slice from top about three inches in diameter, scoop out centres, and mash with hot whole milk—for five potatoes I used 2-3 cup, and 1 tablespoon butter and I don't know how much salt. Mash until smooth. Refill potato skins, piling them high, sprinkle with old grated cheese and some paprika and put back in oven to heat through and brown a little.

EMEN'S BLUEBERRY PIE

(With frozen blueberries.)
One package of frozen blueberries (these were very large—some were 1-3-inch in diameter), 2-3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon quick cooking tapioca, the pulp from 1 large naval orange, trimmed free of all skin and membrane and cut into 1-2 inch pieces. Mix this together and turn into pastry-lined pie plate (see measurements above), put on well-gashed top crust, seal edges carefully and flute with thumb and finger. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. Fahr. until crust is baked and golden and juice bubbles through gashes. This pie should be made at least two hours before serving time, to permit the filling to set enough to cut without running.

I could not distinguish the pieces of orange in the filling, but their elusive flavor added to the blueberries was definitely a "find" for me.

QUESTION:

My cream puffs are just grand but my daughter is fond of the whipped cream filling, and asked if I could make a marshmallow filling . . . could you help me?—Clarissa

ANSWER:

MARSHMALLOW CREAM FILLING

Cook together 3-4 cup white sugar, 1-3 cup corn syrup and 1-4 cup water, stirring constantly, until it spins a thread when dropped from tip of spoon (240 deg. Fahr.). Remove from heat and immediately add 18 marshmallows cut in quarters. Beat until well blended. Pour this hot syrup over two stiffly beaten egg whites, while you beat constantly, until mixture is thick and smooth.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IF YOU'RE WRONG, ADMIT IT!

How many romances have been broken up simply because someone has been too stubborn, or too childish, or had too much false pride, to admit having been in the wrong!

Perhaps there is nothing that gives away a person's emotional age more clearly than unwillingness to take responsibility for an error. On the other hand, how much everyone admires and respects the person who is courageous enough, and mature enough to come right out and say: "It was my fault and I'm sorry."

If the girl who wrote me the letter I am about to quote had been sufficiently mature to have done this, she wouldn't have the problem that is now worrying her.

"A few weeks ago," she writes, "my boy friend and I had a very bitter quarrel over something that really wasn't at all serious, and it was all my fault. On our next date, I didn't say anything about the quarrel, and that night when he said goodbye, he just said he would see me sometime.

"That's the last time I saw him, because right after that he went into service, and I heard that it was because he wanted to get away and forget about me.

"His mother has always been very friendly toward me, and she gave me his address and I wrote to him, but that has been a month ago now and I haven't had an answer yet.

"Do you think I should write and tell him that I miss him very much and to please give me another chance? How can I get it across to him that I really do care and want very much for him to come back to me? Somehow I have the feeling that if I can put across to him that I was wrong and that I care, he will come back 'gone day.'"

NOT BIG ENOUGH

To repeat, if this girl had just been big enough to admit, on that very next date—or before it—the fact that she was at fault, everything would probably have blown over. The only reason for stressing this point now is in the hope that it will make sufficient impression on her so that she would handle any similar situation in the future in a more adult way.

She doesn't say whether or not she did apologize in the letter she wrote this boy, but I gather that she didn't. If not, then I would certainly say that was the first order of business. And the only way to "get across" to her boy friend that she was wrong and is sorry would be to come right out and say so. No beating about the bush. She should write just as frankly and honestly as she knows how, and ask him if the quarrel can't be forgotten and both of them start again with the slate clean.

That should be enough to make the lad understand that she does want him for a friend, and if he doesn't respond after getting such a letter, she shouldn't rush to write him another. She should just wait and see what happens. It may take him a little while to get over feeling hurt and angry and, having spoken her piece, it's better not to go on repeating it.

However, if she doesn't hear from him in a reasonable length of time then she had better not let herself dwell on her disappointment. She should go out with other boys whether she wants to or not, and give herself every chance to return to normal. If she is willing to be that, I'll guarantee that that eventually matters will right themselves so that she'll be just as happy with someone else. That is, if she learns what she should from this experience.

NEW PROOF BUYS

THAT MILLIONS CAN END THE NEED FOR LAXATIVES

—find relief from constipation this safe, natural way—without the injurious effects of repeated laxative use.

With all the progress of medical science over the past 30 years, authorities say there is no longer any reason why irregularity should be our most widespread human malady.

Nor is there any reason for developing the habitual use of harsh laxatives—and dosage after preparation after another in the vain hope of finding, in some potion or pill, the "secret" of real relief.

Long-continued study of the problem has shown that one of the most common causes of irregularity is lack of bulk in the diet. And when this is the case, the common-sense correction is to be found not in the drug store but in your food store!

IT HAS LONG BEEN A MEDICALLY RECOGNIZED FACT THAT NATURE HAS PROVIDED, IN THE NATURAL FOODS MEN WERE INTENDED TO EAT, ALL THE ELEMENTS NECESSARY FOR THE LIFE-LONG AVOIDANCE OF COMMON CONSTIPATION.

One of these elements is natural fibrous bulk, or vegetable cellulose, which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

In an ancient food is this natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers, or bran, of the whole wheat kernel which, as you know, is fast in modern milling.

Because of the known value of bran in promoting regularity, the Kellogg Company has produced a complete, whole bran—with nothing taken away to lessen its effectiveness—and under the name Kellogg's All-Bran, the natural laxative cereal. How effective is All-Bran? This has been demonstrated in a series of systematic clinical studies reported in leading medical journals.

In one study, 135 people with known delayed bowel function were given one ounce of All-Bran daily for one week. They were studied clinically and with X-rays with each made before, during and after they ate the All-Bran.

OF THE 135 PEOPLE, 102 SHOWED DEFINITE CLINICAL IMPROVEMENT IN JUST 2 DAYS.

IN A FOLLOW-UP STUDY, BETTER THAN 6 OUT OF EVERY 7 PATIENTS STUDIED WERE GIVEN ALL-BRAN IMPROVED.

The greatest advantage of All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to insufficient bulk. Chemical or drug-type laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage.

When people use these products habitually—in a way that laxative makers never intended—they upset in their digestive system in a way that nature never intended. Instead of correcting the cause, they often actually make their condition worse.

If you think you must take a laxative preparation occasionally, do so. But do it wisely. Read the instructions completely. AVOID EXCESS. USE SUCH LAXATIVES for occasional relief and lasting relief put your trust in nature. Just eat daily a one-ounce serving of All-Bran—for breakfast and drink plenty of water.

This All-Bran plan has helped millions to re-establish and to maintain healthful regularity. Why not you?

Women Dress For Men, Not For Other Women Says Designer

BY MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The old maxim that women dress for men and not for other women has been reiterated by Hardy Amies, designer to the Queen.

This dark-haired bachelor, 45, in an autobiography called "Just So Far," (Collins) says most women know instinctively what will be most attractive to men and accordingly choose clothes that are best for that purpose.

Amies agrees that women are deeply interested in what other women wear and love to outshine them, but "only in the sense that there is rivalry between the window-dressers of stores."

The author dedicates his book on fashion interests and problems "to the women who cannot afford my clothes, especially those who buy them."

SKEVE AS TONIC

Amies says his idea of fashion is to make dresses fresh enough in design to be a tonic to the wearer, but not so revolutionary that they make obsolete her entire wardrobe. His illustrated this point in outfits designed for the Queen's Canadian tour in 1951. The then princess's clothes were never so progressive that Canadian women could feel outdated in stores.

The ideal woman, says Amies, changes her shape to suit the fashions. Women, for instance, have added at least three inches to their hips in the last 15 years.

"The true lines of fashion develop as naturally as do the outlines of a tree," Amies wrote. Sleeves swell, and then are lopped, fall off or wither away. "Dress designers are like horticulturists," he added, "trying to produce fresh growths and often do."

The three most important requisites for a dress designer are "invention, intelligence and taste," says Amies. He does not think women have half the chance that men do of becoming successful designers.

MUST BE OBJECTIVE

"To be a successful designer you must be objective; you must be able to view womankind and their clothes as a whole." Few women can do this, he says.

Amies, who has made several North American trips, was once asked in New York why he puts all his decorations on the front of his clothes.

"Because I noticed the Good Lord had the same idea," was the prompt rejoinder.

The designer started his own salon after wartime army service —and soon set up house in Savile Row, stronghold of men's tailoring. He has about 200 employees and produces about 2,000 garments a year. It costs an average of 80 guineas ($224) for a suit from his couture collection and between 20 to 40 guineas in the boutique, or ready-to-wear department.

Most of the famous couturiers today supply designs to manufacturers for reproduction. Thus, fashions change faster than they did when former top-liners like Lelong, Molyneux and Chanel made dresses that could not be copied and did not easily date.

Two RAF Planes Stranded by Cold

LONDON (Reuters) — Two RAF Hastings transports, which have been making training flights in Canada's polar regions, have been stranded at Resolute bay in Green-land, the air ministry announced today.

Engine trouble due to extreme cold grounded the planes, which left Manby Flying College in Lincolnshire April 1.

Training staff, and students flying in the aircraft will be flown back in another Hastings, which has flown out three spare engines to Resolute bay.

The Hastings made a liaison visit to RCAF units in Canada before becoming stranded.

Northumberland Native Dies In Idaho Prison

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Harry Orchard, 86, a Canadian who in 1905 murdered a former governor of Idaho, died Tuesday in the Idaho state penitentiary. He was born Albert E. Horsley on a farm in Northumberland county, Ontario.

He confessed he planted a bomb which killed former governor Frank Steunenberg and implicated officers of the militant Western Federation of Miners. Two union officials were tried for murder and acquitted. Orchard was sentenced to the gallows. His sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

When he planted the makeshift bomb which Steunenberg touched off by opening his gate on Dec. 30, 1905, Orchard was posing as Thomas Hogan, a sheep buyer.

Actually, his name was Albert E. Horsley. He was reared in Ontario but left his wife and child and came West under the name of Orchard.

When arrested, he confessed to a host of other killings, attempted killings and explosions in Idaho, California and Colorado.

SAID UNION PAID HIM

He said he was paid for all of them by the federation in its vendetta against mine owners, non-union workmen and public officials who opposed its views.

Clarence Darrow defended W. D. (Big Bill) Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the union, and the others accused. William E. Borah, then a newly-elected senator, was counsel for the prosecution. The trial drew world-wide attention as a crisis in the struggle between capital and labor.

After his imprisonment, Orchard became associated with the Seventh Day Adventist church. The church published a book by the prisoner in 1952 which it claims has converted other convicts to Christianity.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP)—Marvin Mouser, 80, entered hospital here Monday for treatment of injuries suffered when he fell from a horse and was stepped on by a cow.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT. — Mrs. Verna Waldron was a last Sunday dinner guest of her sister, Mrs. C. Ketcheson and Mr. Ketcheson.

Mrs. Walter Jones was on Thursday visitor of her sister, Mrs. George Arthur.

Mrs. Lorne Hunt, Mrs. Walter Jones and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery, of Bayside Woman's Missionary Society, were guests at King Street Church W.M.S., on Tuesday afternoon.

F/O. Jack Ketcheson, of Summerside, P.E.I., was a last week-end visitor of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Ketcheson.

Mrs. Mathew Denton, of Trenton, spent a couple of days with Mrs. W. A. Jeffery, last week, and attended Bayside W.M.S. at the home of Mrs. Frank Leach.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones were Wednesday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. George Bilham on the occasion of the birthday of Mr. George Bilham.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock were last Saturday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. S. Reid.

Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton was guest speaker at the evening auxiliary of Bridge Street United Church, on Tuesday evening.

A few in this district are suffering from spring colds.

Miss Audrey Bowers was a Sunday tea guest of her friend, Miss Sylvia Bilham.

Sunday School and church services were observed at White's Church on Sunday afternoon with Mrs. W. A. Jeffery as pianist for both services.

The choir rendered an Easter anthem and the Rev. R. W. T. Middleton continued his sermon from the Gospel of Mark referring specifically to Jesus' friends and enemies. Communion service was administered at the close following the singing of "Rock of Ages." Good Friday service will be observed at Wesley United Church on Friday morning, at 11:15.

Navigation In St. Mary's River To Open Apr. 15

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Navigation of the St. Mary's river from Lake Huron to Lake Superior probably will open Thursday, April 15, according to the United States coast guard at Sault, Mich.

The coast guard reported Tues., that several ships are on the way to the Lake Huron mouth of the river but will not be permitted to enter the river itself until April 15 if they reach it before that date.

Thickness of Lake Superior ice, which will not be tackled by the icebreaker Mackinaw until winds are favorable, is given as the reason for the river closure.

Lake Superior ice is reported 20 to 30 inches thick while in the upper river it runs to 18 and 20 inches in spots.

The freighter Manzutti of Yank Canuck Steamships Ltd., which loaded a cargo of coiled steel for Welland here Monday, today remained at a Sault wharf, prevented from starting downriver by the coast guard regulation.

Stirling

STIRLING — Stirling Legion Branch convened for a business meeting under the leadership of Mr. Blake Faulkner. They plan to assist with a banquet for the hockey team but plans cannot be made until after the community council convenes for its session.

A meeting for the hockey boys will be held at an early date to decide on awards.

A property committee was elected and this group is to look into lots suitable for building purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Tompkins, Mrs. R. B. Duffin and Mrs. Murray Johnston attended inspection night at Bancroft Chapter of Eastern Star.

Captain Mae Keel, Mrs. Charles Faires, Mrs. Edwin Warren, Mrs. Frank Harding and Mrs. Burton Woodbeck attended a special session for Guides and Brownies at Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, and a banquet served by St. Thomas' Church of England Guild.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fox, Miss Gena Spry, Mrs. Harry Vanderkoort, Mrs. S. J. Elliott, and Mrs. Kenneth Belcher, attended a recent special Rebekah Lodge meeting at Tweed, it was the occasion of the visit of the district president, Sister Edna Fox.

Mrs. Edwin Warren was a delegate to the I.O.D.E. convention at Hamilton, and she also visited other places of interest.

All are glad that Mr. Frank Townsend was able to return home from Belleville hospital on Friday.

GORE — Local W.M.S. members attended the April meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Giles, on Wednesday afternoon.

The "Bacon and Egg" supper at Victoria church on Wednesday evening, sponsored by the W.A. was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Green motored to Toronto on Wednesday and attended the Farm Forum rally.

Messrs. George and Everett Price, of Selby, visited their sister, Mrs. Melvin Pulver, on Tuesday.

Mr. Gerald Fox enjoyed an excursion by bus to Toronto on Thursday. It was sponsored by the hog producers and the members visited the stockyards and at the home of her brother in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Good and daughters were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roberts, Lanark, Ontario.

Police Claim Homes Furnished By Stolen Goods

TORONTO (CP)—Three truckloads of stolen furniture, seized by police from two homes they claim were furnished entirely with stolen goods, were piled in a police station awaiting identification.

Charged with breaking, entering and theft after raids on their homes were Arthur Payne, 36, and Lawrence Payne, 28.

Police charged the stolen furniture was the loot of 12 break-ins last winter. They said toboggans were used to transport furniture to a waiting truck. In some cases, they said, houses were completely stripped. Also seized were 26 tires.

TITO TO TURKEY

SOMETHING TO BE CONCERNED ABOUT

Matters of great concern apparently trouble President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as they get together before Duller' departure for Europe. Britain and France have shown disapproval of the Dulles plan for "united action" if Red China increase interference in the Indo-China war. (Central Press Canadian).

MARMORA

C of C Holds Dinner Meeting

MARMORA — The monthly dinner meeting of the Marmora District Chamber of Commerce was held in the Royal Hotel on Monday evening, the new president, F. R. Loveless, being in the chair.

Following introductions and welcome of new members, reports of various committees were given. For the playground committee, C. A. Lorenson spoke of contact with the Public School Board on ground improvements.

H. A. Olsen, for the membership committee, mentioned the membership as being 45 at present, with efforts to be made to bring it to the 100 mark.

N. E. Veal, for the parking committee read six suggestions in his report which he sought endorsement of before going ahead. This endorsement was granted. He, also, on behalf of Reeve Ritchie Wells revived the water and sewage question, one of the chamber's projects. The village council sought some guidance from the chamber before the calling of a proposed public meeting. Following discussion a committee was appointed comprising H. A. McNally, chairman, F. R. Wells, R. McKay, S. Shank and Canon J. M. Brownlie.

This committee will get hold of the figures of a survey carried out by the council some time ago to study them and confer with the council prior to their holding this meeting.

The president announced that henceforth the monthly meetings would be held on the second Monday.

Before the session adjourned a vote of thanks was extended the retiring executive for their accomplishments in the past year.

PLANS 20TH ARCTIC TRIP

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP) Cmdr. Donald B. MacMillan, 79-year-old Arctic explorer, has announced plans for his 20th trip to the North Pole region. MacMillan, who will be 80 in November, said he and a crew of 11, including his wife, scientists and students, will sail from Boothbay Harbor, Me., June 26, and plan to go within 11 degrees of the pole.

TEETH IN THE LAW

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Accused of biting off a woman's finger, 36-year-old Benjamin Bell was held in $1,000 bail for grand jury action Monday. Bell pleaded innocent but admitted he and a neighbor, Elizabeth Robinson, fought after she got angry when he stuck his finger into a pot of fish on her stove.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and reeding with his slippers on, and ma was looking at the movie page in the paper, saying, There's quite a few good pictures in town, William.

The world is full of wonderful things, my dear, and yet when all is said and done, there's still no place like home, pop said, and ma said, You'd sing a diffrent song if you ever had to put in a day of deefly dull housework.

There's poetry in everything, pop said, and ma said, Maybe everything in your air conditioned office, with fresh flowers put on your desk every morning by an over paid secreterry, but I've never discovered any poetry, lerking in a floor mop.

That's because you've never seen yourself wielding a mop, pop said. My dear, it's the very pokery of motion. It can only be compared to the Russian bally, or fairies dancing on the green, he said, and also said, The fairies are welcome to it.

You are just as inspiring with a dust cloth, pop said. You are grace personified, and the few tiny grains of dust that escape are like goldust in the sun, he said, and ma said, More than a few grains escape, I assure you, and they live to be dusted all over again.

I've often compared you in my mind to Greek sculpture when you're polishing the fersiture, pop said, and ma said, I polished 2 roomfulls today, and my back is creeking, but not with poetry. Oh yes, the rose is red, the violet is blue, and if you dont take me to a movie, there's no telling what I'll do, she said.

The result being he changed his slippers for his shoes and took her.

BIRDS HALT CLOCK

HAMILTON (CP) — This city, which has fought starlings with guns and recording machines, let its guard drop during the week-end and lost a round in the battle. The starlings stopped the big city hall clock. Jeweller Wally Voetker, who went to investigate, said the birds perched on the hands on one side.

BOY DROWNS

NORTH BAY (CP) — A three-year-old boy was drowned in the rain-swollen waters of Chippewa creek here Monday night when he fell in while playing with other children. Firemen and police dragged for a half-hour before finding the body of Tony Biondi more than a half-mile from the place where he fell in.

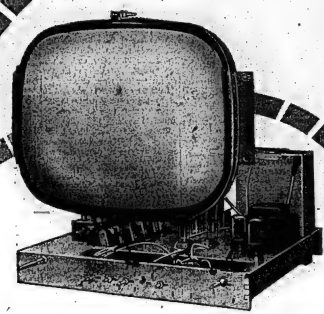
budget for 1954-55 as a "depression budget."

Mr. Argue, a Saskatchewan farmer, said farm income fell 14 per cent last year and will decline further this year. If the fall were not stopped, it would spill over into the rest of the economy and have serious results.

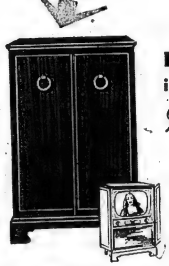
"In parts of Canada, particularly western Canada, the farmers are not waiting for a depression. . . For them it is right here. They have no cash. True, they have all kinds of wheat, but their families are going without many of the necessities of life."

HELPS UNITY



Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William) said the government's decision against granting income tax concessions to Quebec is intended to help Canadian unity.

"His plan is that he will stick to the constitution of Canada, no matter what anyone says, and will say to any province: Thus far shalt thou go, and no farther."



Mr. McIvor said Quebec stands alone as the only province which has not signed a tax agreement.

"I am sorry that it does, because I think the citizens of that province compare favorably with those of any other part of Canada.' . . However, they do not all agree with the premier of that province."

FAREWELL SERENADE TO EAST BERLIN

East German band leader Karl Walter, right, threatened with arrest by the East German Communist police if he tried to direct an orchestra in the Soviet zone, gathered his musicians together and decided to cross over to West Germany in hopes of being granted asylum as political refugees and to start a new career in the West soon. The East German Communist authorities objected to Walter on the grounds that his band played "provocative American jazz." Members of the band are shown at the East-West border playing a farewell piece to East soon after police on the other side of the border.Central Press Canadian.

Deposed Premier Draws Second Court Sentence

GEORGETOWN (CP) — Cheddi Jagan, deposed premier of British Guiana, Tuesday drew his second court sentence in two days when he and five members of his left-wing People's Progressive party were convicted of holding an illegal procession.

Jagan and his followers were given the choice of each paying a $25 fine or serving a two-month jail term for holding the procession in violation of existing emergency regulations.

Notices of appeal were given for Jagan's five followers. But the party leader will serve his two-month sentence as part of a six-month jail term imposed on him Monday for disobeying a court order not to leave Georgetown.

Canada Not Requested To Make Commitment

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Tuesday Canada has not been asked to make any commitment in Indo-China.

He reiterated before the Commons external affairs committee that Canada could become involved in the Indo-China war only through collective United Nations action.

In reply to Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), he said the government has been kept informed of the talks in London between John Foster Dulles, US state secretary, and Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary.

On Korea, he said Canada wants to withdraw its forces there as soon as possible. But no decision to bring home Canadian troops could be made under present circumstances.

FINE VIOLINIST

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arthur Polson, 18-year-old violinist, topped the British Columbia Music Festival with an amazing 95 mark. Adjudicator Guy Jonson said it was the first 95 he had awarded in Canada because "I haven't heard anything like it before."

U.S. Navy Is Concerned About Danger of Mines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy has expressed "acute concern" that enemy submarines could lay highly destructive explosive mines in American coastal waters and perhaps block shipping lanes.

Rear-Admiral Wilson D. Leggett, chief of the bureau of ships, discussed the prospect last month in secret hearings before a House of Representatives appropriations sub-committee. Parts of his testimony were made public today.

Leggett said a defence against mines is "one of the hottest problems we have had to deal with."

HUGE MARKET

VICTORIA (CP)—A big market centre with exterior patterned on a historic trading post will be built here at a cost of more than $1,500,000. The shopping centre covering two blocks will include 58 stores, all except one to be operated by independent local merchants.

New products newest Gerber's have just introduced 6 Strained Meats and 3 Junior Meats to their wide variety of foods for baby. All are smooth-textured, made from selected cuts, rich in the protein your tot needs to develop sturdy bones and muscles. Good for baby, too, is another new product . . . Gerber's Strained Egg Yolks. Ready to serve "as is". Gerber's Egg Yolks can also be added to milk or formula . . . and no wasted whites to worry about!

On the spot. Try this for removing milk spots when your darling disregards the rug or sofa. Sponge spot as usual. Sprinkle on a bit of baking soda. When soda dries, brush or vacuum the spot away.

"Solid" start. When baby's ready for his first solid food (usually cereal), get him off to a good start with Gerber's Cereals. Most tots take to these mild-tasting, easy-to-digest cereals instantly. When mixed with milk, formula or other liquids they have the creamy texture that feels extra-nice, is easy to swallow, too! Gerber's Cereals are enriched with calcium, B-Vitamins and the supplementary iron babies need shortly after birth. For variety, rotate all five: Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat, and Mixed Cereal.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Ruth Lockie (Mother of 3)

A salute to an inventive mother for this absorbing "bathing baby" apron! Take two oat-sizes, used bath towels. Use one horizontally for shirt and sew tapes at each end. Cut other towel in half. Bind rough edges. Use one half for bib; add a tape for neck halter. Cut remaining half into two large pocket pockets and attach to front of shirt. Presto! You've a protective, practical apron. Pockets make handy repositories for baby oil, powder, cotton, etc.

Business was then dealt with. It was decided that the delegates to the Presbyterial receive money for their expenses. Mrs. Gordon Parks and Mrs. Don MacDonald gave their reports on the Presbyterial. The worship service was taken by Mrs. D. MacKenzie.

Mrs. Hilda Taylor gave a splendid report on the Study Book. The lovely old hymn, "The Old Rugged Cross" was sung by Mrs. George Dorland.

Mrs. Clifford Raynor gave an interesting travelogue talk and slides on her trip to Florida.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the group in charge.

Shannonville

SHANNONVILLE — Douglas Winters, of Napanee, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilson.

Little New in Gouzenko Anti-Spy Advice for Canada And United States Is Report

OTTAWA (CP)—Igor Gouzenko, who cracked Canada's Red spy web in 1945, has come up with some anti-espionage advice—but little new information—for Canada and the United States.

The former Russian embassy code clerk here, now living in seclusion under RCMP protection, advises:

Provide inducements such as citizenship, police guards and immunity, for those who show good faith in betraying espionage activities by turning over valuable documents as he did the day he walked out of the embassy in September, 1945, with 109 wartime spy papers tucked under his clothes.

What h. tells in the way of spy facts, in a 40,000-word statement tabled Tuesday in the Commons, does not add much to what Canadians first story of Red espionage made public during the last eight years.

EXPRESSES CONFIDENCE

But he expresses some opinions, including that of puzzlement that a Los Angeles man named by him in 1945 as a Red agent was allowed to leave the United States without being picked up by the FBI.

Gouzenko's statements were given Jan. 4, at a secret hideout in the Laurentians, to representatives of the United States senate sub-committee on internal security headed by Senator William Jenner. The former sub-committee interviewed him at its own insistence, with Canadian officials present but taking little part in the examination.

In making the transcript public with 32 words deleted, Justice Minister Garson said in the Commons it contained little if anything the public did not already know and nothing of a security nature that the RCMP and the FBI did not already have.

Publication of the Gouzenko statements came a few hours after a ring in Australia similar to the network exposed here by Gouzenko in the late stages of the war was disclosed by the defection of a Soviet embassy official in Canberra.

There, third secretary Vladimir Petrov threw the Australian capital into a whirl involving Australian contacts or cooperators.

LED TO CONVICTIONS

Here, Gouzenko produced documents and photostats from the Ottawa files of espionage that resulted in the conviction of 11 persons on a variety of espionage complicity charges. The network revealed by Gouzenko extended through Canada and the U.S. and had lines into the United Kingdom. It involved about 20 persons.

Gouzenko and his family now are living under RCMP protection in a small Canadian town. The former clerk makes occasional public appearances but insists on being photographed with a pillowslip over his head.

His testimony before members of the Jenner committee—to which the Canadian government agreed reluctantly late last year after long argument that Gouzenko had nothing new to offer—was a mixture of fact, deduction and opinion largely relating to U.S. spy operations by Russia.

One of the opinion points was his view that it was "strange" the U.S. had not picked up a Los Angeles Russian agent he named as "Witczak" in testimony before the Canadian royal commission on espionage of 1945-46.

KEY RED AGENT

According to Gouzenko's documented evidence then, Ignacy Witczak was a key Red agent, and other evidence indicated he was carrying a spurious Canadian passport procured by spies in this country.

In connection with Witczak, though, Gouzenko said he had never heard that the FBI wanted to make spy arrests but was prevented by other U.S. authorities.

GUIANA'S JAGAN GETS JAIL TERM.

Dr. Creddi Jagan, former prime minister of British Guiana, sentenced to six months' hard labor by a court of the British governor, Sir Alfred Savage, faces a new trial on charges of holding an illegal meeting. His six months' term was for violation of restrictions on movement.—Central Press Canadian.

In another stage of Gouzenko's evidence, the name of a woman—perhaps a Canadian—came into the examination of Gouzenko by counsel J. C. Sourwine of the Senate sub-committee.

The lawyer asked if while coding messages for the embassy here, Gouzenko had handled messages addressed to a certain person at a Washington address. The name and address were deleted.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court, presiding at the sitting, said the name was that of a Canadian woman.

Mr. Sourwine said he did not know if she was a Canadian, eventually [illegible] never had heard of her.

Two Awarded George Cross

LONDON. (Reuters) Two British soldiers, one of them dead, have been awarded the George Cross, Britain's second highest bravery medal, for heroism under Communist torture in Korean prisoner-of-war camps, the war office announced Tuesday.

The awards went to fusilier Derek Godfrey Kinne, who died after capture through months of beatings, and Lieut. Terence Edward Waters, who died from mistreatment in Chinese Communist prison camps.

Industry Hits Back

NEW YORK (AP)—The tobacco industry Tuesday hit back again at recently expressed medical views linking lung cancer with cigaret smoking.

The industry published a pamphlet in which a number of doctors and cancer researchers were quoted as denying that there is any proof of such a link.

Title of the pamphlet was "A Scientific Perspective on the Cigaret Controversy." It contained statements from 36 medical men and scientists.

Hunt Continues For Two Bandits Who Took $1,900

OIL SPRINGS, Ont., (CP) — The hunt continued today for two men who held up a branch of the Bank of Toronto here Tuesday and escaped with $1,900.

A possible break in the case appeared at Walkerburg where police were holding an auto which may have been used in the getaway car. No occupants were found with it but it was registered to a Tupperville man.

Roadblocks were set up throughout the district shortly after two armed men walked into the bank with a white cotton bag and said: "This is a stick-up—just put the money in here." Oil Springs is a village about 30 miles southeast of Sarnia.

SAVED $100

Bank teller Mrs. Doris Cameron said the bandits would have got $2,000 but she slipped a $100 bill from a drawer when their attention was diverted. A time lock on the bank vault and the bank's 10 o'clock opening.

She said the taller of the two stood at the door with a gun while the other approached her with the bag. She dumped money on the counter while he stuffed it in the bag, she said. The man with the gun covered the four bank employees and a lone customer.

Police said the men may have been in the area for several days looking over the bank to decide on the best time to attack. Police started an intensive check of roominghouses, hotels and restaurants in the area to get a line on the men.

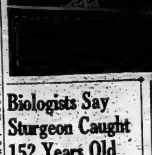
Police said the car they used was probably either stolen or had stolen licence plates.

Accused Says Statement Given Not Correct

MONTREAL (CP) — James Rogers, 24, of Montreal, Tuesday repudiated a statement in which he allegedly accused Frank Batiggia, 18, also of Montreal, of the murder of Charles Wagner, whose body was found in the bottom of a creek at nearby St. Mathieu de Laprairie in March.

Rogers, who is co-defendant with Battaglia on the murder charge, said the statement was "forced" from him by police "by threats and violence."

The statement, introduced in court by Crown prosecutor Leonard Ubald Lamoureux, head of the provincial police homicide squad in Montreal, accused Battaglia of the shooting after a quarrel with Wagner.



The jury was withdrawn during testimony on the statement. Mr. Justice Willie Lazure is expected to rule today on its validity as evidence.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Jean-Marie Rousset, provincial medico-legal expert said Wagner was still alive when he was thrown into the creek. He died later of drowning.

10 ESCAPE

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The captain and nine-man crew of the motor vessel Cornwall II abandoned the ship in roaring seas Monday and rowed to safety to Grand Bank, Nfld. Captain Frank Collins ordered the 100-ton, coal-carrying ship abandoned after her engine failed and she sprang a leak.

OVERTURNED COUPLE SHARED LOST.

Biologists Say Sturgeon Caught 152 Years Old

PORT FRANCES, Ont. (CP) — Biologists Tuesday estimated the age of a sturgeon caught in nearby Lake of the Woods at 152 years.

They said a microscopic examination of a cross section of a fin disclosed the great age of the fish, netted by Harold Johnson of Kenora.

What got them curious was the sturgeon's size—it was just under seven feet long and weighed 213 pounds.

Army Canteens May Be Placed Under One Control

OTTAWA (CP) — The army is considering placing its canteens, messing run by individual units, under central control.

It announced Tuesday it has called a Montreal industrialist, Brig. D. Kingdon Black, back to service to study the desirability of setting up a central organization "to administer and operate canteens and other activities of military institutes."

Such an organization, the announcement intimated, would operate abroad, where Canadian troops are stationed — in Korea, Japan, England, Germany and Belgium—as well as Canada.

No Monopolies In United States Says Delegate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A Soviet diplomat charged in the United Nations Tuesday that the real obstacle to freedom of information is the "monopolistic" interest of such enterprises as the Associated Press, United Press, International News Service, the Hearst papers and others.

The charges were made by Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin in the 18-country economic and social council.

U.S. delegate Preston Hotchkis replied that there are no monopolies in the United States. He challenged Russia to lift restrictions on foreign correspondents if she really believes in freedom of information.

THEFT CHARGED

SUDBURY (CP)—Lorne Ingram, 32, of Cornwall, Tuesday was committed for trial on a charge of breaking into a Sudbury hotel room and stealing $133 from two salesmen as they slept. The alleged victims were William Hamilton of Sandridge, and Alexander McLelland of Toronto.

Flying a light Beechcraft plane of the model shown above, Erle M. Coles, right, and his wife, Lillian, are reported missing on a flight over Puget Sound, off Seattle, Wash. They had flown from Bellingham in Burlington, Ont., to Arizona to pick up his wife, and was flying to Vancouver, B.C. Over Puget Sound, flying at 10,000 feet, he radioed that his engine had failed. He is vice-president of Canadian Westinghouse. — Central Press Canadian.

Publisher Says Press Did Lot To BuildMcCarthy

NEW YORK (CAP)—Publisher E. Palmer Hoyt of the Denver Post said Tuesday night the "press without research and without study did a lot to build up McCarthyism."

He added, however, that "there is still nothing wrong with this country that objective reporting with full coverage of all the facts won't correct."

Hoyt made the statements at the 1954 national awards dinner of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society.

The publisher cited examples of what he termed "responsible" press and television reporting in the job the Associated Press is doing on the junior senator from Wisconsin. . . and the job done by Edward R. Murrow and Eric Sevareid in recent telecasts."

The Associated Press now is distributing a series of articles on Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, Murrow and Sevareid have devoted several television news shows to McCarthy.

FINERY FIRE

GRAND BEND, Ont. (CP)—Three hundred soldiers, police and farmers teamed up Tuesday to fight a fire that threatened to destroy the Pinery, a large wooded tract of land owned by the Canada Land Company on the shores of Lake Huron near this village 40 miles west of Stratford. They cut a fire block around the burning area and let it burn out an area of about 500 acres.

Negro Pastor Says Racial Discrimination in N.S. Harder to Beat Than in U.S.

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP) — Rev. William P. Oliver says racial discrimination against Negroes in Nova Scotia is proving harder to beat, in some ways, than "Jim Crowism" in the southern United States.

Nova Scotia has 14,000 Negroes, more than any other province. Mr. Oliver, president of the Nova Scotia Association for the Advancement of Colored People, says Negroes in the province are banking on teadily improving public relations to win their fight for equal rights.

Adult education and discussion forums are being organized among Negroes to equip them better for the campaign to get a fairer deal in housing and employment.

DISCRIMINATION SUBTLE

Mr. Oliver, 39-year-old pastor of the largely Negro-attended Cornwallis St. Baptist church in north Halifax and chief of a wartime army chaplain, said discrimination by whites in this province is harder to offset because it is so subtle.

"We have found that whites are touching the issue that both we and they know must ultimately be faced," he said.

The minister, himself a Negro, said his race always knew exactly where they stood in the southern United States where segregation was practised. He did not advocate segregation here or anywhere in Canada but he absence means that Nova Scotia Negroes were often running headon into problems created by the very freedom they enjoyed.

"We are working quietly for fair employment practices and civil rights because we don't want to get people—Negroes or whites—emotionally aroused to the point where hatred sets in."

Mayor Richard A. Donohoe said he "supposed there was a certain amount of discrimination but it might better be defined as economic pressure."

He said Negroes "probably find it difficult to find certain types of employment" but he believed Negroes were treated about the same as any other race in the same economic group."

CURRENT PROBLEM

Mr. Oliver gave an example of the problems facing Negroes in housing.

The Halifax slum clearance committee proposed some time ago to raze 73 homes on four streets in a jumble-down section of Halifax. Fifty-one of the houses were occupied by Negroes.

The committee proposed simultaneously to build modern apartments on the vacant lots between the rundown houses now standing.

These apartments would have been rented. Thus a Negro who had succeeded in buying his home would be obliged to return to tenant status.

Mr. Oliver said the committee had bowed to associations' pressure for a postponement of the plan pending more study.

Mayor Donohoe said he felt the proposers of the re-housing plan hadn't taken the racial question into consideration before they advanced it.

"Now," said the mayor, "I one frankly don't know which way we're going although whatever is done there will be absolutely no discrimination."

The majority of Nova Scotia Negroes are descended from American slaves who came here by Britain after the War of 1812 and given their freedom.

Woman Grabs Enraged Lioness With Bare Hands

OUTJO, Southwest Africa (CP) A housewife who grabbed an angered lioness with her bare hands was credited Tuesday with saving the lives of her husband and two children.

Mrs. R. C. Els made her desperate grab as the lioness mauled her husband at their farm, 150 miles from here. The diversion gave Els a chance to pick up his gun and kill the animal.

Husband and wife are both in the hospital here with wounds, but are reported to be making satisfactory progress.

DUSTED AFTER H-BLAST

TOKYO (AP)—Three Japanese whaling factory today were reported dusted from 880 miles away by the big hydrogen blast in the Marshalls March 26. The ships were home-bound from the Antarctic at that time. The newspaper Asahi said that none of the crews was reported affected.

Maple Leaf Club in Tokyo Is Rendezvous for Troops From Commonwealth Units

By JACK BRATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Club is hard to find, tucked in a little side street off the main drag; unless you use your ears. The rollicking choruses of Alouette and Waltzing Matilda can be heard a mile.

The club, in an old walk-up German restaurant, is sponsored by the Canadian government and is the only club for Commonwealth troops in the downtown area of this rambling city. Gift-shopping, touring and pleasure-seeking troops at the big Commonwealth Ebiru camp 10 miles away can use it for checking, resting, grabbing a hot-dog, hamburger or cold beer or meeting their pals.

Jack Bratley

It's open from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. and it consists of a game room, reading room, snack bar, wet canteen where Canadian beer and cigarets are sold; is equipped with Canadian papers and magazines and an array of musical instruments to accompany the sing-songs.

BADGES OF ALL NATIONS

Around the piano, their arms linked, are the servicemen of every nation in the club. Over the bar are regimental insignia, hackles from highland units, divisional patches of American units and badges of other UN troops, left behind by men grateful for the club's facilities.

Running the club is Capt. J. R. Roy, a Royal Canadian Dragoon of Ottawa. On his staff are Sgt. E. A. McDow of Calgary, Sgt. R. H. Bonnell of St. John's, Nfld. and an attractive group of Red Cross girls, Kathryn Skinner of River Hebert, N.S., Margaret Leyrgd of Toronto and Cayuga, Ont., Brenda Long, Montreal, Margaret McRae, Orillia, Ont., Muriel White, Port Hope, Ont., and Kay Woodhead, Vancouver.

Blond Miss Skinner says that without exception the lads are well-behaved and well-mannered. The Inter - Commonwealth arguments are generally good-natured and even when the fleet's in the various branches of the service mix without too much ruckus.

The nightly sing-songs are the big feature with impromptu accompaniment. Each country gets a crack at its own ballads with everybody joining in the old favorites.

There's no planned program but occasionally concert parties visit the club for cabaret-style shows.

WHOOPING IT UP

When comic artist Mildred Moray of Toronto was whooping it up with one of her lively numbers the other night she said she usually did it with a 10-gallon hat and a six-gun. Before she had time to begin the Aussies had plunked one of their distinctive hats on her head and an American MP gave her his big revolver.

Some of the lads bring in their tiny dollike Japanese girl friends but most like to chat with the understanding Red Cross girls, because they're like the girls back home.

Miss Skinner says the boys unburden themselves about home and their girl friends, their wives and children. To show their appreciation, the lads buy flowers for the Red Cross workers.

All Bodies Of Crash Victims Now Identified

MOOSE JAW. (CP)—Positive identification was given Tuesday to the last two bodies of 27 people killed six days ago in the mid-air collision between an RCAF training plane and a Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star.

X-rays were necessary to establish identity of TCA stewardess M. L. Quinney of Vancouver and Miss J. Finney of London, England.

The X-ray technique used by coroner Dr. J. M. Hourigan and Dr. T. C. Brown of Toronto, Red Cross identification expert, involved comparison of X-ray films taken of the victims during life with X-rays taken of the bodies. Identification is made through comparison of bone structures shown on the films.

Sealed coffins bearing remains of the crash victims moved out of the city by rail and by noon Tuesday the makeshift morgue at the Moose Jaw armory was almost empty.

Meanwhile, RCAF and TCA boards of inquiry have completed on-the-spot investigations into the crash, Canada's worst.

LAY OFF 600

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 600 men will be laid off at Canadian National Railways motive power and car shops because of a national drop in traffic, it was learned Tuesday.

DR. OPPENHEIMER TO ANSWER CHARGES

A special three-man board has been set up in the U.S. to hear charges against Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, one of the top three or four U.S. atom physicists, that he associated with Communists. Dr. Oppenheimer, who directed construction of the first U.S. atomic bomb, refused to resign his position as consultant to the Atomic Energy commission and will answer the charges when the hearing opens. — Central Press Canadian.

Civil Defence Volunteers Plan Protest March

COVENTRY (Reuters) — The spirit of Lady Godiva is stirring in ancient Coventry, whose townsfolk are angry and perplexed at a city council decision to drop civil defence as "a waste of public money."

Lady Godiva, clad only in her blonde tresses, rode through Coventry on a white charger 900 years ago as a protest against unfair taxes imposed by the local ruler, her husband.

Three thousand civil defence volunteers, equally angry, plan a protest march against the socialist city council's stand that the hydrogen bomb makes costly air raid precautions useless.

But even the council thinks again, the volunteers will step out in their dark blue uniforms—many bearing medals won when Nazi bombers shocked the world by obliterating the city's centre in an "annihilation" raid.

COUNCIL SAID DEFEATIST.

Protests against the council action poured in, from civil defence chiefs throughout Britain. They likened the decision to an ostrich sticking its neck in the sands of self-deception. Most newspapers attacked the council as defeatist.

Lord Mayor W. H. Cresswell had been quoted as saying the decision would shock the nation's leaders into the belief that Britain has a greater destiny than just being "a bomb target for Russia and the United States."

Every English town is compelled by law to maintain some kind of civil defence organization.

Coventry, blitz town turned museum piece, probably would be an early target for bombs in a third world war. Its factories, turning out aircraft, trucking, planes and engines and light engineering products, export more goods proportionately than any other town in Britain.

YOUR TEETH CAN ADD YEARS TO YOUR FACE*

GET WHITER, YOUNGER-LOOKING TEETH IN JUST 3 WEEKS WITH PEPSODENT

*Your dentist has a tooth shade detector—it clearly shows that your teeth lose whiteness as you grow older. But far too often, people let their teeth grow dull before they should, adding unnecessary years to their appearance. Keep your teeth white, younger-looking with Pepsodent. Impartial laboratory tests prove that Pepsodent Dental Cream gives you whitest teeth—whiter than other leading toothpastes. And remember—white teeth are clean teeth—and clean teeth help prevent tooth decay.

Blackmore Wants Commission To Study Communism

OTTAWA (CP)—John Blackmore Tuesday urged the government to set up a royal commission to study how communism affects Canada.

Speaking in the budget debate, the Social Credit member for Lethbridge said communism is not a revolution against capitalism or an economic reform, but a "Turkic-Mongolian-Red conspiracy" to enslave the world.

Mr. Blackmore, who placed a resolution on the Commons order paper Feb. 11 calling for establishment of a royal commission on communism and withdrew it April 9, said communism "is basically an imperialist conspiracy of eastern European Reds of an ethnic grouping possessed on Mongol and Turkic affinities . . ."

He did not further amplify his description of communism.

However, this "Mongolian-Turkic-Red conspiracy . . . is aimed aggressively at actual physical invasion, conquest and enslavement of America." The conspiracy employed various brands of socialistic and communist ideology as a sort of sheep's-clothing to disguise the real facts beneath communism.

Human Guinea Pigs Are Often Not Normal

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Are people who volunteer to be human guinea pigs in medical experiments really normal?

Drs. L. Lasagna and J. M. von Felsinger of the Harvard medical school told the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology today that he found 25 in one group of 36 male volunteers to be seriously disturbed mentally.

The doctors said the possibility of peculiar reasons for volunteering for such experiments should be considered in making assessments of human reactions to any drug under test.

GUARDED U. S. PRESIDENTS

ATTERTON, Calif. (AP)—Capt. Thomas B. Foster, 74, secret service man who guarded presidents of the United States from McKinley to Roosevelt and at his retirement headed secret service operations in 13 western states and Hawaii, died at his home here Tuesday. He joined the secret service in 1901 and served in Washington, Portland, Ore., and Seattle. He retired in 1945.

Most Eligible Bachelor in The World Too Busy Digging Up Acres of Diamonds To Read 500 Proposals He Gets Each Week

By CLYDE KENNEDY in The Northern Circuit.

Dr. John Thorburn Williamson is probably the world's most eligible bachelor, but he's too busy digging up acres of diamonds to entertain thoughts of matrimony. He doesn't bother to read the 500 proposals that women all over the world send him by mail each week.

Williamson looks more like a handsome actor who would play the part of a buccaneer in search of pirate treasure than a man who has actually discovered one of the world's richest diamond mines. Yet day after day huge power shovels are biting into the earth near Shinyanga, Tanganyika, lifting up tons of yellow laden with diamonds from the site he staked in 1940 after years of grim search.

"I like digging up diamonds — what's wrong with that?" he says when someone expresses amazement that he prefers the hazy but fatally treeless plain in the Chief-dom of Mwadui to a life of ease in some European or North American city.

His brown eyes twinkle when he's asked about the lack of women in his life. "I find my only delight, the dark-haired, slightly-built, 47-year-old multi-millionaire laconically replies when asked to such questions.

A modest, quiet-spoken man who hates publicity, Williamson is genuinely shy, with no trace of aloofness that might well go with the fact that he is one of the world's richest men and could become the richest. For 14 years his mine has been producing between $5,000,000 and $8,000,000 worth of diamonds each year, yet has never approached its production capacity.

"He hasn't changed a bit," says his sister, Mrs. Alex Miller of Montreal. "He went out to discover valuable mineral deposits, making the utmost use of his eight years training at McGill University, and he succeeded. He never was a starer in high school or university." Born in Montford, Quebec, Williamson received all his education in his native province. This ended with a doctorate in geology. Now his calling card indicates simply that he is a "mining geologist."

A Montreal friend who roomed with Williamson when he attended university comments: "Williamson is just a quiet, normal, likeable man without the least degree of front. He is a keen-witted, close-lipped business man, holding his own in a business in which some families have had generations of experience."

If great wealth has not changed the man, it has certainly changed his way of life. "There's nothing I want that money hasn't brought me", says Williamson. "Yes, I can buy anything I want in the world. Certainly, it has brought me happiness." He says this quietly and slowly, almost reverently.

During one of the infrequent visits he has made to Montreal since he went to Africa in 1937, Williamson stayed in a $50-a-day hotel suite. He offered visitors cigarettes, from a gold case set with diamonds. He passes this about so casually that guests, who aren't amazed at his conservatism, fail to notice the diamonds. It is the man who captures their full attention; as much as anything because Williamson simply doesn't look or talk like a multi-millionaire. He'd rather have guests sit in another round of drinks than go into such mundane matters as to how he felt when he made his strike.

While he has been almost wholly absorbed in his African mine for 14 years, Williamson appears to be awakening to the fact that other things could well interest him. Now that his mine is well established, with a trustworthy staff to look after it in his absence, he plans to do much more travelling.

But his widening of interest hasn't yet extended to women. A pretty co-ed was delegated to help Williamson put on his academic robes when he was preparing to receive an honorary degree from McGill University. He chatted pleasantly with her and of course she was captivated. But when he passed her on the street in the following day, she told me, he didn't even recognize her.

Williamson wanders inconspicuously about the streets, usually alone, winning at the local blaring of horns which, together with the crowds, makes him quite unhappy. His dress is conservative but by no means as inexpensive as some reports have had it. Whenever he wants a new suit he sends his tailor to Nairobi in one of his two twin-engined Dove aircraft to pick up a tailor. When the tailor lands on Williamson's private airfield at the mine he has his cloth samples with him and he knows he'll sell Williamson at least a couple of suits worth $200 apiece.

Williamson owns a smart stone house at the mine site, complete with running water, refrigeration and electricity. He has built a little oasis on the highland barrens. When visitors arriving by air suddenly see the mine site they gasp. But a closer look reveals that Williamson lives well, but not as a multi-millionaire usually lives. His house, for example, would be quite unimpressive on a high-class residential area in North America.

"Dr. Williamson lives quite simply," is the way the diamond king's long-time friend, Sir Alfred Beit, a Montreal mining engineer who paid tribute to the quiet Williamson's property in Africa, sums it up. His living is certainly unpretentious when you consider he owns a mine for which he turned down an offer of $40,000,000.

While he admits that wealth has brought him happiness, Williamson refuses to be lyrical about it. "Remember, Jack, when you and I used to have to buy cheap meals of beans when we were struggling to get through university? a college friend asked him recently.

"I like beans," was Williamson's blunt, unromantic dismissal of this part of discussion.

While this remark illustrates his frustrating refusal to appear human or talked about his good fortune, it doesn't mean that he has become a hard-bitten millionaire interested only in successful people. He knows only too well what it means to struggle. He saw his savings dwindle in Africa until he regained actual poverty. And when he did strike it rich he reflected upon the fact that it was his training at McGill University, an institution which has depended not upon students' fees but upon generous gifts to keep the doors open, which kept him following geological clues that led to diamondiferous earth. No private fortune paid his fees, but private fortunes made the existence of McGill University possible.

While the actual amounts of his donations to McGill are a well-kept secret, some idea of the amounts he has given to his alma mater may be gained from the fact that he contributed $40,000 to the Memorial Pool sponsored by the university's Graduate Society.

When a reporter asked Williamson about the "natives" he employs, he tartly, almost angrily, replied that they should be referred to as "Africans". He makes it clear that he looks upon his 2,000 African employees as people worthy of the best treatment. A United Nations commission which visited the site was almost favorably impressed by the living and working conditions.

Williamson has built a first-class, 60-bed hospital for his workers, has provided them with houses which are far above average for African workers, and has built club houses and a non-profit store. For his European staff of 200 he has a modernistic village called "The Pink Diamond", a name which calls to mind the only lady who is known to have won Williamson's fancy.

When Queen Elizabeth II, then Princess Elizabeth, married the Duke of Edinburgh in 1947, Williamson sent her one of the world's famous diamonds — a beautiful, rare, pink gem. It was typical of Williamson that he did not take the 94½ carat diamond to London in person. Hating crowds and the publicity that arises when his presence is known, he sent the diamond to the Princess in the care of a representative.

Williamson never was gregarious. While other youngsters played cops and robbers he spent his time reading of the exploits of great explorers. He visited all the historic sites he could reach in his native Beauharnois district. He considered him to be "different", if not a little queer.

When he entered McGill University he set out to get a degree in law. A quick-witted, logical thinker, his speaking ability pointed toward law as a profession. But each summer he followed his first love — adventure in Canada's wilds. For three summers he worked on survey parties in Newfoundland and Labrador, quickly becoming fascinated with the study of rocks and the tell-tale clues that lead to wealth.

It was inevitable that Williamson should switch to geology at McGill. During his study, which led to a doctorate degree, he so impressed his professors that when a request came from a mining company in Africa for "a bright young geologist", Williamson was recommended. When he was accepted he was overjoyed. He had visions of new adventures in a strange land.

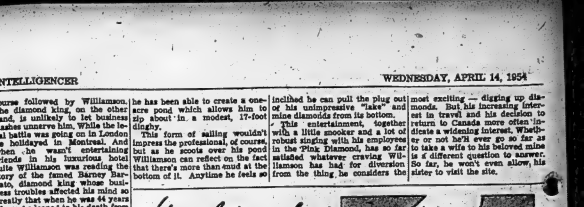
Years of search for hidden riches in the employ of companies in South and East Africa turned up no bonanza. But Williamson thought the clues were strong. When his last employers gave up a search for diamonds in Tanganyika in 1937, Williamson's adventurous spirit urged him on alone.

After three years of lonely, heart-breaking search, during which he contracted the dreaded black fever and chronic malaria which still besets him occasionally, Williamson finally spied a red dirt in the Chiefdom of Mwadui, about 80 miles south of Lake Victoria. He found himself standing at the base of a gnarled baobab tree holding a small but brilliant diamond.

The site proved to be so rich that the mighty Diamond Trading Corporation, which has long controlled the marketing of 95 per cent of the world's diamonds, quaked at the thought of this independent Canadian who always preferred to "go it alone".

Behind the sombre, brownstone walls of an inconspicuous office building of Holborn Viaduct in London, headquarters of "the syndicate" as the monopoly is known, early known in the diamond trade, Williamson became a frequent topic of worried discussion. And in Johannesburg where the mother supply is incorporated, Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, who holds the key position in the control of bulk marketing and production of most of the world's diamonds, has kept in constant touch with him.

Williamson refused to sign a contract with the syndicate when the latter finally realized the value of the site and abandoned its "wait and see" policy in favor of a rigorous attempt to bring Williamson into the fold. Until 1947 the Canadian sold his diamonds "freelance". But then, he says frankly, it became more profitable to sell through the syndicate so he accepted a contract which gave him 10 per cent of the marketing quota.



But throughout 1950 Williamson refused to deliver any diamonds to London. He felt he wasn't getting the price which his contract called for. He hired a group of lawyers and fought the syndicate behind the scenes for 22 months. In the meantime, he stored his diamonds in a concrete bunker like a strongroom at the mine. One day I showed him a dispatch from London which contained set-repeated legend that he keeps his diamonds in old pickle and jam jars. That made him angry. "Tripe", he growled curtly. He resented any suggestion that he is handling his wealth any less methodically than the way he obtained it.

The diamond trade rippled with excitement when the 1947 contract expired on December 31, 1951, but no new contract was signed by Williamson. "He is determined to go it alone," said W. E. T. Taylour, his London representative, in a brief statement. Taylour declared that Williamson intended to sell his gems independently in North America, thus becoming "the empire's biggest dollar earner."

Though Williamson finally signed again with the syndicate in June, 1952, his independence will undoubtedly continue to haunt the syndicate for his mine is so rich and wealth it has already produced, is still only in the gravel pit stage. "It may last for 25 years," Williamson told me, "before the gravel has all been processed and work starts on the pipe itself."

The "pipe" is the volcanic vent, now filled with hard, bluish-green rock, through which the diamonds now being found reached the surface of the earth. The rock, known as "blue ground", may contain diamonds in quantities never before associated. And the quality could well be high for Williamson's mine is unusual in that 70 per cent of the diamonds found have been of gem quality, in most mines diamonds of industrial grade predominate.

The syndicate, therefore, will continue to worry about the

PRESIDENT SAVED, GUARDSMEN KILLED

A Nicaraguan National Guardsman lies on the highway near Managua, shot dead by assassins who planned to attack President Anastasio Somoza. The guard had received word that a truck was being loaded with arms on the road which the president planned to travel and dispatched motorcycle guards to intercept the vehicle. They did, but two of their number were killed and the assassins escaped. (Central Press Canadian).

'Slot Machine' Open Tourney Raises Eyebrows

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Golf's superevent, the Las Vegas tournament of champions, is scheduled to be played for the second time at the Desert Inn Country Club, April 22-25, with $35,000 prize money at stake, and it appears that the money stars are preparing to split again over the propriety of appearing in the so-called "slot machine" open.

There was considerable hullabaloo before, during and after the event a year ago. Numerous name attractions, including Ben Hogan, did not accept invitations.Hogan was accused of having demanded $5,000 appearance money, and this angered Lloyd Mangrum, who did play and who intends to play again.

Those professionals who are in favor of the event point out that gambling is as lawful in Las Vegas as playing bopscotch elsewhere, and that there is no reason they should be affected by the gambling atmosphere. They also emphasize that the promoters donate $25,000 to the Damon Runyon cancer fund.

PUBLICITY STUNT

Those opposed say the tournament was conceived to gain publicity for the Las Vegas gaming tables, and that members of the PGA should not lend their talents to such a project. Horton Smith, president of the PGA, is listed among the opposition.

The latest issue of Golf Graphic attempts to bring the matter into focus. The publication appears to find no great harm in the tournament. For example:

"Despite late rumblings from a very few PGA officials, the field for the 1954 tournament of champions will be exclusive and important. Only one eligible pro, Jackie Burke, has expressed anything but delight with the prospect of a guaranteed $1,000 and a chance for much more."

Visits Hometown Of The Victims

QUEBEC (CP) — Capt. J. Alphonse Matte, provincial police detective whose investigation in the shooting of three United States bear hunters in Gaspe peninsula led to the arrest of a murder suspect, has returned from a visit to the hometown of the victims.

The Quebec attorney-general's department confirmed today that Capt. Matte visited Hollidaysburg, Pa., to check "certain details."

Awaiting trial on a charge of murder is Wilbert Coffin, 43-year-old prospector. He is charged specifically with the murder of Robert Lindsay, 17.

WHICH CAME FIRST?

A pair of white Leghorn chicks, hatched from a double yolk egg, kick their way out of the shell at the Haledon hatchery, N.J. This is the first pair of twins the owner has seen in his 36 years in the business. The twin chicks are now normal and doing fine, although they hatched smaller than other chicks. Double egg yolks are usually rejected as the embryo either dies or a deformed chick is hatched. (Central Press Canadian).

$1 DOGS—$84

WOODSTOCK (CP) — This city figures it costs $4 to have a dog destroyed. The latest account, $84 for 21 dogs, came before council recently for approval of payment.

Grandstand Show At CNE Will Have Roy Rogers

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian National Exhibition officials have instructed producer Jack Arthur to proceed with plans for a grandstand show built around the Roy Rogers troupe despite a union dispute which could keep most performers off the stage.

H. E. McCallum, CNE general manager, said today he believed the show will receive a "stamp of approval" from both the disputing unions, the Toronto Musicians' Association and the American Guild of Variety Artists, both American Federation of Labor affiliates.

Roy Rogers, the American cowboy singing star, is a member of both groups. The dispute between the two unions originated in the United States last fall when AGVA charged the powerful American Federation of Musicians with breaking agreements between the two organizations.

In Toronto, both groups have honored existing contracts.

Mr. McCallum said the CNE has had an agreement with the Roy Rogers group and other artists for several months.

TO DISCUSS RAIL SERVICE

POINT FRANCES, Ont. (CP)—Canadian National Railways officials will meet with the Port Frances chamber of commerce today to discuss closure of the Canadian Longlac-Port Frances line, effective April 25.

LIQUOR VOTE

GUELPH (CP) — Nearby Puslinch township, dry for 40 years, will vote May 3 on whether to stay that way. Nearly 3,000 residents are eligible to vote on five questions — establishment of a beverages' warehouse, a liquor store, beverage room for men, beverage room for women, and a banquet licence where liquor can be served with meals.

Drowned Woman Not Murdered

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said Tuesday they have ascertained that a woman whose body was recovered from Riviere des Prairies was not a murder victim as originally suspected.

Shortly after the body was recovered it was identified as that of Mrs. Annette St. Jean, 55, of Abustsic, Que., a Montreal suburb.

Police said the woman had been missing since last November and may have jumped or fallen into the river. The body was identified by brothers of Mrs. St. Jean.

When the body first was recovered it was reported by police to have been bound and mutilated. Later examination, said police, showed that the cord around the neck was the insignia of a religious society.

CLUB HEAD RESIGNS

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Hamilton head of Toronto's exhibition stock car racing, resigned Tuesday night and criticized board of control members who questioned the moral right of such racing on Good Friday. He said there was no objection when races were held on Good Friday last year.

REGAINS CHILDREN FROM IRON CURTAIN.

Mrs. Lydia Georgescu shows photo of her son, Constantin, 20, and Peter, 15, in her New York apartment after she received news that the children she has not seen in seven and a half years are coming home. They were released by Communist Romania and delivered to their dad, V. C. Georgescu, at Munich, Germany. Last May the Georgescu case made headlines when Mr. Georgescu reported to the state department that he had been approached by Christache Zambeli, first secretary of the Russian legation with an offer of a deal. Mr. Georgescu would spy for the Communists and in return his boys, held in Romania, would be given their liberty. Mr. Georgescu, a naturalized U.S. citizen, refused to betray the country of his adoption, and as a result Zambeli was ordered to leave the U.S.—Central Press Canadian.

Men of Canada's Destroyer Flotilla Enjoy Life in East

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH CANADIAN NAVY IN FAR EAST (CP) — The well-

Jack Brayley

scrubbed ships and men of Canada's destroyer flotilla in Korean waters are making use of the cease fire lull to sharpen their fighting wits and refine their battle drill.

Capt. John Charles of Victoria, chief of the force, says the training and experience available in this theatre are much more valuable than in home waters. Ships are constantly performing practical operational duties, the men are experiencing all kinds of weather and all sorts of weapons and co-operating ships are available for drill and familiarization exercises.

The men of the destroyers, Haida under Capt. Charles; Cayuga under Cmdr. William P. Hayes of Swift Current, Sask., and Crusader under Lt.-Cmdr. W. H. Willson of Calgary are always busy; often have a rough time but are gaining experience they otherwise wouldn't get.

MANY VETERANS

On each ship are many men serving at least a second 12-month hitch.

"And I guess I'd sign on for a fourth if I got a chance," said PO. Hugh Anderson of the Haida. He's from Verdun, Que., and was under fire in the Huron and the Haida when the shooting war was on.

"I like the active patrols and moving about we get in these waters," he added.

LS. Ken Sams of Gaspe, Que., another three-tour man, agreed with Anderson, adding "There's always something doing out here."

AB. Ken Harris of Toronto, Ont., and Halifax also likes the life in the Far East and would come again. His identical twin LS. Ron Marsh is making his second tour but hopes he'll get on another ship the next time.

"Thanks of mistaken identity around here makes life too complicated on this ship," he said.

"Everybody thinks I'm Don and he's Ron."

Nearly 800 men are on duty with the Canadian UN naval force. During the fighting they covered landings and withdrawals, bombarded Communist shore positions and troops, screened aircraft carriers, destroyed enemy mines and defended UN-held North Korean islands. They made their biggest name as train busters with the Cruisder scoring the best record. And they won 53 decorations.

Since the cease-fire last July, the Canadian ships have been on operational patrols against any Communist violation of the truce, forming the defence of the advance bases and ready to strike if the Reds renew the warfare.

The destroyers are attached to the west coast fleet of the UN blockading and escort force with a United States over-all commander and a British deputy. With the Canadians are Commonwealth units together with ships from several other countries.

Capt. Charles is keeping an eye on the activities of the Korean fishing fleet of more than 1,500 vessels.

The weather is bad nine months of the year in the tough Yellow sea patrol area but the Canadians are used to the sky and bitter North Atlantic.

GOOD MEALS

They eat well on American rations, their health rate is "extremely good." They can see a movie in their messes regularly, they get a bottle of beer a week and have a canteen which sells candy and pop.

They play basketball and softball in challenge competition with other ships. They get no regular leave but the ships pay one call a hitch to Hong Kong which is equivalent to the army's rest and recuperation system.

Mail from home remains the most important event of their routine and they all complain that it's slow compared with army deliveries. They believe it's because the assembly of the fleet mail at Victoria before it goes to Vancouver for shipment to the East causes an unnecessary delay. The sailors receive letters as many as seven days behind the men of the Canadian Army in the same theatre.

RELIEF PROMISED

For Arthritic and Rheumatic Pain

New relief without pills by greaseless, odourless, stainless cream.

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. Science has now developed a pain relieving aid in a new way to bring relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains. Sold under the brand name InfraRUB this new colourless and greaseless cream relieves these pains without the use of pills and other internal medicines.

InfraRUB does not merely set up a surface irritation but penetrates deep down into sore muscles and joints. The permits fresh oxygen rich blood to flow freely through afflicted areas and actually helps drive away the pain-causing congestion and poisons.

Another feature of InfraRUB that appeals to so many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary. InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfraRUB leaves not oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

Written medical reports on the success of this new help for patients suffering from rheumatic and arthritic pains and general muscular aches and pains have been prepared, based on hundreds of cases in British and French hospitals. InfraRUB users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Now for the first time, InfraRUB can be obtained without a prescription from your local drug store for only $1.25. InfraRUB is guaranteed to give hours and hours of comforting relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains or your money will be refunded in full.

American League Flags Flutter In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — American League baseball pennants will flutter in Baltimore Thursday for the first time in 53 years with the help of a fire 10 years ago.

There might never have been a stadium here suitable for major league baseball if one hadn't burned down on July 4, 1944, and the Orioles might still be playing in their own handsom of a park and still be in the International League.

Instead, they'll be playing the Chicago White Sox in a huge double-decked stadium in which the concrete is barely dry.

A SAD LOT

Baltimore baseball fans were a sad lot in 1944 when fire leveled Oriole Park. The 30-year - old wooden place only cost $1,000, but it had also been the scene of Babe Ruth, Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw, and many other famous old baseball names.

The Orioles' forced move to municipal Stadium really led to Baltimore's claim of a "baseball town." For while it, too, was wooden—and mostly splinters—it was big. Big enough to hold 53,523 in a Little World Series playoff.

By coincidence, that same day in 1944 St. Louis Browns and St. Louis Cardinals were playing a World Series game, and drew only 36,568. The comparison was duly noted, and so it is that 10 years later the Orioles have taken the place of the Browns in the American League.

In 1946 Baltimore voters approved a loan of $2,500,000 to tear down the wooden stadium and replace it with a concrete structure. This finally won a big-league franchise.

Simcoe Gunners Reach 'B' Finals

SIMCOE (CP)—Simcoe Gunners Tuesday night scored three goals in the third period to defeat Woodstock Athletics 6-5 and win the Ontario Hockey Association senior B semi-finals in four straight games.

Simcoe now will meet the winner of the Shouffville-Oshawa series.

Jerry Goodwin scored with the winning goals and other Simcoe singles were put in by Cooke, E. Smith, Rohmer, Orlando and Stanuts. Stanuik scored two for Woodstock and Luckman, Ringham and Thrower, one each.

URGE FACILITIES

TORONTO (CP) — Shippers at this lakeport, expecting a record season this year, are urging harbor authorities to build more facilities to handle the increased tonnage. Although a new $1,000,000 marine terminal will offer some relief, the situation will be much the same as last year, shippers say.

Large Crowds At Opening Day

NEW YORK. (AP) — Opening day in the major leagues Tuesday was a financial success, with 226,414 turning out for the eight games.

The American League outdrew the National 121,511 to 114,903. The largest crowd was the 46,994 which came out to see Baltimore Orioles make their American League debut in Detroit.

REMEMBER WHEN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Babe Reth for the first time in his 23 years in baseball attended the major league opener at New York 18 years ago today as a spectator, and received a tremendous ovation. After his long run with New York Yankees, Ruth had played his last season with Boston Braves in 1935. He died in 1948 after an illness lasting two years.

Winnipeg Takes 2-1 Margin Over Tri-Bells

TORONTO (CP) — Winnipeg Paulins defeated Toronto Tri-Bells 87-76 Tuesday night to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five Canadian men's senior basketball final. Fourth game will be played here tonight.

Winnipeg, sparked by Mike Spark, built up an aggressive all-court attack against Tri-Bells late in the first quarter and held the lead during the game.

Referees Roy Petick and Lorne Riches called 52 personal fouls and three technicals in the roughest game of the series.

Carl Ridd paced Paulins with 28 points, 20 coming in the second half. Herb Olafsson had 20 points in the first two quarters. Greasham notched 4. Ray Thomas was high man for Tri-Bells with 5 points. Peter Peltier scored 14 and Fred Thomas 12.

Athletes Buy Ottawa Players

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Athletics Tuesday purchased the contracts of pitchers Camille (Ornie) Brabant and Dick Hozeski from their Ottawa farm club in the International League.

At the same time, they optioned pitcher Courtney Stewart and infielder Jack Littrell to Ottawa and sent pitcher Charley Bishop to Ottawa on 24-hour recall.

Van Brabant pitched two innings in relief of Bobby Shantz in Tuesday's 6-4 victory over the Red Sox. The rookie allowed one run and three hits.

FLYWEIGHT DECISION

LONDON (AP)—Dante Bani of France Tuesday night gained an upset 10-round decision over Jake Tuli of South Africa, the British Empire flyweight champion, and ranking 112-pound contender. Bani had a three-pound weight edge, 117 to 114.

Sport in Brief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower let fly with a brilliant overhand pitch Tuesday to get the 1954 baseball season officially under way. The president and Mrs. Eisenhower watched the band play and the flag raised before the New York Yankees and Washington Senators had at it.

Johnny Sain, the veteran Yankee pitcher, picked up the president's pitch for a souvenir.

Before Eisenhower went into action, Speaker Martin led the way on the traditional 450-foot march to the flag pole, flanked by Calvin of the Senators, and Will Harridge, president of the American League. Millions of Americans saw the loss over a national television hookup.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates presented a special plaque to John (Honus) Wagner, baseball's Mr. Shortstop, in ceremonies preceding the Pirates-Philadelphia Phillies National League opener Tuesday. The plaque, a special tribute to Wagner following his 80th birthday, was accepted by his daughter. Wagner spent 40 seasons with the Pirates as a player and coach.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club Tuesday invited Royal yacht clubs throughout Canada to compete against the Dragon class vessel, Bluebottle, owned by the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh, in a series of races on nearby Lake St. Louis. The annual competition of clubs entitled to use the prefix "Royal" has been expanded this year with invitations to the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association and the Royal Naval Sailing Association.

NEW SHIPYARD

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—A new shipyard where large great lakes freighters will be built is expected to reach completion here in about 18 months. The yard, built by the marine division of E. B. Magee Limited, is adjacent to the Welland ship canal at this Lake Erie port. It will have a shipway about 1260 feet long.

Hershey Bears Trounce Barons By 7-1 Score

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Don McKenney, rookie wing, scored three goals Tuesday night to spark Hershey Bears to a surprising 7-1 victory over Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League final playoff.

The victory kept alive the Bears' chances to win the Calder Cup and the AHL championship. Cleveland now holds a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series.

The last 10 seconds of play were bedlam on ice as both teams clashed in fist fights and fans threw paper and other refuse on the ice. Three major penalties were the result.

McKenney scored in each period as Murray Costello and Skip Teal, Norm Corcoran scored in the first and Costello in the second. Otie O'Brien and Skip Teal joined with McKenney in scoring in the third period.

Red Glover scored the Barons' lone goal in the second period.

Printers Win Major B Honors

The Hardwick Printing team won the honors in the Major "B" Bowling League and were suitably rewarded at the annual banquet held at the Golden Acres restaurant last night.

The Printers finished with 163 points with Sutherling Tire massing 126; Bus Terminal, 124; Champs, 104; Comebacks, 73 and Scampe, 40.

Members of the winning team are, Cec Hardwick, W. Rawson, J. Semark, L. Lucciola, M. Moreau and W. Colclough.

The high average prize went to Joe Legault with a 224; J. Dennis scored the high triple with 845 and Micky Moreau the high single with 333.

At the election of officers president Dave Batchellor was placed back in office with Bob Redner named secretary.

Following the banquet and business the teams bowled for special prizes at the Recreation Alleys through the courtesy of Manager Tom Pappas. Appreciation of Mr. Pappas' generosity was expressed.

Penticton In Western Finals

NELSON (CP)—Penticton V's moved into the western Canada Allan Cup finals Tuesday night by coming out Nelson Maple Leafs 4-3 in the eighth game of a best-of-seven semi-final series.

V's, defending British Columbia senior hockey champions, came back from the brink of defeat after dropping the first two games. Tuesday's win was their third straight. One game was tied.

Penticton now meet Winnipeg Maroons in a best-of-seven series for the right to enter the Allan Cup finals. The series will be played in B.C.

JAILED FOR NEGLECT

MONTREAL (CP)—A two-month jail term was imposed on a Montreal mother Tuesday for neglecting to provide for her four children. Mrs. Georgia Larivee, 34, heard the sentence passed in municipal court. The complaint was signed by her husband, who said her absence from home forced him to stay with the children and resulted in the loss of his job.

LOTSA FUN!

There are more laps to this thing called sport than a four-chinned overweight dowager. While nearly 15,000 bowling Canadien fans were shrieking themselves hoarse in the Montreal Forum as their beloved Habitants whupped the bejabers out of the slipping Detroit Red Wings, over a quarter million American baseball fans enjoyed summer weather in various parts of the country as the curtain lifted on the 1954 baseball drama.

There was plenty of drama on the baseball diamonds. Roy Campanella set the schnippers clinking in the bistros along the Gowanus with a pair of homers but Wee Willie Mays, from the shadow of Coogan's Bluff, bolsted a 435-footer in the Polo Grounds skyscrapers to send the faithful down to despair. Over in Washington, Mickey Vernon blasted a long drive to send the proud Yankees degn to their first defeat right under the nose of "Ike" and the presidential party.

Along the hockey fronts the haughty Weston Dukes, kingpins of Junior "B" hockey, who each year ounse Papa Cosa Sarajlic to expand his bosom and chortle, "They're My Boys," were blasted by the starry Waterloo Siskins. The Simcoe Gunners proved themselves tops in Western Ontario Senior "B" ranks by ousting Woodstock. They will meet Stratford or Oshawa for the title. Misses Red Kecks showed no fear of Sudbury's famous Wolves as they dulled their fangs with a 3-3 victory to take a game edge in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup finals. Edmonton Oil Kings must be some "Yankies" out west. They won their 33th game in a row last night to enter the western Allan Cup finals.

Toronto Tri-bells, eastern Canada senior basketball champions lost their second game in a row to the Winnipeg team, topflight contenders of the western provinces, rounding out a tough old day for "Hogtown."

WORTHY TRIBUTE!

Oil and water may not mix but chicken dumplings and champions formed an enjoyable combination at the Queen's Hotel last night where Belleville Collegiate Institute's Junior "A" COSSA basketball title-holders, were paid outstanding tribute.

The proud youngsters were given beautiful miniature trophies in recognition of their basketball prowess and heard laudatory tributes from Principal George S. Currie, COSSA secretary-treasurer "Pete" Beach, Board of Education member Cliff Barber, physical director "Red" Townsend, and others.

We do not know how many free throws they made count on the basketball court, but if the "fowls" made (could they concerted last night is any criterion, no wonder they came home with the titular bacon. All right, all right, we, too, prefer it on the cob.

It was a fine tribute to a galaxy of fine young champions and BCI can well be proud of its basketball representatives.

What caught our eyes and ears was the self-dubbed "Rockefellers," a quintet of youths whose fine voices blended in grand harmony in negro spirituals and other offerings. The boys are really good and we use truthfully say we have heard a lot worse on some of the topflight radio programs. These youngsters should "go places" in a musical way.

STOCK RACES!

Crack stock jocks from various parts of the district will take part in the season's opening stock car races at the Exhibition Grounds Friday, according to promoter Dick Burrowes. Entered are Van Orter, Day, Swain, Young, Goldfinch of Lindsay; Morgan of Kingston; Murray, Handley, Picton; Sharpe, McCrory, Dunley, Sandford, Stewart, Hankin Fleming, Jackson Broad, of Belleville, and Mennings, Fox, Weller and Holland of Trenton.

BOWLING!

The Spring Bowling League gets under way tomorrow night at the Bowl-O-Drome and will continue for the next seven weeks. The loop is operated under CNA rules in which the seven-point scoring system is used. A player must bowl at least 15 games during the schedule to be eligible for the season's high average prize. Any player who resigns from the league before the completion of the schedule will forfeit any prize money coming to him. There are some nifty cash prizes we believe, and Bill Bateman, Bowl-O-Drome boss man is looking forward to a good seasonal league.

BLUEBIRDS PRACTICE!

Paul Mercier's "Happiness Boys" sons Bluebirds will start the seasonal ball rolling over the "week-end" at the CNE field, where Manager "Warpy" O'Brien has ordered the first practice, starting at one o'clock. Any softball player of junior age of the city and district and that includes all the surrounding communities, likewise those of Prince Edward, are cordially invited to try out with the squad, for says "Warpy", "There will be no favoritism. They are all softball Joe Daks as far as we are concerned and the youngster showing the best ability, initiative and enthusiasm will get the position. We still hold the all-Ontario championship, since no titleholder was named by the OASA last year and we intend to keep it if we possibly can." One o'clock at the CNE field.

Siskins Slap Western Dukes

WATERLOO (CP) — Waterloo Siskins beat Weston Dukes 4-2 Tuesday night in the second game of the Ontario Junior B round-robin series.

Larry Heideman opened the scoring for the Siskins but Gil MacNeil and Gord Thompson potted hats for the Dukes to put them in front. Junior Dares netted a pair of goals in the second period to give the Siskins the lead again.

In the third frame Johnny Ford scored another goal for the Siskins to seal the issue.

The six-game round robin series includes Kingston, Weston, host Kingston in the opener last Saturday. The third game will be Waterloo at Weston April 15. The two winners of the six-game series will meet for the Junior B title in what will probably be a best-of-five series.

Roy Campanella Hits Brace In Giants Win Over Brooklyn; Vernon's Bash Beats Yankees

By The Canadian Press

Home runs provided most of the drama Tuesday as the major league baseball season opened with a flourish. For the first time in 16 years at 16 clubs saw action.

The weather was ideal. Crowds totalling 236,414 turned out in generally cool, sunny weather, with the large st, 46,994, at Detroit.

The world champion New York Yankees bowed to the Senators in Washington 5-3 when Mickey Vernon slammed a four-bagger in the 10th inning with one on and the refurbished New York Giants upset the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers 4-3 on a 425-foot blast by Willie Mays.

The Milwaukee Braves lost to the Redlegs in Cincinnati 8-6; the Athletics upset Boston Red Sox 6-4; the Cubs swamped St. Louis Cardinals 12-5, and Cleveland stalled the White Sox 8-2; the Pirates whipped the Phillies 4-2 and Detroit Tigers shut out the new Baltimore Orioles 2-0.

SHAPE UP THE

Mays smashed his homer in the sixth inning to snap a 3-3 tie after Roy Campanella, the majors runs-batted-in champion last year, had cracked a pair for Brooklyn. Speedy Willie's blow, together with Marv Grissom's fine relief pitching, gave Sal Maglie his 19th victory in 21 decisions against the Dodgers. Carl Erskine was the loser.

Vernon homered in the last of the 10th inner Mickey Reynolds to break a 3-3 tie, President Eisenhower, who threw out the first ball, stayed to the end. Sonny Dixon who relieved starter Chuck Stobbs and stopped the Yankee cold after they tied the score in the ninth, was the winner.

Jim Greengrass cracked four doubles to tie a major league record in leading Cincinnati to first opening day victory since 1949. The lanky outfielder drove in two runs and scored twice.

Philadelphia's triumph over the Pirates came late when little Bobby Shantz injured his arm in the sixth inning while ahead 2-2 and had to leave the game. Gus Zernial's two-run homer following a bases-loaded double by ex-Yankee Bill Renna in the first inning gave Shantz victory.

FOUR IN EIGHTH

Held runless by Robin Roberts through seven innings, the Pirates pounced on the Phillys ace and Jim Konstanty, his reliever, for four runs in the eighth to pull the game out of the fire.

Successive fourth - inning home runs by Wally Westlake and George Strickland opened the gates for the Indians who shaded a 15-hit assault on Billy Pierce and three relievers.

Stan Hack's managerial debut was a success as his Cubs shelled starter Harvey Haddix and four other St. Louis hurlers for 16 hits while southpaw Paul Minner was knocked off the rookie-sprinkled Cardinals to six.

Baltimore made an ignominious return to the American League after 52 years as Detroit's Steve Gromek shut them out with seven hits and fanned nine.

Johnny Longden May Ride In English Derby

By Alan Harvey
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Johnny Longden ace United States jockey, may ride the Canadian-owned Irish colt Blue Sail in the English Derby at Epsom Downs this summer, it was announced Tuesday.

Frank More O'Ferrall, managing director of the Anglo-Irish bloodstock agency, said a licence is being sought for Longden at the request of Calgary oil men Max Bell and Frank McMahon, partners in Alberta Ranches, the turf syndicate which owns Blue Sail.

Longden, a native of Wakefield, Yorkshire, grew up around Taber, Alta., where he learned to ride in company with the late Georgio (The Iceman) Woolf, great jockey of a decade ago. Longden rode several races in England on a visit three years ago. His son Vance, a trainer, is associated with Bell and McMahon.

TO RIDER

More O'Ferrall, who represent the Canadian stable overseas, said the owners are eager to have Longden ride Blue Sail, now one of the Derby outsiders.

As a two-year-old Irish-bred colt, by Teheran out of Set Sail, was unplaced twice in small races in Ireland and second in a good juvenile event over a mile at Ascot in October. This was the race which resulted in his trainer, P.J. (Paddy) Prendergast, being suspended by the English Jockey Club for alleged disrespect to Blue Sail's running.

Last Saturday at the Curragh, Ireland, in his first start as a three-year-old, Blue Sail won from a big field of maidens in a 1¼-mile event.

Canadiens Regain Scoring Power In Sparkling 4-1 Win Over Red Wings

Floyd Curry Leads Habitants To Triumph With Two Goals; Deciding Game Friday Night

By W. B. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The 1954 history of the Stanley Cup series, the whole outcome now hinging on the seventh game, can't be written until Friday night and the answer to a double-edged question is supplied.

Will Montreal Canadiens maintain their gallant comeback or will Detroit Red Wings regain their vaunted power and prowess on home ice and topple the 1953 champions?

The resurgent Canadiens left no argument as to their superiority in the sixth game Tuesday night when they overpowered the Red Wings 4-1 and retrieved the series at three-all. It was a far easier task than the 3-0 overtime win they squeezed out in Sunday's torrid battle in Detroit.

Montreal's latest-scoring power came to life Tuesday night with a three-goal barrage in the second period, enough to squelch the Red Wings. The Detroiters fought back but their fire and dash were gone and their belief rally in the third period was only a token spark.

It may have been Canadiens' determination to square the series that made the Wings look ordinary. In any event, the display of each team was about the reverse of that on Thursday's game here when Detroit romped off to a 5-3 win.

The scoring laurels Tuesday night went to Floyd Curry, Montreal's hard-working winger whose outstanding specialty in earlier games has been his strong checking.

Curry fired two of his team's four goals, the second coming only a minute and 18 seconds after his first was while he was on the limp waiting relief from his bench.

Curry's tallies followed Boom Boom Geoffrion's goal, a bullet-like shot that zipped past goalie Terry Sawchuk and started the downfall of the Red Wings.

Detroit's single goal went to Metro Prystai and was scored when goalie Gerry McNeil, the understream man in a pileup, was shoved over the goal line puck and all. The goal gave the Red Wings new hope, but it died five minutes later when Marcel Richard beat Sawchuk cleanly. It was Richard's third goal in the series.

The fabulous Harlem Globetrotters, known the world over for their fine basketball playing as well as their hilarious antics on the court, are the stars of a movie which tells their wonderful success story, "Go, Man, Go!" It opens Thursday at the Capitol Theatre for a three-day run.

Edmonton Runs Unbeaten String To 35 Games

FORT WILLIA (MCP)—Edmonton Oil Kings was their unbeaten streak to 35 successive games here Tuesday night and added a shutout for good measure when they blanked Fort William Canadians 5-0 in the opening game of the best-of-seven western Canada Memorial Cup final.

Before 6,003 fans, Oil Kings counted once in the first period, added two more in the second and finished up with a three-goal barrage in the home stretch.

Norm Ullman was the top marksman with three goals. He tallied one in the first period and two in the third. Ray Kinaswich accounted for two while Jerry Melnyk was the other Edmonton sniper.

Second game of the series is scheduled here on Thursday and unless Fort William wins or a deadlock results, the teams then move to Edmonton to finish the round.

CHAMPION, WIFE, SHOT

OSLO (AP)—Norway's former speed skating champion, Oscar Mathisen, 65, apparently shot and killed his mentally-ill wife and then committed suicide, police said Tuesday.

Mathisen's body was found on the floor of his apartment, a pistol in one hand. Police said his wife had been killed by a shot from the same gun. Mathisen in the years 1908-1915 set 14 world speed records.

Pafko Is O.K.

CINCINNATI. (AP) — Andy Pafko Milwaukee, right fielder who was beaned by a pitched ball in Tuesday's baseball opener here, probably will be released from hospital today.

A physician said X-rays were negative, indicating he suffered no fractures, and should be ready to play ball in Milwaukee against St. Louis tomorrow.

JOCKEYS HURT

BOWIE, Md. (CP)—Two jockeys were injured in a four-horse spill in the eighth race Tuesday at Bowie race track. Mike Caffarella, riding Red Cap, was taken to hospital with a possible fractured spine. Larry Hamman, up on Rewing, hurt his chest.

Matane Rocks Edge Sudbury For Game Lead in Playdowns

MATANE, Que. (CP) — Matane Red Rocks jumped into a 1-0 lead in the eastern Canada Allan Cup finals Tuesday night as they rattled home two goals in the final period to defeat Sudbury Wolves 3-2.

The Red Rocks, who only managed to tie their first encounter with the Wolves 4-4, are out to stretch their series lead tonight matched their ability to do so is far from decided.

Matane came from behind twice to tie the score and then went on to win on Lucien Gilbert's goal within three minutes of the final siren.

Bernie Limoges and Gilles Desrosiers counted earlier for the winners. Tetter McLellan and Gordie Heale scored for Sudbury.

Biggest obstacle to Matane was Sudbury goaler Al Millar. It was mainly his work that prevented Matane's repeated sorties into the Wolves' zone from paying off.

Except for a short time at the start of the first period when Matane was busy organizing its defence, the Sudbury crew were outskated and forced onto the defensive most of the game.

It was during that first-period pressure play — while peppering goalie Marcel Paille with shots — that McLellan and Yogi Kreiger teamed up to put the visitors ahead. Kreiger's blue line slap shot bounced off McLellan's stick and into the net.

At 15:05 of the same period, Left Winger Geogan off for tripping. Matane capitalized on a man-power advantage and Bernie Limoges tied it up on a pass from playing-coach Gerry Plamondon.

The Wolves again went ahead late in the rough-and-tough middle frame on a goal credited to Heale. Geogan's long shot appeared to deflect from Limoges' skate into the net, but Heale was given credit for it and assists went to Geogan and Andy Millies.

Desrosiers evened it up for the last time at 6:18 of the third period. Millar stopped Rene Pepin's shot but the rebound deflected him and Desrosiers poked it in. At 17:39 Gilbert took a pass from defenceman Real Lafreniere and flipped it into the right-hand corner of the net to close off the scoring.

In all Millar took care of 27 shots successfully, the same number as Paille. But Millar's were spread throughout the game where as the Matane netminder had it comparatively easy after the first period's 17 stops.

Sundridge Whips Durham 5-0

BRACEBRIDGE (CP) — Bucko Macdonald's Sundridge Beavers took the first game of the intermediate B finals Tuesday night when they defeated Durham Huskies 5-0.

Led by Ross Johnstone with two goals, the Beavers took a lead of 1-0 in the first, increased it to 2-0 in the second and added two more in the third.

Sonny Odrowski, George Russell and Keith Kidd got the other goals.

The next game is at Durham on Thursday and back here on Saturday.

Newspapermen Get Track 'Gravy' For 'Not Doing a D... Thing,' Is Report

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The Journal-Bulletin says 19 Boston newspaper men were paid sums ranging from $100 to $2,500 each last year by Rockingham Park race track for services ranging from "not doing a damn thing" to assisting publicity work.

The newspaper says six of the men named by the track are writers for the track's paper, the Boston Record and American. One is identified in the track's records as an employee of the Boston Post; one an employee of the Boston Globe, one of The Associated Press and the other of the United Press.

Lou Smith,' vice-president and general manager of the Salem, N.H., track, told a Journal-Bulletin reporter that this practice was "more or less necessary" to set up an efficient publicity bureau and that it was an "accepted practice" to assist newspaper men, the newspaper says.

R. M. O'Connell, secretary and vice-president of Rockingham, also defended the practice.

The Journal-Bulletin says the track's books show payments as follows:

Sam Cohen, sports editor, Boston Record $2,500

George Clarke, columnist, Boston Record $600

Mel Massuco, reporter, Boston Record $600

Robert A. Waldo, track writer, Boston American $100

William McCauley, track writer, Boston Record $600

Matthew Keasy, sports writer, Boston 'American $500

Sidney Robinson, track writer, Boston Post $300

Sam McCracken, track writer, Boston Globe $500

William R. King, sports writer, Associated Press $500

Gardner L. Frost, bureau manager, United Press $500

NOT EMPLOYEES

The Boston Post issued a statement saying that Robinson is not an employee of that newspaper, but "is a private contractor who sells a race service" to The Post and other papers.

Frank J. Starzel, general manager of The Associated Press, said Keasy had been dismissed after the news service investigated reports "received early this year that a member of its Boston staff had received substantial payments from a New England race track in 1953 and 1953 which were not disclosed to his employer."

Bert Masterson, New York-New England division manager of the United Press, released a statement saying Frost "resigned voluntarily from the United Press on Monday, April 12. He had been with the UP for 17 years."

A Record-American spokesman said there would be "no comment tonight."

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Six years ago a frightened little dancer played a night club here as one of a troupe. Today Eartha Kitt is the headliner at the same spot and still frightened.

The Eartha Kitt show at El Rancho Vegas is the top ticket in this fabulous town. The sultry songstress' records are selling in the millions. She is the star of a current movie hit, "New Faces." She has enough offers from TV, Movies, nightclubs, and the stage to keep her busy for a decade.

But she's scared.

"It wasn't so bad in the theatre in New York, because I was accustomed to the theatre," she says. "But when I played the Mocambo (where she scored her first big hit) I was terrified. And when opened here I was so frightened I didn't think I would be able to go on."

INTIMATE AS A BOUDOIR

She's no beauty, but she has a fascinating, lively face, which can range from a savage look to one of tenderness. She prowls around the stage with a feline grace. Her songs are as intimate as a wire recording. She sings "Monotonous" as though it were a confession to a priest.

SEXY

Her material is sexy, but she has a way of making it sound innocent. Her "Santa Baby" is a naughty request for Christmas presents, but she sings it as though she were a little girl writing a letter to Santa Claus.

Her style is a combination of Josephine Baker, Lena Horne and Marlene Dietrich. She has the sultry voice of Miss Horne, the exotic appearance of Miss Baker, and the sophistication of Miss Dietrich.

Her act is a combination of songs, stories and impressions. She tells of her childhood in South Carolina, of her days as a dancer in Paris, of her career as a singer. She does impressions of Dietrich, Miss Horne, Miss Baker, Josephine Baker, Jimmy Durante, Louis Armstrong and Peggy Lee.

SHE'S SCARED

Miss Kitt is scared because she has never had to carry a show before. She has been in the business for 15 years, but has never had the chance to be a star.

"I'm afraid I'll forget my lines," she says. "I'm afraid I'll get sick. I'm afraid I'll lose my voice. I'm afraid I'll get fired."

Her fears are groundless. She is a sensation.

ACTRESS

Miss Kitt is also an actress. She has been signed by Universal-International for a role in "Mark of the Hawk," a story of Africa. She will play the wife of Sidney Poitier.

SINGER

Miss Kitt is also a singer. She has been signed by RCA Victor for a series of records. Her first release, "Santa Baby," is selling well.

DANCER

Miss Kitt is also a dancer. She has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 15, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A present tendency toward extravagance could lead to trouble. Some conditions, embarrassment if not checked. Refrain overbuying or overdoing. Give to charity; be sane.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — A good day in which you get keenly alert natives of Taurus can show your attributes to advantage in business matters. Present desires may not culminate as satisfactorily, however.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — In some respects an unpredictable day. Take care in untried propositions. Well-defined and intelligently-managed activities can prosper, however.

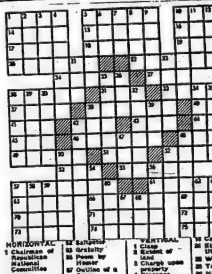
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Your actions must be worthwhile, wholesome and within your capabilities or they can hardly be expected to progress. Allocate work, diversions according to time limits.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Try to cultivate a desirable social attitude. Home and parental duties, obligations. Calm and good feeling urged. Fight for wise principles.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Get inclined, and on the cheerful side and you will have won half the day's battle. Do not allow problems or the moods of others to annoy you. Concentrate on your responsibilities.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Regardless of competition or obstacles, do not lose confidence or ambition. The day is mediocre in some ways; may be difficult for money and business matters.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—A few well spaced advantages for you quick-thinking folks. We urge emotional restraint, patience in all matters. Prayer is always a help.

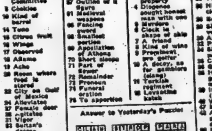


November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Give serious thought to the important and vulnerable spots. One or two hairline decisions may have to be made. Some mischief in the making.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — The "be careful" signs are up. Take your affairs, problems seriously, but not fretfully or gloomily; don't take chances. Benefic results require sound thinking beforehand.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Don't mix private matters and unsecretarials with business when you shouldn't. The day will be much what you make it; be on your toes if you expect to reap success.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Suggest you be more cautious in investments, business contracts, conferences. Listen to your intuition and heed past experiences. They are generally helpful.



YOU BORN TODAY have keen farseeing minds; are often good brain-workers and can be depended upon to do high type job at whatever you attempt. You can create new methods and like to improve on the old and out-of-date. But you often lack the will to carry things through to completion. At times are governed by impulse, quick in action and may give way to bursts of temper. But you do not retain anger long. You enjoy harmony, are fond of music and read it about. You can achieve in a big way. Birthdate: Henry James, author.

KILLED BY LAWN ROLLER

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Marie Hammond, 31-year-old business woman, was killed Monday by a power lawn roller she was demonstrating. Miss Hammond, owner of the Richfield Lawnmower Repair Co., was knocked off the roller by a tree branch. The roller ran over her.

TAKES OWN LIFE

TOKYO (AP)—A prominent figure in Japan's huge shipping scandal was given a bribery deed Tuesday—an apparent cuicide. The body of Yoshio Kodama, 62, racketeer and former vice-president of the big Ishi-Kawajima Heavy Industries Co., was found hanging from a rope in a storeroom at his home. Servants said no note was found.

CHEST SPECIALIST DIES

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Dr. J. J. Singer, 71, internationally known specialist in chest diseases, died Tuesday of a heart attack. He was a native of Leeds, England.

Known as the LVTP-5, this new amphibian assault vehicle, now in production for the U.S. Marine Corps, is shown during tests at Camp Lejune, North Carolina. A modern version of the old LVT, used in Pacific warfare, it carries cargo and can hit the beach with more than two squads of combat-ready troops in much faster time. —Central Press Canadian.

A young woman who gave her name as Liudmila Sergeyeva Mikailova, alias Claire Wilson, created something of a puzzle in Washington after insisting on going to Tel Aviv, where she said she had once been a Red spy and feared for her life. Miss Mikailova had been arrested on charges of leaving California without permission while awaiting deportation for pro-Communist activities. She reportedly told FBI she had once been a $1,000-a-month spy and now wanted asylum in the U.S. Her story was doubted, it was said Central Press Canadian.

New Hospital Design Will Effect Saving

TORONTO (CP)—A new concept of hospital design, expected to effect a saving of 25 to 35 per cent in initial capital and operating costs, has been evolved by the Ontario government.

It calls for a one- or two-floor central unit in which are concentrated all main hospital facilities and a ward for medical, surgical, and maternity cases. The design, which breaks away from the trend to multi-storey buildings, will be incorporated in the new Queensway Hospital to be built on the western outskirts of Toronto this fall.

The idea originated from Health Minister McGibbon following observation of Canadian army methods of treating wounded during the Second World War.

Dr. Phillips believed the centralizing of units would make for the most effective use of equipment, facilities and staff in proposed Ontario hospitals.

He began work on the project in 1951 and, after two years research, plans for the hospital of tomorrow were produced. Officials of the proposed Queensway Hospital decided to change original plans to conform with the new hospital design.

The expected result is a substantial increase in the number of beds for the same amount of money. Branching out from main wings in which the main bed wards are located producing savings in construction and operating.

Each wing, with no basements, would contain 40 or 50 beds. At the Queensway Hospital plans call for a structure of two floors with a maternity ward on the second floor. Plans also permit the later addition of two floors or four or five one-storey wings.

Britain to Place Armored Unit In European Army

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain announced today that she is ready to place an armored division in the proposed European army.

Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons that Gen. Alfred Gruenther, supreme Allied commander in Europe, "has been informed we will do this as soon as the (European Defence Community) corps is ready to receive it."

Eden was giving details of the agreement signed in Paris Tuesday providing for Britain's association with the projected Eurocear army.

He said Britain had told the six EDC governments that "we have no intention of withdrawing from the continent of Europe so long as the threat exists to the security of Western Europe and of the EDC."

Britain had "undertaken to continue to maintain on the mainland of Europe, including Germany, such armed forces as may be necessary and appropriate to contribute a fair share of the forces needed for the joint defence of the North Atlantic area."

Queen and Duke Visit Historic Ceylon Ruins

POLONNARUWA, Ceylon (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh today arrived at this ruined city in the heart of the jungle to begin six days of sight-seeing in the surrounding countryside.

From Polonnaruwa, once-mighty city abandoned in the 13th century, they will tour an area packed with romantic-sounding places of historic and cultural interest.

The tour includes Kandy, where worshippers gather in thousands to pray at the Temple of the Tooth —said to be a relic of Buddha. Prime Minister Sir Laurent of Canada visited the temple during his recent world tour.

The royal couple were greeted by 5,000 people at Colombo station this morning, including a 35-year-old Indian mahout named Arokyan —she stands only 30 inches high.

Prime Minister Sir John Kotelawala made special arrangements so the midget could get a good view.

Decide Skeleton Found Near Galt Is That of Man

Ends Speculation Body Might Be Marion McDowell's

GALT (CP)—Coroner Dr. James McQueen said today the skeleton found Wednesday night on the bank of the Grand river is that of a man.

There was no indication of the man's identity. Nor could authorities determine from their preliminary investigation whether the body had been dead for months or two years. Only pieces of clothing including what appeared to be parts of a watch and suspenders.

Dr. McQueen said he doubted the body had been dead more than two years. The skeleton was complete to the hips but police could not immediately find the leg bones.

Officials said the investigation is continuing.

DEFINITELY MALE

The announcement that the skeleton was a man's, not a young girl's as first reported, ended unofficial speculation that the remains might be those of Marion McDowell, 17, of the Toronto suburb of Scarborough township, who disappeared last December and was reported kidnapped.

Another theory was that the bones were those of a transient.

Bill Robertson, 17, and Douglas Crawford, 14, spotted the skull while they were stalking out of the mud near the Galt incinerator.

Navigation Down St. Lawrence River Opens

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Navigation down-river to Montreal was opened officially today when officials of the oil tanker, Eastern Shell, bound from Toronto to Montreal, picked up a pilot in Kingston harbor and proceeded on her way.

The freighters are beginning to move though there has been no through traffic reported yet. The honor of being the first vessel to leave Kingston for the Upper Lakes went to the Canada Steamships freighter Fernie which left here early Tuesday for Fort William.

Another Canada Steamships vessel, the Wyoming, left Wednesday for Picton, Ont., to load canned goods for Toronto. The Lambton, also of Cth., is expected to clear today.

TITO REVIEWS TURKS

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters)—Soviet and other Iron Curtain delegates looked on Wednesday as President Tito of Yugoslavia took the salute at an eight-hour parade of all branches of the Turkish Army, Infantry, artillery, tanks, engineers and cavalry regiments dipped their flags in salute as they passed the presidential box on Ankara Racetrack. A calvary regiment rode past at full gallop.

Three Killed By Freight Train Near Cornwall

CORNWALL (CP) — A speeding freight train crashed into a car at a level crossing here west of Cornwall Wednesday, killing three of the four persons in the automobile.

Mrs. William Watson, 42, and her 16-year-old son, Gordon, were killed along with Harvey Martin, 44, in the collision. Mrs. Watson's husband, Mr. Watson, was severely injured and was brought to hospital here.

The crash occurred in the village of Wales, where both Watson and Martin were stationed as section hands for the Canadian National Railways. The crash occurred at a sideroad, CNR crossing 15 police said the wig-wag warning signals were still operating when they arrived on the scene.

Bodies of the dead were scattered in a ditch along the highway. Watson was pried from the car wreckage. The train smashed into the auto into an unrecognizable pile of junk.

The train, en route to Montreal and Toronto on the main CNR line, was held up for more than an hour. It was in charge of conductor J. L. Morris of Montreal and the engineer was Joseph Hollander of Montreal.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The warm air which advanced across southern Ontario Wednesday retreated southward during the night, washed out of the province by cooler air from the northwest. However, this morning warm southerly winds are gaining strength and the warm air will again advance into southwestern Ontario today. Showers and thunderstorms are sweeping along the leading edge of the warm air.

A few pressure area in Minnesota will move into Ontario tonight bringing frequent thundershowers. Behind this disturbance lerish northerly winds will bring cooler air across the Prairies. These will reach Ontario late Friday, ending in showers with the above-normal temperature.

2 MEN CHARGED WITH ROBBERY OF BANK BRANCH

.45 Calibre Pistol Found, Most of Loot Recovered

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Two men were charged Wednesday night with robbery of the Bank of Toronto branch at Dutton, Spring, 30 miles southeast of Sarnia, and police said most of the $1,800 loot was recovered.

Police charged Marcel Hotte, 34, of Wallaceburg and Leonard Howes, 30, of Tupperville. They are scheduled to appear in court at Sarnia today.

Also located was a .45-calibre automatic pistol believed used by two men who held up four bank employees and a customer in the day and escaped money into a white sack. They fled at high speed in an automobile.

Police said Hotte guided them to $618 hidden under linoleum under a bathtub in a house here and to a cache of clothing, bags and leaves off River road east of Dresden. They said the pants, shirt and dark glasses were worn by one of the Oil Springs bandits. HONEY MAY FIRE AT HIGH SPEED

In another roadside cache southeast of here, $862 was found wrapped up in a yellow and black plaid shirt.

The pistol was said to have been bought here but it was unloaded. Ammunition was found in a box in it here.

Howes was taken into custody late Tuesday night after police put a watch on a car whose description matched that of one of the bags here. Bank employees were called in early Wednesday morning to view a lineup that included Howes.

Hotte, also Wednesday Hotte was arrested at his home in nearby Tupperville.

Sigiriya Rock Visited By Queen and Duke

POLONNORUWA, Ceylon (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh visited the ancient Sigiriya rock which juts up 400 feet sheer from flat jungle country 30 miles from here. They did not try to scale it.

The rock was discovered in the fifth century by Ceylon's King Kassapa, who built an impregnable fortress on it.

The Queen walked with the duke through the tall grass at the foot of the rock and gazed at the ancient city on top through their binoculars.

Last February Lord Soulbury, Governor-General of Ceylon, visited Minister Sir Oliver Goonetilleke, both by car. He climbed to the top of the rock to see whether it would be too strenuous for the Queen. They decided it was.

The Queen and the Duke later visited Polonnoruwa's village in the surrounding tea, rubber and coconut plantations. At the end they received a parade of nearly 20 gaily-decorated elephants from the local temple.

Fictitious Names Put On Payrolls During Last Two Or Three Years Engineer Testifies

TORONTO (CP) — Fictitious names appeared on the payrolls in the Fort William division of the highways department during the last two or three years, Charles A. Robeins, chief engineer of maintenance in the department testified Wednesday.

Mr. Robeins, called before the Ontario legislature's select committee investigating alleged irregularities in the highways department, said at least 70 cases of payroll padding and other "minor" irregularities were discovered by his investigators. They involved day labourers working on maintenance projects in the northwestern division.

Before he could answer a question put by Albert Wren (Lib.-Lake-Scenic) as to the amount of money involved, committee chairman Echlin Roberts (Lib.-Toronto St. Patrick) suggested Mr. Robeins not give a reply as it might affect any proposed court action.

Mr. Wren agreed. "I just wanted to get on record that there were irregularities," he said.

Mr. Robeins said that in the department staff of three years ago there "is always a percentage of those who cause some trouble."

EXPLAINS PROCEDURE

W. A. Clarke, acting chief engineer of the department, explaining the procedure followed in the letting of contracts, said the division engineer can make minor changes in the contracts himself, up to a value of $5,000. For several thousand dollars, they must be authorized by the department.

Mr. Wren asked if the changes made by the division engineer could involve up to $5,000. Mr. Clarke said he was not certain. Under further questioning by Mr. Wren, the acting chief engineer said the division engineer could change by 10 to 15 per cent a miscalculation in a contract.

"The chief engineer's job is really administrative. He has to depend on persons lower in the department to make those decisions."

Mr. Wren said the division engineer then was the "sole arbitrator" between the contractor and the department. He asked "and good?"

We have to trust these men," replied Mr. Clarke. "The department can't check everything."

WITNESS IS PER CENT

The acting chief engineer said that contracts let in 1952 which amounted to approximately $5,000,000 and which now have been completed, were within 10 per cent of the original estimate. "Some projects were over-run by 50 per cent, but the over-all is about 10 per cent."

Mr. Roberts, replying to a question put by Mr. Wren, said the committee has the power to subpoena any engineering construction firms seized by provincial police in recent months.

The committee adjourned after the one-day session until May 17 when it will receive the report of J. D. Woods and Gordon Limited, Toronto, surveyors, to investigate the organization and administration of the highways department.

Mr. Roberts indicated that at that time the committee would hold regular sittings.

Two Former AEC Chairmen To Testify for Oppenheimer

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two former chairmen of the United States Atomic Energy Commission have been subpoenaed as witnesses for pioneer atomic scientist J. Robert Oppenheimer—both of them apparently in his behalf.

David E. Lilienthal, who headed the commission from the time it was formed in 1946 until 1950, said in a statement in New York Wednesday night that he will testify for Oppenheimer.

Gordon Dean, who succeeded Lilienthal and served until last summer, said he has been asked to testify by Oppenheimer's counsel. "While in the United States I will be will say, his acceptance of an invitation by the defence presents no problem as my testimony will be favorable to Oppenheimer.

Another prospective witness is Dr. Vannevar Bush, wartime head of the U.S. Office of scientific research and development.

The hearings for Oppenheimer, removed from a security screen to government secrets by order of President Eisenhower, are going on behind closed room somewhere in Washington. The procedure is guided by strict rules promulgated by the AEC in September, 1950, in an effort to provide maximum protection for the rights of individuals and for the government's interests.

The AEC has announced only that Oppenheimer's case involves charges of "derelict conduct" and that a hearing is in progress.

Expressions of confidence in Oppenheimer came Wednesday from Dr. David Hill, chairman of the physics department of scientific Dr. and Dr. Howard Meyerhoff, executive director of the Scientific Manpower Commission, a group set up by eight major U.S. scientific societies.

Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson Wednesday declared Dr. Oppenheimer had been eased out as an adviser to the government. Wilson also said the committees on which Oppenheimer served had been abolished.

Senator McCarthy, the Red-investigating Wisconsin Republican, says he has considered Oppenheimer a security risk for years. He said the man is a key spot can do more damage than "a couple of divisions of the H bomb" and said, "we've got our eyes closed" when other fellows broke Oppenheimer.

Vietminh Troops Entrenched 2,400 Feet from Fort's Heart

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French high command announced tonight that Communist Vietminh troops had succeeded in entrenching themselves in the northern part of the main airstrip of the fortress of Dien Bien Phu only 2,400 feet from the heart of the bastion.

An earlier announcement said the rebels had been driven off after blowing a 100-yard section of the airstrip in a night attack.

The Communist-led attackers got within 100 yards of the French defenders in the hard-pressed mountain valley stronghold where the airstrip lies. With bangalore torpedoes and explosive charges and bundles of bamboo sticks—they managed to rip up a big portion of the airstrip's surface.

The rebels have poured tons of artillery shells into the field and put up a curtain of anti-aircraft fire to keep planes from landing. The French have repaired the field each time in the hope of eventually being able to get planes in.

Meanwhile, all supplies are being parachuted in by American-supplied transports.

The French today revealed for the first time that huge 155-millimetre cannons have been set up inside the fortress along with the 75-mm and 105-mm pieces. All equipment defending the encircled fortress had been flown in or dropped by parachute.

The 155's will reveal either their own or the enemy's losses when they are finally carried Vietminh from the airfield.

Aside from the night action at the fortress the French reported no other fighting at Dien Bien Phu.

Man Unconscious For Two Weeks After Inhaling Gas

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — John Orval Mitchell, 32, has been unconscious for two weeks after inhaling carbon monoxide while fumigating a tobacco green house, hospital authorities said Wednesday.

Doctors say there is no specific antidote for the gas, methyl bromide. Mitchell, an employee of a chemical firm at St. Thomas, took his mask off to blow the nose of a fumigation at a greenhouse near Delhi March 28, said John Campbell, one of his employers.

LESAGE SAYS QUE. TRYING TO TAX FEDERAL COFFERS

Taxation Question Main Topic of Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Affairs Minister Lesage says Quebec is trying to tax federal coffers by demanding full deduction of its new 15-per-cent income tax.

He said Quebec seeks to blame the federal government for its own decision to impose the tax.

Entering the Commons budget debate Wednesday, he was the first cabinet minister to refer to the tax issue since Finance Minister Abbott's budget April 6 rejected Quebec's bid to have the tax fully deductible from federal income tax payments.

The question was the main topic in the third day of the budget debate, a half-day sitting before the Commons adjourned for the Easter recess until Monday, April 26. The House, with only scanty attendance, rose 40 minutes after noon and 8 p.m. adjournment.

Hector Lesage, who represents the Quebec constituency of Montmagny-L'Islet, said Quebec has not yet had the privilege of deciding what amount of money it may collect from Quebec residents by deductions for its own income tax.

TAX THE TREASURY

"In other words what is asked of us is the power to tax not the taxpayers but the treasury of the federal government."

The double taxation was due solely to the Quebec government's decision, but Quebec now was trying to throw the blame on the federal government.

"This reminds me of the little boy who pulled the cat's tail and replied to his father who had told him to stop: 'I'm not pulling, the cat is.'"

Progressive Conservative motion of non-confidence in the government, now before the House, criticized the Liberal budget for having "failed" to reach agreement both to cover vast disarmament and to cut surfacing. These inventions came too late, however, to help the Germans.

Canada's navy now has more than the new torpedo in its bag of tricks. Besides new and faster ships and planes it has a new anti-submarine mortar, or squid, an advance over the depth charge, a far deeper charge, and the improved sonobuoy for locating enemy subs.

Brokerage Clerk Given 8 Yrs. For Manslaughter

TORONTO, (CP) — Joseph Schreiber, 26-year-old brokerage clerk, was given a sentence of eight years in penitentiary for manslaughter in the strangling of Mrs. Elizabeth Perth, 49, blonde wife.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury returned the verdict of guilty of manslaughter at the end of a three-week trial which ended on a charge of murder. The jurors deliberated more than an hour.

Schreiber heard the verdict with eyes downcast. He was 22 years old when she died last Dec. 19 in the couple's east Toronto home. They were married in July, 1951, had been separated for some weeks when they met the night of the slaying.

Navy, RCAF Planes To Hunt Subs With Guided Missiles

New 'Homing' Torpedo Now Being Delivered in Quantity

By DAVE McINTOSH

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Both navy and RCAF sub-hunting planes are to be equipped with guided missiles.

This guided missile, which also can be launched from ships, is the navy's new "homing" torpedo.

The torpedo, now being delivered in quantity to ammunition dumps under a $40,000,000 defence appropriation, does not have to be aimed at a submarine. As long as it is dropped in the vicinity of the undersea craft, it will "home" on the target and destroy it.

It took two years to produce the torpedo, first such weapon made in Canada. How it works is, of course, secret, but it is known that a long advance over the acoustic torpedo of the Second World War, which "homed" on targets by the sound of its victim's propellers.

The navy and air force have not yet received the planes they need to carry this weapon. But they are getting them from the United States. The Grumman S2F for the navy and the Neptune for the RCAF. The carrier-borne Grumman is not expected to go into service with the navy before early 1955.

HAS GLIDER BOMB

During the Second World War, the Germans developed a waterpiercing glider bomb which was launched from an aircraft out of range of allied ships. It was radio-controlled from the plane.

The answer, discovered by the British navy, apparently accidentally, turned out to be the electric razor. Turning on an electric razor aboard ship jammed the frequency on which the bomb was being controlled.

By the end of the War, however, the Allied navies had overcome every German sea war device except the fast submarine, which made controlled missiles, and the schnorkel breathing device which allowed u-boats to cover vast distances without surfacing. These inventions came too late, however, to help the Germans.

Canada's navy now has more than the new torpedo in its bag of tricks. Besides new and faster ships and planes it has a new anti-submarine mortar, or squid, an advance over the depth charge, a far deeper charge, and the improved sonobuoy for locating enemy subs.

'Working Parties' To Begin Drafting 'SEATO' Accord

By PRESTON GROVER

PARIS (AP) —State Secretary Dulles flew home to the United States today with plans to make ahead rapidly on his plan for a 10-power defence wall against communist aggression in Indo-China and the rest of Southeast Asia.

U.S. sources in Paris conceded that formal negotiations probably cannot get under way before the Geneva conference on Korea and Indo-China meets April 26. But state department sources in Washington said "working parties" will be set up within a few days to chart specific steps toward forming the defence pact.

Dulles is reported anxious to get talks on the Pacific pact under way as soon as possible so that they might counter any expansion plans which the Russians and Communist Chinese might bring to Geneva.

The Americans are aiming for concrete progress toward an alliance before the Geneva talks get around to Indo-China. That Far East conference, which will be discussed after Korea, perhaps several weeks after the conference opens.

Support Board Buys 130,024 Pounds Butter

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's agricultural support board has bought 130,024 pounds of adulterated butter since July 1, 1953.

The government, in a return tabled in the Commons Wednesday for Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), said the butter came from four creameries and was bought through two brokers, Gunn Limited and Kelly Douglas and Company.

The return said one broker has refunded the total price of the 50,-120 pounds it sold. Action was being taken to recover the cost of the remainder.

Fire Missing Welland Boys Freed After 12 Hours Locked in Freight Car

WELLAND (CP)—Missing since early last evening, five boys were reported safe to their families here early today when a railway car checker discovered them locked in a freight car.

The boys, Ronald Lemelin and Herve Lamontagne, 12, and Paul Lamothe, Gaston Corriveau and John Babbin, 13, were playing in the car when it was shunted into a railyards here when the door jammed shut.

When darkness set in and they failed to show up, worried parents notified police and the search was hurried, including freight cars, without result. The search continued throughout the night.

One train which left Welland early in the evening was checked when it arrived at Toronto.

Elsie Reutlemedah, 20, heard the youngsters banging on the door of the car while checking in the yard office here.

Hustled to bed at their homes, they were believed to be resting after their 12-hour confinement.

Bay Navigation Opened By Large Oil Tanker

Navigation in the Bay of Quinte, although a week later than last year, opened this Thursday morning, when the Trans Stream from Port Credit with 825,000 gallons of gas for the Trinidad Leaseholders (Regent) tied up at the government dock.

The captain, T. Homan, was met by the harbormaster, Geo. D. Tice, and presented with the customary hat. Last year navigation opened on April 6th and closed on December 10th, which was a record for closing time.

From now till the end of the season the dock will be a busy place as many coal barges and large oil tankers make regular calls.

A.O. Drysdale Named Chairman By Engineers

A. O. Drysdale was elected chairman of the Belleville branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at the April meeting. He succeeds E. Sillito, who will act as councillor for the branch on the main executive council of the Institute.

Other officers elected for 1954 are: vice-chairman, A. D. Jantzi, H. T. Floyd, E. L. Littlejohn and C. H. Lank. Confirming in office were J. C. R. Punchard, A. E. Argue and T. E. Flinn.

Other features of the April meeting were the showing of the film, "Man With a Thousand Hands"—the story of the engineering achievements at Kitimat in the construction of a gigantic dam and power plant in the heart of the Rockies—and an address on the training of engineers in management and administration by Prof. J. J. Coote, B.A., Sc., M.E.I.C., McGill University.

In his address Prof. Coote pointed out that in any operation involving two or more persons there was a problem of administration. He stated that as time passes engineers are becoming less and less concerned with technical things and more and more concerned with administrative problems.

When an engineer becomes an administrator, he becomes concerned with human relations and problems far more complex than technical problems, said Prof. Coote. Therefore, a good engineer-administrator must broaden his outlook if he is to become a good executive.

Prof. Coote's address was given with the hope that the Belleville branch would sponsor a course from McGill on management and administration. A committee, headed by T. E. Flinn, is investigating the possibility of running such a course in Belleville.

William Gault Will Head Minor Baseball Setup

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association held their first meeting of the young season at the Kiwanis Centre last evening at which time the executive for the fast approaching season was named.

Mr. Frank Grandame who has been at the head of the organization since inception of the league resigned at last night's meeting due to business reasons and expressed his appreciation for the co-operation he received, while in office from all parties concerned.

The new president of the league is Mr. Bill Gault, another sports-minded citizen who has been a great asset to both the minor baseball and minor hockey for the past several years, Lloyd "Red" Doran, secretary-treasurer for the city was named vice chairman and with Bill Brennan taking over as secretary.

Other persons who have taken over as active members are: Don Dolan and Al Kelleher as umpires-in-chief, with Al Kelly as the grievance committee. He will pick two other responsible men to help him. Past presidents George Carver, Bryson Reid and "Red" Doran will form the schedule committee with hopes of play starting the first week of June.

Grilling Committees

Three other committees have been formed. They are one to be in charge of the grilling of the sponsors paying a fixed sum, limited at $100 although what they please. The idea in this is to prevent one sponsor from spending a great deal more than others, thus causing all the kids to want to play for him. Also, the league director must just use as little funds as possible.

Another committee will discuss the possibility of a school for umpires, and parks conducted by Maxie Scheff.

It has been decided also to have a school for minor ball players but much has to be done yet on this idea as to how it will work. This school will teach many youngsters the fundamentals of the game which will help them make a place on a team whereas they would have been unable to do so before.

The organization has got off to a good start so far as the sponsors' meeting with possible entries from Schwab's, Keyes Supply, Grills Dairy, Bell Oil, Kiwanis Club, The Cleaners, Houston Lumber and two others, of which is the C.N.R. Other meetings in the future will bring in many more sponsors and quite several problems, while persons interested are welcome to get in touch with any of the gentlemen named to the executive.

Foremen's Club Membership Shows Increase

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Quinte District Foremen's Club, vice-president Frank Horcica, announced that there are now 12 industries in the Belleville area represented in the club membership.

Contrary to the predictions made by some persons a year ago that the organization would soon "die out," commented Mr. Horcica, "we are increasing the number of members and firms represented. The total, recent additions are Finder Motors, Garage Supply Co., Truck and Farm Supply Ltd., Belleville Utilities Commission and Essex Electronics in Trenton and the Tea "A" Company.

The following firms now have foremen and top-level management personnel in the club: American Cocker Spaniels — Red, Blond., Arch Everett, Belleville Utilities Commission, Canada Cement Co., Canadian National Railways, Corby Distillery Ltd., Direct - Wintex Transport Ltd., Essex Electronics Ltd., Hydro Electric Power Commission, Northern Electric Co., Finder Motors, Stewart-Warner Ltd., The Big "A" Co., Garage Supply Co., and Truck and Farm Supply Ltd.

Obituary

EMMA HAWLEY HOMAN
(Chicago, Illinois)

The funeral of Emma Hawley Homan, Chicago, Illinois, a former resident of the Belleville district, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon, April 14. Rev. Ray Rowley officiated.

Bearers were: John Homan, Seldon Homan, Charles Wood, Percy Meyers, Donald Bedard and Blake Bedell.

Interment took place in Belleville cemetery.

MISS AGNES MAE CURRY.

A lifelong resident of Stirling community in the person of Miss Agnes Mae Curry, died at her home, R.R. 4, Stirling, early this Thursday morning.

She was born in Stirling 66 years ago, being the daughter of the late James Curry and Charlotte Marsh and had resided in the community all her life. She was well known and highly respected. After receiving her early education in the public and high schools of the village, she entered the newspaper with her father, who owned and operated the Stirling Argus and for over years, was his constant helper and adviser.

The late Miss Curry was a faithful member of St. Paul's Anglican Church and after moving outside the village became a member of Marsh Hill United Church. When health permitted she had been an active interest in all church work and was organist of the Marsh Hill church for some years. She was also a life member of the W.M.S.

Surviving is one sister, Mrs. Walter (Ella) Kingsley, with whom she lived.

Resting at the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Ladies Guests Of Tabernacle Church Men's Club

Tabernacle United Church Men's Club, held a "ladies' night" Tuesday, when some seventy persons enjoyed a splendid supper provided by Mrs. G. Winters and the ladies of Circle One.

President Ralph Boulton, who was in the chair, welcomed those attending and acted as master of ceremonies. Community singing followed supper, after which a splendid program was presented by the following artists, Mrs. Davidson, vocalist; Miss Sharon, vocalist; Doug Aselstine, pantomimist; Peter and Douglas Woodley, Mr. Harold McNish and Mr. Phil Huddleston were accompanists for the evening.

The speaker for the evening was the Rev. W. Pace of Trenton, his subject being "Building Bridges". Mr. Pace gave a splendid address. He used many stories to illustrate his points, and all were well told. Mr. Pace threw some great bridges to the differences in religions, which were far apart. They could be linked together by the bridge of all people by the same keystone, the Saviour, and the whole world would be a fine place for all mankind.

Rev. Mr. Pace was introduced by Rev. Ray Rowley and thanked by Mr. Evan Barlow.

Mr. E. Schlueter thanked the ladies, through Mrs. Winters, for the splendid supper and entertainment and a hearty vote of thanks to all those who provided entertainment was moved by Mr. A. Firth.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by Mr. Firth, and they were accorded musical honors. Mrs. A. Noyer responded most suitably for the ladies.

President Boulton in opening the meeting, asked for a period of silence to show respect for Mrs. May Bennett-Foote, who died recently.

$6 A Year Was Salary Paid Belleville Firemen in 1860

Fire fighting was not a very highly paid vocation in Belleville back in 1860, in the days of the volunteer fire department.

The annual report of the Belleville Fire Department for 1860, published this year in a permanent booklet form, indicated that firemen of that period failed to receive not more than $6 per annum, and the old by-law stated that every person between the ages of 15 and 60 years is required to assist at fires at the request of officers of the fire companies, members of the corporation and constables."

According to old records the history of the local fire department goes back prior to 1836 when Belleville was incorporated as a village.

The citizens formed and maintained a volunteer brigade, equipment consisting of hand fire pails made of leather, and manned, being issued two pails. After the incorporation of Belleville as a village in 1837 hand-operated pumping engines were secured and about 1911 were replaced by motor engines operated by steam power.

MERGED IN 1878.

Firemen in both Belleville had two fire companies, known as Moira Fire Company No. 1, and Victoria Fire Company No. 2. The chief was James Blacklock. In the year 1874 the Quinte Hook and Ladder Company No. 3 was organized and four years later all companies were merged as one department with John Taylor as chief.

Chief Taylor died shortly after his appointment was succeeded by W. W. Campbell, who remained with the department for 37 years, until his death in 1915. On January 1st, 1916, the present chief engineer was appointed with W. J. Brown named as chief. The 1916 department force consisted of the chief and 11 firemen.

Firemen at that time were on duty 24 hours a day and even on "off" days were required to receive permission to leave the city.

HORSES GO IN 1924.

The two platoon system was introduced in 1921 and the department was increased to 18 men. The same year the department received its first motor-driven apparatus for the delivery of two hose trucks and in 1926 a hook and ladder truck was purchased, writing finis to horse-drawn equipment.

The present records how Fire Chief Brown was killed in 1929 while fighting fire at the Springer Lock Company plant on Coleman Street, William Lloyd was then appointed chief with Gerald Vance as assistant chief.

In recent years fire fighting equipment has been brought up to date and Belleville now boasts of two new fire stations, unsurpassed by any motive of comparable size in Ontario. In 1945 after 33 years service Fire Chief Lynch was retired and Fire Chief Vance was named head of the department.

The department now consists of the chief and 37 men and eight vehicles.

MAJOR FIRES LISTED.

In addition to the historical data relative to the Belleville department, the report includes complete information regarding last year's activities of the department. Alarms are classified and major fires down through the years are listed.

Pictures of fire fighting personnel, the two new fire stations and members of fire committee members for 1953 and 1954, are also included.

The report shows that the Graham food evaporator which burned in April, 1917 was the heaviest loss in Belleville since 1912. The loss was $285,000. Next heaviest loss was just two years ago when the business block at Front and Bridge streets burned with a loss of $253,504.

Lowest per capita fire loss in the city was in 1941 when the loss for the year was just $1,000 over No. 000, or a loss of but 5¢ per person. Highest per capita loss was in 1911 when the fire loss for the year was $34.55 for every person in the city.

L.O.L. Confers Life Membership On Member

At the regular meeting of Canniffon LOL, No. 2320, W. M. Waterhouse was given honorary life membership on the occasion of being a member of the LOL for 50 years.

Mr. Waterhouse was escorted to the altar by the Marshal, who was led by Deputy County Master Stanley Hurley. Grand Lodge honors were bestowed on him by the lodge members.

After which he was presented with a life membership certificate.

Mr. Waterhouse joined the LOL in Thomasburg in 1903 and was a charter of that lodge until he moved here in 1911, when he then transferred to Canniffon Lodge, where he is still an active member.

Mr. Waterhouse has been a valuable member to Canniffon Lodge, and has helped helping to build the lodge hall here in 1913. He drew the first log to level for the hall from the Marsh Hill pit by team and wagon, and worked faithfully in the construction of the hall.

Mr. Waterhouse for years played the drums for Canniffon Lodge and in his 50 years of membership has missed only one Orange celebration.

PRESENTATION.

At the same meeting a ring with the Orange Cross was presented to the I.P.M. Ken Bradshaw, who has moved from this district to Melrose.

Checker Players To Hold Tourney Easter Monday

Checker playing enthusiasts from the Eastern Ontario area will convene in the city Easter Monday for their annual checker tournament. Charles F. Flood, Trenton, president of the Eastern Ontario Checker Association is the defending champion and will be out to retain the H.S. Colliver trophy.

Play will get underway at the Hotel Quinte at 10 in the morning and will continue until the championship is decided. There will be "A" and "B" classes in the tournament with the winner of each class to receive a silver cup as well as cash award.

The Easter checker tournament has been an annual event in Belleville for nearly two decades and this year is expected to attract its usual complement of players from the Belleville and Kingston districts.

TO AIRLIFT SUPPLIES

TORONTO (AP)—United States Far East Air Forces headquarters today announced it is temporary transfer of a C119 Flying Boxcar Squadron to the Philippines to airlift supplies to Indo-China. Squadron personnel normally will not travel the Indo-China run but will serve in maintenance, supply and administrative capacities. The number of planes and men affected was withheld.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were a little weaker in light forenoon stock market trading today.

Western oils were down a little in irregular trading. Merrill, Wednesday's feature was up 20 cents in active trading and most other traded issues changed only pennies. Higher-priced issues were generally quiet.

Consolidated Smelters led the senior base metals down with a 12½-cent loss. East Sullivan, Sherritt-Gordon and Steep Rock were pennies stronger. Juniors were slightly weaker and Manitouwadge issues continued lower in light trading.

Golds were actively traded but showed little change. Seniors were steady and juniors slipped a little. Holding companies were down a little in mixed trading although the group feature, Nipissing, was up 25 cents. Uraniums and Bathust issues drew little interest but the few traded issues were fractions higher.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Sales were steady on a light offering of slaughtered cattle at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle 30; calves 10; hogs 700; sheep and lambs 5; holdover from Wednesday 300 cattle.

Choice weighty steers 19-19.50; good steers all weights 18-18.50; good cows 13-13.

Hog prices advanced 40 cents at 25 for grade A; grade B-1 34; dressed sows 25; stags 18. The new price differential between grades A and B hogs came into effect this week.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Closing cream and butter print prices quoted here today were: Butter, solids 57¼-59½; p.l.s.t.s. 56-61; churning cream 58-61.

The egg market was weak as heavy offerings had poor demand. Quotations for graded eggs in three cases: A large 36; A medium 36; A small 34; B 32; C 30. Wholesale to retail: A large 43; A medium 41; A small 38; B 37; C 30.

Officers Alert Guard Pickerel While Spawning

Pickerel were beginning to move into spawning grounds around Hay Bay as the week ended April 10th, and there was every indication that spawn-laden fish would be swarming up the Trent, Moira and Salmon Rivers within the next few days.

To give the pickerel the protection they need during the critical short spawning period, will again require the whole-hearted efforts of both sportsmen and fish and wildlife officials. Many of the larger fish, which are so vulnerable at the present time are carrying as many as 100,000 eggs and even with the best of protection only a relatively small number will evidently reach maturity as a result of poor fertilization, predators and sometimes pollution.

There will again be the temptation to pick up a fish or two if no one's looking, particularly when they're so easy to catch, but there are a couple of good reasons to stop and think first. One is that the re-inforced staff of conservation officers, who are spending their nights patrolling spawning areas, figure many of the poachers are habitual offenders and they can expect little mercy if apprehended. Incidentally, too, that magistrates take a dim view of these recurring cases, and will exact sufficient penalties in addition to loss of equipment and spoils.

The other reason is more important and one that should appeal to everyone who likes to fish and hunt and believes in conservation in all its different objectives. The fish and game laws were not enacted for the purpose of catching offenders and bringing them up in court. The purpose was to give protection to fish and wildlife species when they need protection and deserve it. By doing just that, along with intelligent management, there can always be good fishing and hunting and plenty for all during the legal open season.

Jewish Families In District Will Observe Passover

Approximately 50 Jewish families from Belleville, Trenton and Picton will observe the 3,286th anniversary of the liberation of the Jewish people from Egypt at the annual Passover festival starting in the Sons of Jacob synagogue this week-end.

Passover signifies the passing over of the Jewish homes in Egypt by the Angel of Death who was killing the first born sons of Egyptian families during the time of Jewish captivity. It is the festival of freedom, described by Rabbi M. Kutziner of Belleville, as a great and dramatic event in the history of the Jewish people.

"The coming out of Egypt of the Jewish people is significant for all mankind," said Rabbi Kutziner, because it was the first time in history that slaves broke the chains of slavery. The Jewish people provided an example to all nations and therefore freedom-loving men of all creeds can take hope from the Passover festivals."

Passover, known as the holiday of "Matzos" and the holiday of spring, begins on Saturday. The first two nights of the Passover are called "Seder", meaning "order" because every part of the evening celebrations is to be performed in a definite order, as described in the book of "Haggadah" which is a book describing the liberation of the Jewish people.

Jewish people observe the Passover by drinking four cups of wine to symbolize the four messages from God given to the Israelites concerning their liberation.

UNLEAVENED BREAD

From Saturday morning at 8:45 all Jews are forbidden to eat leavened bread for the next eight days. This is done in commemoration of the days when the Jews fled from Egypt and in their haste had no time to wait for bread to rise. The unleavened bread was called "Matzos" a name which has been attached to the Passover. Another name for the bread is the "bread of affliction," said Rabbi Kutziner, because it is such poor bread, being made only of flour and water and a little salt.

During the first two nights of the Passover observance Jews eat bitter herbs to commemorate the time when the Egyptians embittered the lives of their ancestors.

They also eat "Haroset," a mixture of nuts, apples, wine and cinnamon, which represents the brick and mortar used by Jews in the construction of the treasure houses of the Pharaohs.

Local services for the observance of Passover will begin in the synagogue Saturday evening at 7.00 p.m. The festival will later be sanctified by Jewish families in their own homes.

A special service will be held Sunday morning at 9.00 a.m., when a special scroll will be read telling of the coming out of Egypt of the Jewish nation. The Passover services will continue for seven days. Special songs will be chanted at the festivs.

Rabbi Kutziner, in wishing everyone a happy holiday, stated that "the Jewish festival of freedom is a time when people can once again appraise their freedom seriously, and it is also a time for people to enjoy their freedom."

Brucellosis Control Act To Be Outlined at Meeting

Requirements under the Brucellosis Control Act passed by the provincial legislature last year will be outlined to Hastings County livestock owners at a special meeting to be held Tuesday afternoon, April 20th, at the agricultural office in Stirling, Speaker will be R. H. Graham, associate dairy cattle commission for the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The purpose of the act is to see that all calves in an area such as a township are vaccinated when the majority of farmers are already carrying out vaccination and wish all farmers to do it.

Township councils are required to pass a by-law calling for all female calves within the township to be vaccinated upon receipt of a petition bearing signatures of more than two-thirds of the cattle owners in any township.

A special invitation for all councillors and township reeves to attend the Stirling meeting is being extended.

Agricultural Representative A. O. Dalrymple states that his office has received many inquiries from farmers regarding the act and it is at the request of some of these farmers that the special meeting is being called.

The Meadow township federation of agriculture plans to organize a canvass under the act and will hold a special meeting at Eldorado on Tuesday evening. Mr. Graham will also address this meeting.

Private Nurses Vote Down $2 Hike in Pay

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto private - duty nurses have decided to do something about the high cost of living—they voted down a $2 per day increase for themselves.

It was proposed at the annual meeting of the central registry of graduate nurses that daily wages be raised from $10 to $12.

The proposal was turned down by more than two-thirds of the members present on the ground it would place a heavier financial burden on patients.

Miss Jean Brown, registrar-general of the registry, said the nurses felt that everyone is having a hard time financially these days and the average patient just can't afford to pay more for nursing services.

The registry represents more than 1,200 private duty nurses in the city.

GOOD FRIDAY

Tomorrow is Good Friday.

The Christian world pauses on Good Friday to learn once again the greatest lesson of sacrifice the world will ever know.

What makes Good Friday good?

On the first Good Friday Christ was betrayed by a disciple, convicted of blasphemy on the testimony of false witnesses, deserted by His followers, scourged savagely in the dungeon of a Roman prison, crowned with thorns and made to carry His cross on the pain-wracked journey to Calvary, where He was stripped of His garments and nailed to a gibbet like a common criminal to die between two thieves. The soldiers attending His crucifixion cast lots for His garments and the crowd hurled insults upon Him.

What is good about that?

The goodness of Good Friday is not apparent from the events themselves. The goodness lies elsewhere. It is to be found in the lessons of faith, hope and love which the crucifixion teaches.

No one can fail to believe in the goodness of a sinless God Who would allow Himself to be crucified for the sins of others that they might somehow be worthy to enter His eternal kingdom. Whose hands outstretched on the arms of the cross sought nothing of this world. Rather, the mangled hands of Christ encompassed the world with love, blessed the people with benedictions and invited them to share in eternal glory.

On Good Friday we hear again the words from the cross that have echoed through the ages, "Forgive them Father for they know not what they do." And again we hear the anguished words, "If Thou wilt let this chalice pass from Me, but not My will but Thine be done."

Who can fail to love a God Who loves them so much?

And who can fail to hope, even in the most perilous and difficult trials of life, when down from the cross comes these words of promise to the repentant thief—"This day thou shalt be with Me in Paradise."

Good Friday is good because Christ made it so by the blessings poured from the wounds inflicted by His death and His conquest of the world, the flesh and the devil.

Good Friday is good because Christ left to man by His example the priceless lessons whereby he can be saved.

Good Friday is good, too, because it gave mankind the cross, the perfect emblem of eternal victory, the only victory that really matters.

PLANES SHOULD AVOID CITIES

The current controversy about the operation of RCAF planes over heavily-populated areas is of particular interest in this district.

Crash landing of a Vampire jet from Downsview airfield just fifty feet from a busy boulevard in North York will result in A. H. Hollingworth, M.P. for York Centre, presenting the protests of residents of the area to Defence Minister Claxton.

This is not a new problem, but the tragic air collision at Moose Jaw has heightened public interest and crystallized public opinion so that the Government may be forced to take action.

Capt. A. R. Eddie, managing director of the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, has said the location of RCAF air stations on civilian airways a "tragic and expensive mistake." He urges that such stations be removed "to areas remote from the airway."

The situation does not arise in this district, since TCA planes do not pass over the Trenton air station. But Mr. Claxton will hear arguments that, besides the safety of civilians in the air, the safety of persons on the ground also needs consideration. Military aircraft, of course, do not constitute the only threat. Some members of the Toronto city council have urged the rerouting of all aircraft, civilian as well as military.

Capt. Eddie has said the removal of some air training stations "will be expensive, but how can public safety be placed against money?"

Frankly, though, we do not expect that the Government will relocate all RCAF stations.

Nor would there be much public demand for such a drastic move if the authorities took effective action to prevent RCAF planes from flying low—or indeed from flying at any height—over cities.

It can, of course, be said that we are crying before we are hurt. In this case, this is the only type of crying that will do any good. That is not the type that has been raised. But perhaps today, with the nation's attention focused on the problem, the cry may be heard by those in authority.

TOO GOOD TO BURN

Too good to burn! That is the caption beneath a picture in an advertisement, a picture of a miner holding a huge lump of coal.

Of course we read the advertisement, wondering what clever twist of meaning the genius responsible for that picture and that caption was going to give the phrase. For, obviously, coal cannot be too good to burn, can it?

In this case, though, it appears that this is the simple truth. There is a very special kind of hard coal which is handpicked by trained technicians from one vein in the United States and then is baked and treated to make tiny carbon granules. These are packed into telephones to help turn spoken vibrations into electrical impulses.

Proving, once again, that truth is sometimes stranger than fiction.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1934, Edgar A. Guest)

HOLY THURSDAY

This was His last brief week upon the earth
And all who knew Him seemed
As if He'd failed the purpose of His birth
And all which He had dreamed.

That night at supper, pale and half afraid,
Passing the wine and bread,
"Before the morning I shall be betrayed,"
He sorrowfully said.

He led to dark Gethsemane the way
And bade them watch to keep.
Three times He left a little while to pray.
Three times they fell asleep.

Afar He heard the low and threatening hum
The rabble voices made.
"Sleep on and rest!" He said.
"The hour is come!"
And then He was betrayed.

So sad He seemed, so meek and silent, too,
So scorned and so disdained,
I sometimes wonder if He ever knew
The victory He'd gained.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

APRIL 15, 1914.

Mr. Reginald Thurston of this city is visiting his parents in London.

Mr. A. H. Whitten is spending a few days in Toronto.

The members of the executive committee of the Women's Canadian Club were entertained last evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. G. Marshall in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Culwick. Mr. Culwick was the speaker at the meeting of the club earlier in the evening.

The nine-days million gallons of water were pumped through the mains in the city mains at the local pumping station during the month of March, this is possibly an all time high mark since the installation of the filter system. During March last year the amount pumped was fifty-seven million.

Mr. Harold Reid addressed the members of the high school group of the "Y" at a supper meeting at the Y.M.C.A. last night. His subject was most interesting and dealt with his student days in France and Germany. The chair was occupied by the president, Elton McMurray and the speaker was introduced by Gerald Morris.

30 YEARS AGO

APRIL 13, 1904.

Mr. Raymond Scott is home from Oshawa to spend a few holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Doyle spent Easter with friends in Picton.

Mrs. Leonard Tisdale and children spent Easter with her parents in Picton.

Mrs. Harold Niles and son are visiting friends in Montreal.

Miss Katherine McDermott of Toronto spent Easter here with her parents at their home on Strachan Street.

Mr. Frank Hayes has returned to Boston, Mass., after visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Treverton motored to Toronto yesterday and spent Easter here with friends.

Mrs. P. L. McGuinness and son, Leo, spent Easter with friends in Deseronto.

Mr. Hugh Marshall is home from Rochester, N.Y. to spend a few days.

Mr. Elmer Chesher is home from Rochester, N.Y., on a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bland and young daughter spent Easter here with friends.

Mr. John Van Norman spent Easter with friends in Smiths Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reddick of Oshawa spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Coates, Lewis Street.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Wills of Toronto are visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wills, Yeomans Street.

40 YEARS AGO

APRIL 15, 1914.

Mr. Charles Colling, an old Belleville boy, has returned to Toronto after spending a few days here with friends.

In the police court this morning a lad was fined $5 for riding his bicycle upon the sidewalk. The magistrate intimated that hereafter the fine for such an offence will be $5.

Mr. Wesley Allore is spending a few days in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson.

Mr. Newton Alford is home to spend a few days.

Mr. Frank D. Wallace is spending a few days at his home here.

Now that the frost is out of the ground and the road is drying it might not be out of order to scrape the roadway on Front Street. Let the work be commenced at once.

The parade of the 15th Regiment was an excellent one. The parade report shows that upwards of 375 men were on parade. The band of the regiment, under the leadership of Bandmaster Reg. Hinchey rendered a number or selections in an admirable manner.

Miss Gertrude, Miss Libby, Inspector Harry J. Clarke, Messrs. MacLaurin, Mott, James and Fred S. Deacon have returned home from Toronto where they attended the meeting of the Ontario Educational Association.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Robertson and children of Toronto are visiting Mr. Ketchesaw's parents at Carnifton and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Esmond in this city.

50 YEARS AGO

APRIL 15, 1904.

Truant Officer Arnott rounded up some truants this morning who were playing truant from school. In his round the officer has found some children who cannot attend school owing to a lack of proper clothing. If clothing is left at the police station the owner of the children get it.

Mr. William H. Johnson of Boston, Mass., an old Belleville boy, has sent to the Intelligencer office a sample of the stamp which was used in connection with the 13th Annual Fair of the State of Massachusetts. The idea is unique and a good one; it might be used with good effect in connection with the coming Old Boys' Reunion here. The stamps may be seen at the Intelligencer office.

The new Y.M.C.A. building, it is reported, will occupy the site on Campbell Street where the old opera house was before it was destroyed by fire some years ago. A building to cost $30,000 will look well on that street.

It looks as though golf and football will be the leading sports here this summer. When we get a professional golf instructor here the game should boom.

Mrs. Harry Lalonde has received a telegram from San Francisco, California, advising that her son, Oscar A. Manson, has arrived safely from the Philippines.

Messrs. William Cross, Jr., and A. A. McDonald, Madoc, were visitors in town today.

Silent Singers Are Not New

(Windsor Star)

Out in Winnipeg people are in a dither about the "silent singers" in the Manitoba music festival. It appears some participants in the school choirs have been told to put open and shut their mouths in unison to pretend they are singing. We don't know what the problem is all about. The same trick has been used in Hollywood for years. An actress, whose voice actually resembles that of a litter of pups, will give forth with great power but without sound. The voice of a real singer is dubbed in. Or an actor, who probably doesn't know a bull-fiddle from a bull-frog, makes as if he were playing a musical instrument like a maestro. But no sounds emanate from his fingers. They come from that of some musician.

Why teachers put children in a choir who can't sing, and aren't even expected to, is a mystery. To imagine unless there is the need for enough bodies to make up a choir of the required size. But this has to be done. It's a better method than that which some teachers used in the old days.

We well recall an instance of a teacher, who was determined to make all her students singers, and participants in a school concert. One lad had no more aptitude for singing than he had for the ballet. He had sense enough to recognize the fact; more sense than his teacher. She believed that even the knuckles with a wooden pointer until they were well swollen. Finally won his point, at considerable pain. And the choir was better off without his voice, which resembled the caw of an adolescent crow.

Authors at Work

(New York Times)

Certain aspects of the passing show are characterized by the fact that they never have to change. Variety in dialogue is an anathema. Not to be mysterious about these certain aspects, here is a sample. Private detective, dark camp photographs. Opening night at the opera. Models being named Miss Wood Pulp Industry. Lost little boys shown with policemen's hats and licking ice cream cones. And finally, at least for the purposes of this discussion, photographs of authors on the dust jackets of their books. These pictures usually depict the author doing one or two things. Either he is staring down into intelligent brows, dramatically lighted, a cigaret dangling dreamily from his lips, or he is shown in profile, seated at his typewriter. In what is supposed to be the author's hair is neatly combed, he is freshly shaved, his shirt collar buttoned up, collar open, no tie) looks fresh and unwrinkled and he has an air of neatness. If we could see the fibber in this picture it would undoubtedly be as neat as the author.

Readers have no way of knowing, of course, whether the photograph of the author given him Before or After he has begun to write his book. Because the writer was doing no work at all that day on the picture we supposed one. At all events, the publishers ought to be honest and show authors as they really look at work. To begin with, the author is never found at the typewriter at all. He should be flat on his back on a bed, couch or floor. He should be shabby and appear to be half asleep. Actually he is half asleep—working—and his wife will never understand that he is conducting his career when he is supposed to be looking at it.

Suddenly the author leaps from the bed, couch or floor and goes to his typewriter. He lights a cigaret. He inserts a sheet of paper into the machine. He types a word or two. He stops. He stares at the keys, seeing the mystical bank of letters:

QWERTYUIOP
ASDFGHKL
ZXCVBNM

To the writer, this inverted pyramid is a fascinating formation. The right combination or the right sentence in the right order, the jumble will arrange itself into beautiful, meaningful sentences. Power will appear on the page. But does the publisher's picture of the author show any of this on the dust jacket? No.

Several hours have elapsed. The author's wife has gone to work, if he has a wife and she has one. He could bottle the cigarets smoked in his working room and sell it as atmosphere for films about London. In fact, the author is all but invisible in the haze of smoke, the litter of paper on the floor and the stubble on his face. His hair, so sensible in the publisher's picture, hangs limply below which one doesn't look intelligent at all. His shirt, which was fresh that morning, is streaked with ink from the typewriter ribbon, denoting the hail Mary passes he hurls like a madman, had to spend performing the highly skilled task of changing the ribbon. In general, he resembles a bum who has been wearing clothes, pecking away at the typewriter to prove he is employed. Which, by this hour, he has. The author's laboratory has been shown that digitalis improves the efficiency of the damaged heart, based on actual measurement of the work done and the energy used.

Heretofore I have never been conscious of my ignorance. Rather I have congratulated myself on the fact that I was not exposed to college life between high school graduation and medical school matriculation.

As some readers may remember, I believe that what this country needs, to bring the cost of medical care down to a level the ordinary family can afford, is re-establishment of medical education for training general practitioners.

What this midwestern physician says about physics worries me some. He seems to agree that the efficiency (ratio of work of the machine to the energy supplied to it) of the heart "will vary with many factors, including rate, blood pressure, temperature, oxygen supply, diastolic stretch", that it begins to weaken whether my high school physics or the Hindhed-Campbell edition of it I acquired them at the Union School that once stood on what is now the public library north of it was the postoffice in what is now the Masonic Temple, named Canadaigua, N.Y., is inadequate preliminary education to make a medical student.

Well, we'll pick up again at this point tomorrow. We're fresh out of space now.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Last Christmas, a neighbor of mine sent me a number of gifts to an elderly relative in England. And as the weeks and the months have passed, the aged woman has sent me no word of the box. She wondered if it had not been received, but it is hard for me to fear it had been received, and her enquiry might sound like a reproach.

Imagine her indignation last week to receive at last a letter from England enclosing another letter, envelope and all, which had been written at New Years and which I had, on returning to Britain, not known is this address."

Indeed, the address had been wrong. Instead of 429 on a certain well-known residential street, the Englishwoman had written 249. It was a slip, but perhaps not too serious a one. For the rule of dead letter service had gone to the trouble of looking the telephone directory, checking the name on the envelope; and there, in plain black and white, address would explain the slip.

It could be that the rules of the post office do not permit such speculation on the part of the dead letter office. In the name of the Queen, the letter must go to the number and street, not to the name of the occupant. But even that relies an interesting question. Is the convenience of the post office run? Is it run for the convenience of the governing body? Or for the convenience of high postal officials who write the rules? Or for the convenience of the dead letter office, or the letter carriers?

Is it the convenience of those who write and receive letters? Or for the convenience of those 425, to 249, not the first convenience of all?

It would not be convenient for the dead letter office to consult telephone books, for more than one number and street numbers. It would be inconvenient for them to make out a form to give the letter carrier who would present the misaddressed letter, for the form for receipt to the letter address the dead letter office had supplied upon.

In past years, the dead letter office has, to my personal delight, performed miracles of deduction. I do hope no person with a high sense of his own convenience was moved in there.

Solar Stove New Invention

(New York Herald Tribune)

To a civilization accustomed to cooking by gas, or even electricity, the idea of cooking by sunlight has archaic and impractical connotations. Yet if the ideas now advanced by Maria Telkes can be developed to its fullest possibilities, it may hold great significance for the population of such arid lands as Egypt, India and Arabia, as well as hard to come by.

Mrs. Telkes, a renowned solar-energy expert, believes that her sun stove, which would cost less than $5 to manufacture, would be of great benefit in Eastern countries.

Its principle is simple, with the sun's heat absorbed by a chemically treated surface and itself insulated, mirrored box. Temperatures up to 400 degrees Fahrenheit, possible of attainment in a hot country like Egypt, are reached, and the stove's heat would be concentrated in the day time, heat could be retained in a thermal cellar.

As an experiment, the stove was placed on a Manhattan roof-top in October, and reached a temperature of 250 degrees. Doubtless it would be even higher in Egypt when many New Yorkers feel they can smoke an unbuttered roll without employing a stove of any kind.

Perhaps the sun's energy has been a dream of mankind from its earliest days. It has taken science a long time to find ways and means devised to mass-production methods.

The sun stove may never become more than a curiosity to Westerners, but to the struggling masses of Central European development would be exciting news indeed.

First Clerks Were Priests

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

A clergyman of the Church of England wrote to The Times that the term "clerk in holy orders" in the hotel recently as a "clerk in holy orders" has been ruled out as being to be more specific and say what he really was. This led to a series of letters from other clergymen, one of whom reported that in the days when the Reformation was during the last war and he described himself by that term he was asked to join the corps as a clerk instead of being accepted as a padre.

The origin of a "clerk in holy orders" goes back to medieval days, when practically all highly educated people could read and write, and priests were almost the only people who could do that, they were frequently called upon to do the writing of records. Accordingly they came to be known as "clerks" in holy orders," and the description has stuck to them. In course of time anybody who did writing came to be called a clerk.

The Eternal Feminine

(Halifax Chronicle-Herald)

The girl in her neat business suit, mannish and independent as she is in many ways, is still sufficiently feminine to be dominated by the eternal feminine to be careful that the seams are straight, her hair trim and her perfume discreetly alluring. And one can only hope that she will stay that way.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

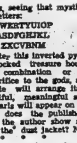
ETERNAL SACRAMENT

"The Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread."

That does St. Paul in the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians begin the earliest account of the establishing of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Jesus commanded his followers through the ages to keep this sacrament.

What does this Sacrament mean? It is in some places the chief service—"This do in remembrance of me." In the second place it demonstrates the significance of our Lord's death—"ye do" show forth the Lord's death till he come." Most significant of all, however, is the fact that in some way beyond the ability of the mind to fathom, the presence of Jesus Christ himself is in the bread and wine and is communicated to us thereby. The gift is ever present for us; it depends upon our state then we can receive it. Let us not underrate its every aspect perfectly and make it fit into our pattern of thought. Far beyond the loftiest thought of man is the mystery and power of God.

The bread and wine which Christ consecrated on the night of his betrayal were symbols of his body through which truth and power were to be given to the world. This is mysterious, but it is nonetheless basically true.



Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

IS THERE A PHYSICIST IN THE HOUSE?

A midwestern physician whose views I respect and have quoted here takes me to task because I said in this column that the following statement in standard medical textbooks of therapeutics is absurd:

"Therapeutically it" (digitalis) "enables the damaged heart to do more work with the same expenditure of energy."

Dr. Brady

The midwestern physician says that is a perfectly logical statement and advises me to pick up an elementary textbook of physics and read a paragraph or two on the efficiency of a machine.

In my article I reminded readers that my educational training ended—I had only a year of physics in high school.

No doubt this midwestern physician had the advantage of two years or more college study between high school and medical school, for he obtained his medical degree in 1936.

Following his suggestion I delved for an hour or so in my high school physics textbook. When I put the book back on the shelf I was as ignorant as before. The statement still seems absurd.

The midwestern physician assures me that laboratory work has been shown that digitalis improves the efficiency of the damaged heart, based on actual measurement of the work done and the energy used.

Heretofore I have never been conscious of my ignorance. Rather I have congratulated myself on the fact that I was not exposed to college life between high school graduation and medical school matriculation.

As some readers may remember, I believe that what this country needs, to bring the cost of medical care down to a level the ordinary family can afford, is re-establishment of medical education for training general practitioners.

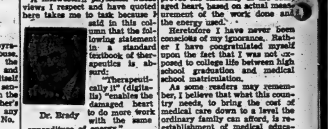
What this midwestern physician says about physics worries me some. He seems to agree that the efficiency (ratio of work of the machine to the energy supplied to it) of the heart "will vary with many factors, including rate, blood pressure, temperature, oxygen supply, diastolic stretch etc", that it begins to weaken whether my high school physics or the Hindhed-Campbell edition of it I acquired them at the Union School that once stood on what is now the public library north of it was the postoffice in what is now the Masonic Temple, named Canadaigua, N.Y., is inadequate preliminary education to make a medical student.

Well, we'll pick up again at this point tomorrow. We're fresh out of space now.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DIE A LITTLE—AND LIVE!



There is nothing to which the healthy body reacts more quickly than to a little rest and sleep or "pulling in the reins" so as to slow up the pace. It is true that we are helpers, of this body of ours, arrive to complete the cleaning up process, analogous to sweeping, dusting, and other housekeeping duties of the presidented.

How refreshed we become after a brief nap, or no more than a period of body rest all worry and worldly duties. It's a most wholesome habit to form, this of taking a little rest and sleep or semi-consciousness, while the major workers of the body step out of form for a short time, calling upon the lesser faculties to groom us for the coming tasks.

I once listened to an interview with Rocco, the great Argentine wrestler. He was asked to tell to what he owed most for his remarkable physical condition. His reply was—"Relaxation." Edison, in his lifetime, probably did the average man a good turn by more than a slight but a few hours at night, but he knew it was best for him, he would lie down for a nap and then return to his work refreshed and with added energy.

I have watched boxers, wrestlers, prize fighters, tennis stars at work, and I have noted how the power exuded by periodic rests expended effort. Mental and physical workers require brief rest periods. Doctors prescribe it as ally to us all. We would cultivate a dull dying a little to rest and sleep or there were no recesses during the study hours, or otherwise wholesome sports.

It is impossible to estimate the power created by periodic rests and relaxation. The important thing is to form a habit of letting-in our conscious mind at least, "to die a little" so as to actually, and physically live.

Installment Financing Subject of Talk

Installment financing, properly used, was credited with being one of the major factors in raising the standard of living of Canadians to an all-time peak by Barry Stafford, assistant vice-president and regional manager of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation for eastern Ontario in an address on "Installment Financing and Its Role in Our Economy" delivered Tuesday noon at the weekly meeting of the Rivards Club.

The speaker stated that installment financing is one of the fabulous changes in the economy of the last generation and ranks in importance with many of the evident material changes in our way of life.

Mr. Stafford pointed but that all the banks, in their annual statements this year "viewed with alarm" the increasing volume of installment financing.

"Yet one of the banks pointed out that people are acquiring durable goods in an orderly and safe way," he said.

In mentioning that losses suffered by the Industrial Acceptance Corporation in the past 30 years had not exceeded one eighth of one percent, Mr. Stafford noted that all the banks have had greater losses. He said that such a loss ratio was a tribute to the stabilizing factors of the Canadian economy and the good sense of the average Canadian buyer.

Mr. Stafford also said that his company, in expanding from a working force of only eight years ago to a present staff of 2,170, has had to evolve a great training plan to make such expansion possible.

He said that training was simply passing on to someone else those little things you have learned yourself and that in conducting business by personal contact, letter or telephone, almost all business personnel, without training, are woefully inefficient in effectively promoting their company's business relations.

The speaker was introduced by Jack Bradford and the thanks of Rivards were expressed by Charlie Lush.

Two Men Given Long Prison Terms for Theft

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two men who stole a cheque writing machine with a number of blank cheques and cashed about 30 cheques, Wednesday were sentenced to a total of 4½ years on charges.

John Harvey Mathews, 46, of Golden Valley, Ont., was given three years in penitentiary and Albert Edward Kennedy, 19, of Stratford was sentenced to 18 months definite and 12 months indeterminate.

Metro Rate 15.4 Mills

TORONTO (CP)—The first general tax levy laid down by the Toronto area's metropolitan council may be 15.4 mills, it was reported Wednesday.

That rate is expected to be suggested when the council's $38,500,000 budget is put before the metro executive committee today.

The council is responsible for certain essential services—water, sewage, education, roads, parks, and so on—for 1,250,000 persons in the 13 municipalities that make up the greater Toronto area.

H.G. Jones Heads Foremen's Clubs' Training School

H. G. Jones, immediate past president of the Quinte District Foremen's Club, has been chosen as chairman of the executive training seminar for the Trenton district of Foremen's Clubs for 1954, it was reported today by Lloyd Sharp, executive secretary of the local club.

Mr. Jones will be responsible for the organization and direction of the annual training course which takes place in June of this year at the Y.M.C.A. summer training school on Lake Couchiching. The purpose of the course is to give guidance, information and training to executive officers of the several dozen community Foremen's Clubs in Canada.

Mr. Jones has a varied background in the movement. Before coming to Belleville he was one of the original members and a director of the Montreal Foremen's Club, which has a membership of 900. Locally he was one of the founders and charter members of the Quinte district club, and the club's official representative to the Canadian Council of Foremen's Clube. He is now the public relations director of the local organization.

In making the announcement Mr. Sharp commented "It is quite an honor to Mr. Jones to be chosen for this important task and indirectly an honor to the club also".

List for Roll Of Honor Handed To Parks Board

TRENTON. (Special) — An authentic list of names of Trenton and district deceased, killed, died of wounds, died of disease, or missing in action presumed dead in the 1939-1945 war has been submitted to the Board of Parks' management by R. G. Burrows, secretary of Trenton Branch 110 of the Canadian Legion. The parks' board has proposed to inscribe the names on the memorial arch at the entrance to Senator Fraser Park across from the new Trenton library. The list includes: Charles Allison, Gerald Anderson, Arthur Billings, Archie Bowen, John Clarke, Eric Colp, Paul Coltman, Sidney Cottrell, Harvey Dixon, Raymond Dolna, Roy Drake, Clarence Frauts, John Genereaux, Ralph Gonyea, William Hazelton, Farley Hill, Archie Hunter, Clarke Jackson, Arthur Johnson, Ray Johnson, Arthur Kemp, James Kerr, Gerald Laveridge, Kenneth Martin, Cecil McCormick, J. F. McDonald, Clarke McMurray, Leslie Menzie, Walter Moran, Allan Myles, Brian Orchard, Earl Potts, Ernest Rultan, Gordon Sheppard, Elmer Silverthorne, Gerald Simpson, Ross Succee, Bruce Sutcliffe, Reginald Weeks and Bruce Wilson.

Board Orders Shed Dismantled

TRENTON (Special) — The Board of Parks Management has ordered work to commence immediately on the removal of a building partly on property owned by George Poulos of Belleville and partly held in trust for specific purposes by the Parks Board. The actual task of tearing down the unsightly shed got underway today.

The building is located on land designated as Lot "M". It is adjacent to Lot "L" and is included in the area that has drawn attention because of controversy involving town councillors and members of the parks board. It is now utilized as parking space for the downtown business section.

Now that Mr. Poulos and the parks management have come to agreeable terms, the question whether Mrs. S. I. Clindinin of 88 Henry Street is the rightful owner of 400 square feet of Lot "L" offers the only other obstacle to the board's effort to preserve the famed view for the people of Trenton. Town solicitor H. R. Park is presently engaged in a search of titles prompted by Mrs. Clindinin's claim. Mrs. Clindinin through her lawyer, R. N. Nourse, Q.C., of Picton seeks a triangle of land below the four-foot laneway behind the Royal Bank and Brinton's Drug Store. The parcel was formerly owned by the Bywater family estate and later was inherited by Mrs. Clindinin.

LONG HOLIDAY

Man Suffers Broken Leg, Hit By Car

Struck by a passing car as he attempted to cross Pinnacle Street near the city market weigh-scales, C. K. Smith, age about 68, of 213 North Front Street, suffered a broken leg and shock late this morning. Mr. Smith was taken to Belleville hospital by Bush's Ambulance.

Mr. Smith was about to cross the street apparently on his way to Loblaws, when he stepped in front of southbound car driven by Ted Green, R.R. 1 Belleville. Witnesses said the man was thrown several feet to the pavement by the impact.

250 Baby Chicks Burned in Barn

SCOHARIE — Considerable excitement was caused Monday at midnight when fire broke out in the barn on the former Levi Stone place, and was completely destroyed, along with 250 baby chicks. Mr. Vansoest, who occupied the home, had purchased them that day. Mrs. Bessie Levitt's small barn, right beside it, was completely demolished also.

Weddings

MAW—PAYNE

Lovely spring flowers adorned Point Anne United Church, on Saturday, April 10, at 3:00 p.m., when Reverend A. A. Hovsky, united in marriage Ruth Aileen Payne, of Point Anne, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Everett Payne, to Murray Glen Maw, of Bridgetown, Nova, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Maw.

Mrs. R. Puffer, pianist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Miss Glenda Doxtator, who sang "The Lord's Prayer," and "At Dawning."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in her gown of white nylon tulle over taffeta with taffeta bolero having long sleeves ending in points over the hands. The full, bouffant skirt fell in graceful folds. She wore a waist length veil of tulle held by a crown of tulle. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, and white stocks.

Mrs. George Lawrence of Pembroke, Ontario, as matron of honor, wore a gown of yellow tulle over taffeta with matching bolero. She wore a headdress of yellow daisies and a corsage of mixed spring flowers completed her ensemble.

Miss Helen Maw, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Kathleen Payne, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids; the former wore a gown of turquoise and the latter a gown of mauve, fashioned on lines similar to that of the matron of honor. Both wore floral headdresses matching their gowns, and carried nosegays of spring flowers.

Mr. Rose MacDonald, of Ridgetown, attended the bridegroom, and Messrs. Eric Payne, of Chalk River, Ontario, and Robert Payne, brothers of the bride, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at the Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, where the bride's mother, attired in Mountbatten blue silk crepe, with corsage of pink roses and white sweetpeas, received. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in delf blue tricot, with corsage of pink roses and white sweetpeas.

For the wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride chose a chartreuse suit with tan accessories, and matching luggage. She wore a bronze orchid corsage. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Maw will leave for England where they will reside for three years.

EDITOR RESIGNS

TORONTO (CP) — Wellington Jeffers, known unofficially as "Dean of Financial Writers in Canada," has resigned as financial editor of the Globe and Mail, Harry G. Kimber, publisher, announces. The announcement coincided with Mr. Jeffers' request, with his 75th birthday.

"The Witch Doctor's Daughter" Presented By C.G.I.T. Girls

A beautiful and impressive Easter thank-offering was held in Bridge Street on Tuesday evening. The W.M.S. along with the Joy club, the C.G.I.T. and Explorers were all responsible for the fine and unusual program. Miss Patsy Ann Hart, the C.G.I.T. was chairwoman.

The Joy club took over the worship service with Miss Barbara Thomson, president, leading. Miss Thomson read the Scriptures along with Miss Norma Carkner. Miss Margaret Niblock and Miss Rita Hiddleston. Interspersed with each story read by the girls were colorful and effective "flannelgraphs" shown and assembled, by Miss Fay Hamilton, depicting the Easter story.

Soft and appropriate music was played by Mrs. E. Boyce.

Two small boys, members of the Explorers' group, took up the offering which was dedicated by Mrs. J. G. Hornsby.

Young Jimmy Muir rendered a beautiful solo "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord."

COLORFUL PLAYLET

A most colorful playlet was put on under the supervision of Mrs. J. Briabin by Sharon McDonald, Mary Ann Pennock, Margaret Robert Sheffield, Jimmy Muir and Fay Courtemanche called "The Witch Doctor's Daughter." All were gaily colored eastern raiment.

Mrs. V. Weir explained the short skit her C.G.I.T. girls put on. The C.G.I.T. consisted of Patsy Luck, Dianna Trill, Linda Pearce, Jean Muirhead, Doreen Luck, Corinne Fargey, Carol McLean.

BADGES PRESENTED

Following the playlet, Miss Mabel Craig sang sweetly, "Bless This House." Mrs. Weir, Mrs. Craig, and Mrs. Maulle took part in the affiliation of the C.G.I.T. with the W.M.S. in a most impressive little service. The girls accepted the challenge quite thoughtfully and seriously. Mrs. Craig then presented the badges.

The supper table was a busy place humming with smiling and attentive helpers, with Mrs. J. G. Hornsby pouring.

Many visitors were welcomed and altogether it was a beautiful service dedicated to Easter and all it stands for.

Chatterton W.I. Appoints Officers

At the recent April meeting of Chatterton's Women's Institute a committee, Mrs. Dan Smith, Mrs. Lorne Reid, Mrs. Lorne Reid, Mrs. Albert Carson, Mrs. Gerald Irvine and Mrs. Ben Bleecker, was appointed to look after planning the program for the year.

Funds were donated to the Red Cross and Hospital Building and the temperance forces in the coming vote in Sidney township.

Mrs. Carson read a temperance story followed by a poem by Mrs. Dixon, "What a Little Boy Needs" and a reading by Mrs. Harry Reid, "Those Were the Days."

The election of officers followed:

President, Mrs. Floyd MacGinnis; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Lorne Reid; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Emery Demille; secretary, Mrs. Ben Bleecker; treasurer, Mrs. Albert Carson; district director, Mrs. Gerald Irvine; branch directors, Mrs. Harry Reid, Mrs. B. Mitts, and Mrs. Jim Reid; press reporter, Mrs. E. B. Finkle and Mrs. Emery Demille; pianist, Mrs. Gerald Irvine; auditors, Mrs. Maxwell Reid and Mrs. Dixon; card committee, Mrs. Nathan Reid and song leader, Mrs. Berson Mitts.

Women's Activities

COLLEGE HILL W.A.

Despite rainy weather a good number of members attended the regular monthly meeting of College Hill W.A., which was held in the church on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Annis Dickens, opened the meeting.

During the business period plans were completed, in regards to catering to guests from the Bay of Quinte conference early in June.

Mrs. Audrey Flounder opened the devotional service with Scripture reading from St. Mark. It is followed by an appropriate reading by Mrs. Millie Townsend, entitled "Is Jo Risen, He is Not Here."

Mrs. Alice West sang two enjoyable solos.

After the meeting closed refreshments were enjoyed, served by Misses Helen Hunter, Eva Jenkinson and Mabel Keene.

Harmony Studio Club Has "Mozart Night"

On Monday, the Harmony Studio club presented the life and works of Mozart at the home of Mrs. A. E. Cornish, 394 Bleecker Avenue.

Mrs. C. Scott, who was chairman, opened the meeting with a cordial welcome to a large number of members and guests.

MUSICAL SELECTIONS

The following pupils played the musical numbers written by Mozart: Mary Wattie, "The Boy Mozart"; Marilyn Hunlley, "Minuet"; Karen Flindall, "Allegro"; Wayne Flindall, "Entree"; Eileen Hancock, "Rondo in C"; Barbara and Sheila Tourbile (a duet), "Minuet in E Flat"; Grace Orser, "Minuet"; Richard Bowbotham, "Musical Trick"; Mary Catherine Clare, "Sonata"; Carole Thompson, "Minuet"; Joan Cornish, "Sonata in C"; Anna Corinne Gray, "March"; Nella Flindall, "Waltz"; Bradshaw, "Fantasie"; Grace Veley "Sonata in D."

Mrs. C. Scott gave a most informative account on the "Life of Mozart," which was interesting and quite young. He would often play for his father before going to bed, his own pieces such as "The Boy Mozart", which he composed when he was five years old.

His concert career started when he was but a child, thus his life's work of composing and performing was all done while he was still very young.

Mrs. Scott followed his life's accomplishments through in an interesting way which was appreciated by all.

While refreshments were being prepared, the children enjoyed guessing the number of Easter eggs in a basket for which a prize was given.

Another successful "Author's Night" was brought to a close.

Centennial Year Palm Sunday Commemorated at St. Paul's

By MRS. PERCY MACMULLEN

On Sunday, April 11, a special Centennial Year Palm Sunday was celebrated at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, with two services. Printed programs were used and large congregations were in attendance with several visitors from outside points.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., gave special organ music, which included "St. Mathew's Passion" "Mozart's Requiem" and a Revelation of the "Messiah". The Royal Junior choir delighted with a "Spring Song" and the Senior choir and male quartet contributed selections in special keeping with Palm Sunday.

MESSAGE

Rev. A. E. Baker based his message on the text, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord". He contrasted the people who accompanied Jesus into the city with those who lived in the city. The former were friends of Christ and the latter regarded Him as a stranger. The Scripture lesson was found in St. Mathew 21-1-11.

At the evening service, the Senior choir ably presented Maunder's sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary" and this was well received by the appreciative audience.

The soloists were William Aylesworth, Douglas Fryar, Mrs. Walter Warren, Mrs. William Wilkins and Mrs. William Grant, Messrs. Jack Bush, Harold Hagerman, Harry Brown, Bryce Fluke, Grant Richardson and Thomas Wells.

Mrs. Baker gave sympathetic accompaniment to this cantata and also rendered selections from Handel, Mozart and Bach, throughout the service.

Mr. Baker, junior at St. Paul's, ably presided and welcomed the visiting worshippers and announced that special holy week services were being held at Centennial and St. Paul's culminating on Good Friday.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

At the close of the evening service, Mrs. Walter Elliott entertained the choir members and their friends at her spacious home, Front Street, with Mrs. R. J. Patterson as co-hostess.

This was a complete surprise to choir members and they were delighted to be so honored.

Dainty refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

The hostesses were thanked for their kind gesture.

Two special Easter day services are planned for St. Paul's Centennial on Sunday next.

Easter Drama Given By Ivanhoe W.M.S.

On Sunday evening, the Ivanhoe W.M.S. conducted the evening service in Beulah United Church and presented an Easter drama before a large congregation.

Mrs. Hugh MacMullan, president of the W.M.S., took charge of the worship period, which consisted of a hymn, Scripture lesson and prayer.

Forthcoming announcements were given by the Rev. J. E. Glover and the missionary offering was received by Mrs. Sam Twiddy and Mrs. Harold Reid.

Special music was rendered throughout the service by Bethesda White Lake choir assisted by some members of Beulah choir under the fine direction of Mrs. Reg. Haggerty.

Mrs. J. E. Glover and members of the W.M.S. presented the Easter drama "The Challenge of the Cross."

Gowned in white garments and sparkling tinsel, those taking part were: Miss Doris Twiddy, Mrs. Elymer Johns, Mrs. Don Reid, Miss Rose Marie Cooney, Mrs. Percy Cooney, Mrs. George Wood, Mrs. Keith Bray.

During this very effective drama, a real message was sent forth and a deep and lasting challenge given for all to take up their cross and follow the Master.

Lovely Easter lilies, centred with a cross on the Communion table, formed a perfect setting for the service.

The Rev. J. E. Glover pronounced the benediction and brought another helpful evening of worship to a close.

Kingston Rd. W.A. Sees United Nations Building Pictures

The April meeting of the Kingston Road W.A., met recently at the home of Mrs. J. Parrott.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. M. LaRue, the meeting was opened by the vice-president, Mrs. Gerow.

Mrs. K. Reid had charge of the devotional period. Mrs. D. MacDonald read the Scripture, followed by a reading by Mrs. Reid and prayer by Miss Logan.

Miss Redner gave a reading taken from the book "Glimpses of Grace."

A short business session followed.

Mrs. Parrott had charge of the program and introduced, Miss Norma Arkles, who sang an Easter spiritual "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord?"

SLIDES SHOWN

She showed many beautiful views which included pictures of the U.N. Building in New York City, also pictures taken on a motor trip through the Western States, and of Vancouver City.

Many pictures were those taken at Soldier Sam College in Colorado, during a summer course. Miss Arkles describes each one in a most interesting and informative manner.

She was assisted in showing the film by Rev. Miriam Collins, assistant pastor of Bridge Street United Church.

Mrs. Parrott, on behalf of the members of the W.A., thanked Miss Arkles and Miss Collins and presented each with a piece of ceramics.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Parrott, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Conboy.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

PARENTS IN GERMANY SHOULD SEE ANNOUNCE HER MARRIAGE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

We are to be married at the end of next month. We have decided to have no reception after the ceremony, because my parents are still in Germany, and my fiance's parents are dead. I live with my two brothers, and here at our house we will have a little party after the wedding, just the six of us, "bride and groom," my two brothers, and two dear girl friends of mine. But we have quite a number of friends, here and in Europe, and we would, of course, like to have them know of our marriage. Which way of making this announcement do you think would be the best one? Can it be a printed card, or would it be better just to announce it in the newspaper? And to whom are they to write, should announce it? I do not like to hurt anyone's feelings.

R.

(1) Since your parents are living and even though it will be impossible for them to come here to your wedding, I think you should give them the honor of announcing your marriage. That is, order the announcements engraved in the traditional form:

Mr. and Mrs. Heinrich Lange announce the marriage of their daughter Hana to on Tuesday, the fourth of May, Nineteen hundred and fifty-four Haven, Alberta, Canada

(2) Or you and the bridegroom may announce the marriage yourselves:

Miss Rosa Lange and Mr. Hans Schmidt announce their marriage on Tuesday, the fourth of May etc.

(3) Or yes, and the bridegroom tell The Happy News to those five near enough, and write notes to all others. And in addition to this, the announcement may be sent to the newspapers.

WHEN YOU PREFER YOUR OWN CIGARETTES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A" (my brother) says that when I am offered a cigarette, when I have my own and prefer my own, it is impolite of me not to accept the cigarette offered. "B" (I'm 31) says that if I have a supply of my own cigarettes, which I prefer, it's quite all right, and sensible too, for me to say, "No, thank you, I have my own," or "Thank you—but do you mind if I smoke my own?" Who's right?

A and B

You're right . . . and, as you say, "sensible too"! There can certainly be no impoliteness in preferring your own brand of cigarettes, particularly today when there seem to be so many reasons for personal preference, . . . and certainly no impoliteness in straightforwardly saying you do, so long as you say it with courtesy of words and manner.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

PLAN A BEAUTY SCHEDULE

They're Little Tasks—But They All Add Up To Same Total Of Beauty

Don't saunter along the pulchritude path, my friend. Be up and marching! Girls who have sudden frenzies, who stock up on all the latest beauty aids, then let their treasures stand on dressing tables unused, will never make headway.

If you don't attend to your beauty routine yourself, it will not be attended to. No stern mentor is going to stand over you telling you what you should do to keep level of appearance, to ward off the advances of old Father Time.

Keeping fit, keeping sweet, looking nice is a part of the business of living. There is that ever-present reflection in the mirror. You have to live with it. If it smiles upon you, your spirits will be high. If it doesn't . . .

Calling attention to defects of appearance is something that just isn't done, even by members of your family. They'll tell you when you look nice; will be silent when you don't. So it is up to you to realize if you are slipping a bit; not doing everything you could to look up-top. Regard your good points with satisfaction. Take a keen look at features which are not so good and endeavor to improve them.

If you have professional treatments for your hair-shampoo, trim and wave set—do not let the lapse between appointments exceed a fortnight. Cleanliness is the first law of hair health. And the beautiful hair-do is the making of a girl. It is literally and physically "tops."

If you are as busy as most of us are, have your warm bath at night. It will relax you, steam weariness out of your bones, give you a chance to commune with your soul. Before getting into the tub, put cream on your face and neck. The oily substance, together with the moist warm air in the bath room, will help tone your complexion.

If you aren't too tired, you might do a few exercises before your date with the sandman. But don't fail to brush your hair, give your scalp a three minute massage, lotion your hands, and put cuticle cream on your finger nails. Little tasks, but they add up to the sum total of good looks.

Easter Dinner Features Glazed Ham

By Mary Moore

After wandering around town pricing ham in all its various guises I decided to talk to my good friend, Norm, manager of a large packing house.

If you really would like a ham for your Easter dinner you can have it without disjointing your housekeeping accounts. In my area, smoked "picnics", bone in, will retail at the per pound; smoked ham, bone in, will sell in the neighborhood of 70c per lb. Just before serving garnish hams, bone in, at approximately 10c more; and, of course, the roast, we all want smoked boneless ham, you will not find it less than $1.05 per pound (or if you do please let me know!) Between Norm and I we figured the average family could buy a half smoked ham bone in for $3.00.

So since there is a fair choice range I'm staying with the traditional Easter menu—and giving you a real slick glaze to dress up any one of them that you choose:

Egg Canapes
Glazed Smoked Ham or Picnic Ham
Riced Sweet Potatoes
Spinach Mounds
New Cabbage, Carrot and Radish Salad
Easter Egg Nests
Unfrosted Sponge Cake
Coffee

EGG CANAPES

Cut stale white bread in small rounds and pastry on 1 side. Spread other side with mayonnaise. Spread with smooth mixture of chopped hard-cooked egg white and sardine or anchovy instead of paste. At centre put a small mound of sieved hard-cooked egg yolk, and make border of fine chopped parsley.

GLAZED SMOKED HAM OR PICNIC HAM

Ham should be warmed to room temperature. Place whole or half ham or picnic ham, fat side up, on trivet in uncovered roaster. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for large hams weighing 12 lbs. or over, and 25 minutes per pound for smaller hams or half hams or picnics. Test at centre with metal skewer toward end of cooking period. If you overcook the ham it will be difficult to slice attractively. When done, remove from oven, pour excess fat from pan and add about 2 cups hot water to pan. With scissors, make a lengthwise slit through the skin and remove rind carefully. Spread with

GLAZE:

(Increase glaze for hams over 15 lbs.; decrease for half ham or picnic.)

One cup firmly packed brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-4 cup corn syrup or honey, or about 2 tablespoons pineapple or apple juice or cidercrough to make all of these glaze ingredients into a very thick paste. Mix smoothly. Pour over top of ham and with a fork spread as uniformly as possible, being careful to prevent it coming down on sides too far. Place ham back in pan, put in oven at 425 deg. Fahr. and bake about 30 minutes or until nicely glazed.

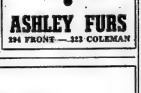
SPINACH MOUNDS

Wash 3 lbs., spinach until perfectly clean. Drain. Place over high heat, and in two minutes turn it over. Do not add water. Turn over frequently until it wilts, and when it is barely tender, chop it with sharp knife while it cooks. Stir into it a mixture of three tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 3 tablespoons flour, until thickened (or 1-3 can undiluted mushroom soup). Heat through. Serve in mounds around glazed ham on platter, alternately with piles of riced sweet potatoes.

NEW CABBAGE, CARROT AND RADISH SALAD

Shred new cabbage and carrots as finely as possible. Moisten with mayonnaise or French dressing; cooked ready-to-eat with paper thin slices of radishes.

EASTER EGG NESTS



This is a fussy business but the children will love it.

Save egg shells where only the up has been broken away when the egg was removed. Wash and dry them thoroughly. Make four different colors of packaged gelatin dessert, and fill the egg shells with them and stand them in egg cups to set until jelly is firm. Break away shells. Have ready in fluted paper cups a "nest" of stiffly whipped cream, topped with shredded coconut. Lay a colored jelly egg in each nest. Have your unfrosted sponge cake on a very large chop plate. Make a border of the nest around it and place one in the centre hole of your cake was baked in a tube pan.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT'S TIME FOR THIS WIDOWER TO RETURN TO NORMAL LIFE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I lost my wife about a year ago and haven't been out with anyone else since. Do you think it would be all right for me to begin to have dates this soon after she passed away?

I had a very good wife. She could not have been any better to me. We loved each other and got along fine, and I surely do not want to do anything wrong, but it gets very lonesome at times.

One thing more I would like to ask. Can I write to you without anyone reading my letter?

Dear D.D.D.:

It would not only be quite all right for you to begin to have women friends, but it would be very wise indeed for you to do so. To be constantly alone is not a normal life, and you should not continue it any longer. It will show no disrespect or lack of love for your wife for you to engage in social activities and make new friends, and from what you say about the happy relationship you and she always had, I'm sure she would be the first to want you to do this.

BETTER SKIP THE DRAMATIC GESTURE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For about a year and a half I was with a boy just my age. We are both 22 years old. He has given me many gifts, some of which are expensive. Now, we recently broke up and I feel I should return the things he gave me.

I have asked some of my friends if I should do this and most of them say it would be silly. What do you think?

D.R.

Dear D.R.:

Unless you were formally engaged to this young man, there is no reason why you should return gifts he gave you as a friend. According to the etiquette rules, of course, all gifts, letters and photographs should be returned when an engagement is broken. But if there is no engagement, this doesn't apply, and if I were you, I would not emphasize the whole thing by making such a dramatic gesture.

Much is little seems to be the keynote of Spring millinery, with even the tiniest hats sporting much style and all varieties of pretty accents. A tiny rolled sailor of white shantung straw has an equally tiny pixie crown that is appliqued with pearlized leaves and topped by an upshooting white rose and looped stem of corded green velvet.

It's the time for some grand buys, for never were clothes so smart, so wearable, so individual, and with such sensible price tags. Splendid for general war is a soft wool sheath of silk and wool, in beige, with fill-in ascot and cummerbund in beige-dotted brown silk. Seaming conceals the sipped closing, which extends to below the waist. Two slanting flapped pockets at the bustline.

Queen Mary P.S. Pupils Display Art Work at McCarthy Theatre

Continuing for the next seven days, a diversified collection of art work by the pupils of Queen Mary public school is on view in the lounge of the McCarthy theatre. This collection, which is manifold, incorporates work from the various grades, and is shown in pencil, crayon, oils, ink, handicraft, free-hand cutout, finger painting, the ever popular silhouettes, handmade calendars, shadow box pictures, and many others too numerous to mention.

Beginning with the silhouettes, which were intricate in detail with lattice backgrounds, these included the eagle, a roost of chickens with the cock in lordly mein; a lovely equestrian cavorting on horseback, the tennis player, setting-up exercises, a boy and girl, the king of horses on the lookout point, bullfighter, a pastoral of a mare and her colt, and various birds, and butterflies, a lovely lady with a hat resting, as well as hands, and a life-like deer, all of which were beautifully executed, showing care and precision work.

SCENERIES.

In the scenery, there were pictures done in crayon denoting winter time, while one was noticed done in black and white, and four or more using oils as a medium. Two of these, which were shown on either side of the mantel in the alcove, merit special attention, as they were outstanding in crispness and clarity, and richly colored; one depicted a moonlight lake with vivid greens and red, and the other a ridge of dark hills, at whose feet nestled a snugly situated home.

Two others of the same moonlight scene were seen on the ramp walls, which also show talent, and appreciation of color, but were rather heavy as to the moon.

The calendars were pleasing with their birds and flowers, and the days of the month nicely printed.

A large mural depicting Hallowe'en time showed a well drawn brick fence and open gateway leading to a building in the distance. Over the wall, a rather roguish-faced boy was peeping behind a full-sized pumpkin.

There were Easter cards, Christmas cards, and Easter posters, showing ducks and eggs; Valentine cards, and some nice shadow box pictures showing cheerful-faced snowmen in relief against a white background, very well done.

Among the multitude of drawings, faces of animals were noted, the tiger predominating, some in color with baleful eyes, which one would prefer not to meet on the hills, and among the pencil drawings, which were exceedingly well done, were those of the dunkr the Indian skimming across the lake with his birch bark canoe; a fine German police dog which showed his wolf ancestorship.

GEOMETRICAL DESIGNS.

The geometrical designs were eye-catching both as to color and starlike shapes, and nicety of detail; the finger painting, instead of fanciful swirls and swirls had taken on meaning. One depicted Peter Rabbit sitting between two cabbages.

A large crayon painting which had imagination and human interest was that of Little Red Riding Hood hurrying through the woodland road to the home of her sick grandmother. In looking at the picture, one mentally could vision the waiting big, bad wolf.

The totem poles in the alcove on the mantel were worthy of note, being nicely painted, and natural. Here, too, were some odd toys, whose genus was not too evident, but withal, were well executed, and happy, as were Mary's little lamb, the goats, giraffe, and 'what-have-you.'

LOVELY CUTWORK CUSHION COVERS.

One must not omit the lovely cutwork cushion covers of black velvet over gold which were beautifully cut, one the array of birds done in a four-square plaque in light upon a deep red-brown background. This showed the red-winged blackbird balancing on a reed in the marsh; goldfinches atop Scotch thistle tops, and the gracefully weaving with his coronet.

A paper-cutting picture depicting winter sports was also noted, and an array of fairy stories which included "Jack and Jill" both ascending and descending the famous hill; "Mary and her Lamb" and one of modern interest, "The Sugar Bush," which is most children is a veritable fairy land of sweet things.

A worthwhile display bringing acclaim to the little would-be artists and to their teachers, but which nevertheless, would have shown to greater advantage with fewer exhibits.

Wallbridge W.I. Elects Officers

The annual meeting of the Wallbridge W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson, Mrs. M. Reid, the 1st vice-president, Mrs. Harold Phillips, opened the meeting.

The secretary-treasurer reported on the year's receipts and expenditures which leaves a good balance to start the new year.

It was decided to buy life membership pins for those who want to become life members.

A motion was made that all meetings be held at night for the benefit of the members who are working.

Thank-you notes were read from the sick and bereaved of the community. Donations to be sent in to Folio Patients' Comforts' club, also to Sidney Township Citizenship committee.

It was moved that the reports of the Standing Committee conveners be given at the next meeting. An executive meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. James Sine to review the reports of the past year, also a meeting at the home of Mrs. E. Nicols to plan the program for the new year.

Mrs. Ted Evans gave a reading "The Nurses' 23rd Psalm".

MARSH HILL

'Wonderful Power Of Salvation' Topic At Harmony Club

MARSH HILL — The members of Marsh Hill Harmony Club met at their April meeting in the Marsh Hill school when they were hosts to the members of the Endeavor class of Wesley Hunting-don.

Mrs. David Hollinger, president, welcomed the guests and opened the meeting. After the business, Mrs. George Ashley presided with Mr. George Ashley reading the Scripture. The program was as follows:

Quartet: Mrs. William Pitchett, Miss Marilyn Pitchett, Mr. Farrow and Mr. Delbert McCurdy; reading, "Hunting the Mouse," by Mr. Mac Searles; solo, "Keep the Vision of the Cross Before You," Mrs. Grant; reading, "The Old Man Goes to Town," Mr. F. Carr; violin solo, Mr. Grant; "Danny Boy," accompanied by Mrs. Grant.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Arthur Wilson introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Herb Burns, of Fuller, who chose as his subject, "The Powerful Power of Salvation." He spoke of man's power, example the hydro-gen bomb, but Jesus is a power that can destroy or save the world. Herod set himself to destroy Jesus. No one can destroy unless God gives him the power. The most wonderful power the world ever knew was when Jesus died on the cross to preserve our lives. Jesus had power to lay down His life and power to take it up again.

Mr. Philip Carr conducted two contests. Rev. K. Cliffe spoke briefly.

Refreshments were served by the Marsh Hill group.

LONDON (Reuters) — An autographed musical score of four solo soprano songs written by Handel was sold at an art auction here Tuesday for £2,000. The songs were composed between 1738 and 1743 and apparently never were published.

Six Newsmen, One Woman Named as Winners of Nation Newspaper Awards by Judges

TORONTO (CP) — Six Canadian newspaper men and one woman were named today as winners of the fifth annual National Newspaper Awards.

Three others — two reporters and a free-lance photographer — won special citations.

The awards and citations cover work done in 1953. The annual competition is open to men and women employed by Canadian daily newspapers and news associations. Winners receive $400 each and a certificate of award. Citation - winners receive an engraved memento and a certificate.

Awards:

Editorial writing—T. E. Nichols, Hamilton Spectator.

Spot news reporting—Judith Robinson, Toronto Telegram.

Feature writing—Gerald Clark, Canada Wide Feature Service.

Staff corresponding—Jack Scott, Vancouver Sun.

Spot news photography—Orval Bruneelle, Lethbridge Herald.

Feature news photograph—Bill Bennett, Vancouver Sun.

Cartooning—Robert W. Chambers, Halifax Chronicle - Herald and Mail-Star.

Citations

Doug Collins, Calgary Herald, and J. Alex Hume, Ottawa Citizen, for spot news reporting.

F. W. Lahrman, Regina Leader-Post, for news photography.

Awards and citations will be presented at a dinner in Toronto May 7 given by the Toronto Men's Press Club. The prizes, designed to reward and promote excellence in Canadian newspaper work, were originated by the club in 1949, with the support of the late George McCullagh who guaranteed funds for five years.

The basis of support has since been broadened. The following newspapers and groups contributed to the awards fund:

Southam Newspapers, Thomson Newspapers, the French - language dailies of Canada, Halifax Chronicle - Herald, Montreal Gazette, Montreal Star, Ottawa Journal, Toronto Globe and Mail, Toronto Star, Toronto Telegram, London Free Press, Windsor Star, Winnipeg Free Press, Regina Leader-Post, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, Vancouver Sun, Victoria Times and Victoria Colonist.

—Editorial Writing—

The award to Nichols in editorial writing was made on a selection of editorials ranging from local to national issues and across a wide range of interest. Singled out for special comment was one on "The Myth of Parity," a discussion of artificial price-fixing.

Two other writers were particularly mentioned in the final judging — E. A. Collard of the Montreal Gazette and Gerard Filion of Montreal Le Devoir, both former winners of the award.

—Spot News Reporting—

Miss Robinson won the spot news award with her disclosure from Regina last April of "cheque-kiting" involving an official of a defaulting construction company and a Liberal member of Parliament who subsequently resigned his seat. The story was an interesting sidelight on a situation which had been the subject of vigorous parliamentary debate.

In this category the judges recommended citation of Collins's exposure as a hoax of "The Canadian Who Wouldn't Talk," the man who won international reputation for resisting enemy torture rather than disclose military secrets.

They recommended also a special citation for Hume for an election-day forecast, province-by-province which came within two seats of the exact result of the Aug 10 federal election.

Among other entries highly-regarded by the judges was Charlie Whipp's coverage for the Windsor Star of the Sarnia tornado last May.

—Feature Writing—

Clark's award - winning stories in the feature-writing class comprised a series from Moscow last November in which he wrote of daily life in the Russian capital as it seems to the visitor—rush-hour traffic, theatres, sports, barber shops and language difficulties. The series appeared in the Montreal Star and other dailies.

—Staff Corresponding—

Scott, a columnist, won the staff corresponding award with a series of stories on South Africa's racial problem. They were written on the scene at the time of Prime Minister Malan's return to power last April.

—Photography—

Bruneelle won the spot news picture award with his shot of Lethbridge's mayor transfixed by electric shock as he grasped a microphone at a civic ceremony.

The feature award went to Bennett for an unusual shot of a chinook sipping a thoroughbred mare on the nose when the mare interposed between the small dog and his friend, the mare's colt.

Cited for excellence was the unusual picture of three whooping cranes obtained by F. W. Lahrman, Regina free lance, first published in the Regina Leader-Post.

—Cartooning —

Judges in the cartoon category remarked on Chambers' consistently perceptive comment on word and Canadian affairs and noted that "his originality and good humor give his cartoons an outstanding and individual character."

Singled out as an example was a cartoon which appeared last May at the time of Prime Minister St. Laurent's visit to Washington, It shows him riding a horse labelled "Parliament" and confronting at the border a smug-faced horse labelled "Congress" astride a resigned - looking President Eisenhower. The title: "Different Countries—Different Customs."

Wheel of Fear, Suspicion Now Has Come Full Cycle For Scientist Oppenheimer

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—In a time when one bomb can blow up a city, the wheel of fear and suspicion now has come the full cycle for Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer.

He directed the making of the first atomic bomb. And now he himself is under a cloud of distrust.

He had much to do with prying loose the secrets of the atom. And now he himself is denied access to those secrets.

Until recently, he had a desk in the president's executive offices, just across the street from the White House, as an adviser to the atomic policy-makers. And now, it is disclosed, President Eisenhower has directed that a "black wall be placed between Dr. Oppenheimer and any secret data."

The overwhelming irony of the "father of the atomic bomb" has been suspended by the atomic energy commission pending a security hearing caps many ironies in the life and personality of Dr. Oppenheimer.

J. Robert Oppenheimer was born in New York City, the son of a German immigrant who became a successful textile importer. The family lived in comfortable financial circumstances and "Oppie" evidently was well sheltered.

A shy, bookish youngster who learned quickly, Oppenheimer knew four languages by the time he left Manhatan's Ethical Culture School, which was dominated by children of unusual intelligence. (He now can speak eight languages, including sanskrit.)

WAS BRILLIANT STUDENT

He entered Harvard University in 1922 and completed a four-year course in three years, graduating with highest honors. According to one Harvard legend, "Oppie" once told a fellow student:

"I was so hot today the only thing I could do all afternoon was lie on my bed and read Jeans' 'Dynamical Theory of Gases.'"

After Harvard, he studied abroad at Cambridge and Goettingen Universities. In 1929, he joined the faculties of California Institute of Technology and the University of California. It was here that he ultimately became responsible, as a fellow scientist said recently, "for the training of as much as half of our most brilliant theoretical physicists."

For several years in California, he continued to live in a narrow, academic world. Of this period, he said in his recent letter to the atomic energy commission:

"To many of my friends, my indifference to contemporary affairs seemed bizarre, and they often chided me with being too much of a highbrow. I was interested in man and his experience; I was deeply interested in my science; but I had no understanding of the relations of man to his society."

HIS WORLD SHATTERED

But by 1936, he says, he was shaken loose from this private little world.

"I had had a continuing, smoldering fury about the treatment of Jews in Germany," he wrote in his letter.

"I saw what the depression was doing to my students. Often they could get no jobs, or jobs which were wholly inadequate. I began to understand how deeply political and economic events could affect men's lives. I began to feel the need to participate more fully in the life of the community. But I had no framework of political conviction or experience to give me perspective in these matters."

Coincidentally, he began to make left-wing friends. He courted and twice became engaged to Jean Tatlock, daughter of an English professor. Miss Tatlock, who died in 1944, was a Communist party member at various times, Oppenheimer said, but the party never seemed to provide for her what she was seeking."

PARTNER FORMER RED

In 1940, Oppenheimer married Katherine Harrison, a biologist, who, he said, had been a Communist party member for "a year or two" during a brief, previous marriage. When he married her, Oppenheimer said, she was not engaged in any politics and had a certain disappointment and contempt that the Communist party was not in fact what she had once thought it was."

His own views about Russia and Communism, he said, changed radically as a result of the Soviet purge trials, the Nazi-Soviet pact and the Russian invasion of Finland and Poland.

By the time he moved to Los Alamos to head the atomic work there, he said, "my participation in left-wing organizations and my association with left-wing circles had ceased and were never to be re-established."

Kingston Man Sent for Trial After Shooting

KINGSTON (CP)—Fred Knapp Wednesday was committed for trial on charges of shooting with intent to maim and carrying a gun without a license in connection with a shooting in a Kingston house April 3 in which a man was hurt.

Samuel Greer testified at a preliminary hearing that he and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hynes went to the house and there had been an argument over money.

Greer said Knapp fired two revolver shots into the ceiling. Then he said Knapp went outside and a shot came through the window. Greer said he and Hynes went outside and there were more shots from the driveway.

A provincial pathologist testified that Mrs. Greer said he received in his right thigh during the shooting was made by a bullet. Dr. W. D. Hay said five or six bullets had passed through Greer's clothing.

SKIN GRAFTING TECHNIQUE

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (CP)—A new skin grafting technique so simple it can be used in the home without putting the patient to sleep was disclosed here Wednesday. Tiny shreds of skin tissue are sprayed from one part of the body to another without leaving a scar in the place where it was taken.

Motorist Found Negligent In Operating Car

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A coroner's jury Wednesday found a motorist, whose lights showed only 30 feet in front of his car, negligent in a traffic accident in which two persons died April 4.

The jury said it considered Ronald Henry, 18, of St. Catharines "negligent in operating his car at his stated speed when he admits his lights showed only 30 feet in front of his car."

Killed when the car hit them were Neil McLean, 78, and Mrs. George Barnett, 74, both of Niagara Falls. Passengers in the car said it was travelling about 45 miles an hour and they were unable to see the coupe until "almost on top of them."

TO BUILD ADDITION

WHITBY (CP)—A $200,000 addition to Fairview Lodge, a home for the aged, will be built in this Oshawa district town, Ontario county council decided Wednesday.

Bevan Quits Labor 'Cabinet' In Split Over Indo-China

LONDON (CP) — The opposition Labor party reeled today under a wide-open split threatened by the failure of former prime minister Clement Attlee to oppose the United States - supported British defence pact proposal, and West German rearmament.

Aneurin Bevan, leader of the party's left wing and chief contender for Attlee's party chieftainship, walked out Wednesday night from a caucus after resigning from the party's policy-making "shadow cabinet."

The walkout poses a grave threat to the control of the party by Attlee, deputy-leader Herbert Morrison and other moderates. Seven weeks ago Bevan came within two votes of a caucus of defeating Attlee's demand for endorsement of West German rearmament.

The rebel Welshman Wednesday night bitterly accused Britain of "surrendering to American pressure" in the Indo-China talks just concluded between State Secretary Dulles and Foreign Secretary Eden. He expressed deep shock that the Labor party did not immediately denounce the agreement to negotiate for an alliance against Communist expansion in Southeast Asia.

Such an alliance, said Bevan, is "tantamount to diplomatic and military encirclement of Republican (Communist) China."

Attlee had asked his party to soft-pedal opposition to government policy on the issue to avoid wrecking the April 26 Geneva conference on Korea and Indo-China. He said Bevan's strong stand could jeopardize those talks.

Attlee declared that Communist China is "showing imperialist aims in Korea, Tibet and elsewhere," and "although we wished China to take her place in the United Nations, it must be remembered that she has been declared an aggressor."

Later Bevan told reporters that, besides his opposition to any Southeast Asian defence pact, he opposed Labor backing of the European Defence Community, particularly the rearmament of West Germany.

Murder Charges Tossed Out After Judge Learns Accused Held Month Without Hearing

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure Wednesday tossed out statements submitted by police and granted a motion to drop murder charges against James Rogers, 22, of Montreal, and Frank Battaglia, 39, of Oakville, Ont.

The two men were accused of killing Charles Wagner, 26-year-old former Montreal night club waiter.

The crown's case hinged on statements made by the two accused and introduced in court by provincial police. Mr. Justice Lazure ruled, however, that the statements were inadmissible as evidence.

He said Rogers and Battaglia were held for more than a month before being brought before a magistrate, suggesting undue influence and creating a presumption or doubt which would be enough to justify the crown in using a statement to be accepted as voluntary.

Both Rogers and Battaglia said the statements were obtained by threat and force and had no basis in fact.

SAYS POLICE BEAT HIM

Battaglia said provincial police told him they could shoot him and say he had tried to escape. The former boxer said he was hit repeatedly in the face and kicked in the kidneys. Blood had to be drained from his ear and a corner and him he had two cracked ribs.

Detective Nick Anderson admitted hitting Battaglia but only after the man had been about to strike Mrs. Wagner, who had hit him.

Mr. Justice Lazure commented that he could not understand why Mrs. Wagner was visiting the cells in the first place. He said the detective had no reason for hitting the man.

PEACH PLAN FAVORED

TORONTO (CP) — Acting Agriculture Minister Dupuis announced Wednesday that Ontario peach growers have voted in favor of a fresh peach marketing scheme. Growers balloted on a proposal to bring fresh peaches under provisions of the Farm Products Marketing Act.

Workers Vote Pay Cut to Aid Labor Costs

TOLEDO (AP)—Toledo production workers at Willys Motors, Inc., Wednesday voted a pay cut for themselves to bring the company's labor costs in better competitive position with other automobile manufacturers.

The almost-unanimous vote may cost the workers as much as 10 per cent of their weekly earnings.

But they may recover part of this later, if a new bonus pay plan can be worked out.

Willys currently employs about 7,000 men and women on its production line, at an average weekly wage of $80. A 10-per-cent reduction could save the company about $58,000 a week.

Marmora Edges Pt. Anne 6-5 To Even TVL Final Series 2-2

(By GARRY ALEXANDER)

The Marmora Millionaires edged Point Anne 6-5 last night in Marmora to knot their best-of-seven TVL hockey finals at two games each. It was the best game of the series so far.

The Pointers led 2-1 at the end of the first period with Millionaires getting the only goal of the middle stanza to tie the score. Marmora went on to outscore the visitors 3-2 in the final 20 minutes for a hard-fought victory.

The fifth game of the series is scheduled for next Monday night in Belleville with the clubs back at it again in Marmora two nights later.

Bill Jones was the hometown hero, coming up with the winning goal at 8.25 of the third period on a three way passing play that ended with Jones tipping the disc past Bates while standing just off the corner of the net. John Green was sitting out a penalty at the time of the goal.

The score was tied 2-2 when the period opened but it took captain Ken Trumble only 25 seconds to best the visitors custodian on a long shot that was partly screened. Bates did get a piece of it but the shot was too hot to handle and dropped into the twine.

RAPID SCORING

Leo Goyer got that one back at 3.39 when he took brother Gerry's pass and hammered one by Killian, with Brooks coming back to make it 3-4 less than a minute later. His goal came when he picked up Gray's rebound and blasted it into an open net. Bates, out of the play after the first save, had no chance.

Gerry Goyer provided the punch for the Co-Pointers last meeting on a neat play with Williams but for the rest of the game Killian turned back everything that came his way. Playing-coach, Tim Williams, took Bates out of the net in favor of another forward with a minute and a half left in it was to no avail. Several times the puck rolled within inches of the open Pointers net but Sam Mulholland, playing back, managed to keep it out.

TOOK EARLY LEAD

Marmora took an early lead in the first period when Leonard let go a bullet drive from the blue line that worked its way through a maze of players to flash the red light.

Sam Mulholland streaked in on goal at 6.40 to tie the score with his team playing a man short and then at 10.40 it was Mulholland again who carried the puck the length of the ice, slipped a pass to Gilmour out front, who showed no plenty of finesse, to beat Killian.

Maynes got the equalizer at 17.20 after taking Trumble's pass from back of the net and then Tim Williams, who relieved Leo Goyer, laying up the pass, made it 5-3 in the dying minutes of the period.

The middle session was fast and hard-checking all the way with both netminders turning in several terrific saves. Bill Jones was the lone marksman of the period at 8.20 with Brooks and Manlle drawing assists.

Jones had a pair of the winner's goals while Ken Trumble and Tom Brooks picked up a goal each to match their assists. Mulholland and the two Goyers each had one goal and one assist in a losing cause, while Gilmour got a lone goal.

The officials handed out 11 penalties in all with Point Anne getting the nod on seven occasions.

The teams:

Point Anne: Bates, Mulholland, P. Green, Gilmour, Strahan, Jacklin, J. Green, Stewart, Williams, L. Goyer, G. Goyer, Kunter, Bradshaw, L. Marsele, F. Marsele, C. Yeo.

Marmora—Killian, Gray, Leonard, Maynes, Lavender, K. Trumble, Jones, Mantle, Brooks, Ramsbottom, Brown, Smith, Naylor, Parrah, Lovell, Young.

THE WINDS OF EASTER.

The welcome winds of Easter
Waft from the ages past
The blessed, blessed story
That life for eye shall last;
That Christ the Lord is risen,
That death has lost its sting—
This sweet and wondrous story
The winds of Easter bring.

All nature hears the message,
The old earth springs to life,
The robins sing a carol,
The world with joy is rife;
Oh! that the Easter story
To each sad heart would bring,
The living Christ, whose message
The winds of Easter bring.
Wellington, Ont.
HELEN B. ANDERSON.

LOCAL NOTES.

WELLINGTON—Mrs. J. Sword is very ill in Kingston hospital. Her many friends are anxious for her recovery.

Miss Mary Lund spent a few days in Plainfield with her sisters, Mrs. Wright and family.

Mrs. Percy Cleave opened her home for the April meeting of the W.M.S. of Wellington United Church on Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Marjorie Blakely, Mrs. Ernest Bond, Mrs. Harry Carley and Mrs. Arnold Vanderwater, spent Friday afternoon in Picton.

Mrs. Patterson, Belleville, is the guest of Mr. Mabel Bell for a few days.

From Mrs. A. A. Thaler, (nee Anna Allison of Picton) now resident in Lewiston, N.Y., a fine Easter card has been received, telling of her anticipated trip to New York City by plane, to spend Easter holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Glendon Sanders, Toronto, will spend over Easter with friends in Wellington.

Miss Maurice McArthur and friend of Welland, will be Easter guests of Mrs. Edna Platt, Maple Avenue.

D. ROSS PLATT.

The death of Mr. D. Ross Platt of London, Ontario, occurred at Cleveland, Ohio, where he was on a business trip. Mr. Platt, a former resident of Wellington, was manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia here for some time and held in the highest esteem. Surviving are his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Houghton of London and Mrs. J. Gunn of Georgetown; also two brothers, Clare Platt and will Platt of Wellington and a sister, Mrs. R. Klous of Rochester, N.Y. Mr. and Mrs. Clare Platt and Mrs. Edna Platt left on Wednesday for London to attend the funeral.

MRS. T. M. PINE.

Suddenly on Saturday, April 11, Mrs. T. M. Pine, (nee Dora Nelson) passed away at St. Petersburg, Florida, where she and her husband, Dr. T. M. Pine of Toronto, were spending the winter. Surviving are her husband, Dr. Pine, two daughters, Mrs. Gordon Matheson and Miss Marjorie Pine, and a son, Arnold Pine of Pittsburg. Funeral on Wednesday at Turner and Porter Funeral Home, Interment in Park Lawn cemetery, Toronto. Relatives here include Mrs. Arthur Good Murphy, Mrs. Walter Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. C. Tripp, Mrs. Walter Nelson, Mr. Harry Pierce and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tripp motored to Toronto on Wednesday to attend the funeral.

The Manor House, Wellington, is displaying a "For Sale" sign. This is the oldest house in town, built by the pioneer, the late Daniel Reynolds. This old home and also Yarn Hall, East Wellington, should be preserved as historic sites.

EASTER HOLIDAY.

School is closed, the bell is silent,
And the children now are free,
Through the dreary months of winter
They were studious as could be;
But they now are free to wander
Through the woods far o'er the hill,
Where the sap is softly dripping
Shining buckets soon to fill.

And above the dead leaves peeping—
They will seek the first spring flowers.
While the robin and the blue-bird
With glad music fill the hours;
What the' April rain is falling
From a dark and cloudy sky,
Easter week brings joy and gladness—
Swift its days are passing by!

WITH RESURFO

Resurfo not only fills cracks, breaks or open surfaces, it actually bonds itself to plaster and lath leaving a snugly-adhering, permanent repair. Resurfo is also ideal for filling and levelling out joints in wallboard.

Wipe or brush the area to be repaired and remove all loose particles, then mix your Resurfo with a little water and apply it with a brush, trowel or putty knife. Simple isn't it?

A Resurfo patch cannot shrink or flake, it will dry within a few hours and can easily be sanded to a smooth even surface—ready for paint or wallpaper. Keep Resurfo on hand — unmixed it keeps indefinitely.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Your partner is a player who supplies you critic bait. He knows exactly what to do but thinks of it too late. But take a little hint from the bridge you start to grouse. Consider if a guy like that resides in your own house.

South became declarer at three no-trump in the tournament deal:

	NORTH
	♠K 6 3
	♥Q 6
	♦K 6
	♣9 7 3 2
WEST		EAST
♠Q J 10 8		♠9
♥K 7 3 2		♥J 10 9 5
♦Q 8		♦J 10 8 5
♣J 4		♣10 8 6 5
	SOUTH
	♠A 7 4 2
	♥A 8 4
	♦A 9 3
	♣A K Q

Whether or not he makes it, this is where he belongs. Because he and his partner have a total of nine high cards. And he can make it by carefully study of the fall of the cards.

The opening lead from west was the spade queen. Eight cold tricks are in hand immediately. They are two top spades, one top heart, two top diamonds, three tops in the club department.

Those who made a stab at finessing the heart queen got the bitter taste of defeat. The successful ones avoided a heart finesse for a time. They felt around until they touched the winning play.

These permitted the first lead to run into the south ace. Hoping to find clubs split, south ran his three tops in that suit. It was noted that west showed out on the third round.

Declarer then ran his two top diamonds to see if there was any indication of a split there. When west dropped the queen, it showed he might have nothing left but spades and hearts.

So, dummy's king took a second spade and west was given the lead with a third spade. West took this and two more spades. But he must then lead a heart that made a cinch of south's heart queen.

When west led a heart it made no difference who held the king. Because the heart lead was right into the jaws of the south tenace holding of five in hand, queen. It avoided taking a heart finesse.

Playing the hand this way there is absolutely no danger. A look before you leap will often gain a heap.

SCOTT-PAINE DIES

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP)—Robert Scott-Paine, 62, noted boat and aircraft designer who devised the Second World War PT (Patrol Torpedo) boat, died Wednesday. A native of England, he became a U.S. citizen in 1948.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reeding her Home and Table Magazine, saying to pop, Hey, Wilman, I see where you think it's time women stopped being slaves to fashion and started to call their own souls their own?

I've always thought it was time, pop said, and now I said, Those awful tite skerts are coming back, would you bleeve it?

I dont bleeve anything about women's clothes, that's why I'm constantly being surprized, pop said, and ma said, If a woman has a semblants of a figure, is exaggerated out of all proporsion as soon as she puts on one of those skin fitting skerts.

I cant help noticing that, pop said, and ma said, if women had half the sense they give themselves credit for, they'd laff those tite skerts to scorn and wear clothes to just the exact degree of fullness that nature intended.

That's a fact, my dear, nature is the best dressmaker, pop said. Look at the animals, they never look exactly rite, he said, and ma said, And so would the women if they were just as natural, I mean within reason.

Anyway, my dear, I'm glad to see at least one woman who stands head and shoulders and front and rear above the common herd, pop said, and ma said, Really, William? How do you meen? she said.

Didn't you just say you're not going to be roped in by the herd? pop said, and ma said, Dont be absurd, do you think I'm going to make myself a conspicuous minority for land sakes.

It's a wonderful world and you're one of the vice presidents, pop said.

Bleing the end of the subject.

Lemon Of Indians Throws First Three-Hitter Of Baseball Season

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

UP AND AWAY!

By the time this reaches the parlors and perches, friend Devine and this department will be aboard a plane winging northward to North Bay where the 1954 edition of the annual confab of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association is under way. It is expected a record crowd of delegates from all parts of the province will be on hand to discuss business for the coming season, elect officers, etc., and to partake of the famous northern hospitality.

Some 23 candidates are up for election to the executive body, among them being Don Lee, representing the Belleville District Softball Association. Six candidates will be elected and more appointed by the incoming president.

In the running for president to succeed Bill Jacko, of North Bay, are: J. G. Brady, Oshawa; J. C. Brewe, London; J. R. Brush, Sarnia; President Jacko and T. Williams, of Owen Sound.

Some 47 additions and amendments to the constitution will be the centre of discussion of the convention, among them being one submitted by the Belleville association asking that pewee players discontinue the use of spikes.

Some lavish entertainment has been readied by the host Northland Softball Association, which includes a sight-seeing tour of beautiful Lake Nipissing. And the annual banquet is nothing "to be sneezed at."

CALLS PRACTICES!

Herbie (The Ole Clucker) Henn ruffled his feathers yesterday, tossed his head back and issued a clarion call for help during the coming softball wars. "There will be," he cackled, "a practice for candidates for the Northern Electric softball team at the Alemite Field on Friday (tomorrow) afternoon at one of the clock."

All comers are welcome, sez Herbie, especially any Senior "A" player who are on the loose at the moment. Or any kind of a pitcher for that matter as long as his strikeout record is a dozen a game. All players past, present and potential, are urged to be on hand. The practice will begin sharp at the time mentioned.

REGULAR CUT-UP!

Vern DeGeer tells the story of Joe Primeau, ex-Leaf coach, when Joe was mentoring an amateur club of the Smythian chain. One of the youngsters, a raw recruit, kept complaining the new skating outfit was pinching his feet.

Joe had been schooled with the rollicking Leafs of the early 1930's—Clancy, Levinsky, Conacher, Jackson, Cotton and others. He decided to brush some of the fraternity's social charm on the rookie.

"There's only one thing to do," Joe counselled. "Take your skates home with you, and put them on when you go to bed. May sound crude but that's how we used to break in new boots with the Leafs. All the fellows did it and we never had any trouble over tight skates.

Dutifully the rookie followed instructions. When he showed up for the next practice the kid was limping so badly he had to sit out the session.

"What's wrong, son?" Joe asked.

"Boy, am I in trouble," was the answer. "I ripped all the sheets, my old man says you're crazy, and my mother says I have to quit hockey if that's how a fellow has to act. What'll I do to stay with you?"

Joe heaved his way out of the situation neatly, although he hadn't realized the kid would take him so seriously.

"Let me take another look at those skates," said Joe.

Then, "No wonder you're having trouble. That dumb trainer of ours has given you two boots for the left foot."

The boy gave up hockey after a brief amateur whirl—and just to show how dumb he was—today is a well-to-do, high pressure executive in the business world.

CHAMPS SEE "TROTTERS!"

"Red" Townsend and his BCI Junior "A" basketball champions will be the guests of Manager Tommy Mascaro at the Capitol Theatre during the three-day run of the motion picture, "Go, Boy, Go," a story of the fabulous Harlem Globe Trotters, internationally famous professional basketball team. The film portrays the Trotters at their funniest and cleverest. "Goose" Tatum and his dribbling antics along with the rest of the boys and their hilarious comedy, contrast a romantic theme that makes the picture tops in entertainment of this nature. The picture starts today and runs through Saturday.

Don Newcombe of Dodgers Stops Giants in First Stint After Returning From Army

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don Newcombe finally rid himself of the shaker that had hung over him for 2½ years when he hurled Brooklyn Dodgers to a 6-4 victory over the Giants at the Polo Grounds in New York Wednesday night.

Although he wouldn't admit it, the triumph must have been in the nature of sweet revenge for the Negro righthander. It was in the same park back on Oct. 3, 1951, that Newcombe suffered the saddest moments of his life.

That was the fateful day when the Giants' Bobby Thomson hammered his dramatic-miracle-world homer in the ninth inning of the final playoff game to snatch the National League pennant away from Brooklyn.

Newcombe, who had been batted out of the box earlier in that fatal game, came after served two years in the army.

The Giant-Dodger scrap was the only night affair in Wednesday's five-game schedule. In the afternoon, Philadelphia Phillies belted four hit pitching of Curt Simmons, vanquished Pittsburgh Pirates 8-0. Third-baseman Willie Jones, the former Toronto Maple Leaf star, led the Phillies attack with seventh to lead-off in the batting order, drove in three Philly runs with a home run, a double and two singles.

In the American League, Bob Lemon threw a three-hitter at Chicago as Cleveland Indians whipped the White Sox 6-3 to sweep the two-game series. The veteran righthander only one hit after the first inning. Wally Westlake poled his second homer in two days and his Cleveland team-mate, Bill Glynn, socked four singles.

A pair of palpable ninth-inning errors by second-baseman Wayne Terwilliger presented New York Yankees with the winning run at Washington as the world champions nipped the Nats 2-1 behind Eddie Lopat. It marked the 12th straight triumph for the veteran southpaw over the Senators.

Baltimore Orioles achieved their first American League victory in 12 years, edging out Detroit Tigers 3-2. Righthander Duane Pillette permitted six hits

Choong Brothers Win Doubles

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie and David Choong of Malaya defeated Ooi Teik Hook and Ong Poh Lim, both of Malaya, 15-4, 15-3 in the feature doubles match as an international invitation badminton tournament finished here Wednesday night.

Ooi and Ong, who won the world invitation championship in Scotland in March, defeated the Choongs 15-11, 18-4 for the United States doubles title last Sunday.

In another doubles match last night the Choongs defeated Don Smythe, Canadian singles champion, and Bud Porter, both of Toronto, 16-17, 15-2, 15-6. Ong defeated Smythe in a singles match 5-15, 15-11, 15-7.

TeePees' Win Streak Over, Marlies Win Fourth Game 5-3

TORONTO (CP)—St. Catharines TeePees had their winning streak of six consecutive playoff victories broken Wednesday night when they were defeated 5-3 by Toronto Marlboros.

The Marlboro victory, watched here by 6,013 fans, also stopped the TeePees from taking the Ontario Hockey Association junior A championship in the best-of-seven number of games. Leading the best-of-seven series 3-1, the TeePees will try to wrap it up in St. Catharines Friday.

The Dukes were forced to come from behind to take the victory. They spotted St. Catharines a 1-0 lead in the first period but bounced back with two goals in the second and were never headed. They added their last three goals in the third session before allowing the TeePees to round out the total. Dave Reid, Wally Maxwell, Bob Pulford and Gerry James each notched a goal and an assist for the Marlboros. Defenceman Bob Baun scored the other Marlboro goal. The Cullen - Barlow - Cullen line accounted for the St. Catharines total, Brian Cullen and Hugh Barlow each scoring a goal and an assist and Barry Cullen firing the other goal.

THIRTEEN PENALTIES

Referee Jim Boddy of Owen Sound handed out 13 minor penalties, nine to Marlboros. The TeePees scored their first goal during a Toronto penalty. Marlboros later notched one while they themselves were playing one man short.

Barry Cullen scored the first goal of the game while Billy Harris was off for slashing. Barry shot one that Toronto netminder Johnny Albani stopped but Hank Cisela got the rebound and passed it back to Barry who slipped it in this time.

Dave Reid tied the score in the second period while teammate James was sitting out an interference penalty. Reid broke away from a St. Catharines power play, split the defence of Brian Cullen and Vasko and drove the puck past Marv Edwards in the TeePee nets.

James just got back to the ice from his penalty when he got the puck, sped down right wing and passed to Baun who made it 3-1 for the Dukes. James made it 3-1 at 3:34 of the third period on a protested goal. TeePees said the puck didn't go into the net. Two minutes later Maxwell scored the fourth Marlboro goal and Pulford increased the lead to 5-1 at 16:35.

Barlow and Brian Cullen fired goals 17 seconds apart to wrap up the scoring.

Sell-Out Crowd Of 50,000 Fans Is Expected

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore baseball fans today stopped talking or listening about the "good old days," and turned to rooting for their own big-league Orioles.

There was plenty of excitement in advance of the Orioles' game with Chicago White Sox, first American League fixture here in 52 years. A sell-out crowd of some 50,000 is expected.

For half a century, the old-timers have been rat-bending about the "Old Orioles." To be sure, there was plenty to talk about. Just before the turn of the century the Orioles three straight National League pennants and twice took the Temple Cup series.

Today was practically a holiday in Baltimore. Schools were closed, and most city and court employees were excused from work to watch the game and also the big three-mile-long parade to the stadium, with 33 floats and 22 bands.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR PROPERTY INSURANCE AGENT—

He is in Business For Your Profit

He has to work for your advantage and your neighbor's, because he can only prosper as you and the community prosper.

If he fails to give good service—service that safeguards your investments and your future—he cannot succeed in his business.

If he does succeed, you can be sure that he knows how to provide the kind of protection against fire and casualty losses that property owners need—from the right companies, in the proper amounts, when needed most.

In other words, your property insurance agent is an independent business man who rises by his own ability to perform a valuable service for you and other citizens of your community.

A careful check of your property insurance needs costs you nothing. But adequate protection will guarantee you against disaster.

Over Whole Season, Playoffs Detroit Red Wings Only One Goal Up on Les Canadiens

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Looking for the Stanley Cup winner on the basis of past performances gets you nowhere and emphasizes the even strength of Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens.

Both in games and goals throughout the regular National Hockey League season and on into the cup final, now down to the seventh game for settlement it's virtually a dead heat.

The home-ice advantage that weighed heavily during the NHL campaign disappeared in the cup final, with each team once and losing twice at home. The deciding seventh game is in Detroit Friday night.

In the 14 league meetings each team won six games. Detroit took only one game in seven in Montreal. Canadiens couldn't win at all in Detroit but salvaged two ties.

SCORING RECORDS

In the regular season each team scored 37 goals. The favorite's home-ice margin was exactly the same, 13 goals. The Red Wings scored 24 goals in travel against Canadiens' nine. In Montreal, Canadiens' total was 18 and the Red Wings' five.

The scoring parity has been almost matched in the cup final. In the six games played, Detroit has scored 17 goals and Montreal 16. Curiously, the visiting team has outscored the home team. The Red Wings have an 8-6 goal edge in Montreal; Canadiens a 5-4 edge in Detroit.

The parallel between the two clubs goes on back into Stanley Cup history. Since the Red Wings came into the NHL in 1926 they have won the cup five times. So have Canadiens, although they were also winners in 1924.

Each team has been a back-to-back repeater once. Canadiens won in 1930 and 1931 and the Red Wings in 1936 and 1937 a win for Canadiens Friday would give them the edge in doubles, since they defeated Boston Bruins in last year's final. Toronto Maple Leafs are the only club ever to win the cup three times in a row, in 1947-48-49.

STILL ON TOP

Montreal's Maurice Richard, who led the NHL with 37 goals this season, is the only three-time scorer. Gordie Howe of the Wings, who had 33 in season play, has scored only once but has been a big threat in every game.

Bernie Geoffrion, a 23-goal man, scored the Canadiens' first goal against Detroit's Terry Sawchuk in the first game of the series. Tod Sloan, Metro Prystai and defenceman Red Kelly also had no lineup changes in mind, indicating that unless something unforseen happens between now and Friday he is satisfied to stick with the lineup that brought him two wins to square the series.

Ottawa Referees Roughed Up As Sudbury Evens Series

MATANE, Que. (CP)—Terribletempered fans took things into their own hands here Wednesday night after Sudbury Wolves defeated Montreal Red Rocks 5-3, evening their eastern Canada Allan Cup series at one win each and one tie.

Irate spectators roughed up Ottawa referees Ray Shoaldice and Stan Pratt just after the game, sending Pratt to hospital for five stitches to close a cut over the left eye and leaving Shoaldice with a cut on the side of the mouth.

Neither could be reached after the brawl for comment.

Sudbury won on three unanswered goals in the third period. It was these goals and allegedly bad officiating in the penalty-filled fifth period that roused the crowd's dander.

SAY ALL OFFSIDE

Many spectators thought each of the third-period goals was scored after a Sudbury player should have been ruled offside. Home playing coach Gerry Plamondon deplored the melee but added that the refereeing was "lousy."

Some 100 seething fans, out of the crowd of about 2,000, piled onto the ice and surrounded Pratt and Shoaldice. Fists flailed and the officials were rescued by 30 regular and volunteer police who escorted them out of the arena.

The Sudbury players, apparently unscathed, were escorted out in similar fashion and left, along with Shoaldice, for home by bus. Matane players had left the ice before the fracas began.

Next game of the best-of-seven series is scheduled for Saturday in Sudbury, where all remaining contests will be played.

GOALIE STARS

Star of the night was Sudbury goalie Al Millar, He made 41 stops in the last period to push his total to 33.

Ed Harrison scored the winning goal mid-way in the final frame, and Flori Geogan added an insurance marker with 36 seconds to go after Matane netminder Marcel Paille had been removed.

Andy Milne, George Defelice and Tatter McLellan scored for Sudbury, Gilles Desrosiers, Bernie Limoges and Bob Brault were the Matane marksmen.

Brantford Gets Stan Breard As Playing Manager

BRANTFORD (CP) — Stan Breard, former international League infielder with Montreal Royals, has agreed to terms as playing manager of Brantford Red Sox of the senior Intercounty Baseball league and will start work April 25.

Beard replaces Stan Lipka who coached Red Sox for the last three years. Lipka last year asked to be relieved of the managerial job so that he could devote all his time to playing. He is on third base this year. Breard probably will also play second base.

In 1953 Breard played in the Dominican Republic for part of the season and managed a semi-pro team in Quebec.

Sign Southpaw

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph-Waterloo of the senior Intercounty baseball League signed left-handed pitcher Walt Jeffries to a 1954 contract Wednesday.

Jeffries joined Guelph Maple Leafs late last season and finished the year with a 4-1 won-and-lost record and a 2.17 earned-run average. Born in London, Ont., Jeffries has played professional baseball with Clarksville, Texas., Hamilton and Duluth.

Open Final Series

TORONTO (CP)—The Montreal Amateur Athletic Association basketball team and Toronto Runnymede open the Canadian intermediate A finals here tonight. The second game of the best-of-two set will be Friday and the third, if necessary, Saturday. All games will be in Toronto.

Tri-Bells Rally To Even Series With Winnipeg

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Tri-Bells came from behind in the last quarter to defeat Winnipeg Paulins 59-55 Wednesday night and tie up the Canadian senior men's basketball championship at two games' each. The deciding game of the best-of-five series will be played here Friday night.

Tri-Bells, down 45-50 at the end of the third quarter, came up with a tremendous fourth-quarter attack to overwhelm the flying Paulins.

Ray Momnot paced the winners with 21 points, 19 in the last half. Ray Thomas got 11 and Maynerick 8.

Carl Hidd got 17 for Paulins, Burkett 12 and Mike Spack 11.

47 Pee Wee Teams Will Take Part

GODERICH (CP)—A record set by teams from Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba are slated to play in the provincial finals next week Pee Wee hockey tournament here starting Monday. Last year the tournament drew 32 entries.

Only out-of-Ontario teams are from Winnipeg and Pembinaland, Que. Also in the tournament are teams from North Bay, Kingston, Toronto and four teams from Ontario centres.

Goderich Lions Club, sponsors of the tournament, said it was "snowed under" with entries.

Four clubs have had the distinction of the team's home town give all players a chance to take on one of the prizes. None of the players will be older than 12.

Food and lodging are provided for the budding hockey stars during the week-long tournament.

Cleveland Wins Calder Cup For Second Year

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Barons won the American Hockey League playoffs and the Calder Cup for the second year in a row Wednesday night by defeating Hershey Bears 3-2.

The victory gave Cleveland the final series by a margin of four games to two.

Hershey took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by George (Red) Sullivan. Fred Shero and Chuck Blair scored for Cleveland early in the second period.

Arnie Sullivan tied it for Hershey at 2-2, but Gus Kartrys and Fred Glover then rifled goals that put Cleveland ahead to stay.

Dauphin Kings Have 2-0 Lead Over Trail

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Dauphin Kings defeated Trail Smoke Eaters 5-3 Wednesday night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for the Western Canada Intermediate hockey championship.

Bill Murray paced Dauphin with a pair of goals. Johnny Love, Mac Beston and playing-coach Paul Plato each scored one goal. Dave Michol, Leo Malley and Norm Lemchuk each scored a singleton for the Smoke Eaters.

Operating Costs of Senior 'A' Hockey Teams Ran as High As $90,000 for Season

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's senior hockey clubs, pitched about on heavy financial seas, have reached the season's end. Some had successful sailing. Some had trouble. A few foundered in a sea of red ink.

Most teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, and the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group, drew large enough crowds to meet operating costs which ran as high as $90,000 for the season.

Clubs like Sudbury Wolves and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds of the NOHA and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the OHA won solid support.

But others, such as North Bay Trappers, the fledgling Niagara Falls Cataracts and Orillia Sailors, wound up with empty pockets.

BAD BARRIE SEASON

The Sailors died last December in mid-season. They drew only 1,500 fans for the season, after starting off with a total operating budget of from $25,000 to $35,000.

Barrie's weekly payroll ran to $1,400. The club paid Barrie $300 for some players' contracts. The arena, with a 3,150 capacity, scaled the prices from 75 cents to $1.25. By Dec. 10, the club was $12,000 in the red.

The Trappers needed a crowd average of 1,900; they drew only 1,000. The 44,000 fans attended OHA home games paid a top price of $1.25. The club's payroll was $38,497 to meet a $50,000 budget.

The Cataracts' payroll averaged $1,050-$1,750. The Trappers spent heavily on players, paying Victoriaville Tigers $1,500 for forward Stan Maroons.

The Cataracts, along with Chatham Maroons, Hamilton Tigers and Stratford Indians, have not revealed their profits and losses, but an average attendance of 2,000 fans a game for 28 games—the Falls arena holds 4,532—indicates they took a financial dunking.

Hamilton officials admit senior hockey wasn't a paying proposition. Fans complained the $1.75 top admission was too high.

Chatham Maroons drew 67,000 fans to 27 games, an average of 2,481. Stratford Indians drew 70,000 fans ,to 28 home games, an average of 2,500.

WOLVES TOP LIST

Senior hockey flourished in the hockey-mad cities of Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. Sudbury Wolves drew the largest crowds in the province — 154,779 fans for 30 games, an average of 5,159 in the 6,637-capacity arena. Gross receipts were $179,981. The club's share was $96,994. Included in the gross figure was $19,164 for Ontario Hockey Pool.

The NOHA southern group was the only senior loop in the province to pay hospital tax. To qualify for hospital tax exemption, a club must not pay more than $20 a week for per diem to its players and those players must have other employment. The remaining 42 pro clubs pay hospital any amount. The tax amounts to 11 per cent off the top of the ticket price.

The Wolves had a weekly payroll of $2,000, an average of $133 a player. They paid top prices for players, including $1,000 to Chicago Black Hawks for Pete Horeck.

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds operated on a budget of $90,000 and had a weekly payroll of $4,000, highest in Ontario. They drew an average of 4,000 fans each game into their 5,500-capacity arena. Gross receipts reached $139,140, with prices scaled from 85 cents to $1.50.

Two player purchase costs were confined to $600 for Ottawa Senators' Eddie Mountford.

DUTCHMEN AVERAGE 3,527

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, 1952-53 Allan Cup winners, played to an average of 3,527 a game in their 8,180 - capacity auditorium, largest in Ontario outside Toronto. Their weekly payroll was $2,500 to $3,000 for the Toronto Marlboros juniors, for 1953-54.

Windsor Spitfires, another senior fledgling, ended the season on a financial note. Starting with new players and equipment, the club dropped $14,000, of which the club's share amounted to $60,000. The club operated on a $17,000 budget. Its weekly payroll averaged $1,800. The club drew 70,000 fans for 30 home games, at a top price of $1.75.

Owen Sound Mercurys operated on a "share-the-wealth" system and came out on top. The players received $1,200 last season which included $10 for each road trip to cover incidentals incurred in leaving their jobs temporarily.

The Mercurys' home arena, situated in the circuit, has a capacity of 2,220. Total attendance for 28 home games was 41,782, an average of 1,621 a game. Tickets were 50 cents to $1. Gross gate receipts amounted to $41,000. The club paid the arena $9,400 in rentals. The Mercurys paid $800 to Syracuse Warriors for Bill Hagen, only player purchase of the season.

OPTION TO BUY PARK

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Winnipeg real estate firm announced Wednesday it has obtained an option to buy Polo Park, main shopping centre in Winnipeg's west end, as a site for a shopping centre. The price was unofficially estimated at $1,000,000. The option on the 61 acres is to be exercised by last 1955.

Goderich Will Concede Series To Aylmer

GODERICH, (CP)—Injuries to team members have forced Goderich, Sarnia Pontiacs to concede their Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A series to Aylmer Trojans, it was announced Wednesday.

Pontiacs will still play out the series but will have help from members of the Stratford Indians.

At Aylmer Wednesday night the Trojans defeated Pontiacs 5-3.

The injury - riddled Goderich team now has only one regular defenceman ready for action. The club hopes to have all its regular players in shape for the Western Ontario Athletic Association championship against Hanover in two weeks.

Elmira Takes Big Lead Over Lindsay Muskies

LINDSAY (CP)—Elmira Polar Kings took a stranglehold Wednesday night on the best-of-seven Ontario Intermediate A semi-final hockey crown, with a 6-3 overtime win over Lindsay Muskies. Kings now lead the series 3-0. Jack Oberlee, Stoddard and Laverne Schnarr scored for Elmira in the extra session after they had come from behind to tie the count late in the third period. Carroll Trapp and Bowman counted the other Elmira goals while Vic Cheney with two and Stu Hicks were Lindsay marksmen.

Fourth game of the series will be played in Elmira Saturday night.

PAFKO NOW OK

CINCINNATI (AP)—Andy Pafko of Milwaukee Braves outfielder, was released from hospital Wednesday apparently none the worse for being hit on the head in Tuesday's baseball game with Cincinnati. As his Milwaukee home where he returned later, he said he was tired but "feels good."

Calgary Defeats Edmonton 3-1

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders defeated Edmonton Flyers 3-1 Wednesday night to take a 2-0 edge in the Canadian Western Hockey League semi-final.

Sid Finney, Jim McFadden and Max Quackenbush scored for Stampeders. Jim Anderson notched Flyers' lone goal late in the second period.

Tied 1-1 early in the final period, Stampeders broke the game wide open with two goals in just over two minutes. A penalty to Edmonton's Vic Stasiuk allowed Stampeders to rap in what proved the winner early in the final period.

Ottawa Senators Take Big Lead Over Montreal

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Senators took a stranglehold on their best-of-seven Quebec Hockey League semi-finals with Montreal Royals here Wednesday night, winning the hotly-fought game 4-3 before 4,000 fans.

The fifth game of the series will be played in Montreal tonight. Another win for Ottawa would send the Senators into the finals against Quebec Aces in a best-of-nine affair.

Veteran Leo Gravelle scored two of Ottawa's goals while Gerry Lilley accounted for a single. Defenceman Bucky Hollingworth got the lone Montreal goal.

Ottawa skated hard and outplayed the Montrealers in the first two periods and then held off a desperate attempt by Royals in the final period as they were outshot 14-6.

DEMANDS RULE ENFORCED

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick Wednesday demanded strict enforcement of the new rule requiring players to take their gloves off the playing field with them when they come in to bat and threatened to forfeit ball games, if necessary, as a penalty. He said he was displeased about persistent reports that various leagues and clubs are going to make their own interpretation of the rule.

SHANTZ INJURED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Archbishop Bobby Shantz is suffering from a shoulder injury but Dr. Charles J. van Ronk, an orthopath, said Wednesday the pitcher might be ready to take his regular turn on the mound Sunday at Boston.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Planetary configurations advise a look-see attitude. But look well, and see well or you might overlook small but vital essentials. Don't let outsiders interfere unwarrantedly in your business affairs.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Where you can assist another, do so—but not to the detriment of your health, personal affairs, or family.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — In the driver's seat? Then realize the responsibilities that go with that position. The native of Gemini is brainy, quick, and doesn't often make mistakes — but we all can. Day generally helpful.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Don't take needless chances, nor attempt others to do either directly or by wiliess word or act. Better go quietly about activities. Don't spread rumors; be so happy self.

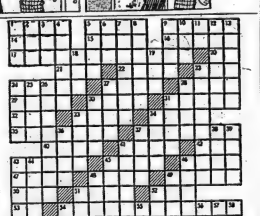
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — There can be richness of living in the small activities that make up everyday life. We can have more fun in our routine of doings by looking ahead and smiling—even laughing over and then.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—A better day than you think, and a more opportune time to build for the future than you may realize. Don't waste any moments, or fuss with non-essentials. Meditate on the spiritual.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Don't play up personalities. It usually brings ill feeling and certainly you don't mean that. Aspects mostly favor agriculture, housewives, children's interests, literature. Use logic.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Some things may seem difficult, hard for you to get started, but irritability won't help. Calm reasoning and judgment will smooth the way, bring favor.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Don't scatter your energies; better to stay close to what is planned and to essentials. Try to finish incompleted matters and don't undertake more than you can do.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Your innately steady and purposeful nature will stand you in good stead now. Take time to choose the right course in every endeavor. Familiar matters favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Familiar work and activities will probably give less trouble now than the new and untried. However, there should be no need for anxiety. Use common sense, good cheer—and sail along.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—This may be a lucky day for your ingenuity and general know-how. Be smart, observe, but don't fail to act, too, when you know you should. Pile up fresh knowledge; heed past experience.

YOU BORN TODAY have strong intuition, perception, keen mental faculties and should be sound judges of character and of business possibilities. You have many talents to be developed. As you advance, remember that others have opinions and rights; we all must be gracious, listen and cooperate. You may have to correct a tendency toward unhealthy restlessness, shifting more often than is profitable from one occupation or place to another. But you have a truly progressive nature. Keep learning, improving, and always pray for guidance.

Birthdate: Wilbur Wright, airplane inventor.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 17, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Opportunity evident; advancement in order. Indications benefic if you have a rational attitude and avoid a tendency toward appropriation or overplaying your hand.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Things may pile up suddenly; there may be irritating situations. Be forewarned and thoughtful. Watch your health and keep your temper; don't lose it.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — You will do well if you exercise tact and retrench in money matters. Some exciting new conditions. Late afternoon may find things changing a bit. Don't be too hasty.

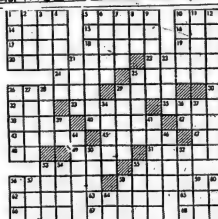
June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Some influences presage ill will if not properly controlled. Be rightly concerned about the practices of your household, family, community. Act with sound reasoning; ask God's help in all.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Conditions may there you out of hand or stride. Stop, look and be well informed in all problems before you. Consult those who can lighten weighty burdens. Be star-wart.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — The unexpected may occur. Don't be upset or change schedule needlessly. Take all philosophically, and be the better for your experience. Home and social activities favored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Today may test your ability to get along with a variety of conditions. Some can be easily controlled with proper effort. Anxiety or fussing over anything will only retard you; be hopeful.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—This might be a propitious day in which to take up that new matter. Look up the answers, put two and two together before making statements, decisions. A give-and-take attitude will solve most problems.

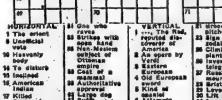


November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your planet in generally favorable configuration for today's problems, situations. Work sincerely for what you wish and don't depend on outside help. You can do it best yourself.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Fairly generous indications for well planned and managed activities. Take advantage of all honorable openings. Industry, manufacturing, small shops favored today.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — You may experience some irritation around the middle of the day. Rest a while. Plan, study for improved conditions. After 1 p.m. pep pick up. Astuteness, fore thought, congeniality will pay.

February 21 to March 20 — Your aspects are singularly different now in that they are auspicious for home, personal and routine things specifically. Concentrate where you should, and let well enough alone.



YOU BORN TODAY are inventive, managerial, clever in the things you try. You can reach the top of the success ladder if you keep your faults in line, and develop your many truly grand assets. Including the ability to teach others and the talent for practical thinking while planning or working on the purely artistic. You can sell what you do or make yourself, a fast many cannot. Ambition, positiveness and leadership qualities are yours, but curb headstrong tendencies. Don't abuse health. Birthdate of: J. Pierpont Morgan, noted financier and philanthropist.

Father of Two Convicted Of Placing Dynamite

TORONTO (CP) — George Davison, 24-year-old father of two children, was convicted Wednesday of placing two explosives in a downtown Toronto building to blow it "from here to Hudson Bay."

Charged with him were three brothers, Victor, 28, Harry, 34, and Cecil Cherniack, 30. They pleaded guilty to placing an explosive in the building and charges of attempted arson and conspiracy were withdrawn.

Davison earlier pleaded guilty to attempted arson.

All were remanded until today for sentence.

Crown Counsel Arthur Klein described the case as "one of the greatest attempts to blow up a building Toronto has ever seen." He said it could have caused $1,000,000 damage to buildings around and untold suffering and probably death to their occupants.

Police arrested the four Feb. 10 after a raid on the fourth-floor of a west-central Toronto building following a telephone tip that something was going to happen there.

E. B. Purtelle Dies Suddenly In Kingston

PICTON. — Prince Edward County has lost one of it most highly esteemed and best known citizens in the death of Edward B. Purtelle. He passed away in Kingston General hospital, Tuesday afternoon, April 13, having been suddenly stricken while visiting friends in that institution on Monday.

An ex-Warden of Prince Edward County, Mr. Purtelle had a distinguished record in municipal and public service. He was a pioneer in the canning industry and for years prominent in the dairy industry.

Funeral service is being held at his late residence, Bloomfield, at two o'clock, Saturday afternoon, with interment in Glenwood cemetery, Picton.

BORN NEAR BLOOMFIELD

Born near the village of Bloomfield, Mr. Purtelle was the son of a Quaker family, his parents being Mr. and Mrs. James Purtelle. As a farmer in early life he became a prominent Holstein breeder. In 1909 he moved to Bloomfield and also operated Old Orchard Dairy until a few years ago. He served on the Board of Directors of the Holstein Friesian Association of Canada and was in demand as a cattle judge for many years. He was a life member of Prince Edward Agricultural Society and served on that board for many years.

Mr. Purtelle served as a member of the board of Prince Edward County Hospital, for 30 years, as director and chairman. He was a member of the Collegiate Board for a number of years and for the past 35 years has been a director of the Bay of Quinte Insurance Co., serving as president. He had been a member of the Masonic Order for 49 years, becoming a member of the Wellington lodge in 1905.

LONG MUNICIPAL RECORD

Mr. Purtelle had a long and distinguished record in municipal life. During a 17-year period he served as member of Hallowell township council and later of Bloomfield village council, serving as reeve for some years, and as county warden. He was never defeated in any municipal contest.

Mr. Purtelle was nominated different times as Liberal candidate for the Federal and Provincial Houses but always declined the honor.

Mr. Purtelle became interested in the canning industry while it was in its infancy. In 1910 he formed a partnership which resulted in the Scarrow Canning Co. plant being erected at Bloomfield. On the sale of the plant to Canadian Canners in 1925, he was instrumental in the building of Hallowell Canners plant, now owned by Sun Joy Foods at Bloomfield. A few years later he backed the building of Belleville Canners on Aliblon Street, Belleville, and two years later, on its sale, he and others erected Shannonville factory, later operated by John Weese. Later, with J. E. Baxter, he built the Baxter-Purtelle plant in Bloomfield and this is now the Baxter Canning Co. An expert in the canning business, Mr. Purtelle was active in the industry setting up its own organization to deal with problems.

A sports enthusiast, Mr. Purtelle served as president of the Bloomfield Hockey Club and on the county executive. He was president several years of the county baseball league.

Survivors are his wife, the former Maude Clinton, and a daughter, Mrs. James McRae, Lana Bates of Burlington.

Plainfield

PLAINFIELD—Sympathy of the entire community is extended to the Rev. Argyle Campbell and family on the loss of a loving mother. Also to the family of the late Garfield Lloyd who was a former resident of this community.

Mr. W. Bradshaw was moved from Belleville hospital to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Carmen Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Palmer entertained relatives from Toronto on Saturday.

All welcome Mr. and Mrs. Larry VanNorman who moved into Mrs. Hubble's house.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skelly were on Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gibson.

Rev. and Mrs. Kersey, Jimmie and Susan spent a few days with relatives at Hampton.

Mrs. J. Dexter of Canniffon, Shevie and Vicki Cronkright were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Cronkright and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Palmer entertained the euchre club on Saturday evening.

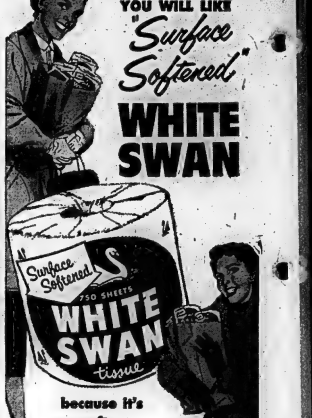
HAPPY DOUBLE CLUB

The regular meeting of the Happy Double Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skelly on Monday evening. The president, Mr. Arnold Dilts was in charge.

Plans were made for a picnic date to be set later. This was the last meeting until October at which time they will open with a turkey supper in the hall.

Group leaders Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Plindall took charge.

Devotional service by Mrs. Grant Kerr and the Scripture reading given by Mrs. E. Plindall. A solo by Mr. Arnold Dilts, accompanied by Mr. Ralph Wilder, "The Old Rugged Cross." Readings were given by Mrs. Jack Skelly and Mrs. Ralph Wilder. A contest "Name That Girl" was enjoyed by all. A duet by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder, "Standing in the Shadows." Refreshments were served by the hostess.



Mrs. Grant Kerr moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skelly for their kind hospitality. All members feel they have had a most successful year.

Had Indigestion, Nerves On Edge, Couldn't Sleep

Woman Tells of Relief She Got by Taking Syntona. Now Also Free of Dizzy Spells. "Enjoys Meals Once More."

People who suffer from common stomach disorders, constipation, nervous fatigue, rundown condition and associated aches and pains are often surprised by the good results they get by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. Many letters clearly indicate that they never expected Syntona would do so much to help them. Anyone still doubting the need only try Syntona a short time to be convinced of its effectiveness.

St. Thomas, Ontario, said in a recent statement:

"For a long time I was troubled with indigestion and would have a heavy, bloated feeling after my meals. This condition seemed to grow so severe at last that I couldn't sleep well at night. I tried most of the common things, but got no real relief until I started taking Syntona.

Now I enjoy my meals once more and am not troubled with that awful discomfort in my stomach. Moreover, my nerves are calmed down, and I get better sleep and do not have dizzy spells which I had for a long before."

How It Acts

Syntona is made up from 13 of Nature's Selected Herbs and Roots. It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels in order to drive out toxic and poisonous waste from the system. It's stimulating action promotes digestion and assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Doan the Druggist.

Using U.S. Troops In Indo-China Is Challenged

Both Parties in Congress Strongly Against Action

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high administration official's declaration that American troops might be used in a last-ditch effort to save Indo-China brought prompt challenge today from both Republican and Democratic legislators.

The official, who remained publicly unidentified, made the plea for disclosure of his identity so that he could be questioned by Congress, said he believes Indo-China can be saved from the Communists by other means without employing United States combat units there.

But he said that if French forces should withdraw the U. S. would have to send in troops. This was because—and he repeated the words of President Eisenhower—"We cannot allow any retreat in Asia."

His statement, made Friday to reporters who were cautioned not to identify him by name, included a prediction that the French government is "going to be putting on the pressure" to persuade an Indo-China truce with the Communists at the April 26 Geneva conference.

CLEAR INDICATION

It is his opinion, the official said in a background talk, that any serious opposition to such a move, that such a truce would deliver Indo-China to the Communists.

Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (Rep., Iowa) said Senate foreign relations committee member, said in an interview that he knows of nothing any decision has been made to use American troops in Indo-China under any circumstances.

"If we have such a policy, I'd like to know about it," Hickenlooper said, "But I don't think we have."

OPPOSES TROOPS

Senator Russell Long (Dem. La.), a former armed services committee member, said he thinks U.S. troops should be sent to Indo-China without a Congressional declaration approving it. And he said he would vote against any such resolution.

President Eisenhower told a press conference Feb. 10 that no one could be more violently opposed to getting the U.S. involved in a war in Indo-China than he was. Consequently, he said, every move he makes in that area also is as far as humans could do it, to make certain that did not happen.

Police Holding 2 Toronto Men For Questioning

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said today they are still holding two Toronto men for questioning in the case of Frank Battaglia, believed to have been hanged or strangled to death less than 12 hours after he had been freed on a murder charge.

Police have termed his death gangland vengeance.

Six men have been picked up by police since Battaglia's body was found Thursday in a Montreal East vacant lot. Four have released after questioning. Names of the Toronto men still held have not disclosed.

Battaglia, 39, a former resident of Oakville, Ont., and James Rogers, 22, Montreal, were charged with the murder of Charles (The Kid) Wagner, believed to have been shot to death in a gangland slaying. Battaglia and Rogers were freed when Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure ruled that evidence against them allegedly made to the police could not be admitted as evidence.

Battaglia was released from custody almost immediately. Police said he later was seen downtown about 10 p.m. Wednesday. They are trying to trace his movements from that point.

ROGERS IN HIDING

Rogers, kept in custody overnight and arraigned Thursday for failing to appear at a preliminary hearing on a fraud charge, was released on bail and went into hiding.

Rogers' lawyer said today his client has prepared a statement exposing the racketeers who may be out to get him.

"He does not fear for his own safety," said counsel Daniel P. Gagnon, Q.C., "but fears for the statement as insurance . . . He does not intend to reveal what is in it unless he meets the same fate as Battaglia."

A post - mortem examination showed that Battaglia probably was killed with a blunt object, such as a telephone cord.

Kirkstall is suffering from multiple rib injuries, a fractured right thigh and a bruised right ankle. Mrs. Dorothy Kirkstall suffered knee-cap, while Raymond is being treated for a fractured left knee and dislocated right hip.

The other 16 injured passengers were taken to hospital in Hawkesbury and were released Friday after being treated for shock and minor injuries.

3 Die, 19 Injured In Car-Bus Crash At Hudson, Que.

MONTREAL (CP) — Three men hurtled to their death on the Montreal - Ottawa highway last night when their car, apparently out of control, rammed into the front of an Ottawa-bound bus at Hudson, Que.

Nineteen of the 36 persons in the bus were injured, three of them seriously.

Police identified the dead as LAC. Paul-Emile Turmel, a Quebec airman stationed at Rockcliffe near Ottawa; Gnr. Frank William Roger McKenzie, 22, Toronto Scottish with the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at Petawawa, and John A. Tulley, 24, Montreal, whose address recently moved to Ottawa.

They were reported in good condition early today.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A flow of cool, dry air from the West covered Ontario last night. A weak disturbance developed over the Prairies Friday and is speeding eastward, bringing cloud over southern Ontario tonight and a few early morning showers Sunday. However, the cloud will clear rapidly and skies will be mainly sunny during the day. The cloud will spread into northern regions this afternoon with showers by this evening. Sunday will be sunny and cool in this area.

100 MEN, WOMEN SLAUGHTERED BY JUNGLE FIGHTERS

Vietminh Troops Stop Cambodian Train

PARIS (AP) — Agence France-Presse today said Communist-led Vietminh jungle fighters stopped a Cambodian train with rifles and machine-guns and slaughtered more than 100 men and women passengers.

The agency gave this account of the massacre reported to have taken place Monday on the Phnom Penh-to-Battambang line about 30 miles inside the Indo-China kingdom.

Five hundred Vietminh attackers rushed from the surrounding jungle brandishing knives, rifles, hand grenades, submachine-guns and regular machine-guns.

Wounded persons in the coaches were sprayed with gasoline and burned to death. Passengers who tried to flee were caught and put to death with knives and hatchets. Old people and children were slain.

The agency said it took two days for the bodies of the victims to be identified.
